THE G. O. P. RATIFICATION

Local Spellbinders Entertain a Small Audience at the Opera House in Effort to Ratify the State Ticket.

The Young Men's Republican club of North Yakima held a jollification meeting at Larson's theatre Friday evening of last week for the purpose as announced from the stage, of ratifying the state ticket nominated at Tacoma and of celebrating the return of the victors laden with the spoils of office. An opportunity was thus afforded to several of the young men to test their ability as spell binders.

The evening was rather frosty as was also the audience, which only filled about one-half of the seats in the play house. A little enthusiasm was aroused occasionally, however, caused by some bright remark made by a speaker which helped make matters easier for the boys on the stage.

When the curtain rung up the familiar faces of some 25 or 30 leading party workers of this city burst into view. They were an exceptionally fine looking body of men as they sat upon the stage, each man togged in his Sunday raiment and wearing a serene smile. It was a subject of common remark in the audience, especially among the ladies, that the group, taken collectively, would compare favorably for looks with any other theatrical company that held down the boards here during the past season.

Here is a partial list of local statesmen who adorned the stage for the occasion: Congressman W. L. Jones, Judge F. H. Rudkin, Judge Ira P. Englehart, Mayor Fechter, Col. W. W. Robertson, Col. E. L. Boardman, Prof. B. F. Barge, Robert Scott, D. W. Simmons, Fred Parker, Ira M. Krutz, H. B. Rigg, W. M. Thompson, Judge J. R. Lynch, J. O. Cull and a number of others. The "grand old party" was in fact well represented, that is on the stage, the familiar faces of a number of ex-democrats lending more than ordinary interest to the occasion. Col. Miles Cannon, who is said to be responsible for the whole affair, was conspicuous by his absence due perhaps to the colonel's modesty and his desire not to participate too actively in politics these days. He was very much missed, especially by the ladies.

President Cull of the Young Men's club acted as master of ceremonies and set the ball rolling by lauding the party of great moral ideas. The president's speech was a classic in stump oratory, but the delivery was weak.

Judge Englehart was first called on to testify and offer thanks for a place on the ticket. The nominee for the superior bench responded in a short but concise talk in which he thanked the delegation for his nomination, eulogized "Yakima" Jones and spoke of his satisfaction at seeing Judge Rudkin elevated to the supreme bench. He said he didn't intend to make a political speech, but nevertheless called attention to the seven fat years that had followed the four lean years of Grover, then seeming to remember that several staunch supporters of the "Sage of Princeton" were with him on the stage, the speaker after passing a few more bouquets took his seat.

Will Thompson was next called out and made a fiery speech interspersed with a few funny remarks which seemed to tickle the crowd. He said that he attended the Tacoma convention and had hard work to keep the delegates from nominating him for attorney general. All that a man had to do there was to tell them that he was from Yakima and then they would insist upon throwing honors at him. He congratulated the steering committee and pretty nearly everybody else. The speaker was rewarded by liberal applause from the galleries. Music became a necessity after Lawyer Thompson's oratory had died away and Mrs. L. H. Roberts favored the audience with a song that everybody appreciated, as that lady's voice is sweet and bears evidence of high cultivation.

Judge Rudkin next spoke. He expressed his sincere thanks to the delegation and to all of his good friends who had assisted in procuring for him the nomination to the exalted office of supreme judge. He and Judge Fullerton had mutually agreed, he said, not to go on the stump, as such a course could only have the effect of lowering the dignity of the office. The judge cracked a joke or two that pleased the audience which gave him generous applause as he sat down.

Prof. Barge's turn came next. He created a titter in the audience by referring to himself as a "beardless youth." He always felt young, he said, whenever he attended a republican meeting. He eulogized the local candidates and said that the real reason why the delegation had bagged so many places was because they had the best material to offer. (Loud applause). The professor's speech was short but what it lacked in length was made up in volume. After Prof. Barge had finished, Miss Jessie Patton favored the audience with a piano solo.

Col. Robertson, one of the heavyweight orators of the evening, was next called on to tell how the thing had happened.

Chairman Cull suggested that he tell the crowd how it was that he and Col. Boardman occupied the same bed at Tacoma, but the unterrified newspaper colonel fought shy of that subject in his speech. Instead he detailed at considerable length the history of the long and painful negotiations that led to the political murder of Gov. McBride and the substitution in his place of Meade, the great unknown of Whatcom county. He said that the railroad crowd wanted either Crocker or Baker for governor, but that the Yakima boys wouldn't stand for either. They were then offered their choice (by the railroads) of Meade, Dysart or Atkinson and after consultation decided on Meade. The Yakima delegation, he said, did not want Baker nor Crocker as both were strong corporation men and they feared that the nomination of either would injure the county ticket. The speaker then rather inconsistently defended Meade against the charge that he is a railroad man and by inference claimed that the lobby didn't want him at all. This had the effect of rather amusing some people in the audience who had been reading the daily papers closely. Col. Robertson cautioned his hearers not to take any stock in the claim put forth by democrats that it was a railroad ticket. He was sorry to see the democratic papers open up their mud batteries on the ticket and said that the Spokesman-Review and the Yakima Democrat had begun it already. The colonel of the Republic made no effort at oratorical display, but talked in an earnest conversational tone as though he feared that the audience didn't want to believe him. At any rate he consumed the entire time allotted to him with explanations.

Col. Boardman of the Herald spoke also and corroborated much that Col. Robertson had said. He thought that Yakima had fared pretty well for a small county and thought that much credit was due the steering committee for the results achieved. He said that it was the duty of the people of this county to give the ticket 1000 majority and he believed that they would do it. Col. Boardman, while not a polished orator, presents a very creditable appearance as a stump speaker, although somewhat given to talking through his hat on such a subject as majorities.

L. O. Meigs next got the floor and talked of why a young man should be a republican. His remarks were very well received. He was followed by Judge Lynch of the municipal court who made a brief talk explaining the workings of the young men's club and how the committee on entertainment with the able assistance of Col. Cannon had got up the jollification meeting on short notice.

Congressman Jones was the last speaker. Owing to the lateness of the hour he abreviated his remarks as he doubtless noticed that the crowd was growing sleepy. He expressed his thanks for what Yakima county had done for him. He would not indulge in a political speech, he said, on such an occasion. He expressed himself as fully satisfied with the convention and the ticket. After the conclusion of his remarks the audience broke out and the ratification meeting stood adjourned.

Where Do You Live?

Since the city council passed an ordinance about a month ago redistricting the city into six wards, a number of people have been at a loss to know in what ward they are located. The following are the different divisions into which the city is now divided:

First Ward—Everything east of Third street and north of Yakima avenue.

Second Ward—From Third street to railroad track, north of Yakima avenue.

Third Ward—Everything west of railroad track and north of Yakima avenue.

Fourth Ward—Everything west of railroad track south of Yakima avenue.

Fifth Ward—From railroad track east to Third street south of Yakima avenue.

Sixth Ward—From Third street east to city limits south of Yakima avenue.

It will thus be seen that three wards are located north of Yakima avenue and three south.

THE SEWER QUESTION

Mayor Fechter Presents a Few Hard Facts to the Voters of North Yakima Anent the Proposed Sewer and Drainage Systems—Special Election May 28.

It should be impressed on the voters of this city that a vote cast in favor of the bond issue at the special election to be held on the 28th inst. is the expression of the voter, not only in favor of providing a sewer system for the entire city, but for underground drainage planned to relieve the congestion of stagnant water beneath the surface of the area in which the sewer pipes are laid by means of drain tiles, laid in the same trenches as the sewer pipes are laid, and which are connected with the trunk lines of the sewer system at regular intervals, discharging their accumulations of water drained from the soil into them.

This city lies in a basin. The water that is used for the irigation of the higher levels, to say nothing of the immense volume of water that is used in irrigating our lawns and gardens, has filled the porous soil on which our town is built to such an extent that the underground channels are not large enough to cary it off, and it remains stagnating in the soil, filling many cellars, creating a marshy condition in places and souring the soil generally, rendering the emenations from it of a character that are deleterious to health, to say the least.

It is a noteworthy fact that there is no epidemic of fever here at any time except during the height of the irrigation season. In mid-summer and for a sufficient period thereafter to admit of the soil being relieved of its surplus water, namely from about the first of July to the first of November of each year, this condition is common to other irrigated sections as well as this and has been overcome in those sections in a similar manner that we now propose to overcome it. Let the doctors call it what they will, the fact remains that this fever is epidemic only during a certain period of the year, and is common to irrigated sections situated as is our city, and has been entirely overcome by drainage. Typhoid fever rages at all the times of the year, is just as malignant in winter as it is in summer and is usually due to local conditions that are as prevalent in the majority of the cities of this state as they are here, and in many in a larger degree.

That we have had some typhoid fever, no one will deny. That it has all been of this character or that more than a few of the cases have been typhoid, is, to say the least, improbable. We have a condition here that is not peculiar, but that is usual wherever large areas of land are filled with water that becomes stagnant. The remedy for this is drainage; it is no experiment; this is not a new theory; it is applied common sense; it is knowledge within the experience or observation of all, young and old; it has been tried over and over again and in the nature of things it cannot fail. And, further than that, it is the only way in which the existing state of affairs can be remedied.

Only one objection to the proposed plan has or will be raised. That is the large cost of the proposed improvements and the method adopted of meeting the outlays. That objection is worthy of the serious consideration of every voter. When the public health is concerned, however, we can no more stop to consider the cost than we could stop to consider the cost of medical attention if a member of our immediate family is suddenly taken violently ill. The remedy must be applied at whatever cost. The city council has adopted the only method by which the systems can be built. The state laws limit the amount of expenditure for such purposes to ten per cent of the assessed vauation of the property of the city. Taking into account our present indebtedness, and the assessed valuation of the property of this city, ($1,700,000) we can only raise by bonded indebtedness approximately the sum of sixty thousand dollars. This will build the trunk lines so as to provide drainage and an outlet for the sewerage for every part of this city, and these trunk lines, with their tile connections, will effectually drain the entire city. So much has been accomplished. That which remains, the matter of building laterals and the methods to be adopted in building them, is a matter for future consideration. We can do that gradually. I am inclined to believe as they will be demanded by the people themselves, as the necessity for such connections become more urgent, and as they come to a greater realization of their sanitary need. Much, very much will have been accomplished when a system of drainage has been completed. The digging of the trenches alone will do much toward relieving the soil of its surplus water and we shall feel the effects of this before the summer is over.

While the bonded indebtedness of the city will be greatly increased, the rate of taxation will by no means increase in the same proportion. The ordinance provides that the bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four per cent per annum, and it is proposed to sell the bonds to the state, to be purchased with school funds. The interest will therefore not exceed twenty-four hundred dollars; probably it will not be so much, as no more bonds will be sold than the cost of the system and it is quite likely that the estimate is high. The assessed valuation of the city, according to the assessment which has just been made, is on doubt fully two million dollars, or three thousand dollars greater than the assessed valuation on which the bonds are issued. The additional tax levy to pay theinterest charges will therefore be slightly in excess of one mill. This charge is insignificant as compared with the inestimable benefits to be derived by the city through building this system. It should not be forgotten for a moment that it is the public health that is at stake; that many lives may pay the forfeit of our indifference or our parsimony. To take a sordid view of the matter, the continued prosperity of our city is at stake. If the condition that has existed here for the past few years is permitted to continue, we shall cease to grow, our population will lessen instead of increase, business will fall off and property values will decline.

Twelve years ago, when this city had a population not to exceed fifteen hundred, it was bonded for sixty thousand dollars for the purpose of providing a system of sewerage. This system, built at a large cost, was so laid that it is impossible to extend it in any direction. It is now used to its full capacity. It is utterly unavailable for the districts, comprising by far the larger area of the city, which are not now served by it. Had this system been put in of a proper size and at a sufficient depth, extensions only would now be required, and these could be put in without the necessity of incurring any bonded indebtedness whatever. But such is not the case and we must meet the conditions as we find them.

