Party of Cossacks Surprised Russian Wounded Fear Being Captured,

MUKDEN, Fridty, Oct. 21.—Toward evening yesterday the fog lifted and some of the Russian guns at various points opened fire against the Japanese defenses but they did not respond, either from scarcity of ammunition cr from the desire not to reveal the location of their batteries. BOTH ARMIES RESTING Face Each Other Across the Shakhe River-172 Russian Officers Killed Near Mukden.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 21.-General Sakharoff telegraphs that there was no fighting yesterday. The armies maintain their respective positions. There are continual reconnoissances on both

The two armies face each other acrothe Shakbe river, but operations continac at a standstill. The heavy fog that bung over the plain was burned up by the sur yesterday afternoon and there was some desultory artillery firing from some of the Russian batteries, but nothing important.

One of the Associated Press correspondents says the Japanese did not reply, indicating a possible shortage of ammunition or a desire to conceal the location of their guns.

The war office has no fresh news this morning except a list of losses of Gen. Ekk's Seventy-first division of the Fifth Siberian corps, and Gen. Morazoff's First division of Lieut, Gen. Dambowsky's corps. Each lost half a dozen officers.

The official list of officers killed and wounded between October 11 and October 13 totals 172, including Maj.-Gen. Rabinski and seventeen field officers killed. The wounded are in the proportions of one to six. The list for the heaviest day's fighting is still unreport ed and doubtless will exceed the losses at Liao Yang when 500 officers were killed or wounded. The losses among the men are not yet reported, but they are thought to approximate not much more than 20,000.

News from Port Arthur brought to Chefoo by a junk, which left there October 19, says a fierce bombardment, begun October 16, was still progressing without interruption. Many buildings had been damaged and ships in the harbor had also been hit by shells, but the character and extent of the damage are

Gen. Saknaroff telegraphed to the gen eral staff late last night that the situation at the front had been quiet all day.

Northern Gold Output.

SKAGWAY, Oct. 15 .- There will be little change in the output of gold in the north this year as compared with that of last year, according to the records of the Alaska Pacific Express company at this place. This company handles most of the gold of the Yukon territory and the Atlin district.

There has been received thus far by the Alaska Pacific Express company at Skagway in transit to Seattle, San Francisco and other points to the south old dust and bullion valued as follows:

From Dawson, $9,422,060,57; from Atin, $460,037; from White Horse, $59,-093.47; from American Yukon, $33,340. 9: total, $9,971,531.63.

It is believed that the output of the Klondike would have been much greater had it not been for the shortage of labor toward the close of the season brought about by the stampede to the Tanana ountry. Many of the mine owners could not secure sufficient laboring men to do the work they had laid out to do, and wages became so high that others volintarily closed down.

More of the gold from the American lukon has gone outside by the lower iver than was the case last year.

German War Correspondent Says Portland Russian Losses Were Frightful,

BERLIN, Oct. 21.-Col. Gaedke, war correspondent of the Tageblatt, telegraphed to his paper today from Mukden as follows:

"Have been unable to telegraph for two days, owing to the absence of the censor on the 19th and 20th. Both armies are much fatigued. They occupy positions in close contact. Only an occasional shot breaks the stillness. A general Russian attack appeared to have been planned for the night of October 20, but a freshet in the Shakhe river prevented it. Courtney, it is claimed, has been selling dead bodies to the Oregon Medical college for $10 each. In addition to this he is accused of having sold for $10 each body sent from the morgue for burial, charging the county commissioners $10 for the burial, and then, to make the work good and strong, has buried the dissected bodies when received from the college and charged the janitor $2.50 each for doing the work. A city eadaver has thus netted the thrifty superintendent, according to his accusers, no less than $22.50. An invesigation is pending.

Large Audience Listens to Democrats. OLYMPIA, Friday, Oct. 21.-The Democrats of Thurston county held a rousing rally in the opera house last evening, with ex-Congressman W. H. Doolittle and F. F. Democratic Legislature Badly Needed. Since it is already quite evident that Judge Turner will be elected governor of this state next month principally because of the fact that the people want some restraining influence laid on the railroads it should not be amiss to make a suggestion in connection with Turner's election. That suggestion is that Turner when elected will find himself almost powerless to deal with the railroads unless backed up with a legislature, the majority of whose members favor and will vote for a railway com-

Judge Turner himself has said repeatedly in his speeches that there would be little use in electing him as governor unless the people also elected a legislature that will pass a commission law. We have the word of Congressman Jones, John L. Wilson and a number of other leading lights in the Republican party of this state that if a Republican legislature shall be elected that it will never pass a railway commission bill for Turner as governor to sign. Not only do these men publicly say this but the Republican state committee is circulating all over the state a statement to the same effect. That the Republican leaders are making no idle threat when they say this is patent to all men versed in the politics of this state.

