THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

No Celebration at North Yakima. Natal Day to be Observed at Several Places in the County.

For certain reasons North Yakima will not celebrate the nation's birthday this year, but will defer to other communities in the valley. Business by mutual consent will generally be suspended for the day. A number of our people will probably spend the day quietly at home or visiting with their friends, while many others will hie themselves away to picnics to be held in the Wenas, at Tampico, Cowiche and the Upper Natches. Others still will go to Roslyn where a big celebration is to be held, also to Prosser where the eagle will scream and a large crowd is expected.

The principal reason why North Yakima is not celebrating this year is on account of the big carnival and street fair that is to be held here during the week beginning with Monday, August 17. Five weeks later, will come the State Fair which will draw people here for another week. Under the circumstances it was thought best not to attempt to celebrate the nation's birthday this year but to give the home people an opportunity to spend the day where they chose.

Not a Promising Field

Prof. Harlan I. Smith of the American Museum of Natural History, a well known archaeologist, was here last week looking over the valley to see what Yakima had to offer in the way of remains or relics of pre-historic times.

The professor's efforts in this valley did not meet with much success. There can be no doubt, he said, but that the Yakima valley in olden times was once the seat of some sort of a civilization that antedated the Indians. It is extremely difficult, however, to secure much evidence of this owing to the changes made in the surface of the country by the action of wind and water. The disintegration of the volcanic rock and the distribution of the soil created thereby by water has obliterated all ancient land marks.

The professor went to Ellensburg this week to investigate in that vicinity.

Stole a Wife's Affections.

Two farmers from near Sunnyside, David Boag and F. H. Walker, met in front of the Yakima Valley Bank about 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and things were doing for a little while. Walker made an attack on Boag and a desperate fight ensued. Marshal Mull suddenly appeared on the scene, arrested the two men and lodged them in the city jail.

Walker, while in jail a few minutes afterwards, stated to a DEMOCRAT reporter that when he suddenly met Boag he could not resist the temptation to strike him. Boag, he said, had lately ruined his home by leading his (Walker's) wife astray, thus breaking up his home. The woman, he said, was weak minded and readily fell a victim to the wily Boag who is an unmarried man. The case was being tried in the police court as the DEMOCRAT was going to press.

Wants a Franchise.

C. B. Hurley, the Tacoma gas man who desires a franchise to put in a gas plant in this city, was over last Saturday under the misapprehension that the council met Monday night instead of a week later. While here Mr. Hurley conferred with a number of business men and property owners, including most of the council, all of whom, he stated, expressed their willingness to aid him in procuring the necessary franchise at the council meeting next Monday night, at which time Mr. Hurley will return here.

Mr. Hurley made the DEMOCRAT a pleasant call. He said that if a franchise was granted him and his associate, Mr. Collins, that work on the new gas plant would begin within 60 days. It would cost, he thought, at least $50,000 to install the plant.

A Bold Hold-Up.

For the first time in her history Sunnyside was treated to a hold-up last Saturday night. Frank Vetter, who works for the Valley Clothing Store, was the victim. He had just left the store, and when in front of the Odd Fellows' hall on his way home, he was seized by two men, who, holding a hand over his mouth to keep him from yelling, went through his pockets and relieved him of ten dollars in money. No clue to the perpetrators has been discovered, but a number of suspicious characters, strangers, have been suspected. Thus Sunnyside grows and takes on the airs of a city.—Sun.

Business College for Yakima.

Prof. E. M. Churchill, late of Owatonna, Minn., expects to open a business college in this city some time next month, having recently leased Wisconsin hall for the purpose. Prof. Churchill comes here well recommended as a thorough and competent instructor.

Three distinct courses will be taught in the new college as viz: Commercial, shorthand and farmers' business course. A night school will also be taught, which will give the clerks and others employed during the day, time to avail themselves of the advantages offered by the institution.

Another Boxcar Candidate

Deputy Sheriff A. G. McNeil, of Prosser, came up from that town Wednesday bringing with him a prisoner who gave his name as Lyon who was arrested at Prosser the day previous. The prisoner had been found guilty in the justice court at Prosser of petty larceny, being charged with having broken into a box car loaded with various kinds of merchandise. The man was arrested, it is said, while in the act of peddling some of the stolen goods in the neighborhood. He was lodged in the county jail to await the action of the superior court.

