OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

SOME people, including a great many orators and editors in this country, when worked up to a feverish heat in discussing the Philippine problem, are fond of asserting and assuming that the people of this country demand that perpetual sovereignty be exercised by our government over the unhappy people who inhabit those islands. They have, as a matter of fact, no right to assume anything of the kind. The people of this country have not yet tried the case and when they have done so thoroughly, their decision may be and in all probability will be, a verdict entirely opposite what our imperialist friends so fervently desire.

"Wherever Old Glory is raised, there shall it ever remain," say the expansionists. This is a vapid and idle expression, which if our government attempted to strictly adhere to, would involve it in ceaseless broils and never ending warfare with foreign nations. Even in our war with Mexico, which was waged mainly with a view of conquest, our flag was hauled down from the heights of Chapultepec and our army, though flushed with victory on every hand, was on the conclusion of peace, withdrawn from the conquered territory and the country restored to its people. Instead of but a desert fringe off her northern border, we could have occupied and kept all of that vast country, but the people of the United States, after due reflection, would not permit it. Neither will they, we believe, do so in the case of the Philippines, where there has been less provocation and a great deal less to gain by such a course.

A great many Americans love our common flag to dearly to ever consent to its becoming the symbol of oppression, or a mere rag that stands for conquest. To use it for such a purpose would disgrace it in the minds of millions of men who love and revere it for what it has always stood—liberty, that "priceless gift of heaven."

THE DEMOCRAT greets its readers this week in a somewhat enlarged form. It has not yet, by any means, reached the state of mechanical perfection in its size and makeup to which it aspires, but it is evolving in that direction and we hope to bring it up eventually to our ideal of what a country paper should be. We may be pardoned, we think, for inviting attention to the fact that this paper, but little more than a year ago, was barely saved from the undertaker. Under a new, though inexperienced management, however, it has gradually grown from a sickly, half-starved infant into a vigorous and husky young giant, ready to try conclusions with any who seek to block its onward progress. While many of our patrons perhaps, do not like the editorial policy of the paper—believing it to be sometimes to aggressive; they generally admit it to be honest with the public and always fearless. Some have reason to know that it cannot be muzzled or its course steered in any direction contrary to the interests of the people. It is this characteristic of the paper that has made it many friends, even among those who are bitterly hostile to the doctrines it advocates. As for its news service, it is always abreast of the times and aims to present local happenings accurately and in a concise and readable form. That it is regarded by business men as a good advertising medium is evident from the amount of patronage it receives. THE DEMOCRAT will live and grow. It will continue to do its utmost to advance the interests of Yakima. It will continue also in its course of enlightening the people and defending them from every form of oppression.

DEMOCRACY is in no real danger of taking a backward step in 1900. At every opportunity which arises for an expression of opinion the leaders now in control of the organization, especially in the south and west, maintain their steadfast adherence to the great principles laid down in the Chicago platform. Tammany, and in fact all the so-called democrats of the east are laboring and planning to gain control of the national convention next year; their scheme has been to displace the money issue and Bryan with it, for an anti-trust and perhaps an anti-imperialist platform on which they would place an eastern candidate. The whole scheme will fail miserably. There is no living democrat who can hope to cope successfully with the great Nebraskan for the nomination and the reason to every intelligent man is obvious—Bryan's firm hold upon the people. In nine-tenths of the states, the man who would go to a state or the national convention next year, "must like Caesar's wife, be above suspicion." Public opinion within the party will force Bryan's re-nomination and also force a declaration of principles which he will approve. Anti-expansion imperialism and anti-trust planks will undoubtedly form an important part of the platform, but by no means all of it. The re-habilitation of silver is still a burning question before the people and it will never down until it is settled—and settled right.

TUESDAY'S Seattle Times contained a communication sent out from this city which the sender no doubt hoped would blow the state fair board into political oblivion. Judging from the expression of public opinion that we have since heard from leading citizens of all parties, it is evident that the alleged "bomb" is more apt to prove a boomerang. Reasonable people take the view that owing to the responsibilities, work and ceaseless worry attendant on the position of fair commissioner, the incumbents are entitled to some compensation and that if the law creating the commission does not provide said compensation, therein is where the law errs. The offense in this case, if aught there be, rests with the party who seemingly violated a solemn agreement.