If the people want the railroads controlled the way by which to do it and the only way is to elect George Turner governor and give him a Democratic legislature to back him up. They will get substantial results if they do this and they will get them in no other way. All the talk about a Republican legislature passing a commission bill and Mr. Mead, as governor, signing it is all neighbor, on Yakima county.

The Yakima Daily Democrat tommyrot. The Republican leaders have been promising to do something for the people along this line constantly since statehood began, but they have done nothing and will do nothing for the simple reason that the railroads virtually own the party organization in this state and a great many of the men who make these promises to the people every two years are themselves owned by the railroads, body, boots and breeches.

Jack Splawn and the Republic.

The Republic has turned its attention from Sheriff Grant long enough to open up its mud batteries on Senator Jack Splawn, who is a candidate for re-elec-

Senator Splawn will probably welcome this diversion for that gentleman well knows by experience just what the opposition of that paper is worth to a man while running for office in this county. The senator acquired that experience two years ago when he would have been beaten by Mr. Englehart after his gallant fight had not Robertson of the Republic come to his rescue just in the nick of time by drawing on his wealth of sarcasm to put the finishing touches on the campaign and put "Jack" out of business. The voters replied to Republic man ought to remember. . .

The Republic accusing Jack Splawn of being secretly a railroad man is enough to make men smile. It insists that he was ready at any time when called on in the last legislature to vote with the railroads and that it has good Demoeratic authority for making such a claim. The local organ in addition to these revelations promises to print the number of Mr. Splawn's annual pass.

If the Republic is in a position to furnish the public with reliable information regarding the number of Mr. Splawn's pass it ought to do so. And if it wants to be fair for once in its life it ought to give the number of Walter J. Reed's pass in the same paragraph. There is no good reason for holding back anything of this character unless the editor of the Republic has good reason to believe that the railroad people might get hot about it and take up his own pass.

Mr. Mead as a Lawyer.

It is no disrespect to Mr. Mead to say that he is a third rate lawyer. The bar of Bellingham, where he practices law, is a strong one, but even Mr. Mead's closest friends and personal admirers wil1 not pretend that he ranks among the leading lawyers of his home city, much less that he has any material rank among the lawyers of the state. The records of the supreme court disclose that he has had few cases before that tribunal outside of cases where he appeared as prosecuting attorney representing the state.

Mr. Mead has attained no distinction, either in the business or professional life of the state, though he has practiced law in Washington for about 15 years. When the republican state convention met nobody, save, of course, the inner ecterie of corporation bosses who controlled that body, even dreamed that Mr. Mead would be nominated for governor; and it is notorious that he was not nominated on account of his ability or his qualification for the office, but because of his serviceability to his corporation creators.

Outside of the issues of this campaign, Judge Turner should be elected because of his great superiority over his opponent in all the qualities which go to make up a strong, able, clear headed. broad minded and capable executive .-

A Straw Vote.

The Spokane Chronicle, Republican, on Thursday began taking a straw vote in that city to indicate the preference of voters. Out of 183 voters canvassed at random the following result was obtained for president:

Roosevelt 114, Parker 47, Debs 11, Burgess 6, doubtful 5. On the governorship the vote stood: Mead 61, Turner 91, balance doubtful. If this is a fair index of how Spokane county will vote on election day Judge Turner can feel assured of a very large majority in his own bailiwick.

Mr. Mead deplores that there should the state campaign. Certainly, it is to be regretted, but such sectional bitterness as there is has developed out of the action of the Tacoma convention. which nominated nearly its entire ticket from the Republicans west of the mountains and refused to accord the people east of the mountains the sweet satisfaction of harboring a railroad commission hope in their breasts during the campaign. It would not even make them a promise, nor in other ways recognize them as a part of the party in the state. Now, however, it is anxious for their votes.-Seattle Times.

A letter received from an old political friend in North Yakima this week states that E. B. Preble will probably carry that county for superior judge.

If Franklin county people want a real judge, Mr. Preble will have a majority where he stands and what he will do if here. And Franklin county knows its business.--Pasco Express. You have received a straight tip,

The total vote cast in the state of Washington for presidential candidates in 1900 aggregated 107,524, and the total vote for congressman in 1902 aggregated 97,134. Thus it will be observed that over 10,000 votes more were cast in 1900 than were cast two years later-all of which goes to show that a full vote is rarely cast except in a presidential year. It is believed that the total vote of Washington will exceed 130,000 next November.-Seattle Times.

