J. F. McNaught a Seattle capitalist and railroad builder, is in the city on business that naturally is of a good deal of interest to the people of the Yakima valley. Mr. McNaught came here last week as the representative of eastern with the view of building an electric line of railway from this city to the town of Sunnyside, a distance of about 40 miles.

of Sunnyside, a distance of about 40 miles.

Mr. McNaught in company with Edward Whitson, G. S. Rankin and other local men has spent severaldays in looking over the field. A trip was taken through the Moxee and over the ridge into Parker Bottom and thence to Zillah and Sunnyside. Mr. McNaught was much impressed with what he saw and in conversation with the publisher of the Democrat Thursday said that he now felt thoroughly satisfied that the proposed line of road was needed and that it would prove a paying investment, provided that the people of this city and those living along the electric line would do their share towards making the road a success.

If the road is built, continued Mr. Mc. Naught, it will be built as a business proposition. What we want principally Naught, it will be built as a business proposition. What we want principally is proper assurance from the farmers that they will furnish a certain amount of freight for the road for the first two years that it is in operation, that is for the years 1903 and 1904. By that time. Mr. McNaught thinks, this valley will be sufficiently well developed that the road would be able to take its chances for business. Regarding this matter of securing the necessary business, a meeting was held Thursday afternoon at the office of Attorney Whitson. By appointment, F. E. Thompson appeared as a representative of Parker, W. N. Granger for Zillah and S. J. Harrison for Sunnyside. At this conference the matter was discussed at length, especially with reference to the preparation of a freight tariff schedule to be submitted to the farmers along the proposed route when guarantees will be sought for freight shipments. A surveyor was put in the field Thursday for the purpose of running lines over the "hog back" that divides the Moxee from the Sunnyside. From an engineering standpoint this hill pre ents the only obstacle to the undertaking. Mr. McNaught thinks, however, that a feasible grade over the hill can be found, but says that he will know more about the matter the first of next week when the survey is finished.

It may be deemed advisable to make survey is finished.

It may be deemed advisable to make the line to Sunnyside a wide guage steam, instead of an electric road. A steam road, Mr. M. stated, would undoubtedly cost less to build but would be more expensive to operate than an electric line.

When the proposition has reached a more definite stage the people of this city wil probably be asked to furnish free right-of-way to the Yakima river and to contribute an amount in cash and to contribute an amount in cash that will defray the cost of a bridge across that stream. The people living along the route will also doubtless be expected to furnish free right-of-way.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

Purpose of Organizing the Fruit Interests of Yakima County.

A. Vanholderbeke of Tacoma, state commissioner of Horticulture, has notified County Inspector Beck that he will be here May 10th, for the purpose of assisting in organizing a county horticultural society and fruit growers association.

Mr. Beck is also of the opinion that a local society is a necessity for the preservation of the fruit growing industry. STOCKMEN'S CONVENTION.

Range Closed to Both Cattle and Sheep.

As per announcement made some time ago by Supt. Sheller of the Ranier forest reserve, the cattle and sheepmen of this and adjoining counties to the number of probably 200, met in the court house in this city Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The first meeting was apparently a joint one, being called to order by John Cleman, president of the Yakima Woolgrowers association, with S. J. Cameron of the same organization acting as secretary. Subsequently the cattlemen left the court house and met in the city hall with D. Sinclair occupying the chair and with D. Sinclair occupying the chair and E. B. Marks as secretary.

Supt. Sheller addressed the joint meeting at some length during which time he read a number of copious letters from high officials of the interior department in which the new rules for the government of the reserve were laid down. In conclusion he announced that the department had decided that inasmuch as it had been represented that 85 or 90 per cent of the sheep owners who had run stock on the reserve laster. stock on the reserve last year were members of the Yakima Woolgrowers association that the whole matter of granting permits to graze sheep in the reservation in the tuture would be turned over to that organization.

This information brought out a number of protests from Klickitat county sheepmen who stated that they were not members of the Yakima association and intimated further that they did not care to join unless the name of the organization was changed to the "Washington" association. John Cleman then arose and stated that the name was Washington and not the Yakima Woolgrowers association. The president, however, was corrected by Secretary Cameron who said that the name of the organization was the Yakima Woolgrowers association. Later, it is said, the Klickitat ed over to that organization.