THE neuter gender organ over on Second street, stated last week that some of its republican patrons had commended its news service, but condemned its politics. This is amusing to say the least. If there is any republican in this locality who has, during the past six months, discovered anything in that papers columns that hurt his feelings or jarred his nerves, such a man should be looked after at once, as it is hazardous to allow him to run at large. Outside of its blind infatuation with the imperialistic policy, the organ has no politics. It is neither fish nor fowl. It is what the boys at school used to call a morphydite.

"I am in favor of expansion," said Governor Rogers in a speech recently delivered at Colfax while speaking of the Philippine problem. His Excellency seems to have decided views on this question for a candidate who hopes to succeed himself through the instrumentality of a party—the members of which are opposed to such expansion in the ratio of 16 to 1.

LET every resident of Yakima exert him or herself for the next 30 days in order to make our Fourth of July celebration a complete success, for it requires individual as well as united effort to make it so. Ours will be the only celebration of any magnitude this year in Central Washington and it ought to be made a howling success.

DECORATION DAY was appropriately observed in Yakima. Now save your energy and spare change for a grand demonstration on the Fourth.

"I speak not of forcible annexation, for that cannot be thought of. That by our code of morality would be criminal aggression."—McKinley.

THE Prosser Record has been transformed into a "patent inside" paper. THE DEMOCRAT is now the only all home print paper in the county.

DO not fail to attend the school election next Saturday and vote for good men for school directors.

HOUSE PLANTS.

Some That Flourish in Winter—A Mistaken Idea About Palms.

It is to the busy, hurried woman, who must look at every expenditure on all sides before indulging in it, who has only a few minutes now and then to give to the care of flowers and who must have plants that are not discouraged by unfavorable conditions, that the following, among other useful items, are offered by Katherine B. Johnson in The Country Gentleman:

Among the more sturdy decorative plants for growing during the winter—some of which thrive under such ill treatment as dust, dry air and want of light—are Kentia belmoreana and Areca lutescens, palms, Dracaena indivisa, Cyperus (umbrella plant), Aspidistra variegata, Begonia feastii and semperflorens rosea, Sansevieria zealotica, Grevilla robusta (silk oak), Otaheite orange, ivy geranium and othonna. The two plants last mentioned are of drooping habit and should be grown in a hanging pot, basket or on a bracket.

The erroneous and very general belief that palms would flourish only in a moist atmosphere has been effectually dispelled, and no other class of plants has attained such popularity during the past five years. The two species named, as well as several others, can be grown perfectly in ordinary heat and with very little care. Plant in good fibery loam. Set in a window where there is little or no direct sunlight. Give a regular but not profuse supply of water (more in summer than in winter) and a weekly syringing or spraying of the leaves. Grown in a room with dry furnace heat the leaves should be wetted every day.

The aspidistra and sansevieria may also be successfully grown out of the sunlight, and are beautiful decorative plants. The former has long, broad, shiny leaves, some alternately striped green and pure white, others all green, and occasionally a pure white one. Give strong soil, good drainage and plenty of water.

Sansevieria is a very rare Japanese plant, of which too much cannot be said in praise. It has long, leathery, sword-like leaves, of rich green, striped cross-wise with silvery gray, the two colors combining to give a very unique appearance. Few plants will stand neglect so well or better repay good care.

Cyperus alternifolius (umbrella plant) is an easy and exceptionally fast growing plant, and none is more effective for the center of a table or shelf collection or for a fernery.

Begonia feastii is a low, spreading variety that is most effective when grown by itself on a small round table. It has round, leathery leaves of dark green, beautifully lined with red, and clusters of pink blossoms on long, upright stems. Begonia semperflorens rosea is the most abundant winter bloomer and is given a very unique appearance by the buds being dark red and the open flowers carmine pink. It is easily grown and healthy.

TULIP CULTURE.

Winter Blooming in the House. Planting Season in the Garden.

The tulips are perhaps the most desirable of all the hardy bulbs, as the colors of the flowers are so charming and the different varieties are so numerous and their culture is so easy. They can be had as parlor or dining room ornaments as early as the middle of winter or before by being potted in September or October. Potted early in September they will generally be in bloom by Christmas and New Year's, and by potting new bulbs at intervals of ten days or two weeks the bloom may be continued into April or until the ones planted in the garden produce flowers.