A communication published in Friday morning's Democrat and signed "A Republican" apparently caused quite a ripple of excitement among our friends, the ex-Democrats. The Republic insists that the communication was written by none other than H. J. Snively, its own partieular friend, while others insist that it was written by a certain promiuent Boxer." All wrong, brethren, the man who threw the brick, which, by the wav, seems to have hit several, exposed heads. is a loyal Republican, not only loyal but

The campaign of abuse and vilificaion that the Seattle P.-I. is making against Judge Turner is unquestionably having the effect of aiding that gentleman in his race for governor. At any this indecent attack in a way that the rate that is the report by a number of sound public sentiment.

Democracy a Religion.

"I have had people ask me why Demerats seem to be so intensely earnest about their Democracy. I have had men say, "Why, with some Democrats Democracy is a sort of religion. My reply is that with every Democrat who knows what Democracy means it is a religion. and when you hear a good Democratic speech it is so much like a sermon that you can hardly tell the difference between them. And why? Because a good ermon is built upon the Ten Commandments, the Sermon on the Mount, and he Eleventh Commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor like thyself.' And a good Democratic speech is built upon the doctrine of human brotherhood and equal rights and self government. When you get down to bed rock you find that love of mankind is the basis of both, and Democracy can never die waile there is in Democracy a love of mankind. "Democracy does not go as far sometimes as we would like to have it; but, my friends, we must not expect that we will have everything as we would like it. Ask a mother as she holds in her arms her baby boy what her hope is and she will tell you that she nopes his heart will be so pure that it could be laid upon a pillow and not leave a stain; that his ambition shall be so holy that he can whisper it in an angel's ear, and that his life will be so clean that his mother, his sister, his wife, his child can read a record of his every thought and act, without a blush for what he has said or done. That is the ideal that every mother has for her child. But ask her if she is going to require that perfection in him, and her great heart tells vou. No: that that is her hope, but that she will make him as good as she can; that she will follow his footsteps with a daily prayer; that her blessing will rest upon him wherever he goes throughout the world, and that she will hope, she will hope, yes, hope, that when he dies the world will be better that he has lived. That is about all she can

"And so, if you ask me if my platform has all that I want in it, I say no. You ask me if my candidate stands for all I would like to have him stand for, no. But shall I throw away the good he promised because I cannot get all that I want? By what other means can I secure more than I can secure from the election of Parker and Davis. There is no other means by which I can bring to my country at this time more of good than will be brought through their election."-Speech of W. J. Bryan at Lawrenceburg, Ind.

Why Is Coon Hiding?

Second only in importance to the governorship is the office of lieutenant governor. The lieutenant governor is president of the state senate and appoints all the committees of that body. under modern legislative methods the fate of bills is chiefly determined in committee. Every measure introduced be an apparent sectional bitterness in in either house of the legislature is referred to some committee for examination and rport, and if the committee is against a bill, it can, by dilatory tactics hold back its report and preventt he measure coming before the legislature.

The lieutenant governor will appoint the railroad committee of the senate, and if he is a railroad tool, he will pack the other important committees so that the railroad lobby can menace every important bill introduced by a commission senator.

For this important office the demoerats have nominated Stephen Judson, an honest, rugged, courageous, able old pioneer whose life in Washington has been an open book for more than 50 years. Mr. Judson has been on the stump for weeks, snowing himself to the voters, and telling the people exactly elected.

MEAD'S OBLIGATION TO WILSON

Bond of Union Between the Two Politicians Means Wilson's Election to the Senate in Event of Mead Winning.

ual ambition to be returned to the Unit- Piles legislative candidates in this couned States senate, and the obligation he has put upon A. E. Mead to contribute towards the realization of that ambition ar ar heaviest handicap in his campaign for the governorship. Day by day as the campaign progresses this obligation of Mr. Mead to Mr. Wilson for support and assistance in the campaign is growing greater and greater until it is now fully appreciated by all persons at all well informed on political matters that, if elected, Mr. Mead cannot forget the obligation, and cannot refuse to give Mr. Wilson every assistance in his power.

