TRAIN WRECK VERDICT.

The Death of D. W. Steele due to the Criminal Negligence of C. F. Schanno, Engineer of Engine No. 377-Schanno Arrested.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict yesterday morning in the case of ascertaining the cause of the death of D. W. Steele, who was killed last Saturday night in a wreck on the Northern Pacific railroad near Yakima City. The verdict is herewith given:

"We find that the death of D. W. Steele was the result of a railroad collision which occurred on the night of the criminal negligence of C. F. Schanno, engineer on engine No. 377, and way company is guilty of contributory remain on a continuous duty for the nett, E. F. Tenney. length of time the employes concerned in this collision had been on duty as northwest. They will play today at disclosed by the evidence."

Coroner Frank swore out a warrant for the arrest of Engineer Schanno and

W. Steele occurred last Saturday night. He was a brakeman on local freight No 57, and was supposed to have been riding in the caboose of the freight when engine No. 377 plunged into the rear of the caboose and pinioned the body of Steele beneath the wreckage. The car caught on fire and it is thought slowly burned to death the unfortunate His charred trunk was taken from the debris in an unrecognizable condition and brought to this city, where the inquest was held.

The jurymen in the case who returned the above verdiet were: J. R. Me-Keand, C. H. Hinman, J. L. Zipperer,

HOPS ARE FIRM

The Situation in Yakima County Practically Unchanged - Hoppicking About Over.

The hop situation in this county remains "in statu quo." The buyers are not yet willing to offer 30 cents for the 1904 crop and most of the growers refuse to sell for any less. The hop picking season is nearly finished and next week will see the end. Some of the yards were cleaned up yesterday. It is reported that one half the Oregon H. A. Weber, C. M. Hauser, L. D. S. and California crop has been disposed of at prices ranging from 26 to 28 cents. In Yakima there have been but two sales of nops within the week past, Robert Dunn has sold 200 bales for They were very fine however.

> The growers are not anxious to sell and the buyers say they have no orders to buy at such high prices. The following situation on the coast is given in a recent issue of the Portland Oregonian:

> "The market is opening up in the neighborhood of 26 to 27 cents. Most of the sales made in this state so far have been of small lots. Several transactions are reported at Salem at 261/4 to 27 cents, but the particulars are lacking. Harry Hart is reported to bave purchased 100 bales of medium to prime at 26 cents. J. J. Metzler sold 150 bales at 261% cents, and says he is sorry he did not hold them for a better price. Lilienthal Brothers are out in their an nual circular, which figures a world's shortage of 400,000 bales. They have reason to believe there is a scarcity as they lately sold in London 500 bales of olds of the crops of 1893 and 1894 at opened the meeting. Hon. Miles Cannon made the address of welcome. Mr. Cannon sustained his reputation as a pleasing talker and concluded with a rattling good joke. He bade the Spokane visitors to help themselves to Yakima. He wanted to see Spokane and Yakima the best of friends for he believed two cities with such kindred interests should work together for each other's welfare. The speech of Mr. Cannon was approved

In response, Mr. F. E. H. J. Snively was next called upon for a few remarks. Mr. Snively has a state reputation as an orator and after dinner speaker. He devoted most of his speech to the wonderful resources of the Yakima country. Mr. Snively thought as the Spokane visitors would not have an opportunity to see only a very small portion of the valley that they should be told about it. His remarks were interspersed with apropos anecdotes. The Spokane band played between the speeches. F. W. Dewart of Spokane folowed Mr. Snively. COLFAX, Wasn., Sept. 28.-Judge Turner, in his speech here last night said in part: "Mr. Mead has stated in an interview and in a number of his public addresses that if he is elected and the legislature passes a railway commission bill it will receive his signature. But in none of his addresses, nor anywhere that I can find, has he stated that he favors a railway commission, or that he will use his influence to secure the passage of such a measure for him to sign.

