Mr. Kenneth J. Crow, power use consultant,
Grant County Public Utility District No. 2,
Ephrata, Washington.

Dear Mr. Crow:

It didn't occur to me this morning when you telephoned regarding your contemplated trip to Yakima Thursday morning, to ask if you were going back that afternoon, and it would inconvenience you to stop at Vantage on the way down and pick up one of the "anapums if he is there.

The enclosed letter is self explanatory. The young man is Bobby Tomanawash [or Tomalawash] His father died and is the last man buried on the bluff. Bobby is "on his own" and has no legal guardian, to our way of thinking, but is one of the eight non-treaty band, the true "anapums. Although he turned 18 some time in the past, I recently got him fixed up on his draft status, which had the draft board scratching their heads because having never signed a treaty with these people that leaves the draft situation somewhat muddled. But, again the "anapums are cooperative.

Bobby had had some education. He will be of assistance to you if he stays at Vantage where he has customarily been employed.

If you do not have room for him or have other plans, you will note the letter suggests, if he is clear, to come down to the restaurant and meet you anyway. He's short and pretty much on the husky side.

I've made contact with Puck Hyah Toot and they will bring an interpreter along with them.

If you think, I would appreciate it if you bring one of the negatives in which we all appear, so I can have our photog strike me off a few copies.
Sincerely