In order to cement the obligation of Mr. Mead and make the burden of it so heavy that it cannot be overlooked or forgotten Mr. Wilson is sending the city editor of the Post-Intelligencer, Mr. A gentlemen who travel about the state N. Brown, with Mr. Mead on all of his and have a first class opportunity to campaign tours. As he goes over the state Mr. Brown reports each of the Mead meetings by wire to the Post-Intelligencer, which paper, publishes them in prominent positions day by day. Men who are well informed on politial matters, men who have observed hat from the inauguration of the campaign the Post-Intelligencer has given space in its news columns only to speakers who are supporting Mr. Wilson for the senate, see and appreciate that the apparent motive of Mr. Wilson is to adance his own political fortunes.

Pierce county Republican leaders have for weeks appreciated that the election of Mr. Mead would advance the candidaey of Mr. Wilson and to this fact as much as to any other element of the situation is due the absolute demoralihat county. The Pierce county leaders are anxious to retain the senatorship in that county and they are unable to see how they are going to do so by electing Wilson a Bolter.

In the strictest political sense Mr. Wil-. . . from the King county Republican ticket. At the county convention held in this county in May the Republicans of the county endorsed as the ounty's senatorial candidate Samuel H. Piles. Since that time the Post-Intelligencer has hardly once mentioned Mr. Piles' name in connection with the senatorship and the Wilson-Palmer-railroad state central committee has thus far refrained from sending Mr. Piles outside of King county to participate in the state campaign, although Mr. Piles is one of the party's ablest spellbinders.

Mr. Piles' action in the Tacoma connation which would win him legislative all I can conveniently do to assist in votes (though instructed by his county his election. In the absence of such a convention to do so), and in turning his declaration I must follow the obvious King county delegation over to J. D. logic of known facts." Farrell for use in defeating McBride and SEATTLE, Wash., Friday, Oct. 21 .- (the railroad commission plank has seri-John L. Wilson's inordinate and perpet- ously endangered the election of the ty and Mr. Piles, left at home by the Wilson-Palmer state committee is devoting his spellbinding energies to an effort to secure the election of the county ticket nominated in his name, a ticket which is notoriously weak in spots, particularly in the candidate for sheriff.

> The Wilson-Palmer state committee not satisfied with thus slighting Mr. Piles and wrecking the Republican party in Pierce county by making Mr. Mead the Wilson candidate for governor, has now undertaken to injure the senatorial prospects of both Senator Foster and of Charles Sweeney of Spokane by permitting the circulation of the story that both of those candidates have formed combinations with the Democrats in certain counties of the state

At the same time, having arrayed themselves on the side and enlisted the support of the railroad forces of the state the Wilson combination is giving little or no aid to the commission Republican candidates for the legislature. Even Mr. Mead, though pretending to be commission man, is contributing to this campaign by refusing to mention commission Republican candidates for the legislature by name in his campaign

Situation in King Serious.

Although King county Republicans are very anxious to secure the senatorship for a King county man the methods of the Wilson-Palmer regime are beginning to take effect so deeply that the Republican situation in this county is daily becoming more serious. The action of Mr. Wilson a few nights ago in seeking zation of the Republican campaign in to take from Judge Turner the credit for securing the battleship contract by charging that it was done for a fee of $500 has had the effect of arousing much indignation against Mr. Wilson, and his gubernatorial candidate who will action in contributing in every possible throw his influence towards the election manner to the elimination of Mr. Piles from the senatorial contest has aroused against him and his candidate for governor many of the men who still remain loyal to Mr. Piles and his candidacy.

Even those who are most anxious to see Mr. Piles elected hesitate to vote for Mr. Mead knowing the obligation Mr. Mead is under to lend the influence of the executive o .. ce to Mr. Wilson's candidacy. A few days ago a supporter of Mr. Piles approached John H. Powell, chairman of the Republican state convention of 1902 with the request that he aid in the fight for Mr. Mead's election on the plea that his election would advance the senatorial candidacy of Mr. Piles. Mr. Powell replied:

"If Mr. Mead will make a public stateat that he is for Mr Piles I will man of mystery." For reasons best low senators that one had come among known to themselves, they will not put him on the stump. They keep him in seclusion, and he permits himself to be kept in concealment.

Why don't they bring Coon before the people? If they are ashamed of him why don't they take him off their ticket? Are they afraid that he knows too much and will strike back if they do that ?-Spokesman-Review.

Turner Is Mead's Superior.

Thousands of voters in Washington will support George Turner for governor irrespective of the railroad issue, because of his intellectual superiority over A. E. Mead, his opponent. It is rare that a man of Judge Turner's acknowledged abilities and qualities of statesmanship consents to make the race for the governorship of a state. But now that such a man is in the field it is not surprising that many republican voters want to secure for the state the services of a chief executive so well qualified for the duties he will be called upon to discharge.

