THE WENAS RESERVOIR

The Farmers of That Valley Want One, Even if They Must Build it Themselves.

A movenment is now on foot headed by John Cleman, the well known Wenas sheep man, for the construction of a reservior in the upper Wenas valley for irrigation purposes. The plan is to utilize the O. Neil ranch located 16 miles above the mouth of the creek as a reservoir site. The dam, it is thought, could be constructed at a moderate cost and the water thus impounded would be utilized during July and August when water is scarce. It is believed that by means of such a reservoir it would be possible to not only supply the land now under irrigation, but some three or four thousand acres of additional land not now in cultivation.

Engineer Wands of this city will shortly make the necessary surveys and estimates for the proposed dam. The work if it is done will be accomplished through the organization of a company made up of Wenas land owners who would be benefited thereby. It is to be hoped that the plan will prove feasible, and will materialize, as the reservoir, if built would probably effectually solve the water question in the beautiful Wenas valley, which has been a most serious one for many years past.

New Cases of Smallpox.

Two new cases of smallpox have developed in this city during the past week, C. O. Kelso and Earl J. Barnes. This makes three cases in the city, Frank Howard having been quarintined at his residence by Health Officer Carver, two weeks ago. Mr. Kelso resides at Kiona and was here on a visit to his brother, Ed. Kelso, who resides at the corner of Maple and South Seventh. The entire family is under quarintine. Mr. Barnes and wife are likewise quarantined at their home, 109 North Sixth street.

How these parties contracted the disease is mere conjecture, although the report is current that they contracted it from coming in contact with Jack McNeff, the well known hop buyer. Mr. McNeff and his physician, however, deny that he had the disease at all. Mr. McNeff was confined to his room for some time during the early part of this month, but for the past two or three weeks has been out attending to business. All of the cases mentioned are of a mild type and no serious results are feared by the attending physicians. Health Officer Carver thinks that the disease is under control as no new cases have developed since last Sunday.

Commercial Club Election.

The annual election of the Yakima Commercial club was held Tuesday evening. The officers voted for were, president, vice president, second vice president, treasurer, five members of the governing board to serve two years and five trustees to serve one year. There was not a great deal of interest displayed, there being but 55 votes cast out of a membership of 180. The following were elected:

President, A. E. Larson; first vice president, E. B. Moore; second vice president, C. A. Marsh; treasurer, Frank Bartholet; governing board, W. W. Robertson, J. A. Loudon, M. H. Grover, A. E. Howard, Alex Miller; trustees, W. L. Steinweg, Edward Whitson, Geo. Donald, J. D. Cornett, A. B. Weed.

Fire at Fruitvale.

There was considerable excitement among the residents of Fruitvale Saturday evening last when it was discovered that Mr. Gardner's hay stack had caught fire and was being rapidly consumed. Mr. Gardner was absent from the premises at the time, but the neighbors quickly organized a bucket brigade and prevented the flames spreading to the large barn close by. It was a narrow escape, however. The fire is supposed to have originated from Mr. Gardner's little son playing about the stack with matches. The loss is six tons of hay burned and about three more damaged.

Gold at Pasco.

Work on the project for saving the gold in the black sand near Pasco is progressing rapidly and favorably. A second grade sample of the sand was sent to San Francisco recently, and the report is $64 to the ton.

Several claims have already been filed by Pasco people, and it is possible and probable that thousands of acres here contain more wealth to be obtained by this process than from irrigation. A shipment of sand for a smelter test will be made this week.—Express.

The Spokane Fruit Convention.

The Inland Empire Horticultural meeting at Spokane this week was a decided success according to the Spokesman-Review. J. E. Shannon, J. M. Brown, W. L. Wright and Edward Remy delegates from this city were named on improtant standing committees. This city, however, failed to secure the next annual meeting as it was decided to hold the next convention at Wenatchee.

W. L. Wright who took some fine samples of his fruit to the convention says that it carried off the honors in comparison with fruit from other sections.

After adjournment Tuesday night the most of the Yakima delegates left for Pullman to take in the farmers' institute being held this week at the State Agricultural college.

Taxes Due Feb. 1.

Taxes, real and personal for 1903, will become due Feb. 1. The law provides a discount of three per cent. on real estate paid before March 15, but none on personal property.

The total amount of taxes on the rolls is $232,108.75, and of this $53,688.46 is personal and the balance, $178,420.29, is on real estate.

Out of the total the state gets $54,520.68, divided as follows among the different funds: General fund, $18,312.93; school, $35,371.55; military, $836.20.

The city of North Yakima gets $18,714.01; Yakima City, $353.39; Prosser, $1090.76; Sunnyside, $1834.35.

The total school tax for the county is $48,894.24. Of this North Yakima district gets $15,508.58.

The road tax is divided as follows: District 1, $4,712.04; No. 2, $5,819.50; No. 3, $8,508.07; total, $19,039.61.

The Northern Pacific Railway company will pay $18,414.77 on its right of way and side tracks in the county and $3,774.39 on its personal property.

The total valuation of property in the county is as follows: real estate, $6,479,456; personal, $1,882,613; total, $8,362,069.

Value of Air Drainage.

Rev F. Walden of Zillah states that it has cost him over $3000 to learn the value of air drainage in planting an orchard. His peach orchard near Zillah was set on a nice level tract, a little lower than the surroundings. The May frosts are most sure to settle on that orchard, whereas if it had been planted on the hillside less than half a mile distant it would escape the cold freezing air, which settles to the lowest level.—N. W. Horticulturist.

Dr. Wells and Dr. Gordon have formed a partnership for the practice of medicine. The latter gentleman expects to leave shortly for Vienna to take a post graduate course. During his absence Dr. Wells will have charge of their combined practice.

The charity ball given by the ladies of the Catholic church at the armory Tuesday evening, was a decided success, both socially and financially. About 400 people were in attendance and a neat sum was realized from the affair, which was turned over to the Sisters to aid them in their work.

TO START VINEGAR FACTORY

Plant to Manufacture Vinegar to Be Started in This City—Perhaps a Pickle Factory Also.

North Yakima is at last to have a vinegar factory, an institution which has long been needed here.

W. F. Weimer is the promoter of the new enterprise. He and his associates have had the matter under consideration for some time and on Mr. Weimer's return from a trip to Tacoma the first of the week, he announced that the plant would be contsructed and in readiness to handle next year's products.

A site for the proposed plant has been secured from the N. P. Ry. Co. near the "Y" and work on the buildings will be commenced as soon as the necessary material can be secured.