SUPERIOR COURT GRIST.

Several Important Cases are Disposed of. Jury Term Will Probably Last all of Next Week.

Last Saturday the time of the court and jury was associated all day with the case of the State vs Andrew Daverin, charged with bastardy by Miss Kate Campbell. Prosecuting Attorney Guthrie appeared for the state and incidentally the fair plaintiff. Mr. Guthrie made a very pathetic address to the jury. The defendant was represented in court by Graves & Englehart. The jury after being out but a few minutes returned a verdict of guilty.

In the cases of the State vs Robert Wagon and Gus Lind the prosecuting attorney moved to dismiss on account of a lack of evidence. The prisoners were released.

The case of Miles Cannon vs W. J. Anniller, a division line controversy, was settled by the jury in favor of the plaintiff.

The case of John Michels vs Tennat & Miles for the abrogation of the lease on the Hotel Bartholet property occupied the most of the day Monday. There was quite a legal battle between the lawyers in the case, H. J. Snively for plaintiff and Whitson & Parker for defendants. Judge Rudkin took the case out of the hands of the jury and decided in favor of the defendants. It is understood that an appeal will be taken to the supreme court.

In the case of R. S. Morgan vs C. C. Schafer, an action on a pay contract, the jury gave the plaintiff judgment for the sum of $80.

Frank L. Hartman vs J. O. Orchard, another suit over hay, was decided by the jury in favor of plaintiff who received a judgment for $161 with interest.

The case of Cliff Cleman vs J. O. Clark, an appeal from justice court, was decided in favor of the plaintiff who was given judgment in the sum of $1.

The suit of F. Groschen vs Hughet & Hess over a reservation rental contract dragged its tedious length through most of Tuesday and Wednesday. The jury brought in a verdict for defendant.

The case of H. S. Taylor vs C. A. Keen, a Sunnyside horse case, was being tried Friday. Court adjourned at noon until Monday, July 6th.

Dated at North Yakima, Wash, June 30th, 1903.

A Growsome Find.

Cornelius Bouwens, who drives an ice wagon for Frank Sinclair, and son, while searching for missing chickens along the railroad track below town Friday evening made a rather growsome discovery. It was nothing less than a new born infant which was found tied up in a gunny sack and weighted down with stones, lying in the Schanno ditch at the point where that stream is crossed by the railroad track. The infant had been put in the sack and had evidently been submerged in the ditch for a period of at least two weeks as decomposition was far advanced.

Acting Coroner Taggard and County Physician Frank were summoned and immediately repaired to the scene. So far as possible an investigation was made but nothing could be learned as to who is responsible for what seems to be a dastardly crime which probably amounts to no less than murder. Undertakers Sessions & Gilbaugh buried the remains next day at the expense of the county.

Frank Sinclair, the iceman, is ready to make contracts for ice for the summer season. Mr. Sinclair has the ice taken from the Water, Light & Power Co.'s pond for family use. The ice from the city water supply, he says, is as pure as any that can be obtained in the valley. He will deliver ice to all parts of the city in any quantity desired. jy1

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA.

Today is the National birthday anniversary, the glorious Fourth of July.

One hundred and twenty seven years ago today a new member was born into the great sisterhood of nations, one destined in time to outshine and outclass all the other ones, dedicated as it was to liberty and the sacred principles of self government.

What the feelings were of each member of that little band of patriots who gathered at Philadelphia, July 4, 1776, and signed the immortal Declaration of Independence, penned by the great Jefferson, can well be imagined by the men of this day, especially the students of history. In that mighty document they not only hurled defiance at a tyrant king, but they announced to the world the birth of a new nation.

Statesmen and soldiers of continental Europe stood aghast when they read the contents of Jefferson's great paper, and well they might, for on behalf of three million poor and scattered colonists it threw down the gauntlet of battle to the most powerful potentate in the known world. It is related of King George III that when he heard the first part of this immortal document read by a courtier he laughed and made merry. But when he heard the paragraph beginning with the sentence "And in defense of these principles we pledge our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor," the old monarch's mood suddenly changed and to those about him he exclaimed, "Ah! Now that is different. This is really serious business, for it means war!"

It certainly did mean war, a cruel bitter relentless war for nearly eight long years, at the end of which time the millions of King George were driven back across the sea and an empire was lost and won. The victory was finally gained by the brave and determined colonists, but at a terrible cost, a cost which we of the present day have but little real conception of. There is no good American but who honors and reveres the memory of the patriots of that period.