Judge Turner has lived in Washington for over 20 years. He came here when this state was a territory with a small population, and he has witnessed and participated in its growth to a commonwealth of impressive magnitude. He has lived in both central and eastern Washington. He knows the resources and needs of every section, almost of every hamlet and voting precinct in the state, He was a member of the constitutional convention, and had more to do than any other member of that body with shaping and molding the fundamental law of the state. As a constitutional lawyer, Judge Turner's associates at the bar, irrespective of politics, concede almost universally that he has no superiors and few if any equals in the whole northwest.

Nor has Judge Turner's field of statesmanship been limited to the confines of the state. As Washington's representative in the United States senate he com-For lieutenant governor the Farrell manded the respect and admiration of state convention nominated Charles E. his colleagues on both sides of the cham-Coon, who has aptly been called "a ber. If one can judge from expressions, then our republican friends were very much disappointed, for they say Dovell talked of things that he had ought not and was silent on things he ought to have talked about. Parker Makes a Speech.

ESOPUS, N. Y., Oct. 21.-Judge Parker today addressed a delegation from Hudson county, New Jersey, on the subject of the administration's extravagance, answering the speech made by Secretary of War Taft in which the secretary called upon the democrats to give a bill of particulars in connection with their charge that economy in government affairs has been forgotten in the years the republicans have been in control of national affairs. Judge Parker quoted a few totals from officia reports which he asserted not only raised a presumption of extravagance but proved it. The bill of particulars will be given, he said, when a democratic administration has a chance at the books From midnight until afternoon rain fell SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 20 .- "The election of Judge Turner and the entire commission state ticket is now assured." said Henry Drum, chairman of the advisory committee of the democratis state central committee, this morning. "The very estimates given out by the Republican campaign managers contain the strongest evidence in support of the theory that the republicans themselves see the inevtiable storm approach-

Entirely aside from the issues prosented in the campaign the people have come to realize that it is a matter for congratulation that an opportunity is afforded them to vote for a candidate for governor of Judge Turner's distinguished ability and of his acquaintance, friendly relations and influence with the great national political leaders of both parties, even including President Roosevelt

It is reported on what appears to be reliable authority that money for campaign purposes was secured from the national committee recently by John L Wilson, under the plea that extra work in Washington is necessary in order to save Roosevelt and the congressional ticket. Mr. Wilson is a candidate for United States senator, and claims to have legislative candidates favorable to him in the counties of Whatcom, San Juan, Island, Clallam, King, Mason, Chehalis, Lewis, Cowlitz, Pacific, Kittitas, Douglas and Spokane and several others. He has become, also, the particular sponsor for the candidacy of Mr. Mead for governor, second only to the railroad

How Do You Approach a Difficulty! It makes great difference how you approach a difficulty. Obstacles are like wild animals. They are cowards, but they will bluff you if they can. If they see you are afraid of them, if you stand and besitate, if you take your eye from theirs, they are liable to spring upon you, but if you do not flinch, if you look them squarely in the eye, they will slink out of sight. So difficulties flee before absolute fearlessness, though they are very real and formidable to the timid and hesitating and grow larger and larger and more formidable with vacillating contemplation.-Orison Swett Marden in Suc-

A Legend of Lace.

According to Melchior de Vogue, the legend of lace is as follows: A Venetian sailor gave his ladylove a frond of spreading seaweed to keep him in memory while at sea. But the girl found that the seaweed was rapidly drying up and disappearing. So she caught the fine branches and leaves of the plant with thread against a piece of linen and, working on, with her thoughts following her lover, invented

W. T. DOVELL'S CONSISTENCY

Advices From All Parts of the State The Senate Spellbinder's Affliction With the Railroad Crowd Appear to be Very Close.

> SEATTLE, Wash., Thursday, Oct. 20. (Special correspondence.)-W. T. Dovell of this city, who is touring eastern Washington for the Railroad-Wilson-Palmer-Mead campaign committee urging railroad commission Republicans to vote for Mr. Mead for governor, is acting in consistence with his political record here in so doing. Since he came to this city some two years ago Mr. Dovell has acted consistently with the railroad

> Mr. Dovell resides in the Sixth preinct of the seventh ward in the fortyseventh legislative district. That preinct was the heart of the baitleground last spring of one of the most fiercely fought legislative contests ever wit iessed in the Republican primaries in King county. The rival candidates, Hon. W. H. Lewis and E. Heister Guie. Mr H. Lewis, who is now serving his second term in the legislature and in both sesdions, was recognized by the eastern Washington members as one of the abest and stanchest supporters of raiload commission legislation in either ouse of the legislature. Mr. Lewis was also one of the most valiant and loyal supporters of Harold Preston for the Inited States senate.