At that time, the assessed valuation of the city as made by the county and state was five hundred thousand dollars. As made by the city assessor (the state and county and city assessments were separately made at hat time) was one million dollars, or twice as much as the other and twice as much as it ought to have been. It was largely based upon fictitious valuations. At that time a further indebtedness of thirty thousand dollars to cover outstanding warrants was created. Today our population is at least four times as great and our assessed valuation is four times as great as it was then, and we propose to increase this indebtedness by only two-thirds as much. The early issues bore interest at the rate of six per cent; the proposed issue will bear interest at the rate of four per cent. in other words, the interest on the new issue will be twenty-four hundred dollars per year, while on the old issues it is fifty-four hundred dollars per year. There was no such urgent need for the old system as there is for the new, nor did the old contemplate drainage as does the new. At that time the soil underlying the town was not filled with stagnant water as now, because irrigation of the higher levels was carried on only to a very small extent. Now a crying need exists, one that cannot, that must not, be ignored. Shall we show less enterprise, less public spirit, greater false economy, now that the village of twelve years ago has developed into a city that ranks seventh in this great state, and that if we do not fail in our duty to it, is destined to grow to the limit of all conservative predictions that are made for it, and to become one of the best residence places in the entire northwest?

WHAT PEOPLE ARE DOING

In and About the Hub of Central Washington.

E. J. Wyman made a business trip to Ellensburg Thursday.

Mrs. H. V. Hinman left this week for Chelan county to visit a daughter.

Paul Kruger returned Wednesday from a short business trip to Woodburn, Oregon.

E. C. Burlingame is over from Walla Walla this week to spend a few days with his family.

Dr. P. Frank returned home Thursday from the Sound, where he had been since the meeting of the state convention.

Cleff & Keyzers have purchased the Minnesota chop house, No. 16 Yakima avenue, and have changed the name of same to the Eagle Cafe.

Rev. Alfred H. Henry will preach next Sunday morning on "Some Great Enterprises of the Church" and in the evening at 8 o'clock on "The Value of Trifles."

Spuds are still hovering about the $20 mark and the dealers are holding back for better prices. Only about seven cars are still in the hands of growers.

Kennewick strawberries made their appearance in this city Wednesday. The first of the local crop, it is thought, will be ready for market the latter end of next week.

The Lady Maccabees gave a social and dance at Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening which drew a large attendance. A good time was had. Refreshments were served.

John Scharf, whose home is near the fair grounds, was adjudged insane Monday and taken to Medical Lake. The unfortunate man is 48 years of age. The family consists of a wife and two children.

Auditor Newcomb received a dispatch Friday from Secretary Heg of the state board of health stating that the board would not meet in this city today as announced owing to the illness of one of the committee.

In the case of the state vs. J. O. Connell, charged with peddling buggies throughout the county without a license Judge Rudkin decided this week in favor of the defendant, holding that the state under the law had no case.

Dr. R. C. Corey returned to this city Wednesday after an absence of several months in New York, where he took a post-graduate course in medicine. He is now recovering from a long illness with pneumonia that he experienced while in Gotham.

A number of Yakima attorneys expect to attend the meeting of the state bar association at Seattle June 7, 8 and 9. Judge Rudkin of this city is on the program to deliver an address on the subject, "The legal aspects of the Panama affair."

A jury term of the superior court will convene here Monday, June 6. There will be a heavy calendar of criminal cases to be passed on including two sensational rape cases. Judge Rudkin will probably hear the pleadings of several of the defendants today.

Meade Post G. A. R. and the Woman's Relief Corps at a joint meeting held Monday completed the initial arrangements for the proper observance of Decoration day, Monday, May 30. Congressman Jones has accepted the invitation to deliver the oration at Larson's theater at 1:30 p. m.

William Steigler, well known in this city, where he lived for several years and served for a time on the police force, died at his home near Kennewick on Sunday last of pneumonia. The funeral occurred Tuesday. The many old friends of Mr. Steigler in this end of the county will be sorry to learn of his untimely death. He was about 45 years of age.

John Bowers, a well known resident of the school section, returned this week from the Imperial country in lower California. He is not so enthusiastic as formerly over that locality. He was sick for several weeks this spring caused by drinking the alkili water. He says that the water supply is too short there for the amount of land covered.

The family of James Sharp, residing on north Ninth street, feel grieved at the death of a pet hen which died recently after attaining the venerable age of 11 years. Owing to an accident in her young days she was forced to go through life on one foot, but that fact did not deter her from doing her duty and ushering into the world each year a fresh brood of chicks. "Sharp's hen" was a familiar figure in the neighborhood.

A transfer of the five acre tract just north of the power house, owned by John O'Donnell, was made yesterday to Ben W. Reetz.

The Democrat is under obligations to E. S. Price, local agent of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company, for a copy of an excellent wall map of the war zone in Asia.

An excellent design of the proposed Y. M. C. A. is to be seen in the show window of Dudley's shoe store. It is done in water color and was prepared by W. M. Herrin, an architect of this city. It is well executed and the design is elaborate and tasty, being designed especially for a young man's home. The movement is being encouraged on all sides, but is naturally of slow growth. Logan H. Roberts received a letter from Mr. Strahorn, president of the Northwest Light and Water Co., of recent date saying, "I am thoroughly in sympathy with your good work in the direction of getting a first class home for the Y. M. C. A. of North Yakima. It will give me great pleasure to assist in this laudable undertaking." An active canvass for a building fund has not yet been inaugurated.

REPEAL THE FRANCHISES

City Council Make Good on Election Promises by Wiping Out New Water & Light Ordinances.

The North Yakima city council has made good its threat to repeal the two new ordinances granting an extension of 25 years to the Northwest Water & Light company. This action was taken by the municipal body last Monday night when all members of the council were present except Fisher.

On roll call, Sinclair, Thorp, Rand, Dudley and Bull voted aye on the passage of the ordinance repealing the franchise. Switzer, alone, voted no.

In explanation of his vote Councilman Switzer stated that he was opposed to repeal on the ground that he believed that it would, in his judgment only result in long and expensive litigation. There was not much time wasted in a discussion of the matter. The five new members had evidently made up their minds on the question and were not to be swerved from their purpose, besides they knew that Mayor Fechter was with them on the proposition.

A communication was read from the new fire department which stated that officers had been elected as follows: Chief, J. H. Kauffman; assistant chief, S. Bunce; secretary, D. J. Deyo; treasurer, Pat Jordan. The council confirmed the election of officers.

Chairman Sinclair of the street and ditch committee reported favorably on the proposition to purchase the 2½ acre gravel bed owned by Wm. McKivor south of town, together with his boiler, engine and stone crushing apparatus for a consideration of $1100. The report was accepted and on motion the council voted to purchase the land and outfit.

After the transaction of a considerable amount of routine business the council then adjourned.

Base Ball Notes.

The game of base ball at the park last Sunday afternoon between the North Yakima and Ellensburg nines was too one sided an affair to be very interesting to the spectators, the game resulting in a score of 12 to 1 in favor of the home boys. The Ellensburg boys are a nice lot of fellows, but the fact remains that they can't play the national game a little bit.

Tomorrow afternoon a match game will be played between the barbers and the bartenders of this city and a hot time is looked for by the rooters of both aggregations. It is expected that the "razzers" and beer mugs will be flying through the air, and that there will be something doing at every stage of the game.

Arrangements are now said to be completed practically for the formation of "The Central Washington League," to be composed of clubs from this city, Ellensburg, Cle Elum and Roslyn. Manager Hodges of the local nine says it is a go and the fans of this city are unanimously of the opinion that it is a good scheme and ought to go.

Catholics to Lay Corner Stone.

The corner stone ceremonies of the Catholic church, which have been delayed from time to time for various good reasons, will take place tomorrow, Sunday at 4 p. m. at the site selected for the new church, corner north Fourth and C streets. Bishop O'Dea of Seattle assisted by Father Diomedi of the local church will conduct the ceremonies.

Following is the program for the day: 7:30 a. m., high mass, preaching by Bishop O'Dea, followed by confirmation; 4:00 p. m., laying of the corner stone and address by Bishop O'Dea.

The new edifice when erected will be an imposing structure and probably the finest church edifice in the state outside of the three large cities. The new building will be of stone and when completed will cost with furnishings probably not less than $30,000.

Patriotic Exercises May 27.

The school board has decided to have patriotic exercises in all the schools of district No. 7 next Friday afternoon, May 27. The following named gentlemen have promised to deliver addresses on that occasion: Rev. Hayden, Rev. Henry, Rev. Tickner, Rev. James, Rev. Collins, H. J. Snively, Ira P. Englehart, Edward Whitson, W. L. Jones, E. B. Preble, O. A. Fechter, James H. Fraser and others.

PRISONERS BREAK LOOSE

Four Prisoners Dig Their Way Out of the Old Jail.

Four prisoners escaped from the county jail at an early hour Monday morning. The prisoners taking French leave are Leon Macey, Mike Brenner, Emil Peterson and J. C. Collins. Macey is the member of the Gingles gang who "peached" on his confederates after his arrest by Sheriff Grant a few months ago. The others were in jail awaiting trial on the charge of burglary committed near Kennewick a few weeks ago. A number of other prisoners might have went with them had they been so inclined but they preferred to remain.

Collins and Brenner by using the stove poker and an old jack knife, succeeded in making an opening through the brick wall of the basement on the north side of the jail. When the hole in the wall was made one of the men crawled through and going to the woodhouse in the rear got an ax with which he sprung the lock on the door of the cell in which Macey and Peterson were confined and liberated them. Jailer Liggett and Deputy Johnson, who were sleeping in the court house, heard nothing to arouse them and were not aware of the delivery until they arose about 5 o'clock the next morning.

Sheriff Grant and his deputies immediately took up the search for the escaped prisoners. Men were sent out in different directions and telegrams giving a description of each of the men sent to the sheriffs of other counties. Apparently the fellows left no clue behind them which makes the search rather difficult. Sheriff Grant, however, is sanguine that he will run the men down.

This occurrence seems to have had the effect of creating a public sentiment in favor of having the county jail repaired in such a manner that it will hold prisoners or else a new one built. Citizens generally are agreed that it is a penny wise and pound foolish policy to allow the jail to remain in its present unsafe condition as it costs the county more money to chase the prisoners than it would to repair the jail.

"Smelling Committee' Again.

City Health Officer Carver is in receipt of official information to the effect that a meeting of the state board of health will be held in this city today to pursue its investigations into the cause for the prevalence of typhoid fever here in the summer and autumn months.

Boston Store Sold.

J. A. Cook this week sold his Boston store to a company of local capitalists, for whom Miles Cannon is acting in the transaction. His successors in the business will be known as the Boston Store company. Charles Barnes, for several years head clerk of the establishment, will manage the store. Mr. Cannon says that the report that he will quit the banking business to measure calico is all a mistake.

New Athletic Club.

The North Yakima Athletic club with quarters in the armory was formally opened Wednesday evening. Wm. Poquette of Seattle is the organizer and instructor. He has fitted the hall up with a number of up-to-date appliances for athletic exercises. The entrance fee for membership is $5, with dues $1.50 per month.

DEATHS.

Electa M. McKillips.

Electa M. McKillips passed away at the residence of James Beck in the Nile valley, Wednesday, May 11 at 5 p. m., aged 85 years and five days. Deceased was the mother of Mrs. James Beck and had made her home with her daughter and son-in-law since their marriage to the time of her death, the result of old age.

Miss Della Wiley.

Miss Della Wiley, eldest daughter of the late Josiah Wiley, died at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Wiley, near the Ahtanum Academy, Monday, May 16, aged 23. Consumption was the cause, the young woman having been stricken with the dread disease over a year ago. The funeral was Tuesday from the Ah-

Miss Wiley was born and raised in this county and had a host of friends who are pained to learn of her untimely death. For several years past she had been engaged in teaching school, having taught for a year very successfully in the schools of North Yakima. She had been engaged to teach here for the current year but was obliged to resign last September owing to ill health.

Samuel E. Gray.

Samuel E. Gray, aged 30 years, died Monday May 16, at the residence of his father, J. P. Gray, Fruitvale, the funeral being held Tuesday afternoon with burial at Tahoma cemetery. Deceased had been in poor health for over two years and death is attributed to a general breakdown.

John Stephenson.