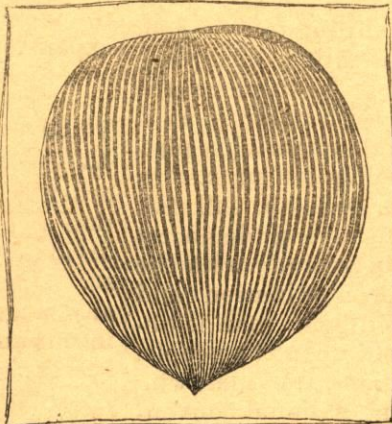

For blooming in the house good, rich soil should be selected for potting and better if it is mixed with one-half or so of perfectly decayed manure. The pots as soon as they receive the bulbs should be placed for five or six weeks in a cool, dark place—in the cellar, for instance—where the bulbs will make roots preparatory to sending up leaves. As soon as the young shoot reaches the surface the pots are to be brought to the light and a moderate degree of warmth where the plants can be watched and cared for, watering them occasionally and giving them any other needed attention. Very little moisture beyond the dampness of the soil will be required until the young plants are fairly above the surface.

For planting in the open garden the season may be said to extend three months, but December, especially toward Christmas, is rather late, as the time for forming roots in preparation for the coming flowers is rather short, and yet good success is sometimes had in quite late planting, but in such cases a pretty heavy covering of manure should be spread over the surface at once in order to exclude the frost which would retard root formation. The covering of manure some time in December is good practice, even for the bulbs planted in good time. Frequently they do well without this, but they will do better with it.

Any good garden soil is suitable for the growth of the tulip, but it may be improved by a liberal addition of well decayed manure thoroughly mixed with the soil in digging. The bulbs are to be planted about three inches deep, counting from the top of the bulb. The distance apart may be four or five inches. In conclusion to these and other directions for growing tulips The National Stockman adds that the bulb beds require proper drainage in order to succeed.

A Comparatively New Peach.

In illustrating a variety of peach received from a Georgia correspondent, the name being Mathew's Beauty, a comparatively new variety following Elberta, The Rural New Yorker says: They were fine specimens, being about 10 inches in circumference equatorially. The well defined point at the flower end increases the circumference to 10½ inches. The color is a rich buff, well sprinkled with crimson. The pit is of medium size, the flesh deep. It is as juicy as a peach well can be, and the quality is rich and fine. We do not know of any peach of higher quality. The skin, though firm, peels readily from the flesh, which is free from the stone.

The October purple plum, for which great beauty and excellent quality are claimed, is one of Mr. Luther Burbank's latest productions.

There is no peach in cultivation which will stand a temperature of 30 degrees below zero without artificial protection. Among the hardiest peaches are Hill's Chile, Longhurst, Barnard, Early Rivers and Fitzgerald, says John Craig in American Gardening.

State Fair Notes.

The state fair commission has about completed arrangements for competitive drill of the uniform rank Knights of Pythias, during fair week. The proposed conference of horticultural inspectors of the state has met with favorable consideration and is now an assured fact. The State Dairyman's institute will be held here while the fair is going on and it is hoped several other meetings now under consideration, will be added to the general public interest.

Among the special premium offers recently received by the secretary, are the following: Yakima Hardware Co., one Planet Sr., "Universal" Orchard and Hop Cultivator, worth $50.; Seattle Brewing and Malting Co., $50., for premiums on hops and barley; Ranch and Range, $11 in subscriptions, for general farm exhibits and several more prizes of more or less value are promised.

W. H. Hare's sale of high bred mares and colts in Yakima next Saturday will include such especially fine animals as Abyssinia a beautiful bay mare sired by the famous Abbotsford. Altaluna another beautiful bay sired by Altamont and Lady Pryor and Melissa also bays sired by the great trotter Joe Bassett.

Just arrived, another double dray load of Crescents at Moore & Wengers.

State Press Opinion.

Those who object to agitation and agitators should be reminded of the remark of the old lady who said, "Why you can't even make butter without agitation." Nothing in the work of human progress has ever been accomplished without agitation. Agitation is life; stagnation is death.—Montesana Independent.

A Seattle man connected with the Times says next year's democratic ticket will read as follows: Rogers, for governor; Thurston Daniels, lieutenant governor; James H. Lewis and T. M. Vance, for congress. He also ventures the prognostication that Judge McDonald will be the next mayor of Seattle. Next!—Olympia Journal.

The republican machine may succeed in declaring for imperialism and repudiating the Declaration of Independence in the next national convention, but a convention of Lincoln republicans would no more think of repudiating the Declaration of Independence than would the Christian church of repealing the Ten Commandments.—Aberdeen Herald.