At the meeting of the cattlemen, the following parties were appointed as a committee to confer with a like committee from the sheepmen over a division of the range: D. Sinclair, T. D. Quinn, P. A. Bounds, J. J. Wiley, Thos. Fear, W. F. Stadelman and A. Burtchey, the last two being residents of Klickitat county. The committee of seven appointed by the woolgrowers consisted of John Cleman, S. J. Cameron, Stanley Coffin.

the woolgrowers consisted of John Cleman, S. J. Cameron, Stanley Coffin, Dan Goodman, J. C. Lloyd, S. W. Childers and C. McDonald, the latter two being from Klickitat.

The joint committee went into session at 2 o'clock Tuesday and remained in session the most of the time until noon Wednesday. An agreement was arrived at on every point at issue except with regard to what is known as the Antanum range. The cattlemen contended that range. The cattlemen contended that they had had the use of this range for a period of 30 years and that to continue to try to run both cattle and sheep upon it meant its abandonment to the sheep-men. The sheepmen on the other hand maintained that they had used that particular range for a number of years and were as much entitled to it as the cattlemen. Each member stood pat on the proposition and as it was evident that State Commissioner to be Here May 10 for the agreed that the whole matter should be passed up to Supt. Sheller for a decision. To many these sayings of the author of the Declaration of Independence are familiar yet they are always new. A study of the grand principles handed down by the immortal Jefferson would seem to be particularly appropriate at this time when our government has seemingly launched out on a career of despotism to ally foreign and a career of despotism totally foreign and in fact diametrically opposite to the grand and sacred truths upon which it was founded by the sage of Monticells and his co-workers:

THE homeseekers that are coming to the coast this spring by the thousands are, as a rule, a very good class of people calculated to make a very desirable class of citizens It is unfortunate that the Yakima valley, which by all odds offers better inducements than any other agricultural section of the state, is not getting its share of the flood of new comers. A large proportion of these new people seem to make it a point to stop off at Spokane for the purpose of looking Quite a number who were originally headed for this valley have been switched off at the Falls City and been induced to stay in that vicinity. The arguments that have been used in some cases by Spokane dealers in real estate to influence the new arrivals would not be creditable to Yakima county if they were true, which of course, they are not. A good live man at Spokane with some truthful Yakima literature to pass around and another at Seattle similarly equipped could work wonders in diverting the stream of travel this way. As we have pointed out before the Commercial club ought to take hold of this matter. The means could easily be raised among the land selling class in the county to defray the expense of doing this missionary work. Similar commercial bodies in other cities are pulling hard to get these new people settled in their respective communities while the Yakima organization seems to be asleep. The Yakima Commercial club ought to wake up and inject a little energy into

The galaxy of orators that responded to toasts at the Jefferson day banquet at Spokane, was a brilliant one and dem-onstrated the fact that there is no dearth of oratorical power in the democracy of eastern Washington. The speakers evi-dently were all at their best and let loose such a flood of eloquence as would have made the falls of the Spokane seem small in comparison. The speeches made were all most excellent. The following were the toasts with the names of the gentlemen responding:

"The memory of Thomas Jefferson," Frank H. Graves.

"The state of Washington," Dell Cary 'The outlook", (letter) Senator Geo.

If the sentiments expressed by the orators of the occasion and the manner is which the occasion THE Jeffersonian love feast at Spokane and the manner in which they were received by the guests present are any indication of party feeling throughout the state there need be no fear felt that the democracy of Washington has been backsliding one iota from the righteous declarations of principle in the Chicago and Kansas City platforms. One lone golddemocratic speaker hailing from the state of New York, was politely listened to while he denounced what he termed the socialistic features of the Bryan pro-

Col. Robberson of the misnamed Republic, asserts that what little reputation the publisher of this paper may have was gained as an advocate of spurious money. Assuming for the sake of argument that such may be the case the fact remains that such a reputation will compare favorably with one that is gained through being a political Hessian, jumping from one party to another as opportunity offers; through being a paid advocate of special interests and on a reprehensible habit of writing fake interviews. The colonel's organ, in fact, is now the recognized yellow journal of this community.

Col. JNO. G. BOYLE, proposes, it seems, to make of the Washingtonian a great moral reform journal the mission of which will be to uplift fallen humanity and run the gamblers out of town. The colonel wields a vigorous pen but we doubt if he is equal to the herculean task which he has set himself.