They gave up every thing they possessed, even their lives, in defense of the sacred principle of Liberty. They fought, bled and perished that they might be a nation of free men instead of a vassal state dependent upon the whims and caprices of a foreign master. Since this liberty was so dearly bought for us is it not worth keeping? Is there any American worthy of the name who would not make some sacrifice to retain it?

It begins to look as though Postmaster General Payne would have to be unloaded if Teddy is to maintain his reputation as a reformer.

The terrible scandals that are gradually being unearthed in the postal department show a most deplorable condition of affairs that has been going on for a number of years, a condition that must be promptly ended, otherwise the people will hold the entire administration responsible.

A number of eastern papers including the N. Y. World are demanding the removal of Postmaster General Payne. That official, of course, is not charged with any complicity in the theft that has been going on but the vacillating and uncertain line of policy that he has pursued since the disclosures of guilt were first made have angered and disgusted those who have insisted that a searching investigation be made in order that the wrongdoing be uncovered and the thieves punished. Payne at first strenuously denied that anything was wrong and seemed to discourage all attempts at an investigation until peremptorily ordered to make one by the president. Even when most glaring rascality was shown in the management of the rural delivery service and the Washington City postoffice these disclosures were referred to by Mr. Payne as "newspaper talk" and "mere irregularities." Secretary Hay, in fact, was so much disgusted at the flippancy displayed by the postmaster general when such serious and ugly charges were referred to him that he is said to have referred publicly to Mr. Payne's policy of inaction as "humiliating and embarrassing to the administration."

Mr. Payne is reported as saying that he refused to resign while "under fire." It will be remembered that Secretary Alger said the same thing a few years ago but he did resign just the same and in the midst of a galling fire too. It is plain that Mr. Payne ought to get out before he is fired out to make room for a successor more competent and more serious in the discharge of a duty.

Certain newspapers have been having considerable to say in condemnation of Serbia on account of the assassination of the late king and queen, denouncing the people of that little country as half civilized and undeserving of good government.

This may all be, but still there may be others. All reports seem to agree that the murdered king was a worthless and incompetent young scamp who with his scheming consort was intent on depriving the people of the liberty which they had fought and won from the Turk. Barbarous means were adopted to be rid of them, it is true, but the entire populace are probably no more to be blamed for such an act than are the American people as a whole for the dastardly murder of three of their presidents within the past 40 years.

GROVER Cleveland seems to be quite angry over the manner politicians have adopted for putting to sleep his little boom for a third term. He feels especially aggrieved over a statement of Mr. Bailey that Grover did not want his name mentioned as a possible aspirant. Grover seems to be considerably like the spinster who would not submit to being kissed unless tied and was willing to furnish the rope.—Olympia Standard.

If North Yakima is to realize the destiny marked out for her by the founders of the town or even to retain her present position as the commercial center of central Washington our people must be up and doing.

It is true that this city has grown at a most satisfactory rate during the last few years, but it is evident that if it continues to grow, as we would all like to see it, some systematic work will have to be done along the right lines.

There is getting to be too much of a disposition to let well enough alone and sit down in the enjoyment of things that we have and let some other fellow do the work necessary for the upbuilding of the community. It should be remembered that it never does take long for this sort of a disposition to develop into a spirit of mossbackism that is invariably fatal to the growth of any community. On the other hand we have never had here and do not want a boom town for that only means the other extreme.

The town of Prosser bids fair at an early date to secure a large sugar factory. The people there are working hard to secure such a prize and they are going about the matter in the right way to get it, to wit, by guaranteeing the necessary acreage of beets. This town could have had such a plant in operation years ago if we had only gone about the matter of securing one in the same determined way and what applies to a sugar-making plant will likewise apply to other new industries. In brief, if we were to concentrate our efforts on something that is within our reach and pass up the million dollar hot air propositions that are never realized we could unquestionably accomplish more for the town.

It looks as though President Roosevelt had put his foot in it regarding the Kishineff incident. What warrant the president can find to attempt to interfere with the internal affairs of Russia is past finding out by the average American.

The civilized world, of course, sympathizes with the persecuted Russian Jews, but how any power can stop such massacres as occurred at Kishineff without actually going to war nobody apparently but Mr. Roosevelt can understand. Certainly the people of the United States would not tolerate interference on the part of Russia or any other nation in the internal affairs of this country.