One of the chief influences that control the European rulers is the growing dread of the socialistic propaganda against warfare and against the cost of armaments. The common people are becoming tired of being ground down in order to maintain a few in office and luxury. Militarism is one of the worst curses of the time. There will be an uprising against it in this country at the polls next year that will astound the jingoes.—Tacoma News.

It has been said that the volunteers wish to remain in the Philippines. Then why did all but 7 per cent refuse to enlist, though offered $500 apiece to do so? And why was the Nebraska regiment, whose courage cannot be denied, guilty of so gross an act of insubordination as petitioning in mass to be withdrawn from the front? Things are evidently going on at Manila, under the shadow of the censorship, at which the American people would revolt if they knew the facts.—Seattle Herald.

Gov. Rogers has announced himself as a candidate for renomination. While he may be objectionable to some of the Populists of the state, it must be admitted by all parties populists, democrats and republicans that he has made the best governor the state of Washington ever had, but it will perhaps be somewhat difficult for him to secure the nomination without first making himself understood on some questions that will agitate the minds of our people.—Ellensburg Dawn. (Pop.)

When the news was flitted over the wires in November, 1896, that McKinley had been elected, it was announced by the Oregonian that 1000 commercial travelers would be started on the road at once soliciting orders, because confidence had been restored and business would be resumed. The Oregonian forgot to state at that time that inside of three years over 100,000 commercial travelers would be called off the road because manufacturers would be enabled to form trusts whereby the services of "drummers" would be dispensed with, but such is the case.—Centralia News.

The trusts will name a majority of the delegates to the next republican national convention. The convention will put a plank in its platform condemning trusts. The trust will contribute millions to the republican campaign fund and do all in their power to secure the election of the republican candidates. Yet some simple republicans who are opposed to trusts will, from sheer force of habit, vote the ticket. It would be just as consistent for prohibitionists to support the candidates of the Liquor Dealers' Association as for any man opposed to trusts to vote for the republican candidates.—Aberdeen Herald.

Take a walk through a cemetery in a large city and you will pass the last resting place of a man who blew down the muzzle of a gun to see if it was loaded. A little further down the slope is buried a man who tried to jump on a moving train. The handsome marble shaft of the man who blew out the gas casts a shadow across the bosom of the hired girl who lit the fire with kerosene. while in close proximity lies all that is mortal of the old lady who kept strychnine and baking powder on the same shelf in the pantry. The dude who wore a plug hat in Texas is quiet now, and he rests by the side of the gambler who turned the trump from the bottom of the deck. The fair damsel who pinched her corset to the last hole and danced every number at the fireman's ball, slumbers close to her lover, the intelligent idiot who rode a bike ten miles in nine minutes. The stylish young man who smoked a cigar while cleaning his clothes with gasoline, sleeps peaceful, and the branches of a rosebush which adorn the last resting place of the old maid who contracted the morphine habit and took too much, wave over her grave. But, alas! beneath a grassy mound moulders a suspender button, all that could be found of the printer's devil who lit a cigarette over the benzine can while washing the rollers. The troubles of the farmer who stood in front of the sickle to oil his mowing machine are now over and so are those of the battle-scarred veteran who fought in the Mexican war, won laurels in the last great rebellion, but failed to successfully draw his musket through a barbed-wire fence while out hunting grouse. Yes, the fools are slowly floating down the river and through the backyard fence of the past. Pretty soon they will all be gone. Then some one will invent a way to make a living without work, and life will become one round of hilarious enjoyment.—Ex.

Gold Hill Coming to The Front.

The Fife Mining Co. which was recently organized in this city with John Loudon as president and John Sawbridge as secretary, is planning to do some extensive development work this season on their fine property at Gold Hill which consists of a group of 10 claims which the new corporation has purchased from Joe Fife. Workmen will be sent into the hills at once to commence work on a tunnel, by means of which the main ledge, which is known to be very rich will, it is hoped, be tapped. More men with a quantity of material will be sent in later as soon as the roads into the mountains get better. In July a party of stock holders, which includes a number of Yakima's leading business and professional men, will go up to personally inspect the property.

Judging from the amount of interest being displayed in Gold Hill this season, it is evident that that promising district is about to experience a period of genuine development.