For his course in these matters the loal railroad leaders determined upon Mr Lewis' defeat and brought out against nim Mr. Guie, a well known railroad atorney. The sixth precinct is Mr. Lewis' own precinct and by every tenet of practical politics the support of the delgation should have been given him without a contest. But the railroad vorkers invaded it and made a desperite effort to carry it against him by neans of a personal canvass which eached and appealed to every Republian voter in the precinct.

In that contest Mr. Dovell was selected as one of the stanchest supporters of the railroad candidate, so much so that he was named in the caucus as one of the candidates for delegate to the county convention, and his name was placed econd on the Guie list. Through the cailroad supporters of Mr. Samuel H. past ninety. Piles Mr. Guie's railroad supporters inluced Mr. Piles to express a preference or Mr. Guie and the railroad primary allots were headed "Piles-Guie Advisory Ballot," But Mr. Lewis's personal popularity and excellent political record earried him through the fight and his delegates were elected by a vote for of 222 while the Guie candidates got 186 lng. votes. Notwithstanding his victory in his own precinct, however, Mr. Lewis vas overwhelmed by the railroad forces under the guise of Piles' senatorial candidacy and a compromise candidate was

Although defeated in his efforts to go to the county convention Mr. Dovell, being a loval railroad man, was named by Mr. Piles and his advisors as one of the delegates to the state convention at Ta- pound. Take what quantity you please, coma and was one of the 115 men who and over a charcoal fire in an old frysat silently in their seats while the ing pan keep them always stirring unders of J. D. St. Jerome mentions him in one of his "Martyrologies," and in the following century there were many churches named to his honor. In regard to his connection with England, Ashmole, in his "History of the Order of the Garter," says that King Arthur in the sixth century placed the picture of St. George on his banners, and Selden tells us he was patron saint of England in the Saxon times.

It is quite certain that the council of Oxford in 1222 commanded his festival to be observed in England as a holiday of lesser rank, and in 1330 he was adopted as the patron of the Order of the Garter. The dragon slain by St. George is simply a common allegory to express the triumph of the Christian hero over evil, which John the Evangelist beheld under the image of the dragon. Gibbon, in his "Decline and Fall," asserts that the patron saint of England was George of Cappadocia, the turbulent Arian bishop of Alexandria, but the character of this assertion has been fully disproved by Papebroch. Milner and others.- Exchange.

THE POET BURNS.

A Criticism Which Appeared In the

The following brief criticism on the poems of Burns appeared in the Edinburgh Magazine, October, 1786, shortly after the second edition of his works came out: "The author is indeed a striking example of native genius bursting through the obscurities of poverty and the obstructions of laborious life. He is said to be a common plowman, and when we consider him in this light we cannot help reretting that wayward fate had not placed him in a more favored situation. Those who view with the severity of ettered criticism and judge by the astidious rules of art will discover that he has not the Doric simplicity of Ramsey nor the brilliant imagination of Ferguson, but to those who admire the exertions of untutored fancy and are blind to many faults for the sake of numberless beauties his poems will afford singular gratification. His .bservations on human characters are icute and sagacious, and his descripions are lively and just. Of rustic leasantry he has a rich fund, and some of his softer scenes are touched with inimitable delicacy. He seems to be a boon companion and often startles us with sentiments which will keep some readers at a distance. Some of his subjects are serious, but those of the humorous kind are the best."

ENGLISHMEN OF GENIUS.

Some Statistics as to Their Origin and Length of Life.

Havelock Ellis' studies of the origin and habits of the British men of genlus show that most came from business life, many from "good families," so called, and few from the clerical profession. Of 103 men of eminence in ten centuries thirteen were the sons of carpenters, five of shoemakers, five of weavers and four of blacksmiths. Browning's father was a clerk, and so was Bradlaugh's; Turner's was a barber, Carlyle's a mason, Huxley's a schoolmaster, Keats' a livery stable man, Knox's a peasant, Wolsey's a grazier and Whitefield's an innkeeper. Men of genius are long lived. Of those on Mr. Ellis' list more died between sixty-five and seventy-five than in any other period. Those living be-

The Aristocracy of Pork.

When Theodore Parker first visited Cincinnati, at that time the recognized leader among western cities, he said that he had made a great discoverynamely, that while the aristocracy of Cincinnati was unquestionably founded on pork it made great difference whether a man killed pigs for himself or whether his father had killed them. The one was held plebeian, the other patrician. It was the difference, Parker said, between the stick 'ems and the stuck 'ems, and his own sympathies, he confessed, were with the present tense.-T. W. MARRIAGE LAWS ABROAD.

