Mr. Jones an Offensive Partisan,

"Yakima" Jones, according to an ancient custom of his, closed the campaign in this city last night. He made the usual resounding speech of sound and fury and rank partisanship.

Mr. Jones is a good talker though a poor reasoner. He talks more hifaluting nonsense on the stump than any other man that we know of in the politabout Jones, however, is his offensive part sanship.

If Mr. Jones of Yakima would act out the part in public aflairs that he talks and prays he would not be subject to criticism. Republican opponents, but it is a mighty good idea from the taxpayers' standpoint to turn things upside down occasionally. It is often the case that grave abuses are corrected in this way and there are some outrageous abuses in vogue right now in Yakima county.

This paper would advise its readers to cast a vote today for Mr. Coonse, Republican nominee for assessor, and Mr. Day, the candidate of the same party for clerk of the superior court. Both of these men have made good records, so good, in fact, that the Democratic convention did not see fit to nominate men against them.

Pay no attention to campaign lies that may be circulated at the polls today regarding any candidate on the Democratic county ticket. The ring runs the Republican politics of this county are in desperate straits and with defeat staring it in the face will be likely to resort to any expedient to deceive the voters.

The Farrell State Ticket.

Vote for the entire Democratic state ticket headed by George Turner. By doing this you will deal a body blow to the railroad gang in control of the Republican party of this state and rotten politics. Don't content yourself by voting for Turner and cutting out the rest of the state ticket.

Mr. Mead is bad enough but the truth is that he is an angel of light as compared with some of the men who are on the ticket with him. Coon, the nominee for lieutenant governor, on the Farrell ticket is charged with a crime, which if true, and there are good reasons to cate and this paper cheerfully acknowlbelieve that it is, ought to put such a dastard as he in the penitentiary. No to the error by none other than Mr. man who is charged with such a crime Stephenson, Mr. Jacobson's Democratic and lacks the manhood to resent it is fit to associate with respectable men. rection is made. Several others of the state candidates. while not charged with such heinous offences as is Coon, are nevertheless misfit candidates and never ought to have been nominated.

Claussen, the nominee for state auditor, was a defaulter a number of years ago while clerk of the court of Worth X mark in the circle under the heading county, Iowa. The facts in his case have been published with affidavits makes no effort to deny them. Claussen in this state has never been any- der the present law a ballot that is dedesigning men. Do you want this conscienceless gang of misfits to serve you for the next four years, Mr. Taxpayer? If so vote the Farrell-Republican state ticket.

No Answer to a Serious Charge.

At the Democratic meeting Saturday night in this city H. J. Snively publicly branded Walter J. Reed, Republican nominee for state senator as a "falsifier and a perjurer." He deposited $20, which he agreed should be delivered to the Yakima Republic if that paper in its issue of Monday evening would publish affidavits from George Donald, J. D. Cornett and Fred Parker, or any of them, to the effect that Mr. Reed is an honest man, the gentlemen referred to it might be remarked in passing, are all of the same political faith as Mr. Reed.

The columns of our local contemporary were examined with a great deal of interest by a number of people last evening in order to see if such affidayits were published, but there was nothing of the kind there. There was no reference to these ugly charges except in a very badly distorted local account of the Democratic meeting.

It is needless to say that many of Mr. Reed's friends and well wishers in this community are disappointed at the failure to make good in this case. They were quite certain up to last night that suca affidavits could be produced, but they have not been produced and thus the voters are left to draw their own conclusions.

The above are ugly charges to prefer against any man no matter whether he is a candidate for public office or not. The man against whom they are made could hardly afford to ignore them, we think, but he seems to have

A Rebuke to Robertson et al.

The editor of the Republic knows that R. A. Grant will be re-elected sheriff by the people today as well as any other man in the community knows it. He knows that the voters, or at any rate very few of them, take any stock in the charges that he has made and reiterated against Grant nearly every day for the past few months.

thus endorsing Grant the people will at the same time place the seal of their disapproval upon Robertson. In returning Grant to the sheriff's office they will by the same token rebuke Col. Robertson and his crowd of political office brokers who assume the right to control the politics and public officials of the county.