The principal business of the new company will be the manufacture of vinegar from apples. The new industry will afford a ready market for all the unmarketable apples in this vicinity. In addition is it probable that the projectors of the enterprise will engage in the pickeling of cucumbers, a vegetable that grows in this valley to perfection and yields most bountiful crops.

Mailloux-Beaudry.

Fred Mailoux and Miss Louisa Beaudry were united in marriage at the Catholic church at noon Sunday, Jan. 24. The happy couple left shortly after for a month's bridal tour of the Sound and California. The groom is a well known merchant of this city. The bride is a very popular young lady of the French colony here.

Change in Wool Business.

S. Huntington & Co. the first of the week purchased from Coffin Bros. their entire shearing plant located along the track in the southern part of the city. The deal includes the shearing plant complete and wool warehouse. The new owners entered at once into possession of the property. The consideration has not been made public.

Huntington & Co. will at once make some further improvements on the plant and get things in readiness for the spring shearing season. When the season opens here they will have a large force of expert sheep shearers on hand and will be prepared to do custom work shearing for all the sheep owners in this vicinity. Being in close touch with the wool buyers of the country they will inaugurate the system of special sale days on which occasions wool buyers will be brought to this city from a distance. The plant will be under the charge of J. H. Lycette, Mr. Huntington's business associate, who is a practical wool man of long experience. The firm will continue to buy wool as heretofore, although that branch of the business will be conducted entirely separate from the management of the shearing plant.

Alexander Chisholm.

Alexander Chisholm died at his home, 105 North Rainier avenue, at 12 o'clock Wednesday noon after a short illness, from pneumonia. The remains were embalmed and shipped to St. Charles, Minn., for interment Friday, the widow of the deceased accompanying the body.

Mr. Chisholm had been a resident of this city only since September last, he and his wife having arrived here at that time to make their home with their son, James Chisholm of the Hotel Bartholet bar. Deceased had been a resident of St. Charles, Minn., for nearly forty years and his last wish was that his remains be taken there for burial. He was 66 years of age.

Farewell Reception.

A farewell reception was tendered Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Bartlett at the Hotel Yakima Monday evening under the auspices of the ladies of St. Michael's guild, which will long be remembered by all who participated. The receiving party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. C. C. Case, president of the guild and H. B. Scudder, chairman of the board of vestrymen. The ladies assisting were Mesdames Snively, Sharkey, Burlingame, Corbett, Irwin, Thomas and Crawford, A splendid musical program was rendered.

Death of James Gleed.

James Gleed an old and highly respected resident of this county died at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. H. Fair, at the Gleed ranch on the Natches Tuesday evening at 7:40 o'clock. The deceased had been in poor health for several years, but the immediate cause of dissolution was pneumonia. The funeral was held Thursday afternoon with burial in Tahoma cemetery.

James Gleed was born in the Berkshire Hills, Mass., in 1836 and at the time of his death was but little past 68 years of age. He served throughtout the war of the rebellion in a Massachusetts company. After the war he removed with his family to Kansas where he resided for a number of years before coming to Yakima county in 1878. On coming here he found a home in the Natches where he took up government land that is now one of the most valuable farms in the county. Some three or four years ago on account of his ill health he moved with a portion of his family to San Diego where he continued to reside until last September, when he returned here. Besides a widow he leaves five children all of whom are grown.

New Cases Filed.

The follwing new cases have been filed in the county clerk's office:

Miles Cannon, et al., vs. County, adjustment of taxes; George McNorton vs. St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber Co., account; Charles Campbell, vs. Edd Mudd, foreclosure of lien; J. C. MacCrimmon, J. H. Needham and A. D. Crandall vs. George Weikel, recovery of commission; Sigmunder Jonathason vs. John Peters, debt.

Modern Brotherhood Installation

At the last meeting of the Modern Brotherhood the following set of new officers was duly installed: President, C. E. Cherrington; vice president, Mary Bachman; secretary, S. L. Ballinger; treasurer, Mary Hutchins; conductress, Mary Van Dee Mier; chaplain, Clara Telleson; watchman, Henry Welch, sentry, J. K. Bedford; musician, Valeria Frank; trustees, P. T. Tellison, Henry Durall.

Truth Travels Slowly.

Chas. Gleason, a North Yakima tomb stone manufacturer, was here this week placing beautiful monuments for Mrs. Ray Gilbert and Mrs. Robert Gaston. While in the city Mr. Gleason made this office a pleasant call. He has a good word for his city and states that the death rate there has been greatly exagerated; that 20 per cent of the people who die go to Yakima as a health resort or as patients to the hospital.—Ellensburg Localizer.

Ready to Fight the Trust.

One of the most important propositions considered by the livestock men in the convention held in Portland recently was the one to incorporate a company composed of livestock men for the purpose of establishing independent packing plants in the stock centers of the country in order to compete with the packers' combination and restore prices on livestock.

The stockmen devoted considerable time to the discussion of the project, and representatives of the trust who were on the ground made most strenuous efforts to have the measure voted down. But the resolution for the establishment of independent packing houses passed by a unanimous vote, and steps will now be taken to raise by subscription the $5,000,000 that it is thought will be necessary to carry the proposition through to a successful conclusion.

The idea of the stockmen is to have a combination of livestock men alone, who shall be shareholders in the company and directors in its business affairs. The plants of the company are to compete with the combine, giving the producer a better price for his stock and maintaining reasonable prices to the consumer. In turn the independent houses are to be supported by the stock raisers as against the combine. Addresses made during the convention indicate that the stockmen are ready and willing to use their money and energy in unlimited quantities to bring about the desired result.

The outcome of the fight between the stock raisers and the packing men will be watched with interest. On both sides there is unlimited capital, and neither will be inclined to give up the struggle without putting forth every effort to win. It is more than probable that before the stockmen have carried out their plans a compromise will have been effected and the stock raisers will receive better prices for their stock. Whether or not the consumer will receive any advantages if a compromise is effected is one of the problems that the future will show.—West Coast Trade.

If any added proof were needed that President Roosevelt and Secretary Root went out of their way to administer a snub to General Miles, it may be found in the fulsome compliments paid to General Young in the order retiring him when he reached the age limit. General Miles was dismissed with a cold and blunt order, and administration apologists claimed that it was not permissable to do otherwise. But when General Young retired it was with extreme difficulty that the secretary of war found words enough to express his compliments. By caling attention to their own littleness the detractors of General Miles only emphasize his greatness.—Commoner.