"Fellow citizens, I tell you now that if I am elected governor, I will not only sign a railway commission bill, if passed by the legislature, but I will use every honorable means within my power to compel the legislature to pass such a neasure for my signature (great applause); and if the legislators fail to ass such a measure I will emulate the example of my worthy predecessor, Governor McBride, and go from one end of this state to the other publicly deouncing them as perfidious and unworthy of the trust and esteem of the oters." #### Sightseers Are Now Permitted to Ascend the Mountain.

NAPLES, Sept. 28 .- The eruption of Mount Vesuvius has greatly diminshed. The stones ejected from the crater do not now rise beyond a height of 150 feet. The authorities have relaxed the restrictions placed upon the public when the eruption was at its worst and people are permitted to ascend the mountain. The railway has been so badly damaged by the flow of lava that three months will be required to repair it.

JAP LOSSES GREATER

Russians Say Japanese Losses Were 7000.

CHEFOO, Sept. 28.-Russians living here claim the Japanese losses in the last assault on Port Arthur, which began September 19, were 7000. A Chinaman says the Japanese were unable to retain possession of the three supplementary forts which they captured and retired September 26. The Russians allege it is the deliberate Japanese policy to undermine the health of the Russian Squaw race, one mile-Sorrel won; troops by means of the odors from deemposing bodies. For this reason they fire upon burial parties. The informant says when the wind blows the odors in the direction of the Japanese they retire. The Russians are now building a new fort on Lion Tie promontory.

eap the wnirlwind or not. It was the most disgraceful exhibition of the power of the lobby that has ever been witnessed in this state.

Shades of Lincoln and the founders of the republican party! Think of one man absolutely controlling 115 delegates, and, through them, the convention. Slave owners in antebellum days owned human cattle, but there was this difference: their slaves were black and ignorant; the railroad slaves are white and claim to represent a high standard of culture-save the mark!

The delegates from eastern Washingon went down into the last diten with McBride, For that we are thankful. They, have shown that there are men in Whitman county who can keep their pledge who, like so many members of the last legislature, are honest and sincere-men who can not be bougat. Of them we are proud. Better defeat with honor than victory with dishonor. Henry McBride showed his sincerity by refusing to permit his name to be presented before the convention after the railroad boss had eliminated the commission plank. His friends think more of him today than ever. And the commission idea has taken a firmer hold upon the minds of the people.

tI is yietory just now for the lobby. Its leaders are drunken with power. Review. They have sown the seed. Let them look to the harvest.

"Good Fellows" in Politics.

IS DRUNKEN WITH POWER in public positions. "Good fellows." he said, "were swayed by every wind that Republican Paper's Opinion of the blew; they had no backbone, and could not resist the importunities of triends or of people desiring to use them. There is a great deal of plain, sound philosophy in these remarks of the venerable pioneer. The railroad lobby want no easier mark in public office than a "good fellow." They send their own poid "good fellows" against him, and it is a rare exception when they do not get the desired results. Mead is a typical "good fellow" politician. He is a fine mixer, is generous with the "glad hand," and profuse in his colorless remarks. But he clearly is not the right sort of gubernatorial timber. On the platform he is shifty and evasive, and yet many of his admissions are gigantic blunders. He has affiliated so long with the railroad forces in Whatcom county, and heard so persistently their cunning and often elever fallacies, that his mind and being have become imbued with the railroad argument. It must have been mental or moral short sightedness, for example, that prompted him to proclaim from the rostrum that the railroad commission plank was stricken from the republican state platform because the party leaders found that the party could not be depended on to keep its pledges and therefore it was best to quit making pledges. And it must have been moral short sightedness when he declared, over and over again, that the legislators who violated their pledges were good and honorable men, and ought not to be criticized for repudiating their obligations.

The "good fellow" is all right in the right place. We all like him. He is entertaining, obliging, easy going and a fine entertainer. But is is a melancholy fact, as stated by Mr. Judson, that he is usually a sore disappointment when tried out in public office.-Spokesman-

If It Had Tried Very Hard.

William E. Curtis, the famous corespondent who has recently traveled over the Pacific northwest, sums up the Farrell state ticket in one terse, vigorous sentence. In a Bellingham letter to the Chicago Record-Herald a great journal that is independent republican in its poltics, Mr. Curtis says:

"The republican convention might possibly have nominated a weaker ticket if it had tried very hard."