John Stephenson, aged 31 years, died at St. Elizabeth's hospital Tuesday, May 17, the result of pneumonia. Deceased had resided in this county but a short time, having come here from Fertile, Minn. He was employed on a ranch on the reservation, when taken ill. His relatives were communicated with and ordered the remains buried here.

Card of Thanks.

We hereby tender our sincere thanks to the members of the Fraternal Brotherhood for the assistance and care rendered us in our recent sickness and distress. May the blessing of the Most High be the reward of this untiring and loyal band of workers.

If Judge Parker expects to have David B. Hill stand sponsor for him he would do well to be looking about for a sponsor for his sponsor.

Congress can adjourn feeling sure that if there is any legislation needed in the interests of the g. o. p. campaign the chief executive will attend to it.

The Brooklyn Eagle has to use a two column editorial every day to tell what it does not know about Judge Parker's position on momentous questions.

Perhaps it was a mere oversight on the president's part, but up to date he has neglected to congratulate Mr. Hearst upon that evidence of opposition to "race suicide."

The g. o. p. is so badly frightened over the situation that it is reaching desperately into the chest of the moldy past and trying to drag forth the ensanguined garment.

"The Grafters" is the name of a recent novel. Its title might indicate that it is a political historical novel, with the scene laid in Washington, D. C., during the last six years.

Why don't the reorganizers suggest a marble bust of Jefferson as a candidate. Tbey could deny that it has taken any part in the discussiou of recent issues and run it on its early record.

Mr. Carnegie is reported as saying that he will put up enough money to run the republican campaign. This is the best proof yet that Mr. Carnegie meant it when he said he wanted to die poor.

What an Editor Sees

The editor sees fraud and hypocrisy practiced by all classes of people. He sees men smirk and smile, fawn on a fellow man, who would run a knife into him and turn it should the opportunity be presented. He sees men who claim to be upon the sanctified road to heaven, lie about their moneys and credits and cheat lone widows and orphans out of their scanty earnings. He sees men who hold their heads high in the community as officials or as public spirited citizens, scheme and prowl about, to get some mean advantage of a fellow citizen. He sees men lose a month's wages gambling when their families at home are suffering for the bare necessities of life. He sees men who take sacred oaths as officials and disregard and trample beneath their feet every profession and obligation implied or contained therein and give themselves over to debauchery, licentiousness and crime.

All tnese things the editor sees in his daily rounds and more and more too, and remains in discreet silence until the undeserving offender who profits by his grace is guilty of some flagrant misdeed that brings the focus of public scrutiny upon his acts and his life. The editor can see through a mill stone as far as anybody else, aud before you indulge in wholesale denunciation of the newspaper, first search your own record and your life and see if you be qualified to "cast the first stone."—Milan, Ill., Independent.

What Next?

The labor union of Jackson, Mich., have served notice on employers that a strike will be ordered, unless sun time is substituted for standard time. Unless there are more working hours in the latter than in the former, the plea seems worth—less as a sympathy getter, and how can there be? Of course the employer might swindle the employe by stopping the clock, so, also, might there be another Joshua in the gang of employers who would get in his villianous work on the sun, and the laborer perhaps sweat his brow for a day and a half or two days on the sweat to be expended in a single day. The truth is, there seems but one excuse for the strike and that is, they want to strike.—Blandinsville Star-Gazette.

He Learned to Milk.

John D. Rockefeller, the richest man in the world, has very kindly given his son's Bible class some careful advice on the subject of success. He appeared among the young men unheralded, and delivered a neat speech to them. Although the sentiments expressed were irreproachable, the newspapers have refused to treat him seriously. Mr. Rockefeller spoke of the advantage of learning to be self-reliant, and said that at the age of seven he was taught to milk a cow. "A simple thing," echoes the Buffalo Express, scornfully, "but it paved the way to milking the public later on."—Walla Walla Union.

WARBURTON BOLTS TICKET

State Senator From Pierce County Won't Stand for Republican Nominees.

Tacoma, Wash., May 15.—State Senator Stanton Warburton of this city, leader of republican commission forces in the last legislature, and a close friend of Governor McBride, announced today that he would not support the republican state ticket, as distinguished from national, congressional and judicial ticket, provided the democrats nominated Judge George Turner of Spokane for governor, some equally good man for lieutenant governor and declare for the creation of appointive railroad commission.

"My objection to the republican state ticket," said Senator Warburton, "primarily is not the personnel of the ticket, though some of the men nominated on it are notoriously incompetent. What I do object to is the absolute dictation of the convention's proceedings by J. D. Farrell, a lifelong democrat and a representative of railroad interests, pure and simple.

"The republicans of the state were not fairly represented in the convention. Their wishes were stifled by the arbitrary interference of the railroad lobby. Had it been merely a contest between opposing factions of republicans holding conflicting opinions about the merits of a commission issue, I would acquiesce, for then there would be a chance for the commission people controling the party two years from now. At it is, if Mr. Mead and this state ticket is elected, the railroad lobby will have its grip on our throats for the next 25 years, and the domination of the Southern Pacific in California will be duplicated here.

"If the democratic party is wise, it will nominate George Turner for governor and R. C. McCroskey of Whitman county, or some equally good man, for lieutenant governor, and put a strong plank in the platform declaring for an appointive regulative railway commission. I would support such a ticket, and thousands of other republicans over the state would do the some thiug. I predict that such a ticket would carry Pierce county bv a large majority

A common Origin.

A study of details shows a remarkable likeness in the physical makeup of a Japanese of fifty years ago and an American Indian of colonial times. There is the same copper colored complexion and straight black hair; the same high cheek bones and small eyes set far apart and obliquely inclined; the same slight and exceedingly strong bodies, capable of great endurance, althongh the Japs, through many generations of fish eating, have lost something in bulk.

In other points there is also a remarkable similarity. In their languages there is the same abundance of vowels and the same lingnistic construction in which the greatest number of ideas are comprised in a small number of words. Social customs, marriage customs, dress, religion and modes of hand to hand conflict in war are suggestively alike.

Add to the fighting ability of the American Indian the fact that the Japanese have become a civilized people, taking on the skill of arts and sciences, and the world will have an added idea of the hornet's nest that has been opened against Russia.—Seattle Times.

Tolman Would Quit.

Senator Warren W. Tolman has told his friends that he will withdraw from the race for the democratic nomination for governor if Judge George Turner will be a candidate. Judge Turner is expected from California next Sunday, and when he comes local democrats will endeavor to get an understanding with him on the question of whether he will run for governor. The impression is among democrats that he will run, if he is not nominated for vice president at St. Louis, but it is not believed he will make any public statement until after the national convention. It is believed, however, that he will communicate his feelings to his closest friends, so that "the word can be passed down the line" over the state.

The democratic state convention has already been called to meet at Bellingham, but the date has not been fixed. It will probably be held late in July or early in August. The national convention meets at St. Lonis on July 7.

Many democrats who live in Senator Tolman's district insist that he run for the senate again, if he does not run for governor. Other candidate and possibilities in the district are P. F. Quinn, Councilman N. S. Pratt and J. J. Fitzgerald. The last mentioned was a member of the house last session, and voted against the commission bill. Democratic politicians say his candidacy is palpably in the interest of the railroads, and his nomination is considered improbable.—Spokesman-Review.

The city smart boy who undertook to play a rural mail delivery box for a slot machine got into the "Rube" class at once.

A knowledge of at least the elementary principles of farm mechanics should be acquired by every young man who expects to conduct a farm for his work will of necessity be largely that of operating machinery.

As soon as the ground is frozen the strawberries should have a covering of straw, cornstalks or, better than either of these, marsh hay, this covering simply to prevent the thawing and freezing of the plants during the winter.

The gradual playing out of the oil supply will necessarily increase the price of oil. Electricity stands ready to supplant oil as soon as oil reaches a certain figure, and with electricity being produced more cheaply each year the meeting point may not be far off.

We have never taken kindly to geese either as a domestic fowl to have around the place or as a table bird. There is but one kind of goose which is choice eating, the wild Canadian bird of this year's growth fattened on the grain fields of Manitoba and killed in November.

A reader wishes to know how many hens he can profitably keep in a yard on a town lot containing four square rods of ground, the birds to be confined in this lot. If he will supply them with plenty of green food, oyster shells and a ration of scrap meat in addition to their grain ration he may keep twenty hens profitably, better less than more.

In a general way it may be said that if a person is troubled with any form of lung difficulty—incipient consumption, bronchitis, asthma and the like—he should as soon as possible seek a home in those portions of the country where these troubles are always alleviated if not absolutely cured. These localities are to be found in Arizona. New Mexico, Colorado.

We have inquiries as to macaroni wheat from eastern readers—where it can be obtained and where grown. It may be obtained from any grain firm in North Dakota and is specially fitted for growing on the semiarid prairie soils lying west of the one hundredth degree of longitude. We do not understand that it would be a good crop where other wheat will grow.

A good illustration in nature of the old Biblical statement, "To him that hath shall be given and from him that hath not shall be taken away even that he hath," is found in the action of the elements upon all the hilly and rolling lands, there being a constant robbing of the fertility of such soils by erosion to still further enrich the naturally more fertile valley lands.

What the cholera is to the hog raiser the chinch bug to the wheat raiser and the codling moth to the orchardist the boll weevil is to the grower of cotton in the south, a pest which threatens the future cotton crop of the country and one for which no remedy has so far been found. It is spreading rapidly all over the cotton belt and this season has materially reduced the yield of cotton in Texas particularly.

It looks as though in a short time the barrel as a package for the shipment of apples will give way to the square bushel box. The box has so many points in its favor over the barrel—compels more honest packing, better suits the wants of the average family, is more easily handled, takes up less room in the car when shipped. The principal count against the box is that it costs a trifle more than the barrel.

The old fashioned way of sticking to one employment and one place and being content to build up a competence with small savings has almost entirely disappeared in the "get rich quick" methods which so generally prevail today. There are more moving from place to place and changing of employment, more speculation underlying all business methods, a contempt for small profits and moderate competition. As a result there are more debt, less independence and more of a spread eagle style of living than ever before. The old way has much in it to commend.

No line of business has shared to a larger extent in the benefits of modern inventive genius than agriculture. What was toil of the most slavish kind a hundred years ago has been almost wholly removed by the use of modern machinery. A few things—the milking of the cows being the principal thing—are alone left to be still done in the old laborious way. Of course there is still plenty of work, but it is not of the old slavish type, but work of that sort where brains working in co-operation with machines enable a man to accomplish ten times as much as in the old days.

There is one thing about furnace heating which every man should understand if he contemplates heating his home in this manner, and that is that the capacity of the cold air flues must equal that of the warm air flues; otherwise an imperfect circulation of the warm air will occur and poor results be obtained. It costs some people a lot of money to find this out. We know of a church supplied with furnace heat where the ignoramus who put in the plant supplied only one small cold air register for four large warm air ones, with the result that the furnace used up half a cord of dry wood every Sunday and the membership was always in a lukewarm condition. More cold air flues were put in, the fuel bill was cut in two, and the church grew in grace and good humor.

Exposure

To cold draughts of air, to keen and cutting winds, sudden changes of temperature, scanty clothing, undue exposure of the throat and neck after public speaking and singing, bring on coughs and colds. Ballard's Horehound Syrup is the best cure. Mrs. A. Barr, Houston Texes, writes, Jan. 31, 1902: "One bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup cures me of a very bad cough. It is very pleasant to take." Sold by F. L. Janeck's Drug store.

The Yakima Democrat

Combined with the Yakima Washingtonian January 1, 1904.

BY J. D. MEDILL

Subscription $1 Per Year in Advance

Published every Saturday at the Democrat Printing House, No. 7 First street, North Yakima, Wash.

Entered at the North Yakima postoffice as econd class mail matter.

The Yakima Democrat is the only Democratic Journal in Central Washington.

North Yakima, Wash., May 21, 1904.

The new members of the city council have made good their ante-election pledge by repealing ordinances 368 and 369 which granted a 25-year extension of the franchise held by the old Yakima Water, Light & Power company.