The Yakima Democrat

Combined with the Yakima Washingtonian January 1, 1904.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA.

Published every Saturday at the Democrat Printing House, No. 7 First street, North Yakima, Wash.

Entered at the North Yakima postoffice as second class mail matter.

The Yakima Democrat is the only Democratic Journal in Central Washington.

The Oregonian's Washington correspondent, who has the reputation of "getting next" to things, says that the financial magnates who had laid their plans to capture the Democratic national convention and nominate a man for the presidency of their own choosing have become badly scared over the fight that Bryan and Hearst are making to prevent them from gaining control of the democratic party and are about to change their tactics, or rather to pursue a more elaborate plan of action.

The Money Lords have concluded in as quiet a way as possible to control the Republican national convention. If Roosevelt cannot be defeated an effort will be made to hold him up. That is, to make terms that would have the effect of clipping the candidate's wings, rendering the somewhat erratic Teddy as harmless as possible.

On the other hand, efforts will continue to control the democratic convention with the object of framing a platform and nominating a candidate that would be satisfactory to Wall street. In the event of success in both conventions the Money Lords could sit down and rest easy, contributing an equal amount to the campaign funds of both parties as they did in 1892 or nothing at all if they should feel so disposed. The New York magnates could then smile blandly and assure themselves that "the country is safe in any event."

However, so far as the democratic party is concerned, it seems not only possible but probable that the magnates will be doomed to disappointment. It is likely that for reasons of political expediency that neither the platform nor the candidate of Democracy in 1904 will be as radical as were those of 1896 and 1900, but that the Democratic party will throw itself into the arms of the same men it so severely and righteously scourged in the two prior campaigns is simply unthinkable. To do so would be nothing less than party suicide, for the great mass of the party would instantly rebel against unworthy leaders who would thus attempt to deliver them into the hands of the enemy and with such a condition of things it would be useless to hope for party victory.

The Gold Democrats who deserted the party in 1896 and who now assume that it will be an easy matter to control the organization in 1904 are reckoning without their hosts. They will undoubtedly be able to control some of the regulars among the politicians whose appetite for "pie" is greater than their devotion to principle, but they will not be able to influence the rank and file of the democratic voters in the middle southern and western states. The average democrat in the sections mentioned are quite familiar with the situation and will doubtless instruct their delegates what to do in the national convention. They are willing to make some few concessions to the eastern wing in order to bring about party harmony but they are not going back on any cardinal or vital principle of the Kansas City platform. Neither will they assent to the selection of any candidate who did not support the party ticket in both the preceding campaigns.

The Democrats of this county and state should plainly understand that a systematic attempt will be made to send a delegation from Washington to the national convention at St. Louis that will act with the reorganizers. This attempt should be frustrated and will be if the real democrats are on their guard.

A BILL is pending in congress, introduced in the house by Brownlow of Tennnessee and in the senate by Gallinger of New Hampshire, appropriating the sum of $24,000,000 as national aid for the building of wagon roads. This money, the bill promises, is to be divided among the states in proportion to their population except that no state is to receive less than $250,000. Another condition of the bill is that the state or territory receiving this money must add a like amount from its own treasury so that $48,000,000 will be expended under the auspicies of the different state governments in the building of wagon roads.

If the national government should determine to go into the road building business it would look as though Congressman Brownlow's scheme is about as fair a one as could be devised. The Democrat is a believer in good roads and an advocate of them every week in the year but still we have not yet been converted to the idea that the central government ought to build them. We believe that if we ever are to have a good system of public roads in this country that the people through their own initiative must build and maintain them. There is getting to be too much of a disposition in this country to ask the government to do for the people what the people ought to be willing to do for themselves. This is some of the pernicious fruit that grows on the republican tree. "Ask and it shall be given unto you."

Even on the assumption that it is the government's duty to build roads the probablities are that the money thus appropriated and given over in the hands of the different states to be used would be frittered away without accomplishing much if any good. Grafting politicians would be pretty sure to get their rakeoff from every sum expended, indeed they would be likely to steal the most of it.

IN 1896—just eight years ago—there met at Ellensburg, in this state, three political conventions. One was composed of free silver republicans, one of democrats and one of populists. These conventions fused, nominated a ticket, adopted a platform, and formed a new party, called the People's Party. This party carried the state by more than thirteen thousand majority, electing its entire state ticket, its congressional ticket, a majority of the legislature, and United States senator.

What has become of it?

It restored the state credit and remodeled the school laws, the revenue laws and the laws fixing freight rates.

What has become of it?

It is the only party the state has ever known that made any pretensions to act in the the interests of the people. Its leaders proclaimed from the house tops that it had come to stay. The people rallied to its standard. Never in the history of any people, in any age, was a political craft launched under more auspicious conditions. Never was a party more successful and more deserving of success.

What has become of it?

It was banished, like Aristides.

The people could not stand its virtues.

It had no railroad lobby, no syndicate of subsidized newspapers, no monoply behind it. While it left undone somethings that it ought to have done, it did nothing it ought not to have done. Its purposes were too lofty and just, it was too true a friend to the rights of the people. They could not stand it. They banished it.—Winston's Weekly.

AN irrigation convention has been called by the Seattle Chamber of Commerce to convene in that city Feb. 15. The meeting is said to have been called at the urgent solicitation of Mr. E. F. Blaine, attorney and general manager, of the Washington Irrigation company.

The object of this meeting, it is said, is to pass resolutions favoring the consummation of the deal pending between the state and the Washington Irrigation company for the extension of the Sunnyside canal. The convention will also wrestle with the difficult storage problem.

Now, in view of these facts, it behooves Yakima county to be suitably and fairly represented in that convention. The interests of Yakima county is greater in these matters than that of all the balance of the state combined. If the people of this valley continue to show a lack of interest in this vital water question they are liable to wake up some day to learn that their rights in the reserve water supply of this valley have been stolen from them by means of artful legislation.

Here is a chance for the Yakima Commercial Club to get in and do something and it ought to be done quick. A delegation of level headed men ought to be chosen to go to that convention and look out for the interests of the people. They should be men posted on the situation who will go there, not with the intention of "knocking" every plan proposed, but with the purpose of trying to solve this vexed question in the interests of the people who use the water and not from the standpoint of those who want to sell it.

