TO: Researchers and Writers of the history of the Pacific Northwest.

FROM: George A. Frykman, Editor, Foreshadow, the newsletter of the Council on Regional Historical Research in Progress.

SUBJECT: Request for information on research and writing in progress.

The Council on Regional Historical Research in Progress, affiliated with the Pacific Northwest History Conference, annually issues its newsletter, Foreshadow. The primary purpose is to report on historical research and writing in progress, with particular emphasis upon projects connected with the history of the Pacific Northwest. We have been pleased by the response of historical workers to the request for information and take pleasure in once again inviting you to report the work that you are doing for publication in the next issue of Foreshadow, which is scheduled for the early Winter. We are also interested in lists of names and addresses of persons whom you might know as researchers who probably are not on our mailing list. If you represent an institution (such as a college, museum, or historical society), we should be pleased to learn of coming events or of institutional projects which would be of interest to other workers. Help us to make Foreshadow a useful clearinghouse of information on the historical research of this region. Please return this sheet as soon as possible to Professor George A. Frykman, Department of History, Washington State University, Pullman, Washington.

Sincerely,

George A. Frykman
