

The Herald is in receipt of one of the very pretty four page folders that are being gotten out by the Northern Pacific Railway Co. for the purpose of advertising their lands for sale in Washington and Idaho.

It contains three appropriate cuts, one being a view of the school section taken from Nob Hill and its wide distribution will undoubtedly be the means of thoroughly advertising this county.

Lands above ditch are priced at from $3 to $10 per acre in ten years time at 6 per cent interest and under the ditch it is listed at from $30 to $100 per acre--Yakima Herald, Oct. 28, 1897.

- The Northern Pacific disposed of 78,395 acres of land in Washington, Idaho and Oregon during September and practically every one of the 250 purchasers were buying with the intent to become actual settlers and cultivate their newly acquired holdings.

Last October the sales were only 10,579 acres or less than one seventh those of the present season.

During four months ending with October the total sales of Northern Pacific land in these states were 105,386 acres as against 137,385 for the fiscal year ending with June, 1897 and these four months sales are greater than any entire year since 1891, exceeding the combined sales of 1894 and 1896--Yakima Herald, November 11, 1897.

Lilian May Schnebley of Ellensburg , writes some timely reminiscences of Chief Moses in The State for June . The sketch is locally interesting but the main incidents have been too fully dwelt upon in previous issue of the Herald to be now reproduced--Yakima Herald, June 15, 1899.

The Northern Pacific has put out this summer a new and attractive series of souvenir postcards which are distributed to its patrons ready stamped for mailing.

A set of 12 stamped cards is sold for 25 cents, the cards depicting different scenes, some of the cities, some of the farm views, irrigation projects, Yellowstone park etc.

Washington is represented by the cities of Spokane, Seattle and Tacoma as well as fruit and vegetable products of the Lewiston-Clarkston, Yakima, Kittitas and Walla Walla valleys and the Columbia river region. Others include Portland, Helena, Butte, Billings, Grand Canyon, Old Faithful inn. etc.- Yakima Republic, Sept. 2, 1910.

Washington--The department of agriculture has printed a bulletin saying:"The cat crop ranks third in importance. Cats traditionally constitute the banner horse feed of the world and three per cent is used for human consumption. The cat crop is buejct to several diseases, chief of which are loose and cover smuts, stem rust and ro nd @@ rust."

Then follows a discourse on wild cats, tame cats and broken cats and wilted cats.

The trouble was that the linotype operator consistently hit the letter "C" instead of the letter "O" and turned a treatise on oats into one on cats. The bulletin will not be distributed as printed--Yakima ~~5000~~ Republic, May 8, 1925.

In the Tacoma News of the 6th inst. appears an article by Anne Shannon Moore on Dowie's Zion City. The writer at one time lived in North Yakima afterwards marrying a young man from Tacoma and residing at Sunnyside.

There union was not a happy one and the contracting parties soon separated.

Miss Moore is a well-known writer. She is the author of "Eugene Norton," an interesting novel, the scene of which is laid in the Sunnyside country, and supposed by many of her friends to be the story of her own life there—Yakima Herald, August 19, 1902—

Puget Sound forms the substance of a chapter in Wonderland, 1902, the Northern Pacific's latest, just out.

There are many in the east who know little about the delightful region, its beautiful mountain scenery, its vast forests, its mines, its life giving climate. Its history is unknown to many; few comparatively know whence came its name.

Send Chas S. Fee, Gen. Passenger agent St Paul Minn. six cents and he will mail the book to you to any address you give-- Yakima Herald, March 4, 1902.

With a bas relief effect on its cover like some ancient scene of an antediluvian world, "Wonderland for 1902" comes out as a real wonder.....

The author, Olin D. Wheeler in the employ of the company has gathered together a mass of historical data pertaining to early mining in Montana and other states of the Northwest that will be of inestimable value to the future historian.

The views are made from original photographs, many of them priceless because they represent an age when mining was different to what it is now and when the west was known as "Wild and Woolly."

The subjects in their order are: The Moraine of the Glacier, Mining in Montana, Through 2000 miles Through Storyland, Among the Cheyennes, Geysers, Canyons and Wild Animals and Puget Sound and Alaska-----Yakima Herald, March 4, 1902.

Honor L. Wilhelm, editor and manager of The Coast, published at Seattle, was in the city several days last week looking up data for an article on Yakima which will appear in the November Number.

The Coast is one of the brightest, cleanest and prettiest little magazines published in the Northwest and is devoted to the up-building of the resources and industries of the state of Washington.—The Yakima Herald, Oct. 21, 1902.

An elaborate map of the city of North Yakima was completed Tuesday by A.L. Ostrander for the use of the county auditor's office.

It will be copyrighted by County Assessor B.F. McCurdy, personally, it being impossible for Yakima county to obtain a copyright.

The map is seven and one-half feet long by six and one-quarter feet wide and is on a scaled scale of 200 feet to the inch.

The map was commenced more than a year ago by Max Mook and Robert Payne also did some work upon it. Mr. Ostrander has been devoting his whole time to it since the middle of last August. The actual money cost of the map, one map is approximately $600.

Nothing was spared in regard to time, care and expense in getting data so it may safely be said that it is as near correct as it was possible to make it. J.W. Sindall and others in the auditor's office spent considerable time in connection with reference to deeds and their documents to the end that the boundaries, checked distance, figures etc. should be correct to the dot.

The boundaries of the different additions are etched, thus showing at a glance where one addition ends and another one begins.

The exact size of lots is given and the acreage of the tracts not planted is shown as per the deeds.

The map is right up to the dot, the correct names of the streets and avenues being given according to the latest action of the city commissioners. Thus the streets on the east side of the Northern Pacific railroad tract are North or South Front street, North or South First street and so on. The avenues on the west are First avenue north or First avenue south.

There has been organized under the laws of the state of Washington the Encyclopedia of Horticulture corporation which has for its objects the compiling and publishing of a complete and comprehensive work of reference on horticulture which will contain the best methods known to scientific and practical men engaged in the work, many of whom have engaged as contributing editors.

W.M. Fleming is president of the organization. The work will be compiled in the company's office in the Miller building in this city with Dr. Granville Lowther as editor in chief.

For several years Dr. Lowther has been contemplating the preparation of a book on horticulture and with this in view has been gathering material and occasionally writing an article. He has not, however, planned so large a work as Mr. Fleming has launched and it ~~did not~~ first did not think it wise. "Who knows what the next 10 or 20 years will bring forth?" asks Salone Ellis, Seattle novelist and author of "The Logger" and "The Last Wilderness"

Then Miss Ellis answers her own question. One of the things the next 10 or 20 years will bring out is a book on the life of a certain Yakima valley town which will be known, just for fun, as La Joppa.

In a communication to the Chamber of Commerce the young novelist announces the completion of her novel on Yakima valley life and at the same time she assures the club that all pamphlets and material forwarded to her for use in the book have been used. Speaking of the aim of the book the author states:

"It is my intention to try to take the bid out of morbid and the nic out of cynic . " the manuscript is scheduled to appear in book form in 1927. An autographed copy is to be sent to the Chamber of Commerce-- Yakima Republic, July 17, 1925.