THE republican newspapers and speakers are continually harping on the statement that the democratic party is a party of obstructions. The safty valve of an engine is an obstruction to excessive steam, and the only kind of obstructions the democratic party has been guilty of was to protect the people from many an explosion of the republican engine, and the party feels proud of it. In republicans ambitions are great and opportunites are always present to assist this ambition. It is natural for many to ally themselves with a political party that changes with conditions, not stopping to consider the fact the conditions are made to change to suit a few as against the many, and that the party is controlled by the men who make the conditions. The democratic party is an obstructionist in that it opposes the plan of making the government conform to conditions and believes that the majority can be better served by having fixed principles and making the conditions conform to these principles—Whatcom Blade.

THE Yakima Republic with owl like gravity expresses the opinion that Gorman will be made the Democratic presidential candidate. This would be a calamity indeed. We have the consolation of knowing, however, that the Republic in the past has been a most unreliable political prophet.

ANOTHER republican senator seems to have gone wrong, this time Senator Burton of Kansas. The senator has been indicted by the U. S. grand jury sitting at St. Louis for fraud practiced on the postoffice department in behalf of the Rialto Grain company, a get-rich-quick concern that had been denied the use of the mails.

Burton is charged with having sold his senatorial influence for $500 while Dietrich of Nebraska sold postmasterships and used his position as senator to cinch the government in a private business contract. They are a pretty cheap pair of grafters to be occupying seats in the American House of Lords. It is just such revelations of official dishonesty as this, that have been coming so thick and fast in recent months, that is crystalizing public opinion in favor of a change of administration at Washington. The pendulum is beginning to swing the other way.

MR. LORD'S candidacy for governor, when figured down to a financial basis, reminds one of a visitor to a ship who accosted the Irish cook with the query, "Are you the mate?" "Naw, sor," was the immediate response, "I'm ther mon that cooks ther mate" Lord wants neither to be governor nor treasurer but the man who runs the treasurer. He is not averse, however, to having the gubernatorial delegation up his sleeve to play as a "Joker," if the occasion warrants it in the selection of the candidate for treasurer.—Washington Standard.

Mr. Lord, the gentleman referred to, is president of the Capital National bank of Olympia, an institution which for years has had the use of state funds kept on deposit. Mr. Lord's gubernatorial aspirations are regarded by the knowing ones as a mere cloak to aid him in his designs upon the treasury.

"DISTINCTIONS in society will always exist under every just government. Equality of talents, of education, or of wealth, cannot be produced by human institutions. In the full enjoyment of the gifts of heaven and the fruits of superior industry, economy, and virtue every man is equally entitled to protection by law. But when the law undertakes to add to those natural and just advantages artificial distinctions—to grant titles, gratuities, and exclusive privileges—to make the rich richer and the potent more powerful—the humble member of society—the farmers, mechanics and the laborers—who have neither the time nor the means of securing like favors for themselves, have a right to complain of the injustice of their government."—Andrew Jackson.

ONLY a few moons ago the Yakima Republic was loudly singing the praises of Gov. McBride. Now almost daily the local organ scolds the governor like a fishwife, sneers at his policy and is in the fight to beat him for a renomination. Now, McBride is the same old sixpence that he was one or two years ago. He is preaching the same gospel now that he did then If there has been any switching about it has been done by the Republic's editor and not by the governor. If the Republic wants to entertain its readers it can do so better by explaining how its editor happened to change his mind rather than to continue its abuse of the accidental governor.

CHARLES SWEENEY, the mining magnate of Spokane and one of the western representatives of the Rockefellers, says that he wants to go as a delegate to the national convention "in order to help President Roosevelt to the nomination." This seems rather funny. It is perhaps more likely that Sweeny wants to go to Chicago to help put the kybosh on Teddy.

THE dairy industry of Kittitas valley means a great deal to the farmers of that county says the Ellensburg Dawn. It brings to dairymen every year large sums of money that would otherwise not be realized by them. It has done much toward wiping out the heavy mortgaged indebtedness that a few years ago hung over this valley as a wet blanket.

THE people of this city should give all the encouragement possible to the building of the Tietan high line canal That canal, if constructed, would have the effect of practically doubling the amount of irrigated lands tributary to North Yakima, and it is good land, too, particularly well adapted to fruit culture.

THE Walla Walla Union says that Y. C. Blalock handed his resignation as receiver of the U. S. land office to Senator Ankeny. From a political standpoint such action might have been proper enough, as Blalock owed his position to Ankeny, but from an official standpoint it seems rather rank.

THE Spokane Chronicle is authority for the statement that Mayor Boyd of that city will go after the republican nomination for governor backed by the Liquor Dealer's association of the state.

ST. LOUIS has sent a man all the way to Africa to secure pygmes for the world's fair, evidently overlooking the specimens on the supreme bench of that state.

MR. BRYAN announces through the Commoner that a daily edition of that paper will be printed at St. Louis during the Democratic national convention. There will evidently be something doing at St. Louis during the first ten days of July.

THE city council will undoubtedly refer the public library proposition to a vote of the people. In doing this the city fathers will act wisely and place the responsibility where it belongs—with the people.

ONE great catastrophe seems to follow close on the heels of another in these piping times. The latest is a coal mine explosion at Cheswick, Penn., which suddenly killed or entombed alive 190 men.

THE Yakima valley enjoys sunshine and soft balmy weather while all of the country east of the Rockies is in the grip of old Boreas. Let us be thankful for such of Heaven's favors as we enjoy.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Dr. F. V. Shute of Boulder, Col., is in the city the guest of his old friend Dr. Carver. Dr. Shute is most favorably impressed with Yakima and may conclude to locate here or in this vicinity.

J. C. Liggett has superceded Nat Yeates in charge of the county jail. Mr. Liggett is a man well qualified for the position and Sheriff Grant is fortunate in securing the services of such a good man.

The fine weather of the past few days is having the effect of making fruit growers rather apprehensive as to the outcome. They fear that if it continues it will have the effect of starting the sap upward in the trees.

A. D. Walker and J. W. Hayes of Seattle have bought the old Stone place of 165 acres adjoining the "California" ranch on Parker Bottom from F. M. Williams. The two sons of Mr. Walker will come over from Seattle and take charge of the farm.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Porter of Roslyn and R. R. Streets a wealthy luberman of Olympia to occur at the home of the bride's parents in Roslyn Feb. 12. Miss Porter is well known in this city, being a sister of Mrs. H. H. Lombard. For the past year she has filled the position of assistant state librarian at Olympia.

Tennant & Miles have sold the Edison theater to S. G. Grant of Olympia.

Another newspaper change in this city is on tap to startle the natives when it is officially announced next week.