We note also, with the most profound grief, that the colonel has got off on the wrong foot on the grazing question, and more's the pity. In a lengthy editorial on the latter subject he mixes a little bit of fact with a good deal of assump-tion and then jumps to the conclusion that the sheep are doing no damage in Ranier reserve. As this was evidently the conclusion that the colonel desired "Honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none.
"The God who gave us life gave us should have wasted so much space in his valuable paper.

> THE presure brought to bear by the pension sharks has finally resulted in ousting Pension Commissioner Evans. Evans is an honest man and established rules for the conduct of his department that barred thousands of unworthy applicants for pensions and their tricky attorneys from getting their hands into the national treasury. For this reason the sharks have had it in for the com-missioner and have tried to make life a burden to him. That they have at last succeeded in getting him out is pretty good evidence that Mr. Roosevelt has weakened in his alleged policy of reform and is looking after his political fences. Evans was not objectionable to the legitimate class of pensioners or claimants. It is only those who have claims that will not bear close examination that have been railing at him.

As a result of Mayor Humes change of policy in shutting down gambling, a goodly number of the green cloth fra-ternity in Seattle are said to be planning an exodus to South Africa where a boom is anticipated as a sequel to the close of the Boer war. After using the gamblers money to secure his last nomination Humes has now gone back on his friends because they refused to be bled of an additional 25 per cent of their earn-ings for the benefit of his bosom friend and mentor, Mr. Clancy. This company, lately organized, has ten acres of land at Sunset, California, in the very heart of the choicest oil lands in that state. At least twenty wells can be sunk on this company's lands. It adjoins the Queen Oil Co., and is within seven hundred feet of its famous gusher, and our general manager is now on the ground to arrange for putting down the wells.

For a short time the company will sell a limited amount of its stock at the low figure of 15 cents per share, reserving the right to raise the price at any time without notice. We are adjoined on all sides by companies whose prospects and financial condition a year ago were not as good as ours is, that now ask from $5 to $12 per share, and are paying good dividends on the par value of their entire stock. There is no reason why ours should not prove as good.

There has never been a well sunk in that district that is not now a producer, and no well has shown the slightest decrease in output of oil.

The purchase of stock in this company has none of the elements of a venture but is a sure and safe business investment that cannot in any human probability fail to bring splendid returns.

Coming to Larson's Theater on Wed. Apr. 23rd.

Wherever "Nathan Hale", Clyde Fitch's play, founded upon the romance and patriotism of one of the grandest characters that ever graced American history, has been given, there appears to have awakened a new and keener interest in the young and brilliant schoolmaster, whose services in behalf of his country are gratefully remembered by loving patriots who have caused monuments and statutes to be erected in his memory. Recently we learn that a noble bronze figure, an ideal embodi-ment of all that appeals to the spiritual, ment of all that appeals to the spiritual, religious and moral nature of manhood, a work of marvelous beauty and grandeur, conceived and executed by the eminent sculptor, William Ordway Partridge, has been completed and will shortly stand in the College Green at Yale. While such fitting tributes as these are engrossing the attention of Americans, writers are coming forward with great volumes of literature on the subject of "Nathan Hale", whose praises are being printed in prose and verse, Charlotte Molyneux Hollaway and Prof. H. P. Johnson, two authors of world wide fame, have just contributed works on the life and character of the "patriot-martyr". It was not however, until the daughters of the Revolution erected the fine heroic statue in City Hall Park, New York, that sentiment was fully aroused, and now comes a more substantial token of respect and veneration for the glorious name of Hale. In the presentation of the play wherin is depicted all the romance, as well as patriotism of his character, all those depicted all the romance, as well as patriotism of his character, all those tender promptings of love and sublime attributes of man which gave to the character that peculiar charm which has won enduring fame and reverence.

There can be no question concerning the influence Mr. Fitch's great play will have on the rising, as well as future generations who have little time to dig into the dry recesses of history, as from the play can be learned all that concerns that particular periods. the play can be learned all that concerns that particular period covering some of the most vital issues of the Revolution, and the young and old alike will find it more than will command attention from a serious point considered for the author has not been at all unmindful of wholesome comedy which serves to enlighten 1.50 and brighten the burdens of every day

Howard Kyle's portrayal of "Nathan Hale" is said to be the acme of a carefully and conscientiously studied impersonation and to the role he gives an intellectual bearing such as is warranted by a long stage experience in conjunction with artistic genius.
