SUNNYSIDE CANAL EXTENSION

Deal Made Between State Land Commissioner and Washington Irrigation Company for Extension of Sunnyside Canal.

The Washington Irrigation company,
it seems, has a deal pending with State Land Commissioner Calvert to reclaim about 55,000 acres of land held by the state under the provisions of the Carey act. This the company proposes to do through the enlargement and extension of the present Sunnyside canal to cover the lands held by the state.

In order to put through such a proposition it would be necessary for the corporation to very materially increase its water supply. The only way in which it can hope to do this is through the control of one or more of the lakes at the head waters of the Yakima. Under the provisions of the enabling act which created the state of Washington, the state government claims jurisdiction over the lakes as well as the beds of all streams not navigable. On the basis of such ownership Land Commissioner Calvert is said to have made a deal guaranteeing to the Washington Irrigation company such proprietary rights in the waters of the lakes as that corporation will need in order to secure the additional supply of water needed, not only to irrigate the 55,000 acres of state land, but as much more railroad land included in the odd sections, a great deal of which the irrigation company is said to have secured an option on.

Assistant Land Commissioner John L.
Murray was in the city on Thursday.
In conversation with the editor of this paper Mr. Murray admitted that negotiations were pending between the state and the irrigation company with the object in view as outlined above. And what is more he said that the arrangement in all human probability would be made and it was to be hoped that it would. It would mean the reclamation of a large body of very fine land which now would scarcely support jackrabbits.
The state he said in the event that the contemplated extension is made, would then be enabled to sell its 55,000 acres of reclaimed land at the knock down price of $10 per acre. The water in the lakes, Mr. Murray thought, was doing the state no good and had much better be given to the Sunnyside company which will make good use of it. "Even if the state should not make a dollar out of it," concluded the assistant land commissioner, "it would be good public policy to have this land reclaimed as it would add a large amount of taxable wealth to the state."

How far this new arrangement will conflict with the plans of the newly organized Yakima Development company, remains to be seen. Edward Whitson, president of the company, when asked Thursday what policy his company would pursue in regard to this important matter said that he was unable to state definitely what would be done, except that the surveys now under way would be completed. After communicating with his associates in the proposed enterprise, he would know more about it.

It is said that the Development company had recently made overtures to the state land commissioner with the view of the purchase of the state's interests in Cle Elum Lake and that the commissioner declined to consider the matter on account of the deal pending with the Washington Irrigation company.

Later information is to the effect that a contract was signed at Olympia Wednesday by the state land commissioner and E. F. Blaine, attorney for the irrigation company, as preliminary to carrying out the deal. A forfeit of $2500 is said to have been posted by the corporation as a guarantee that work will be begun on the proposed extension within six months.

Death of David Jungst.

David Jungst, aged 19, died October 26, at the home of his mother at 316 south Naches avenue. He was studying civil engineering at the state university when he took down with typhoid fever, necessitating his return home.

Death was the result of a relapse, caused by venturing out too soon after the fever had run its course.
He leaves many friends who extend their heartfelt sympathies to his mother three brothers and two sisters who survive him.

The funeral which was held from the Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon, was attended by many, among whom were the members of the class of 1903 of which he was a graduate.

WHEN DOCTORS DISAGREE

County Health Officer Frank Pays His Respects to Dr. Heg and the Smelling Committee From the State Board of Health.

In an interview with a Democrat reporter County Health Officer Frank said: "With regard to the interview accorded the Seattle Daily Times of the 27th by the secretary of the state board of health I wish to say that I consider it an attack upon me personally as well as on other old physicians of this city, and that this investigation was instituted for no other than vindictive motives."

On being questioned concerning the statement made by one of the board to the effect that some of the patients who were visited by the board, and who were suffering from an attack of so-called malaria, were being given typhoid treatment, Dr. Frank said, "That insofar as I am concerned there is no truth in the statement, for I am now using, and for years have used, malarial treatment in all cases of fever similar to that being treated by me as such at this time. And I wish to say further that the statement that I refused to have anything to do in the matter is utterly false."

"I did agree to meet the board at my office at 2 p. m. Saturday, and kept my appointment, but the visiting physicians did not keep theirs. A subsequent meeting was had at 8 p. m. at the Yakima hotel, where I labored with them two hours trying to prove my contentions.
Owing to an important engagement in the country I was unable to meet with the state board on Sunday, but made apologies for my absence."

