

The unreliable Republic last week misquoted The Herald regarding a certain little ice story and then proceeds to criticize. Correct your mistake, neighbor, if you didn't do it on purpose, and we are ready with our reply. Stand up like a man and face the music and don't dodge behind a misquotation.

Editor Sperry is to be commended for criticizing people who ~~send goods abroad~~ send away for goods that should be bought at home. If he would practice what he preaches, and print his own paper at home, instead of paying Spokane printers for his patent inside, people might think him sincere in his criticism--Yakima Herald, Jan. 13, 1898.

The Herald enlarges this week from six pages of six columns each to eight pages of five columns each and will continue to be up to date in all respects...Yakima Herald, Feb. 24, 1898.

The woman's edition of The Herald shows the superiority of woman's intellect and business management in journalism over man's. ~~manage~~
The public library cleaned up $170 from that week's work. Whatever Yakima ladies undertake is always a grand success--Washington Farmer, Feb-- 1898.

George N. Tuesley of North Yakima, Wash., who is visiting at Perham, his old home, dropped into the city last Friday and called upon his old-time friends, Frederic and F.T. Claydon, H.T. Divans and A.G. Swindlehurst.

Mr. Tuesley is one of the proprietors of The Yakima Herald, a paper advocating bimetalism and dead agin the trusts. George worked on the Tribune once upon a time when Ed Love first took charge of the plant but he said he recognized but one old fixture in the Tribune office and that was Divans--The Wadena Tribune, April, 1898.

W.H. James, who has been connected with the Republic for the past two years has accepted a permanent position at a Sacramento, Cal., paper and expects to assume the duties of his new office about June 15--Yakima Herald, May 26, 1898.

Editor Freeman of The Washington Farmer and Freeman's National Farmer and Turfman, found it convenient to march out of the presence of the recruiting officers in the McCleary building last Saturday morning and it wasn't to the step of national music either.

Mr. Freeman was after news so stepping up to Captin Ellrich with his foghorn voice inquired how many "suckers" had been enrolled. The captain looked Brother Freeman over and suggested that he vacate the premises immediately. Mr. Freeman didn't seem to comprehend the situation whereupon the captain ordered one of his sergeants to assist him out, which was done amid the smiles of a number of spectators. By the way, Brother Freeman neglected to mention this episode in his report last week of the doings of the recruiting officers--Yakima Herald, June 30, 1898.

The Western Sun is the name of a bright new weekly published in Seattle in the interests of the colored people of the state. It is also out for bimetallism, against the monopolies and trusts..Success to it. Yakima Herald, August 4, 1898.

Charles F. Bailey, one of the editors of The Herald, is in Spokane this week attending the regular annual meeting of the State Press association which is holding its sessions in that city this year-- Yakima Herald, August 25, 1898.

Walter T. Wesley has returned from Seattle where he has been the past nine months and accepted a position in the press room of The Herald, Sept. 22, 1898.

The editor of a Missouri paper who has bucked bids on job printing till exasperated feels better since moved to publish the following ;

The editor of this paper is soon to buy a shirt. Strange and extragavant as it may sound, we are determined to do so and with that end in mind wish the dealers to submit bids. The contract will be awarded to the lowest bidder. Quality and style don't count. Any old thing will do. Send in your bids." Yakima Herald, Sept. 22, 1898.

Editor Miller Freeman of the Ranche and Range, Seattle, is spending the week taking in the fair in this city.

The plant and business of the Roslyn News is being offered for sale on account of sickness in the proprietor's family-Yakima Herald, Sept. 22, 1898.

Editor Schnebly of the Ellensburg Localizer and one of the fair's commissioners is in the city this week--Yakima Herald, Sept. 29, 1898.

The editor of the Clarion was a very patient man. A startling crash from the direction of the composing room caused him to push his spectacles on his brow and cease writing.

When he found that the boy had let the first page form fall on the floor, where it lay in an incoherent mass he shook his head reproachfully and exclaimed:

"Lemuel., I do wish that you could manage to break the news more gently"--Yakima Herald, Sept., 1898.

Bailey, Tuesley & McComb, publishers (This had previously been only Bailey and Tuesley, publishers. Sept. 22, 1898.

The Herald is in receipt of Vol No. 1, Vineland, an independent weekly published at Concord, Asotin County, Washington.

The editors, Leach and Henshaw are bright, witty and humorous and evidently have come to stay. Vineland or Concord is the townsite opposite Lewiston which our former fellow townsmen Messrs Libby and Burlingame are interested in promoting--Yakima Herald, Oct. 13, 1898.

Wednesday's Oregonian announces the death of Ben P. Watson which occurred on Tuesday. Mr. Watson was well known in Yakima, having resided here for a year or more at which time he edited the published the Independent. The cause of Mr. Watson's death was Addison's disease of the kidneys--Yakima Herald, Oct. 20, 1898.

The Pacific Northwest Progress, Vol 1 No. 1, Lew N. Benson, publisher, Spokane, comes to us nicely printed and filled to repletion with good things about the state in general and the Yakima country in particular. Success to it--Yakima Herald November 17, 1898.

Farmers and rancher knowing themselves indebted to The Herald can liquidate their accounts by bringing in wood or hay. If your account with us does not amount to as much as the wood or hay we will pay the difference in cash so bring in your stuff--Yakima Herald, Nov. 17, 1898.

Walter A. Hall of Seattle gave the Herald a call the first of the week.

Mr. Hall was the founder and proprietor of the old Seattle Call which he afterward merged in the Press, now the Times. Mr. Hall is interested in the Minook mines on the Yakima having recently returned from a year's sojourn there. He may conclude to locate in this city- Yakima Herald, Dec 1, 1898.

The Nugget and Bee of Chehalis have consolidated. In his valedictory, Editor Robertson, who recently switched to the gold standard, offers the parting words of wisdom that are applicable everywhere:

"In retiring from the business I take the liberty of recommending to the merchants of Chehalis that they discourage any attempt to establish another newspaper here for some years to come.

They, as advertisers, pay the greater part of the tax necessary to support the newspapers of the town and it is decidedly to their interests not only as advertisers but as citizens and property owners that there should be one of two good papers here rather than a larger number of starveling sheets reduced by too much competition to the condition of beggars" Yakima Herald, Dec. 15, 1898

W.W. Robertson, formerly publisher of the Chehalis Nugget passed through the city on his way to Spokane Sunday and stopped over to take a look at us, this being his first visit. He made The Herald a pleasant call--Yakima Herald, North Yakima, Thursday, December 15, 1898.

Col. W.W. Robertson, lately editor of the Chehalis Nugget and widely known as a brilliant writer, was in North Yakima Saturday en route from eastern Washington to the Sound. Col. Robertson may yet employ his pen in promoting the material interests of the Inland Empire--Yakima Herald, Dec. 22, 1898.
