

BONNEVILLE DAM

Visit

Enroute to the Pacific Northwest

Union Pacific lines parallel the scenic Columbia River for over 200 miles.

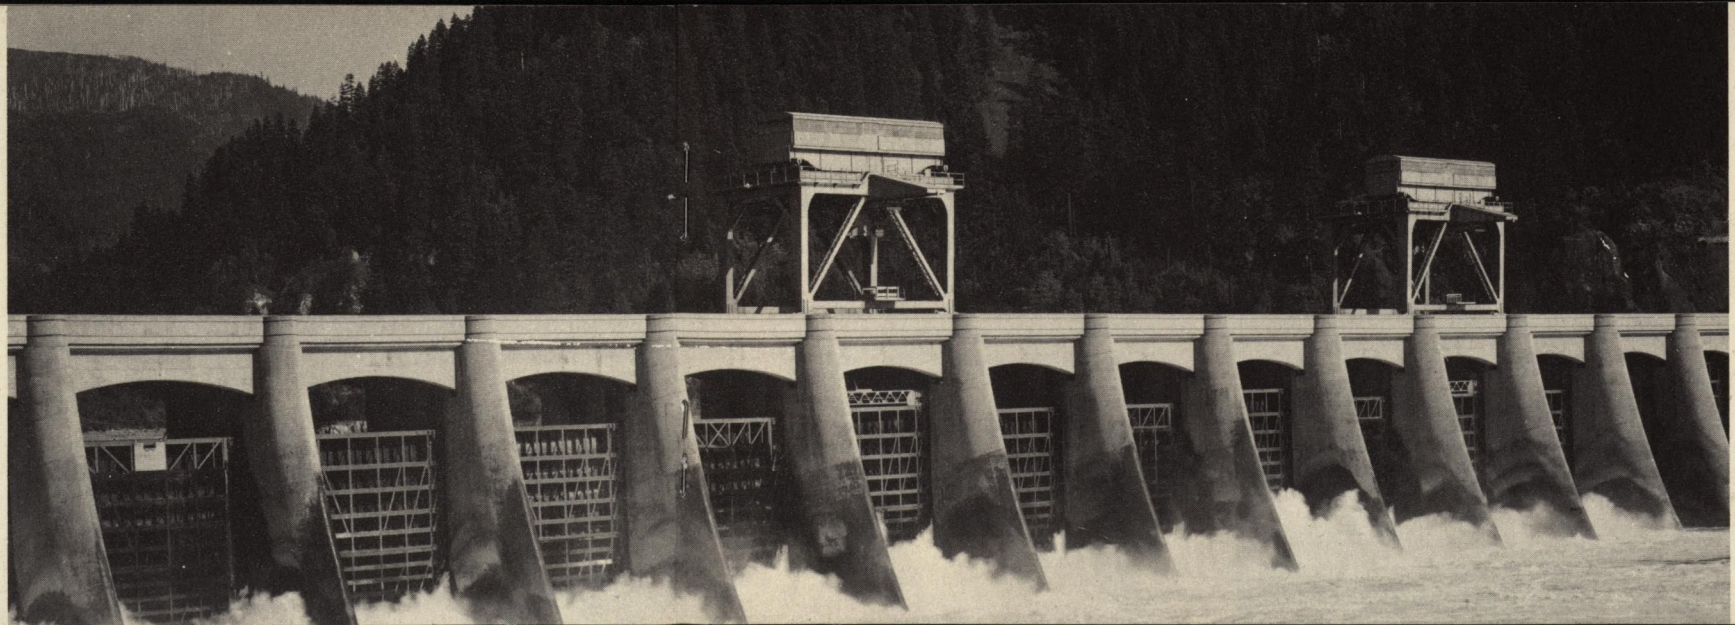

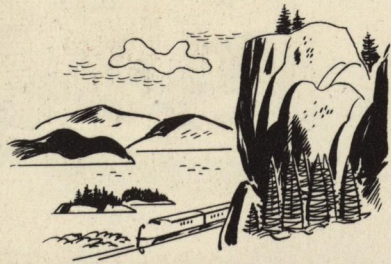

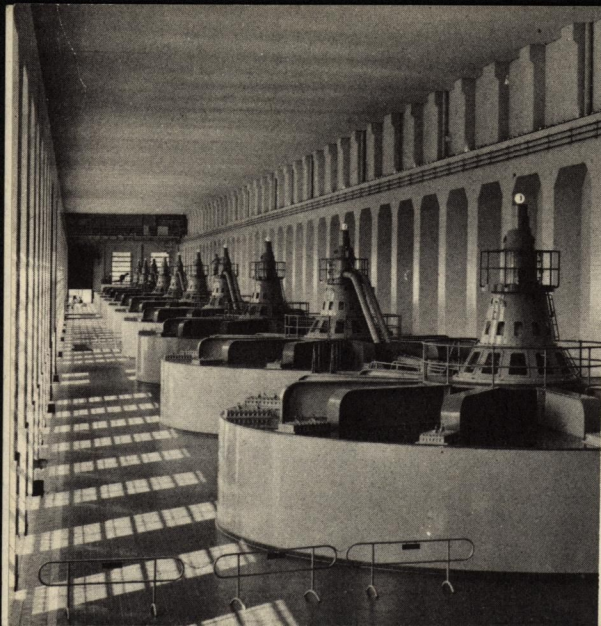

Gigantic
BONNEVILLE DAM
on the beautiful
Columbia River

Bonneville Dam and appurtenant works, completed at a cost of $80,400,000, is a giant source of hydroelectric power, and a bulwark in flood control. Unique in dam construction are the fishways built to assure upstream passage of salmon and other species to their spawning grounds.

Located about 40 miles east of Portland, Oregon, this vast project is one in which every American can take pride. Bonneville Dam was constructed and is being maintained and operated under the direction of the Department of the Army, Corps of Engineers. The spillway dam, shown at right, is more than 1,450 feet long. On its crest are two giant cranes used to raise and lower the 18 gates.

Generator room

Passengers on Union Pacific trains may view Bonneville Dam and graceful Multnomah Falls (pictured on back cover) from the train window. Special train parties may stop-over at Bonneville for the government-guided tour of the Dam, the power-house, fishways, hatcheries, etc., and there is no extra cost.

There are countless other fascinating sights along Union Pacific, the outstanding scenic route serving all the West.

Any Union Pacific representative listed on the next page will be glad to give more specific information.