"The board visited three of my patients with my permission, with full liberty to examine my treatment and carefully kept temperature charts."

"It is not a fact that typhoid fever is epidemic throughout the Yakima valley at this time, nor has it been at any time during my residence here."

Dr. Frank states further that the local board of health has at all times tried to keep the city in a healthful condition but owing to the present inefficient laws it is almost impossible to secure suitable sewage.

"I wish to call particular attention to the following extract from the Times of October 27," said Dr. Frank: "There are no new cases, and the number of well people turned off is increasing every day. By the middle of November there will hardly be a case in the city, even though the health boards fail to take any action." The above statement of the learned secretary of the state board of health is sufficient contradiction of his other statement, as typhoid fever microbes are not materially affected by cold."

The following excerpt is taken from the Wednesday's Seattle Times published under a Yakima date line and is presumably based on an interview with Dr. Heg:

"In the investigation that took place Drs. Wells, Fletcher, Lynch and Gunn assisted, while Dr. Frank, the county health officer, refused to have anything to do with it. Dr. Burns, the city
health officer, refused to have anything to do with the investigation, except to invite the committee to examine their patients if they wanted to. Dr. Hill and Dulin refused absolutely to meet the committee. So this is the situation in this city today, while deaths are occur-ing on every hand, but fortunately, owing to the cold weather setting in the disease is diminishing."

"There are no new cases and the number of well people turned off is increasing every day. By the middle of November there will hardly be a case in the city, even though the health boards fail to take any action. The state board committee has made a recommendation that the city get to work and clean up.
They say this is the only way to stop the disease. A futile attempt has been made to clean the city, but it amounted to nothing. Large bills are being paid occasional for the work, but that is the end of it. The statement has been made here that only those die from fever who have been treated for typhoid, but the health board found that some other cause was assigned by the malarial doctors, and referred to the health reports at the court house."

"What the people will do in the matter remains to be seen. So far they are dumbfounded and don't believe the state board. Nobody seems to care. Nobody seems to be afraid of the scourge, if scourge it can be called. Many people came here to die and naturally the city gets the credit."

THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT

Editor and Publisher.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA.

According to Dr. Heg and his committee from the state board of health, the city of North Yakima is a sink-hole of corruption and filth, breeding disease and pestilence with typhoid fever epidemic.

The Democrat from what it knows of the situation is quite willing to admit that there is some justification for this finding of Dr. Heg's committee. The sanitary conditions of this town are not what they should be. We all understand that now or at any rate we ought to after all the hullabaloo that has been kicked up about it by the doctors and certain newspapers.

This paper does not wish its position to be misunderstood on this vital question. Our position from the start has been this: First, find out the cause for the so-called epidemic here and then go to work in a rational way to correct the evil. So far there has been nothing but talk, talk, everlasting talk, and no work. We want no more visits from high priced foreign doctors who come here to tell the people what they already know. If any more outside talent is to be imported, it would be better in the opinion of this paper to employ a good sanitary engineer who can give us some practical ideas on the all important questions of sewerage and drainage for what this town badly needs is an extension of its sewer system and an adequate method of disposing of the seepage water.

Our people must arouse themselves to the situation. A campaign for the permanent betterment of conditions should begin at once. It must be admitted that we all have been careless and indifferent. Local merchants have been too busy selling their wares and counting their profits. Let them wake up and bring their business ability to bear on this question and help to settle it and settle it right; every man owes a duty to the public as well as to himself and family.

As to the report of the committee of the state board of health, that an epidemic of typhoid fever exists here, it may be true and it may not. Whether it is true or not the town has the name of it and must bear the shame of it until it shakes it off.

The Ellensburg Dawn man had a day dream recently, which by the way is no unusual thing in that town of dreams; but this particular dream of Brother Turner's is worthy of public notice.

The editor of our worthy contemporary up the creek declares that he dreamed that it was the year 1908 and that he, the editor, was returning home from a populist convention held at Spokane. The train pulled into Lind, which had become a thriving and beautiful little city of 3000, the conductor hollering "Change cars here for all points on the sidetrack." The train finally sped on its way crossing a great steel bridge which spanned the Columbia, subsequently passing through a long tunnel and emerging into a beautiful valley intersected with irrigating canals the placid waters of which shimmered in the afternoon sun like streaks of silver. The tall spires and brick blocks of a great city loomed up in the distance and when the excited passengers called out to the conductor to know the name of the place they were told that "this is Ellensburg the leading city of central Washington." Street cars and electric carriages were in waiting to convey the passengers to any part of the city, which boasted of a population of 20,000 people.