In the polite language of diplomacy Russia will doubtless tell the United States to mind her own business and who can say that the rebuke would not be merited?

THE Iowa republicans who met in state convention this week giggered back from the old position on the tariff question taken two years ago when the famous "shelter" plank was placed in the platform by Gov. Cummins, which has been called the "Iowa idea," the effect of which has been to drive Speaker Henderson out of public life.

This year Senator Allison wrote the tariff plank. It is a crafty piece of work designed to catch republicans of all shades of opinion on the tariff.

A negro was burned at the stake in Illinois the other day for the murder of a white man. We have looked in vain for a storm of protest from the republican press over this damnable outrage. What is the matter with the G. O. editors? If this barbarous proceeding had happened in Mississippi or Texas to avenge an outrage on womanhood what a howl would go up from the horrified brethren.

When the democrats won the campaigns of 1876 and 1884 with the cry, "Turn the rascals out," they did not have such good material as the postal scandals have given them now.—Springfield (Ill.) Register.

For the first time in many years North Yakima fails to celebrate the glorious fourth this year. The day will be properly observed, however, in many other places in the county.

GROVER Cleveland denies the fact that he is a candidate for president. No one with any political sense ever supposed he was.—Tacoma Sun-Democrat.

Power of the Country Press.

The country press is an inseparable factor from the forces that make up our civilization. It is on and of the soil. It is the mirror of the human problems of its environment. It is more nearly the organ of public opinion than the muckraking journals whose strongest purposes are commercial.

Any historian who would write knowingly and truthfully the history of these times must get the bulk of his material from the country newspapers. They are the busy bees who gather the pollen of all the indigenous blossoms of their habitat and compress these into the columns from which the honey of true human history is extracted.

Every community owes the prime duty of support to its local press. If a man can afford to take only one paper he should take his home paper. If he can go further and take a daily, let that be but the supplement to his county paper. The old Greek adage, "know thyself," should be expanded into "know thy neighbors," and the way to do that is to support your home paper. There is no better or more helpful asset to any county than a good newspaper, filled with all issues of common interest as the weekly press usually does—fairly and honestly.—Atlanta Constitution.

Odds and Ends.

A mysterious tribe of white men and women are said to have been discovered in the interior of the Philippines. They are tall, light of complexion and have blue eyes, and take to the jungles in flight on the approach of strangers. They are supposed to be descendants of the survivors of a shipwreck centuries ago. The War Department will send an expedition to make an investigation.

The editor of the Skamania county Pioneer has been summoned to appear at Tacoma in July as a juror in the Federal court. He will have to leave a man in charge of his paper during his absence, and this is the way he advertises for him: "Wanted, an editor, compositor, job printer and devil, one who is a fair hand at milking a cow, chopping wood, holding a baby and choring around the house."

Washington Letter.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.) Washington D. C. June 25, 1908.

President Roosevelt has announced, in a semi-official way, that he intends to stand by the postmaster general in spite of the popular demand for Payne's resignation, a demand voiced by the best newspapers in the country, regardless of party affiliation. Moreover, the president appears to be afraid to demand the resignation of Rand, confidential clerk to the postmaster general, although his unfitness for a place of trust has been clearly demonstrated, especially in the republican press. To every close observer it is obvious that the first wish of Postmaster General Payne is to minimize the scandal and convert the investigation into a perfunctory inquiry such as he had in mind when he first found that some sort of investigation was inevitable. The determination of the president is, however, regarded with considerable satisfaction by the democrats who say that the people will never be satisfied with an investigation conducted along the Payne policy and they will appreciate that only a democratic administration will be willing to lay bare the ulcers which have long festered under republican administration.

Having failed in his efforts to save Perry Heath from being smirched as a consequence of his official acts, the postmaster general, and to a large extent the republican press, is now trying to make him the scapegoat for all the corruption which the Tulloch charges and the Bristow reply revealed. In this connection a bit of inside history is interesting. Perry Heath was charged with the fulfillment of seven thousand pledges made by Senator Hanna during the campaigns which elected Hanna senator and McKinley president. It was for the purpose of fulfilling these pledges, taking care of Mr. Hanna's 7,000 debts, that Heath was made assistant postmaster general. He did his work well and without any qualms of conscience but now the facts have become public Mr. Heath is charged with the whole responsibility while Mr. Hanna goes free from public censure. It is only justice to Payne, moreover, to say that he went into the postoffice department pledged to take care of Hanna's friends, those who had co-operated with Heath and especially Machen, who had by his manipulation of the rural free delivery service saved many western republican congressmen from defeat. This was the secret of Payne's attempt, clumsy and misguided but none the less sincere, to take care of Machen and his crowd.

