Dear Click,

Forgive me Click, Please. I sh uld have asked for the announcement you wanted to make, but immediately after you said that you'd make it when you were introduced, I dismissed it from my mind, than woke in the night remembering I hadn't. My face is a bright scarlet because of the error. I humbly ask your pardon.

Thanks for that splendid publicity in this morning's paper. Fort Simcoe is on it's way. The Commission Member's at the Fort yesterday were deeply impressed. I never saw a man dig so deeply into every phase of a place, as John M. McClelland did at the Fort. He asked me to stay with him and bring him direct to the hotel after a visit to the Agency, while the remainder of the Commission members went to the Sportsman's park. He preferred to dig more at Fort Simcoe than to go to the other.

Have you heard any criticism of the meeting? I'm so sorry Click about that anno ncement. Please forgive me.

Sincerely

SIMCOE BLOCKHOUSE