The People are the Jury.

The argument is now presumed to be all in and the case goes to the jury today. The people are the jury and after hearing the evidence on both sides will render their verdict.

The Democratic party of this state and county has made a splendid fight for correct principles and has no cause of regret on the eve of election. The party stands for the right in this campaign and stands for the people.

If the people, regardless of party, do not sustain it in this election it will be for the reason that they have grown indifferent to their own welfare.

A Correction.

The Democrat of yesterday morning was apparently in error when it stated that Mr. Jacob Jacobson, Republican nominee for county superintendent of schools, has only a second grade certifiedges its error. Our attention was called opponent, at whose request this cor-

The Yakima Republic still continues to print the baseless charge and clumsy lie that the Democratic legislative candidates in this county are desirous of going to the legislature in order to trade their votes off to the railroads to secure George Turner's election to the United States senate. The editor of that journal can conjure up more rot in campaign time than any other man in the state outside of Seattle.

Morally Irresponsible.

The Yakima Republic's account of the Democratic mass meeting in this city Saturday night is the most perverted and lying statement of alleged facts that we have seen in print in this campaign. The man who wrote that arti cle must have been either drunk or else so hopelessly addicted to the lying habit that he is morally irresponsible.

"Sixty Day Riot of Iniquity." What is the most solemn duty of American citizenship? This: To preserve the government, clean and honest, as it came down from the fathers That solemn duty will confront the voters of Washington tomorrow. Under lobby rule the legislature of this state has become a reproach and a byword. It has been branded by leading Republican journals as the most corrupt and degenerate lawmaking body that ever inflicted this state and territory. For example, the Tacoma Daily Ledger, always a Republican newspaper uttered the following righteous denunciation the morning after adjournment in March, 1903:

"There have been bad legislatures, doubtless. In the matter of corruption there had never been one in Washington approaching in snamelessness and open defiance of decency this 60 day riot of iniquity. This session was marked by betrayal of faith, by exhibitions of bargain and sale; it was a series of broken pledges, orgies of spite and spouting of vituperation.

"The members will be borne in mind. They will be asking once more to be trusted. They will not be trusted. The earth is fresh on their political graves, Mr. Grant will be endorsed by the and the populace engaged in stamping it people of Yakima county today. In so hard as to preclude the possibility of resurrection.

Conscious of their guilt, the recreant legislators took that scathing arraignment in silence. Mead, the Farrell railroad nominee for governor, has confessed the truth of the indictment. He has declared in public speeches that the reason the Tacoma state convention made no more promises to control the railroads was because the last legislature violated previous pledges, and the party deemed it best not to make more pledges to be broken in like manner.

The voter who would forget or condone the shameless record of the last legislature and the coarse work of the Farrell convention would condone any thing .- Review.

Contest in Colorado.

One of the most vigorous and intersting political contests of the west has been that in Colorado, where national issues have had to take a place secondary to those directly concerning the state.

Governor Peabody was renominated by the Republicans and the question is as to whether his administration of affairs shall be approved. This, of course has involved a discussion of the recent labor troubles and a bitterness has been injected into the campaign such as the state has never before witnessed.

The Democrats have nominated ex-Governor Alva Adams, a gentleman of excellent character and reputation and one who nearly everybody admits, would make a good executive. The contest, however, seems to have been one waged not altogether along party lines. Most of the men belonging to unions whatever their politics may have been in the past, are working for Adams with a view to defeating Peabody and thus administering a rebuke for what they term his arbitrary and high handvote for every man on that ticket. JUDGE TURNER'S OPINION

The Entire Democratic State Ticket Will be Elected Today, Says the Nominee for Governor,

"I have absolutely no doubt of the election of the entire Democratic state Such was the statement made last evening by Judge George Turner, Democratic nominee for governor, upon his return to Spokane to close the campaign. He arrived in the city about 5 Asotin county, where he spoke aStur-

"I have been over nearly the entire state," continued Judge Turner, "and men in it. They were overwhelmed while the campaign has not been an exciting one, I find everywhere a deep of evil. They could accomplish nothing and abiding determination on the part of citizens, regardless of politics, to put the majority. They were forced to an end to railroad domination of our state politics.