Whether this was a judicious thing to do under all the circumstances only time will determine. The council has been aggravated by the fruitless effort of the last few months in the endeavor to reach an understanding with the officers of the present company with the purpose in view of securing a general re-arrangements as well as a marked reduction of rates charged to consumers of light and water. That such rates as are now being charged are too high in comparison with those of other cities is asserted by the special committee of the council appointed to investigate that matter. It is only fair to add that this is also the emphatic opinion of a great many patrons of the service in this city and that the demand for a reduction of the rates charged has become so general that the council was forced to take some action. The introduction of the meter system of measuring both water and light by the company with a corresponding increase in the cost of the service seems to have accentuated the trouble and to have determined the present council to immediately repeal the new franchise.

There is no division of opinion in this town apparently as to the desirability of securing lower rates, but whether the council has adopted the best method of reaching the desired end is another question. This paper is inclined to the belief that the council has played its trump card first. This is based on the assumption that the council has the power to repeal the new franchise which probably never will be determined out of court. Their action Monday night, it may be assumed, will lead to long and expensive litigation which is not desirable from the standpoint of anybody unless it be the lawyers employed in the case. In cities of the third class which includes North Yakima, the council has no power to establish light and water rates, a fact that might place consumers at a decided disadvantage.

The Democrat is of the opinion that the officers of the new company have not treated the overtures of the council for a peaceful settlement of the difficulty with due consideration. When an issue has to be met it may as well be met first as last as procrastination only aggravates matters and in this case it seems to have put the council and the people in an ugly mood.

There ought, however, still be a way of settling the matter without recourse to the courts and this paper hopes that good judgment will prevail on both sides in order that the points at issue may be settled equitably and with justice to both sides.

One of the most devoted friends that Gov. McBride had in the state convention was ex-governor John H. McGraw of Seattle, who worked for McBride early and late. The ex-governor, however, being but one delegate out of J. D. Farrell's bunch of 115 from King county was powerless to do anything for his old friend.

That convention is a good illustration of the ups and downs of politices. From 1889 to 1896 John H. McGraw was easily the most commanding figure in the state He was the Caesar of Washington politices, the absolute dictator and exercised a powerful influenec over the destinies of other men. He rode the republican elephant booted and spurred and none dared deny his authority until the fusion flood in 1896 swept he and his favorites off the political map. About the same time financial misfortune overtook him and reduced him to comparative poverty.

In spite of his faults, however, there is a good deal to admire about John H. McGraw. Soon after he retired from the governorship the discovery was made that he was indebted to King county in the sum of about $10,000, owing to a deputy's peculations while he, McGraw, held the office of sheriff. The claim was outlawed but as soon as the ex-governor became convinced that the debt was a just one he paid it, although in financial distress at the time,

As governor McGraw made a fairly good record when it be considered the panicky conditions that existed during his administration. When the republican leaders at Tacoma last week were casting about desperately in search of gubernatorial timber they evidently never once thought of John H. McGraw. Instead they selected, or had selected for them, an obscure man of strong corporation tendencies whom they will find it impossible to elect. . Had they selected a strong and virile man like McGraw they might have entered the campaign with at least the hope of victory

The Democrat is at all times averse to advising its readers to vote for bonds. Our people are groaning under a heavy burden of taxation already and this paper would never advocate an increase of our bonded indebtedness were there not good reasons for it.

The health of a community ought to be the first consideration with every man who feels that he owes something to his neighbor or has the welfare of his home town at heart. None of us are able to live independently of each other and the man who thinks that he can deserves to be treated as an Ishmaelite.

As Grover Cleveland would say, it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us here in North Yakima. We must do something to better the sanitary conditions of this young city and we must do it right away. In fact to much time has been lost already in fruitless talk. What we want now is results, and the way to get results is to get to work.

The people of this city on May 28 will be called upon to vote upon the proposition to authorize an issue of $60,000 worth of municipal bonds to be converted into cash for the purpose of laying the trunk lines of a new sewer system, combined with a drainage system. The council has employed high priced engineers who have the reputation of being competent to devise this proposed system. These men all say that this is the best thing that can be done with the amount of money to do with. As we all know that something must be done let us stop arguing the question and go ahead and do it.

The Democrat is informed that quite a number of our citizens intend to vote against the bonds because they have grievances against the present city council. Our advice to all such is don't do it. Don't be a "knocker." Take a broad view of the situation. The Democrat is free to confess that it has no particular love for the present city administration and it is through no fault of ours that any member of it is in office today, but that has nothing to do with this case. This paper would give its moral support to its worst enemy as long as it believed that the enemy is working for the good of the town Let us all then lay aside our petty animisities and work for the good of the town. There is a personal responsibility in this matter on every voter.

The Spokesman-Review is publishing each day a long list of the names of good republicans of that city and vicinity who say that they will not support the corporation made republican state ticket. Bolting is rife and the spirit of rebellion is in the air not only in eastern Washington but in this section and in a lesser degree perhaps in the western part of the state.

The people of this state are long suffering and will put up with a great deal of corporation meddling with their affairs as past experience proves, but the limit of their patience has been reached. The railroad lobby and its pliant tools went too far at Tacoma. That fact is already plainly evident to every citizen who is not a fool in politics.

The political murder of Gov. McBride has aroused the people of this state as nothing else could have done. While McBride in his makeup may lack the qualities of a great statesman and a successful leader he nevertheless represents the best that the republican party had to offer the people. By ruthlessly kicking him out and giving his place to a political unknown, friendly to their own interests, the railroads have simply brought the issue between themselves and the people to a climax.

When the American people once become thoroughly aroused they never fail to rise in their might and punish their tormentors.

Since it will become necessary before long for the democrats of Yakima, Kittitas and Franklin counties to select a candidate for the nigh office of superior judge of this judicial district, a suggestion as to a suitable candidate may be in order. In this connection the Democrat takes pleasure in suggesting the name of Hon. E. B. Preble of this city. We do not know that Judge Preble would care to accept the nomination, but that he would make a strong candidate if nominated and an ideal judge if elected, we feel certain. He is a profound student of the law and being possesed of a judical temeprament would naturally fit the place. The judge is certainly good enough timber for any judicial position in the state and would be an ornament to the bench.

The Democrat wishes to congratulate Mr. George Donald, the genial banker of this city, on his election as a delegate to the republican national convention. Of course, Mr. Donald and his fellow delegates won't have much to do when they get to Chicago except to hurrah when the great Teddy's name is mentioned, but then the honor is his just the same.

Col. Ed. Whitson is said to have been easily the most popular man, not alone with the ladies, in the late state convention. The colonel, it is said, might have had the governorship but conscientious scruples stood in the way which compelled him to pass. Thus the fates continue to play with the colonel, only to deny him what his heart desires.

But while the colonel refused point blank to be our governor he derived much pleasure and profit nevertheless from being on hand and in the "swim," besides his picture was printed in the News—almost as great an honor as being governor. But all these things were as naught compared to the momentous results attained.

The colonel deftly passed the proffered governorship on to an unknown statesman of Whatcom, the home of the present land commissioner. That county overjoyed at drawing the capital prize in the lottery, was easily pursuaded to drop the venerable Callvert back into obscurity from whence he came.

And thus are governors sometimes made and stubborn, overzealous land commissioners decapitated. Here is an instance of where the King-maker is greater than the King. What a great thing it is to be a King-maker.

From present indications the republican state ticket will receive but little sympathy or support from eastern Washington. The people of that section without regard to party are not only displeased but angry at the overbearing insolence of the lobby as manifested in its absolute control of the republican state convention and they seem determined to rebuke that party at the polls in November. Being a question of principle with them the present soreness will not wear away as it might do if it was merely a quarrel over offices. There is no doubt though but what the gulf was widened by the refusal of the dominant faction to recognize the eastern counties in the slate making process. Instead of according them recognition the delegates from the cow counties were told that they are a disturbing element and are not wanted in the party and that a majority for the ticket could be secured in the state without them. To say nothing of the principle involved this was an exhibition of kindergarten politics as foolish as it is likely to prove disastrous to the g. o. p. in this state.

Editor Robertson says in his paper that the Yakima delegation refused to stand for Senator "Herb" Baker as a candidate for governor because it was thought that he stood in too close with the railroads, yet they supported the candidacy of lawyer Mead of Whatcom, another railroad aspirant.

This seems to be a distinction without a difference. Why did the delegation discriminate against Baker, whom the Republic admits has always been friendly to this county? Was it because that Baker is an open and notorious railroad man while Mead, though tarred with the same stick, is obscure and little known? Since both are railroad men why did the delegation prefer Mead to Baker? Mr. Robertson and his associates did not want a man with the vulnerable record that Baker has. Since it was necessary to choose a corporation man they preferred one with a less offensive record, if indeed he has any record at all, but he is a corporation man just the same.

The Brooklyn Eagle and other gold bug papers have been industriously circulating a report to the effect that Wm. R. Hearst, Wm. J. Bryan, James B. Weaver, Arthur Brisbane and other leaders of the radical faction of the democratic party had formed a compact to bolt the candidate of the St. Louis convention and organize a new party in the event of Judge Parker's nomination. In answer to this bare-faced lie, that probably originated in the office of the Brooklyn Eagle, Mr. Hearst speaking for himself said:

"I am for the St. Louis nominee. I should, of course, like any other man be honored and gratified should the democratic convention see fit to nominate me for the presidency. I have supported the democratic ticket in the last five campaigns, Cleveland three times and Bryan twice. I intend to support the nominee of the party at St. Louis, whoever he may be."

The republican state ticket that was nominated at Tacoma last Wednesday is a good strong ticket. It is composed of clean and able men and is worthy of every member of the party. It will be elected in November and any republican who opposes it will be a marked man in the party in the future.—Yakima Herald.

The new boss is beginning to crack his whip rather early in the game.

There seems to be a good deal of kicking at Seattle as well as other parts of the state over the manner in which the big bunch of King county delegates were handled at Tacoma by J. D. Farrell, head of the Great Northern lobby and a democrat at that. Piles, the would-be senator, certainly showed himself to be a weak sister and as mere putty in the hands of Farrell. When Piles at the bidding of Farrell refused to accept the pledge offered by the McBride men to deliver to him 28 votes in the legislature in return for King county's support of McBride, he threw away all hope of securing a seat in the U. S. senate. The King county politicians are fully entitled to their reputation as political blunderers.

The republican county platform contained a plank declaring in explicit language that the waters at the head of the Yakima river and its tributaries must be kept intact for the common benefit of the people. Yet, the republican delegation went to Tacoma determined at all hazards to secure the political scalp of State Land Commissioner Callvert, who has been doing his utmost to protect the rights of the people in the watershed. The Yakima delegation succeeded in getting the old man's scalp all right enough. But why did they want it if they are sincere in their declaration that they want to protect the watershed? Isn't that just what poor old man Callvert has been trying to do?

State Senator Tolman, of Spokane county, and one of the leading democrats of the state, has announced himself as a candidate for governor on the democratic ticket. If Senator George Turner will not accept the nomination probably the democrats could't do better than to select Senator Tolman as their leader—but every effort must be brought to bear to compel Senator Turner to accept—for with him as leader the state can be carried by the party with ample majority, and we believe with a very large majority.—Seattle Times.

Some Eastern Washington man is saidto have told "Yakima" Jones that he is "playing his last engagement." Mr. Jones merely smiled as all men smile who know that they were born under a lucky star. We prophesy that Mr. Jones' luck will continue until he finally runs up against a democratic house of representatives which will considerately excuse him from attendance until he returns and presents the proper kind of credentials.

The Spokane Spokesman-Review announces editorially that it will support Mr. Roosevelt in the coming campaign, but that it will draw the line at the g. o. p. state ticket. We wonder what it will do in the case of "Yakima" Jones? The Review is probably the most influential newspaper in the state and its policy wil ldoubtless cost certain republican candidates many an hour of sleep during the campaign.

The g. o. p. jollification was a rather tame affair, being noticeably lacking in real enthusiasm. The cause of the frost must have been due to the fact that Col. Cannon and the young men in charge exploded their ammunition prematurely. They might well have waited until Col. Whitson and Doc Hare had rteurned from the scene of battle to add dignity as well as humor to the occasion.

