Dr. Donald H. Clark,
4329 Semple St.,
Seattle, 99, Wash.

Dear Don:

Glad to hear you are keeping busy and "liking it." Glad, also to hear the place names is coming along. However, the more I have thought about such, covering the entire state, the more it seems to me that what has been done in that line only "scratches" the surface. Of course, with you and Bob working on it, you've got two top notch researchers who have access to many references not previously gathered, because it was too much work and required too much painstaking endeavor. Don't think there will be much ghost town material in Strangers but perhaps some angles.

Enclosed, find a worthless check. No doubt the funds are there but it seems I can't make out the signature.

I think you must have the Treaty Booklet, but in case it got away from you on the first go round some years ago, another copy is in the mail.

Strangers on the Land will be along after Feb. 5 when it is published. It has some place names in it, perhaps more than would appear on the surface.

I am sure that Alex Saluskin, chairman of the Yakima Tribal Council would want you to have a copy. The Yakima Tribe's address is Box 632, Yakima, Washington. If the honorable order of CHAOS is still "issuing" an occasional card to someone worthy, he is in that category. He gets around too, Washington and to governor's conferences etc.

If you have comments about Strangers, we will welcome them. If you can put in a good word here or there, should it meet with your approval after you look it over, it will be appreciated. It will be difficult to get off the ground because sentiment regarding Indians has changed within the past two years, at least very strongly in the Yakima Valley. I think it will move into the out of print class soon enough later. But you be the judge.

The copy will be along next week, (I hope). The Treaty booklet goes out in the current mail.

Hope to see you when you come to Yakima. And hope you like "Strangers." (on the ~~earth~~ Land).

Kind regards