Party Lines Obliterated.

"In this state contest party lines, to to control conventions, debauch legislatures, corrupt elections and dodge their taxes. The Democratic ticket stands in opposition to a continuation of those things, and the so-called Republican state ticket stands for their continua-

"I have visited no county where I have not found that patriotic Republicans are putting principle above mere party considerations. In fact thousands of patriotic Republicans believe and with good reason, that the election of the railroad ticket would do their party infinitely more harm than good. They believe that to defeat the railroad ticket will be to put them in a position where they can drive out of their party the evil influences which controlled the Tacoma convention once and for all.

Railroad Forces Malignant.

"The campaign waged by the railroad forces for the election of their state ticket has been malignant in the extreme. They have turned loose upon me all their batteries of falsehood and calumny. They have misrepresented my attitude on every public question; have lied deliberately about my record in the constitutional convention, and have circulated falsehood after falsegood concerning my attitude toward workingmen.

"Eastern Washington is being flooded now with circulars and roorbacks put forth at the eleventh hour in the hope that their falsity can not be exposed before election. Not a single one of the statements contained in those circulars concerning my record on the railroad commission question in the constitutional convention or concerning my attitude toward labor contains a vestige of truth.

"Such tactics, however, will not succeed. The people of this state realize that evil influences are behind the circulation of those falsehoods, and that purpose is to fasten upon this state for all time, if possible, the corrupting rule of the railroad lobby. We about sectional feeling, it is here, and are going to win this fight."

Daggett Says "Victory."

Floyd L. Daggett, vice chairman of the Democratic state central committee, has returned to Spokane to vote to-

"There is no more question in my mind that Judge Turner will be elected governor," he said, "than there is that DR. P. FRANK. am alive. We are going to elect our entire state tieket. We will carry both sides of the mountains. Western Washington is as thoroughly aroused as he east side."-Review.

Playing Both Ends. Having been driven from every other point of vantage in the campaign the WilsonPalmer-railroad state commitee has now abandoned all other argunents and fallen back on the worn-out plea to the citizens of Seattle and Taoma that it is necessary for each of those cities to give Mr. Mead a majority n order for them to secure the United States senatorship. In this city they are telling that if Mead is elected he will help Pierce county to gett he senatorship, while in King county they are telling that if elected he will help King ounty dominate the politics of the state. Close observers of things political give greater credence to the King county talk. It is becoming well recognized in Seattle and elsewhere taroughout the state that there is some kind of secret understanding between Mr. Mead and John L. Wilson, and that this understanding accounts for the desperate fight which Mr. Wilson's Post-Intelligencer is making for Mead's election. Through Mr. Palmer, Mr. Wilson is in full control of the state committee, second only to the railroad influences with which both men are in sympathy, and men who know Mr. Wilson know that he is too determined upon going to the United States senate to waste any energies he has on any political movement which will not contribute to that end .-Tacoma Forum.

LEGISLATURE WAS ROTTEN

Tacoma Ledger's Scathing Denunciation of Lobby Tools.

The Tacoma Ledger, one of the leadng Republican papers of the state, printed the following editorial the morning after the last legislature ad-

"All earthly evils come to an end. The legislature of Washington has adjourned. The rule to say nothing but good of the dead must be waived. The body that reached its climax last night, o'clock in the evening from Clarkston, affording many of its members their last experience in public life, was notable chiefly for incompetency and corruption. There were honest and able and made helpless by the hired forces save by entering into compacts with compromise with their consciences or to go back to their constituents with the blank record of failure. The collared creatures who were dictating the orall appearances, have been obliterated. ders they themselves had received did The issue has been squarely raised as to not hesitate to threaten the defeat of whether railroads are to be permitted any measure, however necessary and proper, unless support were given to their schemes. Thus, where bribery would have had no chance, intimidation

> "There have been bad legislatures, doubtless. In the matter of corruption there had never been one in Washington approaching in shameless and open defiance of decency this 60 days riot of iniquity. This session was marked by betrayals of faith, by exhibitions of bargain and sale; it was a series of broken pledges, orgies of spite, a spouting of vituperation. Men in their eagerness for revenge forgot the purposes for which they had been elected, forgot the interests of the people they represented, forgot everything save that they had a little temporary power.