Mr. Curtis says that Mead is comparatively unknown and without the needed experience to fit him for governor; that Atkinson, the nominee for attorney general, is a lawyer who has never really practiced law; that Rudkin, one of the nominees for the supreme court, has had to confront damaging charges, and that Coon, the nominee for lieutenant governor, is accused by members of his own party with a name-

Mr. Curtis might have added with equal truth that Clausen, the Farrell nominee for state auditor, left Iowa after the discovery of a large shortage in his accounts as clerk of the court, his bondsmen having to make good the shortage and arrange

Mr. Curtis might also have added the well established fact that Mills, the nominee for state treasurer, was put on the ticket at the dictation of Lord's Olympia bank, and that Lord has grown wealthy loaning out the public funds on deposit in his bank. To make the record complete, he should have added that Sam H. Nichols, the nominee for secretary of state, is an avowed supporter of the railroads, and that E. W. Ross, the nominee for land commissioner, is a railroad man.

It would have been amazingly strange if the ticket had not been weak. The forces that made it up in the small hours of the morning were actuated by one strong, controlling purpose-to form combination with sufficient votes to destroy McBride and the commission plank. Instead of asking, when a name was proposed, "Is this man fit for this high office? Is he honest, is he capable, is he decent?" they asked, "Will he go into the combination against McBride and the commission, and how many votes can he deliver to our combine?"

The slate was first made up in J. D. Farrell's private car, the night before it was nominated. It was then submitted to a few political managers in session behind locked doors in a room in a Tacoma hotel. Word was then passed quietly around and the complete makeup of the slate got into the hands of the newspaper correspondents, who telegraphed it to their papers. That was long after midnight. It was printed omplete in the Spokesman-Review the same morning, and several hours after the people of eastern Washington had read the news in this paper the convention assembled and ratified the slate without a single change.

Strong tickets are not made up under such influences and by such methods. To say that the rank and file of the delegates to the Tacoma convention had anything to do with the real work of naming the ticket is as ridiculous as it would be to say the rank and file of a regiment has anything to do with its

DEVOTED WAGTAILS.

Extremely Affectionate.

The wagtail frequently migrates from one part of the country to another and sometimes congregates in flocks, but he pairs for life, and the same pair always reappear, sometimes when they are least expected and all the more welcome from their occasional absence, on their favorite lawn. Their devotion to one another is extreme, as a scene I witnessed some forty years ago, but which is as fresh in my memory as if I had seen it yester-

A wagtail had been killed, probably by a stone, and was lying dead in the middle of the circular drive in front of the Down House, Blandford. The survivor seemed beside himself with grief. Like Eve in "Paradise," he "knew not what death was," or, at most, the reality was only gradually breaking in upon him. He kept running up to the body with loud and plaintive call notes. He called, but the body, caught hold of it with his little bill, coaxed it to move and drew it after him for a yard or two. He even tried to rise with it in the air. Then, like one distraught, he dashed away to the edge of the gravel drive and then as quickly dashed back again, to go through the same mournful processes. Sometimes he would fly right off in wavering, uncertain flight as far as the eye could follow him, as though he could bear the sight no longer, but without stopping to rest he hurried back in straighter and quicker flight, unable to tear himself away or as if he hoped that something might have happened in his absence. This long drawn tragedy, this abandonment of grief, I watched from the window throughout the afternoon till darkness came on. Next morning the body had disappeared, and I saw the survivor no more.-R. Bosworth Smith in Nineteenth Century.

A Bishop's Comment.

Bishop W. A. Candler was once advocating a more liberal loosing of the purse strings and told his audience that several years before he sent an article to a paper, in which he said, "We pray too loud and work too little." The compositor, consciously or unconsciously, perpetrated a little joke.

for when the article appeared it read, "We bray too loud and work too little." "I let it go at that," said the bishop. "The fact is, I believe the Kuppenheimer's clothing. That's all, Best in the world Coffin Bros. 1-tf