The Democrat does not want to detract any from the glory claimed for the Yakima delegation in securing great honors for three of our leading citizens, but we, of course, like many good republicans deplore the fact that the delegation found it necessary to sacrifice principle in order to secure the coveted recognition. The leaders themselves now seem to realize that they gave up much for very little.

The Goldendale Agriculturist complains that the Great Northern crowd are responsible for having killed off the gubernatorial boom of Senator "Herb" Baker of that town. Our Goldendale contemporary is evidently barking up the wrong tree. It is the Yakima delegation that is entitled to the credit of having put the kibosh on Baker.

Now that we have had another jail delivery it is to be hoped that the board of county commissioners will wake up to the necessity of either repairing the present excuse for a jail or of building a new one. The wonder is not that prisoners escape, but that any stay in.

The Yakima valley is going to produce another bumper crop this year from all indications. It therefore behooves the transportation companies to take notice and be in a position to meet the demands made upon them for cars a few weeks later.

It is worth while noting that neither Robertson nor Boardman in their jollification speeches ever once alluded to the fact that beds were mighty scarce in Tacoma last week.

Austin Mires may be "the uncrowned king of Kittitas," but when it comes to getting results he is not in it with our own Col. Whitson, "the king maker."

"After you my dear Gaston." nay, "After you my dear Alphonso." Scene, a Tacoma hotel bed chamber as the two Yakima newspaper colonel's were about to retire.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

Washington Is Dull After Congress Adjourns—Gossip Political and Otherwise at the National Capital.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May 14, 1904.

There is a gentle buzz around the White House doors as republicans who want something file in and out, but congress is away, and the left-over servitors are at work varnishing the desks and silver-surfacing the cuspidors for next winter's campaign. There is not much exciting news to send you, but the reservoir of genial gossip never runs dry.

We miss the scrimmage on the floor;
We miss the angry fray;
We miss Dalzell's and Cockran's oratorical display;
We miss—sometimes—without a doubt,
The wherewithal to pay,
For bills are in and cash is out
When congress is away.

Perhaps 'tis foolish, but we would
It might forever stay,
And in a rather sombre mood
We count the months from May;
In action weak and patience strong,
Dispirited we stray,
With purses short and faces long
When congress is away.

For a fortnight now the city has been afflicted with that sort of political insanity which accompanies a primary election. As nobody is ever elected to anything here, the febrile condition rises to its full height (temp. 104) in this mere expression of preference for a Democratic presidential candidate. The fact that we are shackled and paralyzed when election day actually comes around, does not seem to diminish the racket and riot of the primaries. Not much blood was spilt this year, however, and night revealed that Hearst had met his Waterloo. There is a contesting delegation, of course, but there are signs of harmony already in the air and it is probable that there will be a tumultuous getting together before the delegates go to the nominating convention.

Stanley, the great explorer, who once made his home in Washington, is dead. When he ran away from a poorhouse in Wales and escaped as a cabin boy to New Orleans, thirteen years old, he called himself Jack Rowlands, but he had no idea who his father was, or even his mother, and never knew. Thirty years later, when he had dragged the reluctant Livingston to light, and enriched the geography of the world by mapping the sources of the mysterious Nile, more than a dozen women in different parts of Great Britain and America came generously forward and confessed to giving him birth. His great feat even lifted young Bennett from obscurity and revealed him as a masterful editor. Stanley's claim to have discovered Livingstone and circumnavigated the vast lake Tanganyika was hailed with merciless derision and incredulity that made the young explorer disgusted with human nature. But he outlived it and received the grateful applause of rulers, statesmen and scholars in both hemispheres. Sir Henry and Lady Stanley came to America on their wedding tour in December, 1890, and were entertained at the British Embassy in Washington by Lord Pauncefote. Distinguished people were present from many cities.

Admiral Walker tells your correspondent that the Panama canal will cost $200,000,000 to build and will require ten years—perhaps more. It will employ 60,000 men during that time besides the engineers, machinists and skilled laborers. He thinks the acquisition of John Findley Wallace of Chicago for civil engineer is a great hit.

The frenzy for flats seems to be somewhat abating, especially for high-priced apartments. People who can afford to pay $50 a month for family accomodations prefer a detached residence to any kind of flat whatever. Among the hundreds of apartment houses in the city, those who pay best are the ones that rent for $30 or less. This fact has given rise to a plan to build in our western suburbs, just over the Georgetown line, the largest apartment house in the world, to be ten stories high and cost three million dollars. It will occupy four city squares and will contain 4,000 rooms. Its architecture will be French-Spanish and its name the Alhambra. It will have a four acre park in the rear.

One of the great enterprises, out of many, now going forward in this city, is the building of the $10,000,000 Episcopal Cathedral, to be known as the Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul. It will stand upon a bluff in the northwestern part of the city, commanding an extended and beautiful view and balancing the Capitol building at the other end of the town. Today the new Jordan font of the Cathedral was dedicated. It is of Carara marble, an octagon, fifteen feet in diameter, elaborately wrought, surmounted by life sized figures of Christ and the Apostles. The inside is paved with pebbles from the River Jordan. The cost of the font was $20,000, all contributed by Sunday school children. In time this great cathedral will be a superb work of art. About a year ago the president delivered a sermon to the assembled bishops inside the cathedral close. Bishop Satterlee hopes to induce all evangelical denominations to use the structure as a place of worship.

Insomnia and insubordination of the liver afflict Secretary Taft, and he is in danger of a general breakdown. He grew very fat in the enervating climate of Manila, and since he has come to Washington he has spent altogether too many of his nights at the banquet table. He has now started hot-foot for the Adirondacks and says he will fish and go without eating for a while..... Pension Commissioner Ware who a month ago declared that his position was an ideal one, "quite delightful," now announces that he will quit and go home next winter. He has boxed his clerks round in a manner calculated to promote the good of the service.

END OF THE HACKNEY.

How He Is Worn Out In the Service of Society.

The prancing, high stepping hackneys that draw the shiny carriages of the rich are often driven the pace that kills. In "Horses Nine" Sewell Ford tells the story of such a horse and his mate and how they were worn out. The author says: Seeing them come down the street, heads tossing, pole chains jingling, the crest and monogram of the house of Jerry glistening on quarter cloth and rosette, their polished hoofs seeming barely to touch the asphalt, you might have thought their lot one to be envied. But Bonfire knew better.

He curved his neck and threw his hoofs high, whether his muscles ached or no; in winter he stamped to keep warm, in summer to dislodge the flies; he did his work faithfully, early or late, in cold and in heat, and all this because he was a son of Sir Bardolph and for the reason that it was his nature to. Had it been put upon him he would have worked in harness until he dropped, prancing his best to the last.

No supreme test, however, was ever brought to the endurance and willingness of Bonfire. They just kept him on the pole, nerves tense, muscles strained, until he began to lose form. His action no longer had that grace and abandon which so pleased Mrs. Jerry when she first saw him. Long standing in the cold numbs the muscles. It robs the legs of their spring. Sudden starts, such as are made when you are called from line after an hour's waiting, finish the business. Try as he might Bonfire could not step so high, could not carry a perfect crest. His neck had lost its roundness, in his rump a crease had appeared.

At last the inevitable happened. Two young hackneys, plump of neck, round of quarter, springy of knee and hock, were brought to the stable. Bonfire and his mate were led out of their old stalls to return no more. They had been worn out in the service and cast aside like a pair of old gloves.

POSTAL ODDITIES.

With one exception there has been a deficit in postal revenues every year since 1835.

Thousands of letters are mailed every day without the vestige of an address to indicate for whom they are intended.

Mail matter of any kind addressed in a vague and indefinite way, such as to "the most prominent physician," etc., is not deliverable.

Benjamin Franklin, first postmaster general, boasted that under his administration all the cities of the country had been provided with a weekly mail.

One may mail a letter destined for foreign parts without prepayment of postage. It will go forward to destination, and the recipient will be required to pay double rates for the privilege of reading it if he values it sufficiently.

At the Chicago post office a record is kept of the different ways of spelling the name of that city on mail addresses. At last accounts 280 varieties had been tabulated. Among the less intricate of these are Zizazo, Jagjago, Hipaho, Jajijo and Chachicho.

Giving an Opinion.

Taddles—I used to think a good deal of Straddles, but—

Waddles—You don't say so? What has he done?

"The other day I asked him to call round and give me his opinion of an article of mine on 'The Impending Crisis.' Well, he came all right; but he brought a little thing of his own for me to hear, and, confound him, he wasted all the evening with his egotistical trash."

In Many Places.

Mrs. McCall—I see you've got a new girl. Has she had much experience as a cook?

Mrs. Hiram Offen—Apparently not much, but many, and I propose to give her notice to hunt up another experience when her week's up.—Philadelphia Press.

Quite Familiar.

Doctor—Do I think I can cure your catarrh? Why, I am sure of it.

Patient—So you're very familiar with the disease?

Doctor—I should say so! I've had it myself all my life.—Judge.

His Deceptive Appearance.

"They say he got rich writing the words of popular songs."

"Yet to look at him you'd think he had at least ordinary intelligence."—Chicago Record-Herald.

APPLES THAT KEEP.

The entire west is deficient in varieties of apples which are good keepers. Hardly any known variety will hold up without serious loss until March. The Ben Davis, Willow Twig and Jenlton will keep the longest, but they are none of them high grade fruit. Improvements in methods of cold storage have naturally turned attention to it as a means of preserving better varieties of the apple for spring use. A very interesting experiment was conducted last winter at the Iowa experiment station on this line, with the following result: Twelve varieties of apples were placed in cold storage on Sept. 15, and the per cent of loss on Feb. 14 was as follows: Wealthy, 4; Fameuse, 1; Wolf River, 36; Seek No Further, 48; Jonathan, 23; Ben Davis, 8; Janet, 12; Romanite, 4; Willow Twig, 6; White Pippin, 30; Roman Stem, 16; Domine, 7. Over a vast territory in the northwest of the above list only the Wealthy, Fameuse and Wolf River are safe trees to plant, the others not being sufficiently hardy. Of the entire list the Wealthy in quality, appearance and productiveness is easily at the head and may be grown in perfection in Wisconsin, Iowa, southern Minnesota and eastern South Dakota, and with its splendid keeping quality, as evidenced in the foregoing test, the important question of a supply of winter apples for the west would seem to be solved.

END OF THE LAND BOOM.

The question is asked us why it is that while two years ago the demand for good farm land was so sharp that there were a half dozen buyers after every farm offered for sale and very few for sale at all there should now be plenty of farms for sale and but very few buyers, and this when there is only a very slight decline in the market value of farm products and the farm for all purposes just as good an investment as it was two years ago. As all well know, the country is past the boom period which began in 1896. In all such boom periods the last thing to be affected is land, and it is hardly too much to say that two years ago all were crazy on real estate. This craze has subsided, and the country is now settled down to a period of liquidation, with the feather edge of speculation all gone. If a farm is sold now it is sold for what it will produce and not what the buyer hoped to get for it by selling it again. The advance in the value of farm land incident to the boom is, however, pretty well maintained. There is simply a lack of buyers.

HUMUS IN THE SOIL.

We are asked what humus is and its relation to the soil. In a word, it is simply decayed vegetable matter. Thus all new soils, woodland or prairie, are rich in this property, which results in making them mellow, workable, productive, the humus being the product of decaying leaves, grasses and vegetation. As soon as the soil is worked and cropped there begins a steady drain on this property of the soil, the removal of the crop each year preventing any addition to the supply. The chief function of humus is to keep the soil in that condition which will best furnish plant food for growing vegetation. Where this element is lacking the soil becomes like mortar in a wet time and bakes like a stone in a dry time. The application of barnyard fertilizer, the plowing under of green crops and the growing of clover all help to maintain the supply of humus.

POINTER FOR YOUNG MEN.

Just a pointer for the young man who has got it into his noddle that two people can live just as cheaply as one and who, so believing, is going to get married as soon as he can: Young man you can't do it. It looks all right on paper, but won't pan out in practice. There are lots of things which two people must have which a young man can get along without. It is often true that after a man is married he will work harder and take better care of his money, for he will find that he will have to where there are two or more to provide for. It is all right to get married when you are properly situated, but as a purely financial proposition it is a failure.

PROSPEROUS SOUTH DAKOTA.