"No ground exists upon which the egislators can be forgiven. Incompetency may be a heritage, but corruption is the manifestation of an acquired habit. The members will be borne in mind. They will be asking once more to be trusted. The earth is fresh on their political graves, and the populace engaged in stamping it so hard as to preclude the chance of resurrection."

Mead Has No Call Here. It is inconceivable how good, honest and apparently sane men who were instrumental in tacking Mead on to the Foster kite. It is regretted by many that Senator Foster refused to stand on his record, and content himself to go to victory on his merit. Why was Mead tied to him? It was a trick of the wily politicians to save the railroad candidate at Foster's expense, as one of the Mead shouters said, "it's a fight to the bitter end." God forbid that Foster may be compelled to see the bitter end. but there can be no other ending to such an alliance. Pierce county has nothare not identical. Prate as you will this winter will see it intensified rather than mollified, and who is there here with an imagination fertile enough to picture King and Pierce in a political alliance, both offensive and defensive, perish the thought .- Tacoma Forum.

Up to the fifteenth year most young people require ten hours' sleep and till the twentieth year nine hours. After that age every one finds out how much be or she requires, though, as a general rule, at least six to eight hours are necessary. Eight hours' sleep will prevent more nervous derangements in women than any medicine can cure. During growth there must be ample sleep if the brain is to develop to its fullest extent, and the more nervous, excitable or precocious a child is the longer sleen it should get if its intellectual progress is not to come to a premature standstill or its life cut short at an early age

THEY DIDN'T PART.

How Two Brothers Settled a Matter of Matrimony. An English book of reminiscences tells of two squires named Leaman of Ivybridge-"two thin, delicate looking old men, twin beers, seventy-two years old, with white hair, very gentle and courteous in manner, red cutaway coats, white cords, black boots, caps and gloves." When past sixty years of age one night after hunting one of them said to the other: "I have been thinking neither of us can have much longer to live in this world and it will be a terrible thing for the survivor to have to remain here alone. Don't you think one of us ought to marry? "Yes," was the reply. "I have thought so for a long time." "Well, do you know of any lady?" "Yes; I do. Is there any one you fancy?" On comparing notes it appeared they had both selected the same woman, the manager of a hotel at Okehampton. "Well." said one, "we have lived together all these years without a wry word, and it's a pity we should fall out at our time of life." So they tossed up who should marry her. The winner rode down to Okehampton next morning and was accepted. All three lived together and the wife nursed both broth-Dempsey, merchant, Outlook, clerk. and Five Bridges to Buda. Situated on a river which hears more tongues than any other on its long journey to the sea, feeling the influence of the orient as well as the occident, expressive of the progress of a race whose heart is young, is Pest, one of the newest of cities, joined by a hyphen and five bridges to Buda, one of the oldest of capitals. Here there need be no strife between the sentiment that would preserve an ancient building and the enterprise that would put something more serviceable in its place. In much the same way that one may have portraits of his ancestors hung on the walls of a steam heated house, without interfering with the utilities, so the Magyar from a comfortable chair in his cafe, while he listens to stock exchange quotations or the opera over the telephone, may look across the Danube at the monuments of the Hungarian past. On our part we should have a parallel if Washington were the commercial metropolis as well as the capital and we moved the heights of Arlington farther down the Potomac and crowned them with Liberty hall, Castle William and Old South church. In other European cities where an old municipal site adjoins a modern, though hills are leveled and moats filled, the cramping effect of narrow alleyways and crooked streets still remains. The heights of the Buda side formed a natural stronghold in the middle ages. There the first Hungarian king was crowned; there the Turkish janizaries were encamped for the hundred years that the walls of Vienna were an unyielding bulwark against the tide of Moslem invasion; there in later times the patriots inspired by Kossuth made a gallant stand. The successors of the old warriors and their people had only to cross the stream to find a plain which was equally suitable for a twentieth won successes that they failed to win gun. in war.-Frederick Palmer in Scribner's.