H. B. Scudder this week sold the balance of his 1902 hop crop to G. N. Grafton at a price reported as 25c. It is said that 20c has been offered for 1904 hops but no contract has yet been recorded at that figure.

Judge Bell of Seattle arrived Thursday and on Friday held court here. The most of the day was spent in hearing argument in the case of S. O. Morford vs Pearl and F. H. Rudkin. J. B. Reavis represents the plaintiff and H. J. Snively the defendants.

It is generally remarked what fine weather we have been having since the official weather prophet, D. E. Lesh, has been out of town. Attorney Whitson, who claims to have had charge of the weather during Mr. Leshs' absence, says that the credit is due him. There are some people, however, who deny that the lawyer has any jurisdiction.

The prospect is said to be most excellent for the construction this season of the Tietan high line canal. The reservoir site selected in the Tietan basin is entirely satisfactory from an engineering standpoint. A final decision on the matter, however, will probably not be reached until the return of Mr. Nares from Europe in March.

Surprised the Banker.

Mrs. Jane Donald this week planned a surprise for her son, George Donald, by inviting a number of his personal friends to partake of dinner with him on Thursday evening. The guests at the appointed hour, 6 o'clock, walked in on the genial banker and completely surprised him.

The guests as they arrived were received by the hostess assisted by her daughters, Mrs. J. D. Cornett and Mrs. Geo. S Vance. A splendid four course dinner was served, such only as Grandma Donald knows how to prepare. During the progress of the meal wit and wisdom flowed about the festive board perhaps as freely as the sparkling wine itself. The excellent dinner was concluded by a toast proposed by one of the guests in honor of the genial host. The names of those present follow: W. H. Hare, Frank Horsley, E. B. Moore, R. K. Nichols, Geo. S. Vance, W. L. Steinweg, Alexander Miller, O. A. Fechter, Edward Whitson, A. B. Weed, Frank Bartholet and J. D. Medill.

Your correspondent would like to propound a question in the hope that some one in authority will answer it through your valuable paper. It is now two or three years since a receiver was appointed for the defunct Leadbetter Ditch company. We would like to know is it not time to have a report from Mr. Receiver? Or was it the intention in appointing a receiver to pigeon hole the whole matter? There are some people here who would like to have some information on the subject.

THE NEW WOMAN

She Will Move the World

WE do not live in a republic; not really, you know. The founders of the nation, who held it to be self evident that all mankind are created equal, thought they were starting a republic, but they were mistaken. I can prove it to you. The "upper circles," which means the rich class of this land, were recently shocked by the report that a bachelor belonging to their sacred ranks was going to marry a girl who worked for her living. The young man was nothing extra intellectually or physically. If he had been a poor youth he might possibly have earned a rather shabby living as some kind of an underling, but, having inherited an annual income that of itself would have constituted a fortune during lifetime for half a dozen large families if it had been divided among them, he was great things, according to us, the people, who get down upon our faces and worship those who have money. The girl was a good girl, well educated and at least as well mannered as many of the gay set to which the youth belonged, yet the rumor that the millionaire was actually to marry her created almost as much disturbance as the story that the German crown prince wanted to marry an American beauty. Society breathed again, however, for the rumor concerning the engagement of a millionaire to a working girl was shown to be false, as false, for instance, as the foundation upon which social distinction in America is built. The splendid dream of the signers of the Declaration of Independence has been nearly despoiled. Only this much remains of it—that there is yet in our land opportunity for every person to become a true lady or gentleman in spite of money worship. There are the public schools, the night schools, the free lectures, the literary clubs. All may secure a good education. All in this country may acquire the manners and the language of the cultured man and woman.

The idea of what true social distinction is based upon has somehow lodged itself in my head and will not out.—A boor, whether man or woman, is one who is ignorant, selfish, ill bred and careless and untidy in personal habits. There are such often among millionaire men and women, and these cannot be ladies and gentlemen. On the other hand, I have had a mechanic, a steamfitter, come into my flat to repair a hot water pipe who had the manners of a knight. He was noble looking, clean and tidy as to his dress, perfect as to his English, scientific in knowledge of his business. That man was a gentleman, and George Washington could not have overslaughed him. Let every one of the hundreds of thousands of American girls who earn a modest living in shop, factory of office know that it is incumbent on her to be a real lady, gentle, sincere and low voiced, courteous and polished in her manners, correct in her English, tidy in her dress. As truly as the sun shines, this is all that constitutes the real lady, and every woman can achieve it.

The older I grow the fewer opinions I have concerning other people's affairs.

Girls, learn to use your hands. Learn to use hatchet, hammer, saw, chisel and screwdriver as well as the needle. Learn to draw from the real object and to draw well. You can do that without a teacher. Manual training is now the demand. The woman who cannot use her hands will be left.

Since written history began men have been making fun of women and reviling and blaming them. The oldest records show it. Adam began it in the garden of Eden. It constitutes a large part of the stock in trade of the funny papers today. Yet now, when woman has learned to write, if she says one word against man instantly man squeals out that she is "antagonizing him" and must stop it, for he can't stand it. Dear, dear! What of all the centuries during which man has been antagonizing woman?

The superintendent of the telegraph company that has recently employed girls instead of boys as messengers in Boston reports, "The girls are giving us better service than the boys, as they attend strictly to business."

I am glad scientific authorities are beginning to find out what some of us have always known—that hard work does not drive half so many people crazy as laziness. There is no preservative of health, happiness and youthfulness like steady employment at work one loves enthusiastically. And if you don't like your work and can't quit it yet make yourself like it. You can do that, and there is everything in it.

During the late campaign in New York city a woman's organization held one of the largest of the many political meetings. The president of the woman's league occupied the chair and introduced the men speakers to an audience consisting mostly of men. The speakers were candidates for various offices. The same league of women raised and paid to the men's committee hundreds of dollars to help run the campaign. The women raised the money, and the men spent it. Thus it seems that politically woman is good enough to do everything except hold office and vote.

ELIZA ARCHARD CONNER.

PLUCKING SHEEP.

Shearing Process Not Used In Shetland on Pure Bred Animals.

The pure bred sheep in Shetland are not shorn, but plucked. The process takes place generally in June, when the fleece is "ripe" and the silky wool can be pulled off without pain.

This is called "rooing" and is much less damaging to the young fiber than clipping with shears. The wool when thus handled retains its peculiar softness, so that any one of experience can tell whether the material of a knitted article has been plucked or shorn. It ripens first upon the neck and shoulders, so that sheep half pulled resemble in some sort a poodle that is clipped.

