

March 26, 1956

Wm. Ballantyne & Sons,
605 15th St., N.W.
Washington, D.C.

[Purchasing Dept.]

Dear Sir:

A friend of mine who has been researching in Washington and shopping for books suggested that I should drop you a circular of Drummers and Dreamers, now being prepared by the publisher for publication Oct. 6, 1956.

This is strictly a non-vanity book. I know you are familiar with the quality work of the publisher, Saxtons, and that you are entitled to 40 per cent discount and that books are returnable on the usual basis.

Dr. F.W. Hodge wrote the foreword. The book is footnoted and indexed.

I am writing you since you no doubt know the publisher has but limited contact and promotional facilities.

I would be most happy to forward any order you care to place, or it could be sent directly to him. Inasmuch as publication costs are high these days, it is economical to determine as nearly as possible the number of the issue.

I am enclosing a couple of clippings that may be of general interest to you. While I wrote both, only one, that concerning Priest Rapids Dam gives an idea of the general subject of Drummers and Dreamers. Not every small band of Indians, especially if they are non-treaty has a major dam named for them in these days where Indians usually sue and resist the government rather than cooperate as these people have done. The total estimated cost of the two dams, including transmission line, is around $360,000,000.

I note that a New York contractor entered the apparent low bid for the first unit.

Trusting that you will desire to order some copies of Drummers and Dreamers, I remain.

Sincerely Yours

Click Relander

March 26, 1956

Brentano's,
1322 F St. N.W.,
Washington, D.C.

[purchase department]

Dear Sir:

A friend of mine who has been researching in Washington and shopping for books suggested that I should drop you a circular of Drummers and Dreamers, now being prepared by the publisher for publication Oct. 6, 1956.

This is strictly a non-vanity book. I know you are familiar with the quality work of the publisher, that you are entitled to the usual 40 per cent discount and books are returnable on the usual basis.

Dr. F.W. Hodge wrote the foreword. The book is footnoted and indexed.

I am writing you since you no doubt know the publisher has but limited promotional and contact facilities.

I would be most happy to forward your order or they could be sent to him direct. Inasmuch as the publication cost is high these days, it would be advantageous to him to know, as early as possible concerning orders, so he could estimate the issue for economy's sake.

I am enclosing a couple of clippings that may be of general interest to you. While I wrote both, only one, that concerning Priest Rapids Dam gives an idea of the general subject of Drummers and Dreamers. Not every small band of Indians, especially if they are non-treaty, has a major dam named for them. The total estimated cost of these two dams, included in the same project, together with transmission facilities, is around $360,000,000.

I note that a New York contractor entered the apparent low bid for the first unit.

Trusting you will desire to order a few copies of Drummers and Dreamers, I remain

Sincerely Yours

Click Helander