Wild Animals and the Human Voice. Gordon Cumming was perhaps the first to discover the effect of the human voice upon wild animals. On one occasion he had a lioness in full retreat before him. In a similar venture he checked the charge of a lioness by yelling at her and continued to do so, while she remained perplexedly sniffing the ground and allowed him to escape.

Civilians Frequently Are Better Sleuths Than Professionals.

"The detective instinct is inborn in some people," observed an old detective, "and it is a rather curious thing when you think about it. I have known good detectives, naturally so, who were never connected in any manner with the service. They possess all the mental qualities of a sleuth-quickness to grasp a situation, keen perception, rapidity of thought, strongly developed power of deduction and extreme nervous activity. While it is true all great detectives have acquired distinction through hard work and unflagging application, it is also true that many men have the detective impulse so firmly welded into their natures that it will crop out in spite of themselves. "And I may say in passing it is useful to them in many ways, for not only operatives, but business men of every description, frequently need those peculiar faculties which go to make up a criminal chaser. I once knew a man who had the instinct so strongly developed that he thought of nothing else than the unraveling of mysteries and chasing clews. He found something of interest in the slightest case of theft and would amuse himself by working it out. It became a mania with him, and he was a source of much amusement to the officers. There was never a murder day or night that he was not among the first on the scene, and his peculiar talents frequently enabled him to lend valuable assistance to the regular force."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A native woman living in old Cairo was entering her house when, to her great terror, she perceived a snake of formidable dimensions, which had taken possession of the hearth during the woman's absence. There Was a Time When It Was an Unmentionable Article.

The evolution of the pocket handkerchief is odd and interesting. There was a time when it was an unmentionable thing, says Modern Society of London -an article to be kept out of sight and referred to only in a whisper. In polite conversation it was carefully avoided, and as to one's being caught using a handkerchief it meant social ostra-

This state of things obtained up to the time of the first Napoleon, when the Empress Josephine brought it forward for a personal reason. The only defect in her beauty was an irregularity of the teeth, and to hide this she used a delicate little handkerchief, which from time to time she raised to her lips. Thus she was enabled to laugh occasionally. Seeing that it was a case of either laughter going out or handkerchiefs coming into fashion, the court ladies adopted the pretty pieces of cambric and lace.

In England the evolution of the article which is now so openly displayed by women was equally slow. There was a time when it was forbidden to mention it on the stage or to make use of it even in the most tearful situation. while the people in the gallery and the pit shed their tears into their laps. Even when it was mentioned for the first time in one of Shakespeare's plays it was received with hisses and general indignation by the audience. Little by little, however, the prejudice gave way, and a time came when the handkerchief could be flourished in broad daylight.

A Coin In the Sea.

A coin dropped into the sea will sink to the bottom, however deep it is, owing to the fact that the metal is heavier than the volume of water that it displaces.

It is a common but mistaken notion that the density of the sea increases with its depth and consequent pressure, as does the density of the atmosphere. which we all know is greatest at the earth's surface. The air, however, like all gases, is elastic, and, when under pressure (as with its own weight). shrinks in volume and gains in density.

Water, on the other hand, is absolutely incompressible, and, although the pressure in the sea increases at the rate of about one pound for every two feet we descend, the density of the water remains the same; consequently the penny continues to outwelgh the water it displaces and the coin sinks until it finds a solid resting place. The pressure of the water has no influence at all on the coin, acting as it does on all sides equally.

Fast Days Yn Russia.

Fast days in Russia are numerous. Besides the ordinary Lenten period, which, however, in Russia is fortyeight days long instead of forty, they have three shorter periods of fastingone of nineteen days in June, one of fourteen days in August, and another of thirty-three days in November and December. There are also three single days of fasting, of which two are also holidays.

