Dear Don:

Thanks for the map. One should not think that with a fine map like that, there should be a chance of going wrong. But you don't know me.

The enclosed clipping will speak for itself. The Old Man is out of the hospital now, but flat on his back and must remain in that way for a little while. I'm working on an Indian couple, both of considerable consequence as far as Indians go, and if they get back from huckleberry picking, they should be along with me, but you know how those things go.

Also, in your various communications, etc. I've yet received no word as to the time, and what, if any, part would I have? That's immaterial but to be forewarned is forearmed, and I need heavy battleplate from now on out.

Thanks again for your trouble and the time in preparing the map. You, or someone who makes maps like that have it.

Kind Regards