How Breach of Promise Cases Are Averted In Hungary.

'There are many curious and interesting facts regarding the marriage and divorce laws of foreign countries," said R. J. Brown, who recently returned from a trip abroad, where he made a study of the question.

"Breaches of promise are averted in Hungary by an express declaration of the civil marriage act that the relations created by a betrothal do not give the right to command the conclusion of a marriage, but if either party withdraws from an engagement without just reasons he or she is bound to grant compensation to the extent of the outlay incurred. Divorce in the English sense does not exist, but the courts can decree the personal separation of a married couple without dissolving the bonds of matrimony.

"A curious law prevailing in France provides that before being married children of a family, although over age, shall seek in respectful and formal terms the advice of their father and mother. It makes no difference, however, whether the consent of parents is given, for the couple can be married a month after under any circumstances. This is also the case in the Netherlands. A divorce further entitles the innocent party to recover all the presents he or she may have made.

"According to the constitution of the Netherlands, the civil marriage must always precede the religious ceremony. The latter, indeed, is left entirely to the conscience of the parties concerned. There is also a law providing that no man or woman under thirty can marry without the consent of parents. If the consent be refused, the couple have to appear before a judge, who advises them as he thinks best.

"Many countries have now abolished all marriage fees. This is the case in Norway, while in the Netherlands certain days in the week are set apart when persons may be married without payment."-Indianapolis News.

Lincoln on Swearing. Senator Fessenden once came roaring at President Lincoln over a question of patronage. The president listened till the storm was over, then asked; "You are an Episcopalian, aren't you,

"Yes, sir; I belong to that church." "I thought so. You Episcopalians all swear alike. Seward is an Episcopalian. Stanton is a Presbyterian; you ought to hear him swear."-"The True Abraham Lincoln."

Case Where Mere Money Did Not Cut Much of a Figure.

"Several years ago there was a boom in certain lands in Florida because of rich phosphate deposits," said a southern man. "A speculator asked one of those simple Florida folk what would be the lowest price he would take for some land which before the boom he had been unable to sell for $500. The owner really didn't know. The speculator agreed to deposit in bank $16,000 to the owner's credit for the land. But this amount of money in bank didn't mean very much to the native.

"He said he wanted a farm of sixty acres with a house on it, the whole to cost a few hundred.

"'What else?' asked the speculator. "'Can I have a horse and saddle and bridle? "'Certainly.'

"'And a rifle?" " 'Yes.'

"'And some provisions?" " 'Yes.'

"The eyes of the native began to bulge. There was a pause. "'What else do you want?' asked the speculator.

"'Oh, give me $50 for the old woman to buy things for herself and children'-

POE AND POVERTY.

The Poet Was Born to Need and Left It as a Legacy.

According to Charles Marshall Richmond in the direst want.

in the Richmond theater in October, and Mrs. Poe and the baby poet and street, in the Bird In Hand region, in a tenement cellar perpetually wet by the Shockoe creek, which then flowed through the middle of the street. Here the wretched woman contracted pneumonia and died. And from the cellar the future poet, described as a "baby skeleton," was rescued by Mr. the terms. Allan.

Sixty years and more later Rosalie Poe, the poet's younger sister, appeared on Richmond streets in poverty as bitter as her mother's had been to get a few coins by selling photographs of her brother.

The man who was perhaps America's greatest poet and certainly one of the tew poets who have vitally influenced the literary art both in prose and verse was born into the most wretched poverty and left need as keen behind him.

Forgot His Own Tongue.

A traveler in arctic Siberia, Mr. Vanderlip, a gold hunter, told the following of his return to civilization: "I found that half a dozen of the officers and men of the steamer which my employers had sent for me had come to hunt me up. The captain dismounted, and I tried to address him in Russian. but he said, 'You forget that I speak English.' Now, it may seem scarcely credible, and yet it is true, that for a few moments I was totally unable to converse with him in my native tongue. I had not used a word of it in conversation for months, and my low physical condition acting on my nerves confused my mind, and I spoke a jumble of English, Russian and Korak. It was a week before I could talk good,

An American wished to move from the Hotel Europe, the principal hotel in St. Petersburg, to a smaller hotel around the corner. He came down with his bag packed ready to go. "Sorry," said the manager, "but you cannot leave this hotel or register at another hotel until we get your passport from the police, and that will take a day and a night. You must go through exactly the same procedure as if you were leaving the country."-World's Mending Amber.

