Dear Herman:

I suspect by this time you are at another location for the summer. But this will acknowledge your note of June 13, which arrived when I was on vacation. Al Culverwell is to be here today or tomorrow and I suspect then I will find out about the timing on the Advisory Board meeting and will be looking forward to seeing you in Yakima.

I'm enclosing an advance circular of Drummers and Dreamers, not with the idea of you as a purchaser, because I fully intend to be able to take care of a few of my friends and very good advisers.

But it occurred to me that you might be in a position to pass it on to the proper person in the library accessions or order department.

Caxtons is headed for a spring publication, so they inform me, and have started the advance circularization, pointing out that the early orders are helpful to them in evaluation.

If the College is ordering, it would be appreciated that the form be returned to me and I will send it in with other material on hand. If the College customarily orders through a store like Gills etc. it should be noted on the margin and proper credit will be given. In any respect the usual library discount will be given. Being able to send a handful of orders gives me a "bargaining" weapon so to speak.

I've another copy or so of the Treaty Centennial booklet batting around and if one is needed in some Department of the Library, or you need one, I'll see you when you are in Yakima. Regards Click Relander