H. K. Tillitt, manager of the Arkansas Valley Feed and Cattle Company, Lamar, Colo., says: "I am using six of your Buckeye Mowers. I use the Buckeye because it is the only mower that will cut the first and second bottom grass of the Arkansas valley, the toughest grass that grows. I have tried all the makes of mowers, but have fallen back on the Buckeye for good, because it is the only machine that fills the bill."

POINTER 2*

J. W. Schmitz, superintendent of the Miller & Lux Cattle Ranches, of Firebaugh, California, says: "Our twelve Buckeye Mowers are in almost constant use eight months in the year, cutting the several crops of alfalfa. We have tried all the leading makes of mowers but pronounce the Buckeye superior to all others in ease of draft, strength and cutting qualities. It also costs less for repairs than any mower we ever had on our ranches."

POINTER 3*

The proprietor of the largest hay ranches in the world is the Kern County Land Company, Bakersfield, California. For 1896 this company bought two Buckeye Mowers and an equal number of several other makes, including Deering and McCormick. The company took this method of settling the question of comparative merit for itself and in its own way. For 1897 the company bought twenty more Buckeyes and no other machines. For 1898 the company bought sixty-three additional Buckeyes, making eighty five in all, and the superintendent issues this general order for the guidance of all the company's ranches: "Hereafter we will use the Buckeye and not a mower of any other kind on our ranches."

Will Back Down.

The public may prepare to see the president of the United States turn a double back action somersault and swallow his imperial policy before many moons. The president is a candidate for re-nomination and re-election at the hands of his party. This will cause him to keep a close watch on the trend of public opinion. He already realizes that he will have his hands full explaining Algerism, apologizing for high taxes and treasury deficits, and defending trusts without waging an unpopular war of conquest in the Philippines or elsewhere. Therefore we may look for such a change of policy as will wake it appear that he has conceded self-government to the Filipinos, for it is certain that he is now straining every point to bring about a cessation of hostilities, and that his agents are making honeyed promises to the representatives of the Aguinaldo government. In fact the president recognizes the existence of a great political emergency and is bending his efforts to cover a retreat in order to placate the already overwhelming and growing sentiment in this country against an imperial policy.

Imperialism is in hard luck. The president realizes the situation and does not care to be sacrificed if he can help it. That the design and intent was forcible subjugation, conquest and imperialism is proven by every move thus far made. The rash manner in which our volunteers have been hurled against the enemy and overworked under the cry of war to the death or unconditional surrender was the last desperate stand to make successful the movement for imperialism before public opinion assert itself and compel a change of policy. The latest dispatches inform us that it is the President's order to his commissioners that liberal terms be proffered to Aguinaldo and his followers, going so far as outlining a form of an autonomous government and outlining the methods of its administration on the ground that hostilities be brought to an end and the sovereignty of the United States recognized. Therefore, it is plain that the president realizes that the imperialistic programme is doomed at least for the present.

The people authorized a war to put an end to the barbarities of Spain on the island of Cuba. It was a war for humanity. The accidents of this war were seized upon by those who want to rear a large military establishment in the United States and erect a military power to displace the rule of the people. But the refusal of congress to provide a large permanent army broke the back of the imperial programme they outlined. The people must bear in mind that next year they will be afforded an opportunity to order just such a policy as they want, and that the time between now and the election of next year should be devoted to the work of self-education, preparatory for the responsibilities of the all-important election that is so rapidly approaching. They must not lose sight of the fact that the great struggle is against the confederated money power and trusts who are seeking the means to overthrow our popular government and establish a plutocracy. The time to call a halt is now, or it may be too late. The people should realize the danger of giving the confederated monopolies another four years, lease of power, and thus strengthen the combination, while the people are being discouraged and disheartened. The time is now ripe for all loyal Americans to put forth their utmost endeavor to educate their neighbors and friends to make sure of a people's victory in the coming national election.—National Watchman.

A FREE SPECTACLE.

Ringling Bros.' Parade a Revelation of Processional Splendor.