The existence of a miniature scandal in the department of agriculture was revealed this week by a suit filed in the court of claims by the New York Market Growers' Association, which seeks to recover $15,000 for supplying seed for free distribution to the department. It appears that the above company was found to furnish short-weight packages, cheaper seeds than the contract provided for and cheaper and thinner paper than the specifications called for. Notwithstanding this fact the contract was awarded to this concern a second time, the assumption being that the contractor had "influence" with Secretary Wilson or with Assistant Secretary Brigham. This year the contractor was guilty of even greater violations of his contract than on the previous occasion and this, notwithstanding the fact that Secretary Wilson has placed a personal friend, a man named H. Bowle Holland, in the company's warehouse at good pay to supervise the packing of the seeds. Holland had an assistant in his arduous duties by the name of Martine, but even with two inspectors it is alleged that short weights and cheap seeds were furnished and other provisions of the contract violated.

A scandal in the allotment of the lands in the Indian Territory has just come to light, and it is said by an official in a position to know that if they ever become public the abuses in the work will rival the corruption just unearthed in the postoffice department. It is alleged that the Indian agents have certified to the department of the interior a larger number of Indians than existed on the reservations in order that they might profit by the extra number of rations and allowances issued. Taking these false rolls the Dawes commission, which is charged with the allotment in severalty of the Indian lands in the territory, has made its allotment accordingly and now finds that there are many sections for which there are no rightful owners. The result may be that the entire work will have to be done over again at great expense and trouble. The president has selected Francis E. Luepp, Washington correspondent of a prominent New York paper, to go to the territory and make an investigation into the situation.

Attorney General Knox has issued an order for the arrest of Edward F. McSweeney, former assistant commissioner of immigration at New York, on the ground of embezzlement. It is charged that McSweeney abstracted numerous official papers, upwards of 4,000 in number, from the files of the bureau of immigration with a view to covering up all his trace of his having furnished confidential, official information to steamship companies, railroads and others in return for which he received passes for himself and friends. It is further claimed that McSweeney on one occasion gave his pass to a friend and that when it was taken up he swore that the friend had stolen it from his desk.

"The postoffice department is not the only place where our republican friends, intoxicated by a long lease of power, have been guilty of monumental extravagance," said Representative Paul of South Carolina, who came to Washington this week. "There is no reason why the democrats should not get together next year and win the election on two issues, the reduction of the duty on those articles which are sold cheaper abroad than at home, and the thorough investigation and cleaning out of the executive departments. Nature has eliminated, for a time at least, the one issue which caused such grave differences in democratic ranks and now I believe we can all get together on a platform which will command the support of a majority of the people."

Personal Magnetism.

There is something in a magnetic personality which cannot be expressed. It is intangible. It eludes biographers and photographers alike. This mysterious something, which we sometimes call individuality, is often more powerful than the ability which can be measured, or the qualities that can be rated. It makes a man popular and successful far beyond one who, though having more ability, is lacking in this indefinable power.

Politicians and statesmen know its value. James G. Blaine had it in a remarkable degree. The mere mention of his name in convention or an assembly would be greeted by an outburst of applause, while the names of other men, as able as in many ways as he, would not arouse the slightest enthusiasm. Henry Clay, also, had this wonderful gift of a magnetic personality. Calhoun, on the other hand, although Clay's equal, intellectually, utterly lacked it.

Many women are endowed with this magnetic quality, which is entirely independent of personal beauty. It is often possessed in a high degree by very plain women. This was notably the case with some of the women who ruled in the French salons more absolutely than the king on his throne.

At a social gathering, when conversation drags, and interest is at a low ebb, the entrance of some bright woman with a magnetic personality, may instantly change the situation. She may not be handsome, but everybody is attracted towards her and considers it a privilege to speak to her.

People who possess this rare quality are frequently ignorant of the source of their power. They simply know they have it, but cannot locate or describe it. While it is, like poetry, music or art, a gift of nature, born in one, it can be cultivated to a certain extent.