Grasshoppers, drought, real estate boomers and other drawbacks conspired to injure the reputation of South Dakota for many years, but the state has emerged in splendid shape from all her troubles and this year makes a showing which places her in the front rank among the productive and progressive states of the Union. The value of the new wealth in the shape of agricultural products and minerals produced this year is $138,507,750, or $343 per head of population, $1,725 per family, $2,587 per farmer. The sum of $29,164,158 is on deposit in her banks. These facts prove the real and substantial type of prosperity which prevails there.

BONES AND CHINAWARE.

A large amount of bone is used in the manufacture of a certain brand of chinaware at a large factory in an English city. This supply of bone has hitherto been obtained from places in South America where in the past cattle have been slaughtered for their hides, tallow and what beef extract could be made from their carcasses. Latterly this source of supply for cheap bone has been cut off for the reason that other uses at higher prices have been found for them, and, as a result, the China interest of the English community is threatened with extinction.

ETIQUETTE OF WIGS.

Bald Men, With Care, May Complete the Illusion They Seek.

The baldheaded man who is not resigned to his fate and who is posted on the etiquette of wig wearing adorns himself with a faithful copy of nature which simulates his poverty instead of her wealth, says the Chicago Tribune. For an artistic wig for a man is usually made thin or nearly bald on the crown, so as to allay suspicion. When the wig is adjusted to the man's head, the pink scalp shows through the white net of foundation at the crown, thus leaving a modest suggestion of baldness. This is the first principle of the etiquette of wig wearing—claim too little rather than too much of nature's covering.

This principle is carried to a refinement of perfection by the man who can afford the luxury of buying several wigs, for he may then make the transition from baldness to a semblance of his former self cover a space of two or three years and thus complete the deception, which is the aim of all wearers of wigs.

A cardinal point in the etiquette of wig wearing is that one should not wear his wig in bed. It is not proper. Some, either from motives of extreme vanity or from an unwillingness to shock the delicate sensibilities of their families, sleep in their wigs. This practice is condemned unhesitatingly. It is unclean. One should substitute for the wig worn during the day a simple nightcap of muslin, to insure one against taking cold.

In the morning, as the last touch of perfection to the toilet, the wig should be delicately adjusted and then glued to one's head. If this adjustment is carefully made and if one is wearing a really fine wig he may defy both wind and sunlight to betray that "things are not what they seem."

This careful adjustment of the wig is a most important point. It requires eternal vigilance, since a single careless adjustment means ruin. Along the edge of the wig of ordinary size are five spots about half the size of a penny where the paste or glue is applied with which the wig is made fast to the head. The paste must be carefully applied, since if it comes in contact with the hair it destroys its lifelike appearance.

A practice generally observed by the wearers of fine wigs is that of dressing the hair in a variety of ways. This is desirable, since it suggests a natural head of hair, yet this practice is perfectly possible with a really fine wig, every hair of which is separately attached to the net foundation.

Dog Cemetery of Paris.

Paris has a dog cemetery on an island in the Seine. A plain grave without a headstone may be had for $1, and the body is removed on a little wagon for a similar sum. The graves are leased, not sold. The charge for five years' lease is $5, for ten $10, for twenty $15 and for thirty $20. Very stringent rules forbid the use of ceremonies or decorations such as are used at funerals. No cross may be erected over an animal or bird, for all pets may be interred here. The inscriptions are of a curious and exaggerated sentimentality. Tola Dorian, the author, says on her pets' tombstone that if she "cannot accompany the dear and noble animals she does not wish for heaven." and on "Follette's" grave a mourner has placed these words: "My dear Follette, thou who wert always faithful and intelligent, we regret thee much, repose in peace." Near the entrance to the cemetery stands a row of battered stones from graves the leases of which have expired.

A Practical Mind.

The teacher was endeavoring to give the class some idea of the greatness of this country in a commercial sense. "Take the egg product alone," she said. "It is estimated that if all the eggs produced in the United States last year were loaded into one railway train, when the engine was pulling into Newark, N. J., the caboose would just be leaving Davenport, Ia.

"This seems hard to realize," she continued, "but the statistics are compiled by a well known authority."

A little boy raised his hand.

"What is it, Donald?" asked the teacher.

"I don't believe it's true, Miss Adair," he said. "One engine couldn't pull that train."

A Scandal Spoiled.

"Of course he and his wife seem devoted to each other now," said the jealous Miss Gaussip, "but do you think she will always be so true and all that?"

"Well," replied Miss Kidder, "I have reason to know that only last night he had occasion to set a trap for her."

"Ah! Do you know, I suspected something"—

"They more than suspected. They knew there were mice in the house."—Philadelphia Press.

FARM FOR SALE.

Having concluded, on account of my health, to give up farming, I now offer for sale my well improved ranch of 157 acres, situated 8 miles from North Yakima, and 1½ miles south of the Ahtanum academy. This ranch is mostly seeded down and is especially adapted for dairying. I will also sell 30 fine milch cows, all of my stock of cattle, 60 head of hogs, several head of work horses, farm machinery and a complete list of farm utensils. Will sell the farm alone or in connection with the personal property. Here is a chance to get a bargain.

The Yellow Peril.

The first great victory on the land won by aggressive Asiatic troops over Europeans since the days of the mediaeval invasions has again set many pens in motion whose fluent flow of ink describes the "Yellow Peril." The form in which this bugaboo has appeared to Lord Wolseley and other military men is that of a triumphant Japan influencing China to arm and drill her myriads for the conquest of the world.

All of which is the merest nonsense. Recent military history has taught, if it has taught anything, the exceeding difficulty which confronts even a great military power when it attempts to fight even a feeble foe at a distance. It was so with the British against the Boer. Today Russia might crush Japan if the countries lay side by side. It is because the seat of war is as many thousands of miles from her base as it is hundreds of miles from Japan's that Russia rages so impotently. She is not battling a "yellow peril;" she is striving to hold an "undigested" conquest at the very further verge of Asia from her own centre of population. It is difficult and it ought to be difficult to do so.

If there were a "yellow peril" it would be invited not by the victory of a small island empire, restricted from land conquest by her very position. It would be invited by such a Russian absorption of China as the Czar's jingo advisers were planning only a few months ago.

Whom Russia conquers she arms. She conquered the Cossacks—and uses them to beat down freedom in Finland and in university towns with their leaden whips. She conquered the Tartars—and the Genghis Khan of today is an officer in her army.—N. Y. World.

The Canal—Why $10,000,000?

The United States Monday bought the Panama Canal rights of the French company by paying $40,000,000 to J. P. Morgan & Co., as disbursing agents, who are to apportion the money to the beneficiaries.

Ten million dollars is further to be paid to the Republic of Panama. Why? Why should something be paid for nothing?

The list of benefits received from Uncle Sam upon which Panama is reckoning includes—

Commercial prosperity, due to enormous constructive expenditures at first and later to great and growing traffic.

The sanitation of the unwholesome coast ports, with the introduction of a pure-water supply.

The policing of the canal strip against marauders.

The protection by the United States of the Panama Republic itself, without which protection it could not exist for a single month.

Why, in addition to all this, should we pay $10,000,000 which we had agreed to give Colombia, but never agreed to give Panama?

President Roosevelt's act of usurpation in ordering that this money be paid to Panama without legal warrant ranks with his service pension ukase as a needless perversion of the law and the Constitution.—St. Louis Republic.

Money in the Right Place.

Replying to The World's showing of the unparalleled extravagancies of Congress under President Roosevelt's Administration, the Springfield Union asks:

Suppose the government expenditures under President Roosevelt have exceeded by $883,000,000 those under President Cleveland, what of it? Would The World have locked up this vast revenue in the vaults at Washington, or would it have thrown it back into circulation through the medium of great public improvements?

The World would have done neither. It believes that revenue should be regulated and limited by the wants of the government economically administered. It believes that "unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation." And it believes that the right place for every dollar not needed for the just purposes of economical government is in the pockets of the men who earned it—not in the "vaults at Washington," nor thrown into circulation" through extravagant jobs, demoralizing pensions or jingo "expansion."—N. Y. World.

MY ONE DETECTIVE CASE

[Original.]

"I had been ill and had lost my position. When I recovered, I started out to find another. My plucky wife gave me a kiss and cheered me as well as she could.

I resolved to go from door to door in the business part of the town, without reference to the kind of business. I had visited some twenty stores and manufacturing places when I struck the headquarters of the police department. True to my resolution, I went in. The inspector was in a bad humor about something, and I considered it a mere waste of time to apply to him, but I would not go back on my resolution.

"What do you want?" he asked gruffly.

"Anything. Detective work, if you have any."

"Detectives! Blunderers rather. I want a good detective right now, and I can't get one. How much experience have you?"

"None."

He sat for a moment thinking, then said: "My detectives are all known to the crooks. I have a mind to try you on a case because you're not known. The —th National bank was robbed last night, and the robbers are trying to get out of town with the swag. If I arrest them, they won't have the money on them, so I'm letting them run. Suppose I put you on to one of them, do you think you could make yourself out stupid enough for him to send the stuff out of town by you?"

"I can do a very hard job of trying," I replied.

He considered awhile, then instructed me to go to a certain cheap hotel and put up as a guest from the country. Bill O'Neil, one who was suspected of the robbery, was there, or had been there. I was to gain his confidence in the hope that he would send me out with at least a part of what had been taken from the bank. I fixed myself up in country costume and went to the place designated. A man answering the description of Bill O'Neil was sitting in the office when I went up to register. I paid no attention to him nor he to me. I went into the dining room, ate a good meal and on going out saw O'Neil sitting where I had left him. I bought a five cent cigar and while I was smoking it walked up to O'Neil and asked him if he knew when the next train left for Spottswood, a village twenty miles out. He answered very gruffly that he didn't, but I sat down beside him and began to talk about the price of corn, hay and other country commodities. Presently he called out to the clerk, asking him about the Spottswood train, and received a reply that it would leave in an hour. He then asked what road it was on and on being informed said to me that he was going to a station on the hither side of Spottswood and we would go together. "That is," he added, "if I can see a man before train time." He couldn't see "a man" before train time and asked me if I would take a parcel to Cottonwood. He would telegraph his partner to be on the lookout when the train stopped to receive it.

It looked as if the man had fallen into the trap, but I suspected he hadn't. At any rate I knew there was a game to be played and my eyes must be like a myriad of telescopes.

"All right," I said. "Gimme yer bundle."

"Come up to my room. I've a bottle there, and I'll blow you off."

It was plain he wouldn't act where others could see. We went to the room and he gave me the bundle. While he was getting out his bottle with his back toward me I jabbed a sharp knife into the package. The blade met with no resistance and I caught sand and sawdust in my hand. I had just time to put up the knife and thrust the bundle into my pocket when O'Neil turned, and I received my liquor with a smile.

I asked for a second drink and a third and so on as long as O'Neil would give me one. I waxed merry as I drank, and I soon saw by the expression of O'Neil's face that he was quite willing I should get drunk. At last instead of taking my train I fell over on the bed in an apparent stupor. Had I not possessed a strong head I would have been all I appeared. It was now quite dark, and I was snoring lustily. O'Neil turned off the light, and I heard a key turn and a drawer open. Then he went out, locking the door on the outside. I jumped up, glanced out the window, hung outside on the sill and let myself drop twenty feet or more to an extension and then down another big drop to the street, taking position on a corner where I could see every egress. I waited half an hour and was about to give up the job when I saw a "hayseed" like myself go out through a side door. Something—I don't know what—induced me to shadow him. I tracked him to a railway station, where I directed a depot official to call a policeman while I watched my man. In a few minutes the "hayseed" was arrested. On him was found the plunder done up in a bundle similar to the one that had been given to me.

O'Neil was also arrested. He told me that as mine was a new face he was uncertain whether I was a detective or not. Finally he concluded that whatever I was he would send me off with a dummy bundle. Then seeing a chance to lock me in he transferred the money to one of his gang made up to play my part.

My work so pleased the inspector that he wanted me to remain with him, but as I received a $5,000 reward I invested it in business and am now making money.

Wapato.

Mrs. J. D. Reard is on the sick list this week.