We must suppose that harsher handling prevailed at one time, for we read that in 1616 the Scottish privy council spoke of the custom as still kept up "in some remote and uncivil places," and James I. wrote to tell them that it had been put down in Ireland under penalty of a fine. Upon this they passed an act on March 17, 1616, deploring the destruction of sheep thus caused and imposing similar fines on those who should persist in the practice.

The Tropic Home.

White men's homes in India, the West Indies, west Africa and other parts of the tropics to which civilization has penetrated are usually run on the principle of having as much air and as little furniture as possible. Carpets, rugs, cushions, hangings and portieres are banished. Tables and chairs are made of light wickerwork, bamboo or cane. The floors are polished with cocoanut husks until they become as slippery as a good dancing floor. Indeed, they are used for that purpose nearly every evening in any settlement where there is society. A ball in the tropics requires no preparation. After dinner it is only necessary to move the light furniture to one corner of the spacious room, send somebody to the piano and start dancing. The ballroom is practically in the open air, for wooden "jalousies" form most of the wall space and are opened like Venetian blinds to let in the cool night breezes.

The American Farmer.

When the American farmer rises early in the morning it is to look over broad and fertile acres that are his own. When he goes forth it is to fields that no human being can lawfully step upon without his consent. When he gathers and garners the harvest he stores what in a vast majority of cases no greedy and rapacious landlord can take from him. It is all his. The proceeds of it are to clothe and feed him and his family and educate his children, to be the support of his old age and the heritage of his posterity. Looked at from every point of view, it is doubtful if there is another human being under the heavens who has more cause for carrying a light heart and a contented mind, for regarding the past with satisfaction and the future with hope, than the American farmer.—Kansas City Journal.

The "Just Alike."

Few people perhaps notice that all omnibus wheels are painted yellow, says the London Chronicle, so that any wheel may be worn with any bus color. Every circus ring in the world is of precisely the same diameter, whatever the size of the auditorium, so that the rider knows the angle at which he must lean in San Francisco is the angle of safety in St. Petersburg. Even the ladder is "standardized." Every hodman in England knows what he has to step when toiling up the builder's ladder, though he may not know it is seven inches. The sailor who runs up the ratlines has twelve inches as a step, and that makes a run possible, and the firemen's ladder is crossed with exact equivalence to the ratlines.

Death From Electric Shock.

The ultimate cause of death, when due primarily to electric shock, is generally considered to be stoppage of the action of the heart or of the respiratory organs. That the latter may be affected is shown by the fact that victims of electric shock are sometimes brought to by practice of some of the well known methods of artificial respiration. The cessation of the heart's action may be due to stimulation of the nerves which control the beating of the heart. These, when stimulated to excess, may cause the heart to stop altogether.—Archibald Wilson in Cassier's Magazine.

The Consulting Caddie.

There is one personage who of late years has rather disappeared from the golfing world, but used to be greatly in evidence in it—the advisory caddie. Many of the caddies of the old Scotch school used to treat their masters (so called) much in the manner that a good old nurse treats a baby when she is beginning to teach it how to walk. In those days there was not a stroke played without the most careful consultation with these sapient mentors.—Westminster Gazette.

Placing the Blame.

Caller—So the doctor brought you a little sister the other night, eh?

Tommy—Yeh; I guess it was the doctor done it. Anyway I heard him tellin' pa some time ago 'at if pa didn't pay his old bill he'd make trouble fur him.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Plain Reasons.

Harry—Blanche says she has insuperable reasons for remaining single.

Horace—Yes, I know what they are.

Harry—Then she has told you?

Horace—No, but I have seen her.—Boston Transcript.

A woman's idea of anticipation is to pack her trunk two weeks before she expects to start on a trip.—Atchison Globe.

LADY ARNOLD.

The Japanese Wife of Author of "The Light of Asia."

Some dozen years ago Japan seemed to have a wonderful fascination for Sir Edwin Arnold, K. C. I. E., C. S. I., fellow of Bombay university, of Royal Asiatic society, officer of White Elephant of Siam, also commander of Crown of Siam, Rising Sun of Japan, second class of Imperial Medjidie, third class Osmanieh, commander of Lion and Sun of Persia, author and journalist. He praised the gentle, courteous manners of the little brown people of the Empire of the Rising Sun. He rejoiced him in the artistic atmosphere of the chrysanthemum land. He wrote poems concerning the Japs. One was about a Jap girl so very taking that "they called her honey sweet." Finally he did his part of the editing of the London Daily Telegraph at the long range of the other side of the world in Japan.

By and by it was whispered out loud that this soaring literary kite with the tremendously long tail of titles had fallen in love with a little Japanese girl and that this romantic attachment explained things. But the pretty Jap girl was his ward, friends said. At length, however, there was no doubt that the famous literary man was in love with the Jap girl.

Now, this susceptible old boy had been twice married previously. The first Mrs. Arnold was an Englishwoman, Katherine Elizabeth Biddulph, who died in 1864. After mourning duly the poet comforted his widowed heart by marrying Fannie Channing of the family of the Channing who founded Unitarianism in America. Arnold cherished all the devotion of a genius, a poet and an enthusiast for his lovely American wife. She died in 1889, a year after Queen Victoria knighted her husband for his distinguished literary services.

After her death Edwin Arnold, already steeped to the lips in oriental theosophies, wrote more and more concerning the far east and its beauties and glories. At length in 1897 Sir Edwin Arnold's friends may or may not have been surprised at the announcement of his marriage at the age of sixty-five to Tama Kurokawa, the little Japanese girl, very pretty and gentle and very young. Thus did Sir Edwin prove his devotion to the fair sex by taking for his first wife an English girl, for his second an American and for his third a Japanese, and we may hope the famous British light of literature has yet many years before him in which to live, work and love. Why not? Women certainly will not find fault with him for his perennially youthful appreciation of their sex.

Sir Edwin Arnold's third wife is not a whit behind the other two in admirable characteristics. Lady Tama Kurokawa Arnold is beautiful, so striking and charming in appearance that she looks like a little cameo of a woman. She speaks English fluently; no doubt her husband taught it to her. The Japanese who has adopted western ways is far more like a Frenchman than an Englishman or American, and tiny Lady Arnold has much of the Frenchwoman about her in her liveliness and artistic taste in dress. She gowns herself exquisitely, and her costumes are greatly admired. But about her there is what the Frenchwoman lacks—an atmosphere of gentleness and sweet temper which is, in truth, almost peculiar to the Japanese woman. White men who have taken the small brown women for wives generally seem well satisfied with their choice.