A free street spectacle is the latest sensational novelty invented and introduced by Ringling Brothers, the famous proprietors of the World's Greatest shows, this season, and the thousands who witness the pageant when the show exhibits here Monday, June 19, (afternoon only) will be surprised at the magnitude and brilliancy of the display. Instead of the conventional street parade with which the public is familiar, Ringling Bros. have organized an elaborate carnival, consisting of thirty huge sections, each of which is representative of some period in the history of the world. Among the most striking sections is that devoted to India, representing scenes of warfare in the Punjab, huge elephants harnessed to rumbling siege guns; mounted military escorts; dark hued East Indian chiefs, and brilliantly uniformed native military, guides, attendants and commanding officers. Then there are correct representations of all the most famous crack military organizations of the world brilliantly uniformed, handsomely-mounted and with their burnished accoutrements glittering in the sunlight like burnished gold and silver. An Egyptian caravan, crossing the Sahara, with its camels, dromedaries, wiry Arabian horses, Bedouins of the desert, Soudanese, Algerians and other strange people, brings that strange land of mystic interest close to the spectators' vision.

The special children's sections, with its prancing ponies, children's tableaux, children's hippodrome and miniature cages of rare wild beasts is a delight to the younger element, while the glimpses of imperial splendor given in the ancient Roman section, and the numberless new, novel and startling features in the other sections, including ten bands of music and over 100 tableaux cars, dens and open cages of rare wild beasts, all combine to make this the most remarkable display of exhibitional wealth and magnificent originality the world has ever seen. The costuming throughout is superb. The uniforms are an exact reproduction of those worn by the famous military organizations represented in the display, while the carnival costumes are made of the richest silks and satins, and resplendent in brightest gold and silver. The display of beautiful horses, all splendidly caparisoned, and with their myriad plumes waving in the breeze, is a sight never to be forgotten. Ringling Bros.' parade is nearly two miles long, and in length, novelty, superb spectacular effects, display of fine horses and multitude of magnificently carved and ornate dens and tableau cars, surpasses anything ever before attempted. The parade however, is only preliminary to the exhibition, which serves to introduce the largest and beyond all comparison the most complete circus in the United States.

Red Hot From The Gun

Diseases of Cucumbers, Melons, Etc.

Districts where cucumbers are extensively grown for pickling, notably in Ohio, suffered last year from a disease the symptoms of which were yellowing and spotting of the cucumber leaves, beginning early in August, followed by premature barrenness and death of the vines. Investigations made at the Ohio experiment station have shown that the unusual cucumber losses were almost entirely due to downy mildew, a fungous parasite which attacks most plants of the gourd family, including melons, cucumbers, pumpkins, squashes, etc., and that this disease may be successfully controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture, making the first application about July 1 and repeating the treatment at intervals of 10 to 14 days. It is estimated that the cost per acre for seven sprayings should not exceed about $8, while the yield may be much increased.

Cucumber anthracnose has also been noted on both melons and cucumbers. It is believed that this disease will be amenable to spraying. Spraying is also recommended for melon and tomato leaf blight.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)
WASHINGTON, MAY 26TH, 1899.

That another very serious mistake was made by this administration when it instructed the American delegates to the Czar's disarmament conference, now sitting at The Hague, to join the British delegates in working to secure an agreement of the nations represented for international arbitration, is believed by many close students of international politics. Should such an agreement be entered into, the United States would be likely to get the worst of every question submitted to arbitration that affects European interests, for the very simple reason that a majority of the arbitrators would necessarily be European, possessing the natural prejudice that every man feels against the inhabitants of another hemisphere. Senator Stewart, whose wide experiences in public life and close study of history makes his opinion entitled to consideration, says that we will live to deeply regret it, if we enter any arbitration agreement with the European nations; that every decision under such an agreement would certainly be anti-American, and that we will be all the time fighting a hostile combination from which we can expect neither justice nor fairplay.

Ex-Gov. Evans, of South Carolina, who has just returned from Cuba, where he was serving on the staff of Gen. Ludlow, who is in command of the city of Havana, hasn't a high opinion of the Cubans. He says the talk about the patriotism of the Cuban soldiers is all bosh; that there is no such thing in existence; that, with few exceptions, they were actuated by desire for plunder and to hold office. He also says that Coxey's army was a band of aristocratic gentlemen by comparison with the followers of Gomez, and that it would be a far greater crime against civilization to allow these men to control the island than it would have been to have left the Spaniards in control, and that property owners over there are unanimous for annexation.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, who has just returned from a southern trip, is inclined to grow enthusiastic over what he believes will be accomplished by the Southern people in the near future. He says, among other interesting things, that they will in the course of time grow all the tea consumed in this country and manufacture practically all the cotton they grow, and of the people: "The universal sentiment in the South, so far as I could observe, was that they welcome every northern man of education, enterprise or means."