Peter Hush spent last week in North Yakima visiting his uncle.

John Carroll is improving the appearance of his blacksmith shop.

Prof. Richardson was down from Cle Elum Saturday and Sunday.

Will Kenney and family returned to this place Monday from Stevens county.

Hurlburt Pangburn had the misfortune to get his leg broke in an accident last Sunday.

A dance was given at the Jellison home Friday night. Those present report a pleasant evening.

A. E. McCredy returned home Friday from Tacoma, where he was a delegate to the republican state convention.

The Yakima City baseball club played Wapato nine No. 1. The score was 44 to 22 in favor of the Wapato boys.

J. Sedwich and family returned to Wapato last week. They left here this spring on account of the health of Mrs. Sedwich.

A few friends assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Smith Wednesday evening, May 11 to help that couple in celebrating their 20th wedding anniversary. It was a very enjoyable event and a good time was had by all.

A basket social was given at the school house under the auspices of ball nine No. 2. The receipts of the evening were $22.75. The following program was rendered:

Duet, ...Goldie and Sylvia Maxwell
Recitation .....Vivian Smith
Duet .....Clara and Gladys Doyle
Reading .....Prof. McIlvaine
Violin solo .....Mrs. G. McKee
Recitation .....Hannah Richardson
Declamation .....Roy Jones
Song .....Bobbie Roberts

Prosser.

Willis Mercer and wife have left for an eastern trip. They will take in the world's fair.

Geo. Baker has taken a contract to break a section of Horse Heaven land for a party in Portland.

Mrs. Angus who has returned from her visit with friends at The Dalles is again in charge of "central."

Col. Baker returned last week from Missouri, bringing with him a number of new settlers who will locate here.

Mayor Taylor and Postmaster Rich each expect to put up a good substantial brick business building this season.

The Elite club gave an invitation dance at Odd Fellows hall Saturday evening which was a very enjoyable affair.

A large amount of virgin soil will be cropped this year for the first time across the river from here under the Sunnyside canal.

An effort is being made among the boys to get up a rousing Fourth of July celebration. By all means let's make the eagle scream.

Henry Taylor is preparing to open up an exclusive clothing and gent's furnishing goods store here of which there is now none in town. Mr. Taylor is a popular young man and will no doubt make a success of his venture.

Tampico.

Our school will close an eight month term next Friday.

Miss Vida Shaw who has been ill for two weeks, is now able to be about again.

Dan Goodman has a force of men at work fencing what is known here as the forks of the Ahtanum. This will make a hardship on the farmers here as the fence will cut them out of their spring range.

Our people are asking each other, "What are we going to do about our roads this spring?" The roads up this way are still almost impassable in places and it looks as though the road overseer and the county commissioners had forgotten that there is such a place as Tampico on the county map.

The baseball team of Tampico and the Cowiche team played a game last Sunday. The score was 15 to 8 in favor of Tampico. The largest crowd that has been seen here for a long time was out to take in the game. Some of the oldest men in Tampico, including Henry Knox, A. D. Eglin and Joseph Mondor, were out to see the game, which is something unusual for them.

Mabton.

W. H. Wells clipped 18,000 pounds of wool of 2400 head of sheep this week. He will take about 8000 head to the mountains for pasture this summer.

Alex Brandenberg, the genial clerk of N. Beckner, decided not to spend the summer in the store on account of his health and will try ranch life for a while.

Next Saturday, May 21st, a school election will be held at the school house for the purpose of bonding over the district to make the new school house a success.

Jospeh Humphrey and family left for Barrie, Ontario, the home of Mr. Humphrey, Wednesday. Before they return they will take in the sights at the world's fair at St. Louis.

Cassius Creason spent Thursday in Mabton in the interest of the Prosser Eleteric Light Co., who are now considering the proposition of installing a plant at Sunnyside and Mabton.

Mr. Geo. W. Sheaff has accepted a position as compositor on The Chronicle. Mr. Sheaff has been in the newspaper business for 12 years and recently resigned a fine position on the Seattle P.-I. in order to take the benefit of our beautiful climate during the summer.
—Chronicle.

Kennewick.

A party from Portlanad has purchased a part of A. D. Charlton's land in section 17, and he will put the whole thirty-three acres into fruit trees.

William Steigler is suffering from an attack of pleurisy and has been a very sick man for several days. He is now improving and considered out of danger.

Cosgrove & Hanson sold to John Dearing of Seattle, this week, one forty acre tract in section 25. They also sold another forty to James Hamilton of Chicago.

Work has commenced on the new building to be occupied by the Columbia Pharmacy. Messrs. A. V. McReynolds and Thos. McCain are in charge of the carpenter work.

The work of irrigating in town and getting shade trees started, putting in flumes and building sidewalks, is still progressing. Many changes will be witnessed in the appearance of the place by next fall.

The Spokane papers announce that Hood River strawberries are on the market in that city. This is a malicious violation of the eighth commandment. A gentleman direct from Hood River states that the berries there will not be ripe for two weeks.

The large flume has been completed carrying water from the canal from the hill south of R. Gorsuch to all the Hover Villa Tracts. The work was done by Albert Lemons and C. W. Jessup. The flume works like a charm and all these tracts will now soon be put under cultivation.—Courier.

BRUTAL COLT TRAINING.

How Farmer Perkins Used Strategy and a Bull Whip.

There is a right way and a wrong way of breaking a colt to halter. The latter method is described by Sewel Ford in "Horses Nine." Blue Blazes the colt in the story, was owned by a Michigan farmer. He had been frightened by the first attempt to bridle him and had broken away. He was promptly declared to be a vicious colt.

"We'll tame him!" said Farmer Perkins. Under his coat he hid a stout halter and a heavy bull whip. Then holding a grain measure temptingly before him, he climbed the pasture fence.

In the measure were oats, which he rattled seductively. Also he called mildly and persuasively. Blue Blazes was suspicious. Four times he allowed the farmer to come almost within reaching distance, only to turn and bolt with a snort of alarm just at the crucial moment. At last he concluded that he must have just one taste of those oats.

"Come, coltie! Nice coltie!" cooed the man in a strained but conciliating voice.

Blue Blazes planted himself for a sudden whirl, stretched his neck as far as possible and worked his upper lip inquiringly. The smell of the oats lured him on. Hardly had he touched his nose to the grain before the measure was dropped, and he found himself quickly grabbed by the forelock. In a moment he saw the hated straps and bows. Before he could break away the halter was around his neck and buckled firmly.

Farmer Perkins changed his tone. "Now, you ugly little brute, I've got you! [Jerk.] Blast your wicked hide! [Slash.] You will, will you? [Yank.] I'll l'arn you!" [Slash.]

Man and colt were almost exhausted when the "lesson" was finished. It left Blue Blazes ridged with welts, trembling, fright sickened. Never again would he trust himself within reach of those men; no, not if they offered him a whole bushel of oats.

Stupidity of Men.

A group of women were talking about the stupidity of men at all times and their enormous denseness when their wives were trying to give them a hint.

"You know one day we had company unexpectedly, and we hardly had enough to go around," said one woman. "I tried to catch my husband's eye to convey to him that he was serving the meat too generously. But he would not take the hint. When he had given out the last bit, there were two plates still unfilled. What do you suppose that shameless man did? He simply called all the plates back again and scooped enough off each one to fill the remaining two."

"I shall always take my husband aside beforehand and tell him a few things," said an engaged girl.

"Well, that won't work," said an experienced matron. "I did that one day, and when I asked my husband whether he would have pudding or pie for dessert he blurted out, 'Good gracious, Helen, I've forgotten which you told me to take.'"—Pittsburg Press.

Gloves and Kisses.

The claim of gloves by ladies as a reward when they have stolen a kiss from a sleeping man is alluded to by Gay (1688-1732):

Cicely, brisk maid, steps forth before the rout
And kissed with smacking lips the snoring lout;
For custom says, "Whoe'er this venture proves
For such a kiss demands a pair of gloves."

In chapter 5 of "The Fair Maid of Perth," by Sir Walter Scott, Catherine leaves her chamber on St. Valentine's morning and finding Henry Smith asleep gives him a kiss. The glover says to him:

"Come into the booth with me, my son, and I will furnish thee with a fitting theme. Thou knowest the maiden who ventures to kiss a sleeping man wins of him a pair of gloves."

And in the following chapter she accepts it.—Notes and Queries.

A Lost Necklace.

Quantities of ornaments are lost each year at the drawing rooms or courts at Buckingham palace, and only a very small proportion is recovered.

A very strange story is still told about a diamond necklace which was found at one of the state balls some years ago. It happened that one of Queen Victoria's ladies in waiting picked up a diamond necklace from the floor. As she stood with it in her hand a lady came quickly forward and claimed it.

The finder was very firm, however, and declared it was her duty to give it in to the lord chamberlain's office, as this was the rule with regard to anything found in the palace. The lady protested in vain, but the oddest thing was that this necklace never was claimed and is probably still at the lord chamberlain's office.

The Reporter and the Doctor.

The following conversation between a doctor and a newspaper man was overheard the other day:

"I've met some newspaper men," said the doctor, "and I don't like their ways. They're always trying to pry into other people's business."

"Well," responded the reporter, "There's but one difference between newspaper men and doctors that I can see."

"And what's that?" asked the doctor.

"You fellows dissect bodies and we dissect brains. For my part I like the brain end of it."

Then the doctor sat down and thought for several minutes.

Dividing the Honors.

A North Carolina congressman relates an amusing story of an old justice of the peace in his county. It seems that two young attorneys were trying a case before him. After the arguments had followed the testimony of the witnesses and the case was closed the old fellow, awakening from deep reveries into which he had fallen, said, addressing one of the lawyers: "You know, Hank, I gave you the decision in the last two cases, so I will give this one to Tom. You can't expect to get them all."

Motion to Adjourn Carried.

"Who made the motion to adjourn this meeting?" asked the inquisitive chap after the free for all battle was over.

"Well, I ain't sure," replied Cactus Jim, "but I reckin it was Hairtrigger Charley. I seen him make one at Three Fingered Ike—with a gun—and after that the rush for open air come."
—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Mending Furniture.

When you wish to mend a piece of furniture, melt only as much glue as you think will be needed. Break all the dry glue into the pot, cover with cold water, half fill the water bath around it and add salt to raise the boiling point of the bath. Boil until the glue is clear and ropy. Thin for use with strong vinegar or alcohol.

A Sudden Departure.

Clapham—Didn't your new cook leave you rather suddenly?

Brixton—Yes. She got mixed in her dates. She had a policeman and burglar call on her the same evening.—Pick Me Up.

Experimenting.

Mrs. Dearborn—Which do you think is the luckiest month to be married in?

Mrs. Wabash—I don't know. I've tried April, May, June and July, but I think I'll try some other month next time.

Grammar and Conscience.

Would you say, "This is some one else's umbrella," or "This is some one's else umbrella?" Or would you just pretend that it was yours?—Boston Globe.

A man with $1000 to $3000 can secure an interest in a business that will pay a salary of $800 to $1000 and a guarantee of 10 per cent on his investment.

Notice and Summons.

In the superior court of the state of Washington in and for Yakima county.

H. R. Wells, Plaintiff, vs. W. F. Butcher and Helen Winthrow Butcher, husband and wife; Helen Winthrow Butcher, formerly Helen Winthrow Coe, widow and heir at law of William G. Coe, deceased; William Gwynn Coe, Mary Ella Coe, Emma Brightwell Coe and Blanche Coe, minor children and heirs at law of William G. Coe, deceased; George S. Vance, administrator of the estate of William G. Coe, deceased; and also all other persons, or parties, unknown, if any, having or claiming to have any title, right, estate, lien or interest in and to the real property hereinafter described, Defendants. — Notice and Summons by publication in foreclosure of tax liens.

The State of Washington to all of said defendants and to each of them:

You, and each of you, are hereby notified that the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner of a certain certificate of delinquency numbered 2678, issued on the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, unto this plaintiff, H. R. Wells, for the sum of $9.17, the same being the amount then due and delinquent for the taxes for the years 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, together with the penalties, interests and costs thereon and thereof, which said amount bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum upon the real property assessed to unknown owner, situate in the county of Yakima, State of Washington, and described as follows, to-wit: Fractional lot numbered eleven (11), in block numbered two hundred and forty-nine (249), in the city of North Yakima, Yakima county, State of Washington, as the same is laid down and described upon the official plat thereof, now on file and of record in the office of the auditor of said Yakima county.