Lady Arnold is a social favorite in London. She is at once intellectual and sympathetic. There is something childlike and trustful in her character, as with most women of her race. They seem somehow to take it for granted that every one is their friend and none would do them harm. The shameful way in which this sweet confidence has been abused in many instances is little credit to the white race.

The Japanese women are really remarkable. A chance, a little bit of an opportunity, was all they needed. They are brilliantly intellectual. The woman's university of Tokyo is turning out graduates as scholarly as those of any woman's college in America. Hundreds of Japanese girls, too, are now in the United States training themselves professionally to go back home and give good tidings to their sex. They have a fine commercial talent, in which few American women equal them. And when they adopt western dress! If you were in Paris and watched the carriages driving along the Champs Elysees and through the Bois de Boulogne you would find among the costumes most looked at and admired those worn by Frenchified little Jap women.

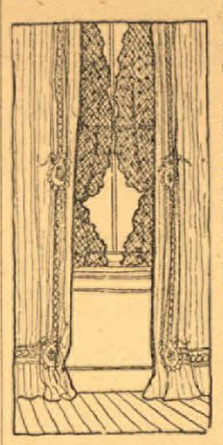
WINDOW FURNISHINGS.

They Need Not Be Expensive In Order to Be Pretty.

The window is perhaps the most important feature of the room, and if it is tastefully decorated the whole room looks pretty. The careful house furnisher looks out first for the carpets and curtains, and then somehow the rest of the furniture seems to take care of itself.



A DAINTY EFFECT.

This does not mean necessarily that the curtains must be rich and expensive. The day of heavy brocades is past, and we are no longer limited to highly ornamented lace curtains. In fact, the stiff white curtain has entirely gone out of style. For the drawing room there are filmy curtains of lace or net, very soft and creamy in tint, and some of these are quite inexpensive. They are not suspended by means of hooks or rings, but are shirred on to a narrow brass bar placed on the inside of the window frame. These curtains are frequently quite short, reaching in some cases only to the sill. If a second curtain is desired it hangs in straight folds down to the floor and is drawn back in order to show the dainty inner curtains. The sketch shows a pretty effect. These outer curtains need not be expensive. There are silk and linen mixtures in old rose, pale green, pale blue and yellow, which are very effective. They come in empire or Louis XV. designs and in wreaths, crowns and fleur-de-lis. Then there are the linen English cretonnes so heavily ribbed and mellow in their pale colorings that they look like tapestry. Figured china silk makes pretty outer curtains, too, especially when combined with white woodwork.

The inner shades need no longer be of unattractive linen. They now come in all the pale shades to match the room, and the ends are decorated with fringe in scallops or with two insertions of coarse lace and a lace edge dyed to match the shade.

For the bedrooms nothing is prettier than plain muslin frilled, or if one wishes a change from white curtains there are pretty French mulls daintily sprayed with rosebuds. These can either be made up by themselves or with white ruffles.

There are ecru net curtains for the dining room and library, and the newest of these come with a border of applique in red, blue or green. They sell for $5 a pair. But plenty of pretty materials are sold by the yard, and as they only require a narrow hem they are easily made. Oriental weaves in stripes or solid colors are always in good taste.

The figured madras is the prettiest material for window draperies that has been seen in many a day. The ground work is sheer, allowing the light to pass through, and the figurings in dull reds, greens and yellows give somewhat of a stained glass effect. Curtains of this description are not caught back. They hang in straight folds to the floor and are not very full in order that the figurings may be clearly seen. If the woodwork is pretty they are shirred on to a small rod inside of the frame and close to the window.

ENTRANCE HALLS.

How They May Be Furnished Like Living Rooms.

Nowadays many houses have square rooms for entrance halls instead of the narrow, cheerless affairs of the past, and these are furnished much in the style of a living room.

The illustration shows how an antique idea was utilized, and a very smart effect was gained.

The woodwork is in squares of dark oak, and the ceiling is tinted to harmonize. The massive fireplace and the carved tables and chairs are all of this rich, dull finish, and the tone is relieved by the red leather cushions of the chairs, by the brass andirons and by the old portraits in their dull gilt frames. The old English window is particularly attractive, with its frosted panes and figured dimity curtains, and the deep red rug adds another touch of color to the whole.

Who Owns the G. O. P.?

Has " the Grand Old Party," as the republican spellbinders used to call it, really become the subservient old party? Is it owned by its candidates, bossed by its servants and pulled and pushed at will by its managers?

How else can we interpret the declaration one republican organ of this city—the Press—that "the man who is not for Theodore Roosevelt now is against the republican party?" Is the President the party incarnate? Is the old-time freedom of choice, of speech and of action in regard to candidates gone? Is it really party treason to oppose the nomination of the man who controls the patronage and weilds the veto power?

And how we interpret the utterance of another republican journal, the Sun, declaring of Senator Hanna that "his position is higher and more powerful today than it ever was before? He is the republican party of Ohio."

Shades of Joshua R. Giddings, Ben Wade, Salmon P. Chase and John Sherman!—has it come to this, that Marcus Ajax Hanna, who "butted into" politics with Jas Barrell and his Push only eight years ago, and today represents as no otherman in office does the sordid and corrupting spirit of "commercialism in politics, is actually the republican party of Ohio?"

And what a commentary it is upon party self-government and home rule in the Empire State and in the metropolis of the nation when the governor of the state, with the approval and assistance of the President, "reorganizes and reforms" the party committees to meet their joint purpose and proposes himself to take personal control of the campaign!

For the party of Freedom, is not the former G. O. P. submitting to a good many bonds and bosses?—N. Y. World.

Will It Repudiate McBride?

A faction of the republican party is striving to defeat Governor McBride in the republican state convention. That faction, while comparatively small in numbers, and having no influence with the disinterested voters, is alert and active (as are invariobly men who have selfish interests at stake), and it has powerful resources, including the railroads ond other designing influences, which want to exploit the public without restraint or opposition.

If this faction succeeds, its work will become the will and the deed of the republican party of Washington.

In other words, we shall have the almost incredible spectacle of the republican party going before the voters as a repudiator of its own administration and its own record. And to make the situation unique, the party will be asking the voters to repudiate its decent, honest side, and approve and reward its corrupt and corrupting elements.