John Sherman has stirred up the administration once more. On his way to Ohio he gave out an interview, at Pittsburgh, which caused a sensation in administration circles, when it was telegraphed to Washington. The old man jumped on the Philippine policy of the administration with both feet, so to speak, declaring it to be wrong from beginning to end, or at least, to where it has got. Mr. McKinley fears that this interview will do the republicans much harm in Ohio, and is trying to bring influence to bear upon Mr. Sherman to get him to repudiate it outright, or, if he cannot be made to go that far, to say that what he said was exaggerated by the reporter.

Notwithstanding official denials, everything points to the correctness of the press reports from Manila, stating that there is a clash between the military and civilian members of the Philippine Commission as to how the Filipinos should be dealt with. In the first place, if these statements had not been absolutely correct they would not have been allowed to pass the strict censorship at Manila. It is stated upon good authority that this clash was of such a serious nature that Gen. Otis appealed to Mr. McKinley, and intimated as strongly as a military man may with propriety to the commander-in-chief of the army that unless he was sustained in the controversy he would ask to be relieved of duty in the Philippines. It is understood that Mr. McKinley decided to uphold Otis, and that was why the official denial of any clash of authority in the commission was given out.

Although two of the speakership candidates—Hopkins, of Ills., and Sherman, of New York,—are in Washington, as well as numerous other politicians, politics had to take a back seat this week to give the people a chance to enjoy the three day Peace Jubilee, which closed to night with a mammoth concert in the Convention Hall. Everybody, from the president to the humblest individual, have tired themselves out with parades on three successive days, fireworks on a big scale for three successive nights, trotting around to see the sights, which included some of the handsomest decorations ever put up in Washington, and they are doubtless better off than if the time had been spent in discussing Speakership possibilities.

Mr. White, national democratic committeeman, declares that it is unpatriotic to advocate independence for the Philippines. Mr. White has some excuse for saying this as an individual, but not as a committeeman. He has not been commissioned by those he is supposed to represent to make such a declaration. Even as an individual it is in the worst possible taste for him to question the patriotism of any of his fellow citizens merely because they hold to the old and higher American ideals.—Tacoma News.

TALKS TO COMMERCIAL CLUB

Judge Morford Talks About the Klondike and His Experiences There.

S. O. Morford was invited to address the governing board of the Commercial Club on Saturday evening and for the space of three quarters of an hour entertained the club members with a description of Dawson and the great gold fields of the north and his own experiences there. He related the history of the discovery of gold on Bonanza creek by "Siwash" George and his Indian companions, during the month of August 1896 and the subsequent rush to the new diggings.

When he and his partner, Charles Overheiser arrived at Dawson after a perilous journey down the Yukon they found only one house there and everything in confusion. Mr. Morford aided in laying out the town which he says is built upon an iceberg covered with moss; holes being dug in the ice to set the posts for the warehouses and other buildings erected.

He soon found employment as the manager of Joe Ladue's sawmill at a salary of $500 per month. Rough lumber sold for from $200 to $250 per thousand and the demand was so great during the first season that the little mill was run day and night without being able to supply it. It was extremely difficult to get men to work even at the wages of $15 per day.

Regarding the location of claims all was confusion until after the arrival of gold commissioner Fawcett. Some claims had a number of claimants, while in many other instances claims overlapped.

It required months for the commissioner and assistants to straighten out the tangle. Many claimants after working their claims for a time without securing good results got discouraged and wanted to quit. One man in particular who failed to sell his claim on Bonanza creek for $200, got $30,000 in the spring clean-up and over $100,000 out of it since.

The amounts brought out in the summer of 97 were generally grossly exaggerated, as he, Morford was in a position to know the exact amount that most of the miners came out with that year. There was no bank or safe in Dawson then and he was often requested to hold the miners "dust" in trust and did so by burying it in sawdust.

There was a threatened scarcity of provisions in the fall of 97, owing to the inability of the supply boats to ascend the river. By judicious management, however, starvation was averted by sending a few hundred empty handed men down the river and by buying the supplies of a number of other newcomers, at a dollar per pound, the latter returning to Skagway over the ice.