To mend amber requires a certain amount of care, though the process is a simple one. Apply some linseed oil to the broken edges, and then hold the oiled parts over a gas jet, covering the rest of the amber meanwhile with a cloth. As soon as the oiled parts become sticky with the heat press the edges which are to be united together and hold them very carefully till cold.

A Treasured Image

[Original.]

Queen Bertha was dead, and King deepest grief. It was weeks before the Veal, dressed6c the artists of his kingdom and told them whosoever would paint a portrait POULTRY. of his queen by which he could remember her as she was should be ennobled and an estate given him. Then he ordered that all the likenesses the queen had ever had painted be hung in a gallery, where competitors should have free access to them.

More than a hundred artists competed, and when all were ready their pictures were hung in a gallery by themselves and the king went in to examine them. He passed up on one side and down the other, shaking his head at the portraits.

woman," he said. "Do they consider that my beautiful wife was an octogenarian? Take them away! I'll have none of them."

Some of the artists who had produced the best pictures, hearing the king's criticism, asked for another trial, which was granted. They softened the lines in the queen's face and made her look ten years younger than she had been at the time of her death. She "'Well, give me a plug of tobacco had died at fifty and none of the picthat he would rather trust to his mem ory unaided than have it influenced by such likenesses. try again. One day a young man sought an in Graves, writing in the Century, the poet Poe was two years old when his he had been sent from King Otho, a mother, a gifted actress, was living in neighboring monarch, to paint the dead queen's portrait. He claimed to be the Mrs. Poe's last stage appearance was royal portrait painter and an artist of skill. He demanded, on behalf of King 1811. The theater burned on Dec. 26, Otho, that if his portrait should be acand seventy-eight people perished with cepted the recompense should be the it. Poe's father had died in the spring, hand of King Carl's daughter, the Princess Lida, for King Otho's son, the his younger sister went to live on Main Crown Prince Ralph. A proposition with this marriage in view had been made before, but King Carl, whose kingdom was much more important than that of King Otho, had declined. Now that all his own artists had failed, and thinking that what he asked was impossible, King Carl agreed to

> The artist asked that he might have sittings of the Princess Lida in order to catch any expression of her mother's she might have inherited. The request was granted, and every day the princess went into the gallery where the likenesses of the dead queen were hung. The artist copied from her features all he cared to copy, but in order to bring different expressions to her face he chatted with her incessantly. and she was so delighted with his conversation that every day she looked forward expectantly to the time for her sitting. Long before the picture was completed she wished that the prize if won might be given to the artist rather > than the crown prince. Finally the artist announced that his portrait was ready for the king's inspection. Since this was an affair of state King Carl summoned his ministers to attend him, and with great ceremony the royal party swept into the apartment where the picture rested on an easel. The moment the ministers' eyes rested on the portrait they looked at each other in astonishment. They saw the queen not as a woman of fifty or of forty, but at twenty. Some said it was the Princess Lida and not the queen at all. Nevertheless all maintained silence till the king had spoken. Hurrying forward he bent over it and kissed the lips. For a time he was lost to all save the contemplation of what seemed to delight him excessively, then, turning, he said: "My lords, there is my beloved wife as clearly defined as if the image had been painted from the one I carry in my heart. To me the portrait is priceless, for having it constantly by me I shall be able to keep my wife in my memory as I knew her in life. Let the foreign minister announce to King Otho that the portrait is accepted, and make arrangements for the wedding between the Princess Lida and the Crown Prince Ralph." When the artist departed from the kingdom the princess wept bitterly that he had not won the prize for himself instead of for his sovereign. He pressed her hand at parting and assured her that she would find the prince a loving husband. When Prince Ralph came in state to the nuptials he arrived in the night and went at once with his suit to his apartments. The next morning King Carl and the princess awaited him in the audience chamber with all the court assembled to receive him. When the door opened and he entered there was a hum of surprise. He was the artist who had painted the winning

Of course the princess was happy and the king was especially happy in having for a son-in-law one who had enabled him to keep his wife's image in his memory. As for the prince, he had in disguise competed for the prize, had fallen in love with the princess and learned that the king was treasuring in his heart the image of his wife as it was when he had first loved her. He resolved to get as near that image as possible by using portraits of the queen in youth, blended with the living image of her daughter.

Not long after the wedding King Otho died and Prince Ralph succeeded to the throne. Then King Carl shut himself up with the portrait that so pleased him and abdicated in favor of *LFRED TOWNSEND