Much of the charm of a magnetic personality comes from a fine, cultivated manner. Tact, also, is a very important element—next to a fine manner, perhaps the most important. One must know exactly what to do, and be able to do just the right thing at the proper moment. Good judgment and common sense are indispensable to those who are trying to acquire this magnetic power. Good taste is also one of the elements of personal charm. You cannot offend the taste of others without hurting their sensibilities.—Success, for July.

The Touchstone of Democracy.

The question of the democratic leadership for 1904 seems to vex the souls of many men who have not the faintest idea of supporting the party's candidate whoever he may be. These meddlers and marplots are of two kinds—republicans who begin to fear that Roosevelt is a reincarnation of Bryan, and pseudo-democrats who believe, or effect to believe that wisdom will die with their idol.

We need hardly say that the choice will not lie with these officious patriots who, by their own account, enacted the role of Brutus in the elections of 1896 and 1900. It is the merest dream to imagine that sack cloth and ashes will be the garb of the six millions who voted for the Nebraskan in both these memorable contests. Rather it is supposed that this great electorate will think and act for itself. If history has any lessons on such points, we must infer that the republican party will become more republican, and that the democratic party will become more democratic, as the years roll on.

As a matter of fact, the differences between the rival organizations are congenial and pierce to the very marrow of their being. A fanatical lover of the Hub once declared that Boston is not a place but a state of mind. It may likewise be affirmed that republicanism and democracy are not mere badges to be worn or discarded at pleasure, but are habits of thought which draw thinkers in opposite directions, just as the centripetal and centrifugal forces draw material things toward or away from the earth's center. This view of the case is exceedingly well put by Mr. Bryan in a letter which he has recently addressed to the New York Independent: "The difference upon the money question, among those who understood it, was not so much a difference of opinion as a difference of sympathies, and that difference exists today as it did then." "This is but another way of saying that a leopard is to be recognized by his unchangeable spots."

It is indeed perfectly true that the silver question, terribly important in itself, was but one item of a long program; for the demonetization of the white metal and the stripping of all technicalities simply added to the capitalist's eternal hunger after the unearned increment. So, too, advocates of a prohibitive tariff seek an unfair advantage, and lovers of government by injunction would prostitute public powers to private ends. Between these believers in utterly opposite creeds there can be neither compromise nor reconciliation. The great gulf is fixed in human nature and will endure to the last syllable of recorded time. The struggle of 1904 will turn upon the old issues, though they be modified as to outward form.

For our own part, we care little about the personality of the democratic nominee, provided only that he represents the principles for which the party must fight, if it is to have the slightest claim to the suffrages of the American people. At the council-board of the first president there sat two masterful men who embodied ideas which are coeval with the race itself. Hamilton's name is synonymous with privilege and centralized administration, while Jefferson's renown rests upon his defense of the many against the few. If those pre-eminent statesmen should return to the land of the living, they would find no difficulty in aligning themselves on the controversies of this generation.

The trimmer may perform a useful function in periods of dead calm—when the ship of state is in the doldrums and therefore needs no resolute helmsman. It is not so when the huge craft is in the strait menaced by breakers and storm clouds. In that event, there is supreme need for a navigator whose vision is keen, whose nerves are of steel and whose knowledge of the chart is without a flaw. No fresh water sailor is to be accepted now, nor would we have a captain who would take us to sea under sealed orders. The democratic party has made one voyage of that kind, and has no stomach for another. If the country prefers republican policies, the reins of power should be entrusted to republican hands; if democratic remedies are desired, a truly democratic doctor should be called in. Let us have no more of the quacks who give bread pills and poison by turns, without thought of the patient's disease. The practitioner of this kind of medicine is the undertaker's advance agent.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A TAINTED BREATH.

WHAT CAUSES IT AND HOW IT SHOULD BE TREATED.

The Trouble is the Result of Decomposition Along the Respiratory Tract, and the Remedy is Pure Living, Pure Habits and Cleanliness.

Any one afflicted with bad breath, instead of using disinfectant washes or gargles, should try to discover the cause of the bad breath. It is almost ridiculous to keep using disinfectants while the cause of the fetor continues to operate. Suppose any one were to notice a bad smell in the back yard. Instead of finding out exactly what the cause of the bad smell is, he would simply throw a disinfectant around, or deodorizer, in order to stop or disguise the smell. Such a procedure would be silly indeed. No one but a sanitary officer would do such a thing.

