Dear Mr. Relander:

When you telephoned to order items from Catalogue 91, you will recall that I told you Huntington Library had ordered a number of items, among them one that you particularly wanted, and that I would let you know if they happened to return that one.

The item in question is #139 (Allen & Schoolcraft: EXPEDITION TO THE N.W. INDIANS. $35.00). Huntington found they already had a copy of this, and returned my copy. I am holding it for you, and if you still wish to have it drop me a card and I'll send it on to you.

Sincerely yours,

J. E. Reynolds

Dear Mr. Relander:

I appreciate your thinking of me in regard to the books you want to dispose of, but I don't see anything on your list that I would be too interested in purchasing right now. Most of the California items are fairly common books that I already have in stock, and can't use more copies.

I do thank you, however, for sending me the list, which I am herewith returning in case you wish to offer the material elsewhere.

Sincerely yours,