Mr. Morford related how near to death by exhaustion and starvation he and his partner were before they found their way into Dawson. Hearing of the discovery of gold on Bonanza, they left the Yukon and made their way into the hills following moose trails most of the way. After prospecting several creeks without securing tangible results they attempted to push their way through to the Klondike river intending to descend it to the Yukon. Heavy rains began to fall keeping them wet to the skin, the rain was followed by snow, which added to their discomfort. The result was that the two lonely prospectors trudging through the snow with their packs on their backs became lost or at least thought they were. To make matters worse the weather suddenly turned bitterly cold and their small stock of provisions became exhausted. The last night out—when they were within three miles of Dawson and did not know it, Mr. Morford was obliged to cut wood through the night to keep up a fire in order to ward off death by freezing. They had then been two days without food and Overheiser was well nigh dead from hunger and exhaustion. They worried through the terrible night, however, and next morning in lieu of anything better, ate their fill of wild rosebuds to alleviate their terrible hunger. That day they managed to make their way into Dawson which was then made up of one house and a few straggling tents. When the camp was reached, the two men were so thoroughly exhausted that it required several days for them to recuperate.

When questioned concerning his former employer, Joe Ladue, Mr. Morford stated that he was now seriously ill at his old home near Plattsburg, N. Y., and the chances were that he would never see the Klondike again.

Regarding the new gold discovery near Cape Nome on the coast of Alaska, Mr. Morford said he believed it was genuine and although it is a very bleak, treeless and desolate country, he anticipated a great rush there this season. Most of the floating element in the Klondike had already started for the new diggings.

Improved methods of working the placers would this year double the output and materially reduce the cost of mining. He expected to return to the Klondike during the coming month and would take in with him a quantity of new machinery for working creek claims that he felt sure would produce good results.

It did more to give me new strength and good appetite than anything I could take. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cts. at Louis O. Janek's drug store. ### Decoration Day Ceremonies.

Decoration Day was, as is the custom, generally observed in Yakima. The procession in the morning headed by the G. A. R., including the uniform rank of the K. P. and other orders, was witnessed by a large crowd of people. After the parade a large number took vehicles for Tahoma cemetery, where the beautiful ceremony of decorating the graves of the nations dead was carried out. In the afternoon a large concourse of people thronged Mason's opera house and listened attentively to the exercises. A picked choir headed by Prof. Aldredge, with his violin, rendered patriotic airs.

Rev. Ira W. Kimmel, the orator of the day delivered what most of his audience regarded as a most eloquent address. He spoke feelingly of the dead heroes of both the civil and Spanish wars. He made special mention of the Yakima boys, Cherry, Shearer, Van Buskirk and the other brave young men of Co. E., who went out from Yakima 13 months ago, only to meet death at the hands of the savage Filipinos. The speaker then launched out in a plea for expansion, saying that American ideas and American civilization, would henceforth be carried to the uttermost ends of the earth and while he did not say so, he led his audience to infer that this result was to be accomplished by conquest.

FOURTH OF JULY.

A Big Celebration Promised—Meeting of the Executive Committee.

The executive committee having in charge Yakima's proposed 4th of July celebration, held a meeting at the club room on Wednesday evening, with President Ditter presiding. A number of gentlemen who have been appointed to membership on sub-committees also met with the executive committee and the whole plan of the celebration was informally discussed.

Chairman Ditter called upon the chairman of each sub-committee in regular order for a report.

Chairman Schott, of the soliciting committee, composed of himself and Messrs Horsley and Short, then read the list of business and professional men who had subscribed to the fund, which aggregated $565. Mr. Schott stated that they had received assurances of contributions from other parties which would swell the list up to at least $600.

The committee on grounds reported in favor of holding the speaking in the forenoon on Natchez avenue. They also submitted the offer of the fair board to hold the afternoon sports on the fair grounds. After thoroughly canvassing the question the executive committee decided by unanimous vote to hold the whole celebration within the city limits.

The committee on novelties was instructed to ascertain the probable expense of a balloon ascension.

The committee on music were instructed to hire a band—the home band preferred.

Col. Robertson, of the committee on fireworks, reported that $150 would purchase a large and well assorted stock of fireworks. The committee then on his recommendation voted that amount for that purpose.

The committee on transportation reported that a greatly reduced rate would be given by the N. P. for the occasion.

The committee on advertising and races also reported and received their instructions from the general committee. It was agreed that the street parade in the morning should be made a special feature and that a number of fine floats should be constructed and that each business man should be invited to have his business represented in the procession.

The meeting on the whole was well attended and very enthusiastic, which augurs well for the success of the celebration.