A bad breath indicates some decomposition going on somewhere in the respiratory tract. It may be a hollow tooth filled with decomposing material, or the teeth may be so jammed together as to inclose portions of the food, which ferment and fill the mouth with noxious gases.

The trouble may be in the posterior nares. One or both nostrils may be stopped up. This leaves an unventilated space just back of the nostril, in the upper portion of the throat. The want of ventilation allows the mucus to accumulate and decompose, which forms a very fetid gas.

Or, again, the trouble may be caused by enlarged tonsils. These sometimes assume a globular form, with deep crevices and seams which retain mucus. Again, mucus collects behind and above an enlarged tonsil, where it is sure to decompose and cause bad breath.

Any portion of the respiratory tract from the throat to the lungs may be the seat of the difficulty. The mucous surface is liable to catarrh, and the catarrh abrades the mucous membranes here and there, forming superficial ulcers, which furnish a continuous effluvia to the breath. Like little volcanoes, they pour out their eruptions of noxious gases day and night to contaminate the breath.

The stomach has often been accused of being the cause of bad breath, but the fact is the stomach rarely is the cause of a bad breath. The breath does not enter the stomach. Respiration has little or nothing to do with the stomach. Breath is simply the act of drawing the air into the lungs and expelling it again.

The fetor of bad breath sometimes originates in the lungs and is no doubt the result of a deranged condition of the whole system. The blood, being surcharged with foul gases and decomposing material, gives off these gases at each respiration. This is why the breath of a person who drinks liquor will become tainted with the smell of the liquor. At first the breath undoubtedly smells of the liquor simply because in passing through the mouth and throat some of it adheres to the mucous surfaces. If any one were to rinse out the mouth with liquor, the breath would smell for a short time, but only for a short time. With the drunkard the case is different. The liquor having passed into his stomach, it is absorbed into the blood. Through the blood it reaches the lungs, and with each respiration from the lungs a portion of the fumes from the liquor are given off with the breath. This illustrates how a bad condition of the blood can taint the breath.

Undoubtedly onions and many other aromatic substances find their way out of the system through the breath. In this way a bad stomach may taint the breath. This is why a bad stomach means bad breath. Bad digestion produces a bad quality of blood. The blood, circulating through the lungs, gives off bad odors, which find their way into the breath. In this roundabout way the stomach may cause bad breath, but as a rule the cause of bad breath can be found closer at hand—either in the teeth, posterior nares, tonsils, throat or bronchial tubes.

Instead of using mouth washes or perfumes of any sort to cure a bad breath, a person ought to have the cause of the bad breath discovered. Unfortunately it would be of little or no use to such a person to call on the average doctor, as he knows nothing or cares nothing about such things. He is simply engaged in prescribing drugs and spends very little time in ferreting out causes or removing obnoxious ailments by harmless and rational methods. In these matters every person must use his own common sense and try to be his own doctor.

No one should be content to allow a bad breath to continue. It is very unhealthy and is very obnoxious to other people. Every man and woman is entitled to a sweet breath, and with a little care and judgment this can be had. But so long as any one continues to take drugs or use narcotics to any extent he cannot hope to have a perfectly sweet breath. A pure breath comes from pure living, pure habits and the continuous practice of absolute cleanliness. The toothbrush and cold water should be used thoroughly once a day. Gargling the throat should immediately follow. The nostrils should be kept clear; deep breathing practiced. These things alone will do very much toward insuring the possession of a sweet breath.—Medical Talk.

Didn't Know it Would Explode

Ora, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stump who reside near the Riverside school house in the Moxee, met with a peculiar accident Thursday afternoon which while not of a serious nature inflicted painful injuries on the girl.

Ora and her little sisters had been playing with a wide-necked bottle in which their father kept gunpowder. One of the youngsters picked up the remains of a celluloid comb in the yard in which they applied a match to see if it burned and then when the older sister's head was turned, dropped it into the powder bottle which Ora was holding. Fortunately the bottle contained but little powder but enough to produce an explosion that burned Ora's face frightfully.

Dr. Frank, who was called to attend the girl, says that she suffered great pain but that no serious results would ensue.

It is a medicine of positive merit, and fully accomplishes all that is claimed for it."