That the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certificate of redemption, numbered 2523, issued to him on account of certificate of delinquency numbered 2678, upon the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, for the sum of $13.18, which said sum was paid to redeem the above described property from foreclosure of certificate of delinquency numbered 1397, issued to Yakima county for the unpaid taxes for the years 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895, with interests, penalties and costs thereon and thereof, which sum bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum from date of redemption, upon the said property assessed to unknown owner, situate in Yakima county and described as above.

That subsequent to the purchasing of said certificate of delinquency said plaintiff paid taxes against said property as follows: Taxes for the year 1902, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No. 5743, in the sum of $1.95, and taxes for the year 1903, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No. 2947, in the sum of $1.62; total amount of taxes assessed and paid since date of certificate of delinquency, $3.57; all of said amounts bearing interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum; and all the taxes as essed and due against the said land, either prior or subsequent to the date of said certificate; and that the aggregate amount so paid by this plaintiff, as aforesaid, is the sum of $25.92, which sum with interest as aforesaid, are a lien in favor of said plaintiff upon said land, paramount and superior to, and have precedence of all other liens, interests and estates whatever.

You, and each of you, are hereby further notified that the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certain certificate of delinquency, numbered 2677, issued on the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington unto this plaintiff, H. R. Wells, for the sum of $8.75, the same being the amount then due and delinquent for taxes for the years 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, together with the penalties, interests and costs thereon and thereof, which said amount bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum, upon the real property assessed to unknown owner, situate in the county of Yakima, State of Washington, and described as follows, to-wit: Fractional lot numbered eleven (11), in block numbered two hundred and forty-nine (249), in Ker's second addition to the city of North Yakima, Yakima county, State of Washington, as the same is laid down and described upon the official plat thereof, now on file and of record in the office of the auditor of said Yakima county.

That the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certificate of redemption, numbered 2522, issued to him on account of certificate of delinquency, numbered 2677, upon the 13th day of September 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, for the sum of $5.76, which said sum was paid to redeem the next above described property from foreclosure of certificate of delinquency numbered 1396, issued to said Yakima county, for the unpaid taxes for the years 1893, 1894, 1895, with interests, penalties and costs thereon and thereof, which said sum bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum from date of redemption, upon the said property assessed to unknown owner, situate in Yakima county and described as above.

That subsequent to the purchasing of said certificate of delinquency, said plaintiff paid taxes assessed against said property, as next above, as follows: Taxes for the year 1902, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No. 5742, in the sum of $1.00, and taxes for the year 1903, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No 2946, in the sum of $0.83; total amount of taxes assessed and paid since date of certificate of delinquency, $1.83; all of said amounts bearing interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum; and are all the taxes assessed and due against said land, either prior or subsequent to the date of said certificate; and that this plaintiff has paid all the taxes assessed against said land, either prior or subsequent to the date of said certificate; and that the aggregate amount so paid by this plaintiff aforesaid is the sum of $16.34, which sum with interest as aforesaid, are a lien in favor of said plaintiff upon said land, paramount and superior to, and have precedence of all other liens, interests and estates whatever.

You, and each of you, are hereby further notified that the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certain certificate of delinquency, numbered 2680, issued on the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, unto this plaintiff, H. R. Wells, for the sum of $11.12, the same being the amount then due and delinquent for taxes for the years 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, together with the penalties, interests and costs thereon and thereof, which said amount bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum upon the real property assessed to unknown owner, situate in the county of Yakima, State of Washington, and described as follows, to-wit: Fractional lot numbered twelve (12), in block numbered two hundred and forty-nine (249), in the city of North Yakima, Yakima county, State of Washington, as the same is laid down and described upon the official plat thereof, now on file and of record in the office of the auditor of said Yakima county.

That the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certificate of redemption, numbered 2525, issued to him on account of certificate of delinquency numbered 2680, upon the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, for the sum of $15.08, which said sum was paid to redeem the next above described property from foreclosure of certificate of delinquency numbered 1398, issued to said Yakima county, for the unpaid taxes for the years 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895, with interests, penalties and costs thereon and thereof, which said sum bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum from date of redemption, upon said property assessed to unknown owner, situate in Yakima county, and described as next above.

That subsequent to the purchasing of said certificate of delinquency, said plaintiff paid taxes assessed against said property, as next above, as follows: Taxes for the year 1902, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No. 5745, in the sum of $2.21, and taxes for the year 1903, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No 2949, in the sum of $1.84; total amount of taxes assessed and paid since date of certificate of delinquency, $4.05; all of said amounts bearing interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum; and are all the taxes assessed and due against said land, either prior or subsequent to the date of said certificate; and that the plaintiff has paid all taxes assessed against said land, either prior or subsequent to the date of said certificate; and that the aggregate amount so paid by the plaintiff, as aforesaid, is the sum of $30.20, which said sum with interest as aforesaid, are a lien in favor of said plaintiff upon said land, paramount and superior to, and have precedence of all other liens, interests and estates whatever.

You, and each of you, are hereby further notified that the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certain certificate of delinquency, numbered 2679, issued on the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, unto this plaintiff, H. R. Wells, for the sum of $6.81, the same being the amount then due and delinquent for the taxes for the years 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, together with the penalties, interests and costs thereon and thereof, which said amount bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum upon the real property assessed to unknown owner, situate in the county of Yakima, State of Washington, and described as follows, to-wit: Fractional lot numbered twelve (12), in block numbered two hundred and forty-nine (249), in Ker's second addition to the city of North Yakima, Yakima county, State of Washington, as the same is laid down and described upon the official plat thereof, now on file and of record in the office of the auditor of said Yakima county.

That the plaintiff, H. R. Wells, is the owner and holder of a certificate of redemption, numbered 2524, issued to him on account of certificate of delinquency numbered 2679, upon the 13th day of September, 1902, by Yakima county, State of Washington, for the sum of $5.88, which said sum was paid to redeem the next above described property from foreclosure of certificate of delinquency numbered 1400, issued to said Yakima county for the unpaid taxes for the years 1893, 1894, 1895, with interests, penalties and costs thereon and thereof, which said sum bears interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum from date of redemption, upon said property assessed to unknown owner, situate in Yakima county and described as next above.

That subsequent to the purchasing of said certificate of delinquency, said plaintiff paid taxes assessed against said property, as next above, as follows: Taxes for the year 1902, paid May 6th, 1904 tax receipt No. 5744, in the sum of $0.74, and taxes for the year 1903, paid May 6th, 1904, tax receipt No. 2948, in the sum of $0.61; total amount of taxes assessed and paid since date of certificate of delinquency, $1.35; all of said amounts bearing interest at the rate of fifteen per cent per annum; and are all the taxes assessed and due against said land, either prior or subsequent to date of said certificate; and that this plaintiff has paid all taxes assessed against said land, either prior or subsequent to the date of said certificate; and that the aggregate amount so paid by this plaintiff, as aforesaid, is the sum of $12.04, which said sum with interest as aforesaid, are a lien in favor of said plaintiff upon said land, paramount and superior to, and having precedence of all other liens, interests and estates whatever.

That the heirs at law of William G. Coe, deceased, namely, the said Helen Winthrow Butcher, formerly Henry Winthrow Coe, the widow of William G. Coe, deceased, and William G. Coe, Mary E. Coe, Emma B. Coe and Blanche Coe, were at the time of the assessment of said taxes upon each of said tracts, for the year 1896, were the owners or reputed owners of said tracts of land, as heirs at law of the William G. Coe, deceased; that the said defendants, Helen Winthrow Butcher, formerly Helen Winthrow Coe, is the widow of William G Coe, deceased, and that she, in her own right, and also as the widow and one of the heirs at law of the said William G. Coe, deceased, and the children of William G. Coe, deceased, to-wit, William G. Coe, Mary E. Coe, Emma B. Coe and Blanche Coe, minor heirs at law of the said William G. Coe, deceased, and W. F. Butcher, as husband of Helen Winthrow Butcher, nee Helen Winthrow Coe, and George S. Vance as administrator of the estate of William G. Coe, deceased, and all other parties described as unknown, if any, having or claiming to have any title, right, estate, lien or interest in said tracts, claim in their several rights to have some estate or interest in said tract or tracts of land; but whatever interest or interests the said defendants, or any of them, have to said tracts or any one of them, this plaintiff alleges that the same are junior, inferior and subordinate to the liens of this plaintiff in virtue of said certificates of delinquency and the taxes herein set forth, on each of the respective tracts of land separately described.

And you, and each of you, are further notified that said plaintiff will apply to the Superior Court of the State of Washington, in and for Yakima county, for a judgment foreclosing his said liens against the tracts of land hereinbefore mentioned and described, and you, and each of you, are hereby summoned to appear, and required to answer the complaint, within sixty days after the service of this notice and summons upon you, exclusive of the day of service, to-wit, within sixty days after the 21st day of May, A. D 1904, which is the date of the first publication of this notice and summons, and the date of the service of this notice and summons upon each of you, and each and all of you, by publication, and defend this action, or pay the amounts due on each separate tract, and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered foreclosing said liens, certificates of delinquency, taxes, penalties, interests and costs, against each of the tracts of land hereinbefore mentioned, according to the prayer of the application for judgment and complaint herein which has been filed, to-wit, on May 18, 1904, with the clerk of the above entitled court. Any pleading or process may be served upon the undersigned at the address hereinafter mentioned.

Band Boys Will Celebrate.

The Yakima Cornet band after due deliberation has decided that July 4th, the national independence day shall be duly and properly observed by the people of this city and vicinity.

With that end in view the boys have secured the use of the state fair grounds for that day and have already began work on an elaborate program of sports for the day. Manager Merwin says that there will be good horse racing and a great variety of sports to entertain the crowd. He is also endeavoring to arrange for a balloon ascension. An admittance fee of 10 cents will be charged at the gates to help defray the expenses.

The band boys are to be congratulated for their enterprise in taking the iniative in this matter. The fact that the celebration will be held under the auspices of the band is assurance that it will be a su ccess, as the boys never make a failure of anything that they attempt.

A delegation of members from the local lodge of Knights of Pythias have been in Spokane this week, the party including Dr. Dulin, B. F. Kumler, J. D. Cornett, Frank Horsley, W. I. Lince and J. T. Foster. The occasion that took the Yakima men to Spokane was the meeting of the grand lodge there. Messrs. Dulin and Kumler being the delegates from the North Yakima lodge to the grand body.

Bumper Fruit Crop in Prospect.

Fred E. Thompson, the well known commission man, says that the prospect for an immense fruit crop in the Yakima valley this year was never better or even as good as at the present time. This applies to all kinds of fruits. Trees of all varieties, Mr. Thompson says, are set so full this season that a great deal of thinning will have to be done by the orchardists if they succeed inraising a good merchantable crop.

Mr. Thompson recently spent several days in the Wenatchee valley and from what he seen is highly impressed with that locality as a fruit growing district. Over 400,000 young trees were set out in that valley this spring, principally peaches and apples. The Wenatchee fruit growers, he thinks, are fully abreast of the times and are more systematic and up-to-date in their methods than are a majority of the growers here in the Yakima valley. Every fruit farm up there is given a name and the produce grown on it goes to market with the owners brand upon every box of it. This is the right system and should be followed in this county.

Mr. Thompson estimates that 800 cars of fruit and melons will go out from North Yakima this season, providing that sufficient cars can be secured to haul the stuff away. Getting the cars will be the sticking point, he fears, and with that object in mind he recently wrote the general traffic manager of the Northern Pacific at St. Paul informing him of the immense crop in sight and urging the necessity of the company furnishing the necessary rolling stock to handle the traffic. For several years past there has been a shortage of cars at shipping time, a fact that has cost both growers and buyers here a vast amount of worry and a good deal of money owing to the shrinkage in value of their perishable product. A large portion of our fruit crop, Mr. Thompson says, will have to cross the Missouri river this year in order to find a profitable market.