If this shall be done, the Spokesman-Review forsees that embarrassing questions will be put to the republican party from every public rostrum in the state of Washington. It will be asked by the democracy—and forcedto make answer or retire from the contest—why it repudiated Governor McBride. It will be asked what parts of his record it approves and what portions it condemns.

From every precinct between Stevens and Pacific counties the question will rise, "Are you for or against public control and honest taxation of the railroads? If you are for these principles, why have you insulted, dishonored and repudiated Henry McBride?

With McBride repudiated, the republican party could not possibly return a satisfactory answer to these questions. It would stand before the voters with shifty eye and stammering tongue. It would have to lie or confess the truth, and if it lied, the falsehood would be so palapable that it would suffer more than it could suffer from an honest confession of its degredation.—Spokesman-Review.

Evolution.

If the church had its way man would never have escaped the trammels of its dogmas. But from the time of Gallileo men have insisted on thinking for themselves. Today not one person in ten believes in a personal God and a personal devil in the earth beneath and an actual heaven in the skies above, that this earth was created by God specially for man. There are few today who do not subscribe to the doctrine of evolution, the belief that man is a growth from the original protoplasm, and are insects, reptiles, fowls and all the other forms of animal life. Most evilutionists believe that, with respect to form, man has progressed so far from protoplasm as he may, and that future changes will be in the mind, the soul. This belief is founded upon the fact that the history of man as shown by excavations of prehistoric cities indicates no change in his form down to the present day. True, it is hard for subscribers to this doctrine to discover any change in man's disposition from that of earliest historical times. When we think of the seizure of the Philippines, of the Transvaal and Orange Free State, the quarrelings over China and Corea, the stimulated secession of Panama, the unrestrained excesses of the Turk because if the so-called Christian nations fear that if one should interfere to prevent them it might secure some advantage over the remainder, it does not seem possible that man has progressed appreciably, from the snarling, snapping animal he originally was. But it has taken man millions of years to emerge from the protoplasmic form to his present form. Perhaps in other millions of years his mind will have emerged from its present protoplasmic form, and be worthy to stand upon a higher plane.—Winston's Weekly.

SENATE TALKS PANAMA

The People Want the Canal but the Isthmian Question Won't Down —Scraps of News From the National Capital.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23, 1904.

The democrats still hold the floor in the senate. Day by day, more and more firmlythey fasten upon the president the scandal of the isthmus—the responsibility for the rape of Colombia of her richest and fairest state. Republicans take refuge in silence. They have put forward their most garrulous member as a buffer—a senator whose armor of gall and self-complacency is impervious to all attacks. Senator Spooner is physically the smallest and vocally the largest member of the body. He never speaks without tossing the most fulsome compliments right and left. These bouquets are so large as to greatly embarrass the recipient, especially when he discovers, as he always does, that they are made of artificial flowers.

During the last week Senators Teller and Patterson of Colorado have made speeches against the plunder of the isthmus which will be regarded by the historian as the classics of this controversy. Mr. Spooner has interrupted them both every few minutes and, permitted to ask questions, has interjected speeches, some of them an hour long, within the body of their remarks. Senator Depew, at one point, came to his assistance, whereupon Spooner said: "I thank my illustrious friend," and walking over to Mr. Depew and putting his arm around him he continued, "If I wanted information on any subject I would apply to this great man." After tossing this sort of flattery about promiscously on Tuesday Mr. Patterson replied in kind, saying: "In all this senate, in all this magnificent country, I do not know the equal of the eloquent senator from Wisconsin,"—here Spooner bowed low and blushed— "I do not know his equal—in the opulent talents and transcendent abilities which enable him to make black appear white and white black." Here ironical compliment and flattering badinage took a rest for a while.

The last four weeks have been the coldest for many years. Usually early shrubs are in blossom in January, but now sleighs and skates are much in evidence. In 1880 there was a similar winter. Then there was skating up and down for six miles over the channel of the Potomac, and great teams crossed with heavy loads to Alexandria.

Yesterday your correspondent found at the Metropolitan Congressman John Sharp Williams, democratic leader of the house. "Yes," he said, "It certainly would be better for the democrats to stand together and repudiate the fake treaty. But they are divided, just as they were unhappily on the Paris treaty. On the issue of honesty and decency people would stand by us and give us victory. They probably will anyhow. We have issues enough if the treaty is ratified in spite of us. The single issue of honesty in office in the light of the official plundering going on is itself sufficient to cause the people to refuse a long lease of power to any party, especially the party that is guilty."

Was there an irresistible and vociferous demand for teh new department of commerce? Its first report reveals what some may consider very valuable information. It informs an anxious public how many beeves were received the past year at six great cattle markets. It says the cattle raiser is trying to adjust his prices to the new prices of beef. It tells us how many miles of railroad were built, how much flour was marketed, and how much coal was mined in 1903, and unrolls a long list of similar astonishing facts. As they have all been published hundreds of times before, it is difficult for any fellow to find out what this republication amounts to. The business of getting up statistical information is sadly overdone in Washington. The department of agriculture, the geological survey, the statistical office, the census office, and bureaus too numerous to mention are all engaged in grinding out similar facts. They might as well write poetry on the seasons.

The first scientific bureau established by the United States government was the patent office on April 10, 1790. Since then there has been a great growth of scientific bureaus. They are now no less than thirty-three, connected with the executive branch of the government, and each of them has a certain number of distinctly scientific employees. They are devoted to architecture, mining, lighthouses, coast and geological surveys, standards of weights and measures, engineering, ordinance, signals, animal industry, chemistry, entomology, forestry, plants, zoology, ehtnology, fishes, etc.,—a great scientific university. But there may be something in the plaint often sent up by farmers of the country, "What good does all this do us?"

The postmaster general and Mrs. Payne varied the monotony of the weekly cabinet diner last evening by entertaining the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and some forty additional guests, the company being the largest known at a cabinet dinner in many years. The flowers were large placques of pink carnations interspersed with tall crystal vases of bride roses.

The court room in Washington where the republican postoffice conspirators are being tried has been the scene of the star route trial, the Guiteau trial, the unsavory Breckinridge-Pollard trial, the revolting Bonine trial, and many others of note. Three doors from it is the police court in the brick building, formerly the Uniterian church where Channing preached.

There is no truth in the persistent rumor that Senator Lodge of Massachusetts will succeed John Hay as secretary of state. The president cannot spare from the state department a man who has reduced political and territorial rapacity to a fine art. So the position is not likely to be vacant and if it were, Senator Lodge says he would prefer his present position.