Fasting is a serious matter in Russia, for fish, milk and eggs are forbidden as well as meats. The result is that the markets for such products are largely cut off for about one-third of the year and dairy farming becomes unprofitable, as strict observance of fasts is a weightier matter with the people than honesty or any other feature of our system of morals.

Charles Lamb's Grace.

On one occasion when Edmund Clarence Stedman was visiting in New England he was called upon by the head of the house while at dinner to invoke the divine blessing. "I was rather surprised and for half a minute sorely tempted," said Mr. Stedman in relating the incident. "Then I rose to the occasion and asked a grace which I remembered." "But, Mr. Stedman," demanded a young woman of the party eagerly, "to what were you sorely tempted?" "To do as Charles Lamb did under similar circumstances." "And that was?" "He looked about the board and asked in surprise, 'Is there no clergyman present?' The host shook his head. Then Lamb prayed, 'For this and all other mercies, O Lord, make us truly thankful!"

REVENGE

[Copyright, 1904, by C. B. Lewis.] The brigadier general was a great poker player, and he had been cleaning but the colonels and majors and captains in great shape. Some of them were old hands at the game, but for every dollar they won they lost two. It wouldn't do to come out and say that the brigadier was a card sharp, but men shook their heads and wondered and grumbled over his strange luck, and one after another found excuses for not sitting down with him

Inside of a week or so it was reported and believed Colonel Bell lost to the brigadier over $2,000. That sum might have been doubled in another week but for an incident. More by accident than design the colonel caught the brigadier cheating, and the play broke up in hot words. Every effort was made to suppress the gossip, but it reached the ears of the commander in chief, and he raised such a row that there was no more poker. The harm had been done, however. Colonel Bell had said to the brigadier in presence of witnesses:

"Sir, I caught you cheating, and I denounce you as a sharper and a ras-

Spring came at last, and the campaign opened. Early was too strong for Sheridan for the first two or three months, but we held him back and fought him in all the valleys. Sometimes it was a skirmish, with only a few hundred men engaged. Again it was a lively little fight in which each side had a brigade in battle line. We had plenty of excitement and plenty to occupy our thoughts, but we of the Third regiment did not forget the brigadier's threat. You had only to look at his set jaw and cold face to realize

"Nothing, except that you'd better bid them goodby and ask the Lord to forgive you your sins. We'll be piled

The brigadier had a plan, and it was soon developed. The Third regiment was on the left flank, just opposite the enemy's strongest position. The center of the Federal force was moved forward and then ordered back. The right flank was advanced, kept under long range fire for a few minutes and then withdrawn back. Then an aid came galloping up to Colonel Bell, saluted the aid. Not five men in our regiment heard the words, but all understood them. The hour of revenge had come to the brigadier. He hadn't driven Colonel Bell to resign, but he would strike him here, and the blow would hit the whole regiment as well. There were groans

"Goodby to you. This is a wipeout

We moved over the old meadow at common time, increased it to quick as the first bullets began to sing, and then with a cheer brought our muskets down to a charge and dashed forward with a whoop. The angels of heaven must have been saddened over the slaughter. We had no earthly show. Grape and canister and bullet rained into us behind intrenchments until the men in gray stayed their hands out of pity and let a beggarly quarter of the regiment limp back out of the hell. The colonel, the major, five captains, seven lieutenants and 420 men left

As we fought them in a desultory way they were re-enforced, and suddenly we found our 3,600 men facing at least 5,000. The enemy had a strong position, too, and every man of us, from the senior colonel down, realized that if we could even hold our own until another Federal brigade

Curiosities of Cut Glass. The process of glass cutting requires great skill and care. A design is first lightly copied on the glass, and the cutters take it in hand. A fine stream of sand and water falls continuously on a rapidly revolving steel wheel. To this the glass is applied, and the cutting is really accomplished by the friction which the sand sets up. Then another workman with another steel wheel and plain water brings the cutting up to a sharper edge. A third workman with a soft wooden tool takes off the cloudiness caused by the friction of the steel, a fourth polishes the glass, a fifth with a preparation of ox-