And then the editor awoke only to find that it was all a dream, a beautiful dream, probably caused from drinking a poor brand of whiskey.

F. August Heinze, the young mining Napoleon of Butte, was recently given a decision from a court of that state awarding to him the ownership of the Minnie Healy copper mine, valued at ten million dollars. For this reason the Amalgamated Copper company, the defeated litigant, promptly issued an order closing down all their mines and smelters in the state of Montana for an indefinite period, thus throwing about 10,000 men out of employment. This seems to be a genuine case of playing the baby act on the part of the big copper trust at the head of which is Rockefeller, the oil magnate. Because a court has dared to rule against him Rockefeller vows to punish the entire state. This incident well illustrates another bad feature of the trust system. This giant corporation by arbitrarily closing its mines as the result of spite has in a large measure destroyed the prosperity of the entire state of Montana. The Amalgamated company might, it seems, be properly placed in Mr. Roosevelt's category of "bad trusts."

Next Tuesday, November 3, elections will be held in eleven states. Full state tickets as well as legislatures will be elected in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Ohio, Kentucky, Iowa and Mississippi, while minor state officials will be voted for in New York, Pennsylvania, Nebraska and Colorado. In New York, San Francisco and Salt Lake, municipal tickets will be elected.

Public interest in this off year campaign centers in the states of Ohio and Maryland and in the municipal election of New York City. The indications are that the democrats will carry Maryland which in late years has been a closely contested state. While the republicans in all probability will carry Ohio but with a reduced plurality. The Democrats of the Buckeye state are bending all their energies to control the legislature in order to bring about the defeat of Marcus A. Hanna and it is possible that they will succeed. In New York City the fight is very bitter between the regular democracy on one side and a fusion, consisting of the republicans, citizens union and the independent democrats on the other. The fight is a warm one in New York. Low, the fusion candidate is the favorite in the betting at the ratio of five to four.

Our old friend Robert Montgomery, the talented editor of the Puyallup Tribune, has recently taken unto himself a wife and like all men during the intoxicating period of the honeymoon, "Monty" proclaims his happiness to the world in a column editorial in which he justifies himself in taking the all important step and advises his benighted bachelor friends to go and do likewise.

Of course, all this is to be expected from a newly wedded man to whom all the world looks beautiful. It is to be presumed that it always was so and always will be so so long as man walks the earth. We must admit that the brother out of his poetical fancy painted a beautiful word picture of life and we mean to preserve his classical essay on marriage in our editorial scrap book for future reference. In conclusion we wish to extend to Bro. Montgomery and his charming bride our best wishes for their future happiness. May the picture prove real.

The G. O. P. leaders of this town after taking counsel of each other and counting noses, have about come to the conclusion that it won't be good politics to try to force the party issue in the city election and take the serious chances of a party defeat. The Democrat congratulates the brethren on arriving at such sensible conclusion even against the will of the two local party organs, neither of whom are safe counselors. The people of this city are not in the humor now for an acrimonious political campaign over two or three petty offices. What they want is an opportunity to select the very best timber at hand to carry out some needed reforms in this town and if they can get the right sort of men they don't care a rap what their political belief may be.

Senator Turner will be home from London one of these days, and it is a safe bet that his personal popularity will not suffer by reason of the decision in the Alaskan boundary case. The sentiments in favor of Senator Turner for governor is getting so strong among democratic leaders over the state that despite his personal reluctance he is likely to have the nomination forced upon him. With the prestige of having helped to save a portion of Alaska to the United States, in addition to his personal popularity and recognized ability, Senator Turner would make a most interesting fight for any republican, despite the supposed 30,000 republican majority in the state.—Spokesman Review.

Dowie, at least, has the distinction of being a very unique specimen of the genus grafter. He certainly knows how to separate the sucker from his money. He is getting wealth and world wide notoriety out of the game while the poor deluded mortals who follow him have yielded up not only their worldly possessions, but their time and self respect, if they possess such a quality.

County Commissioner W. I. Lince called the Democrat to account this week for having stated that he was in favor of a party ticket at the coming city election. Mr. Lince asserts that such is not the case and that he is really opposed to any such move at the present time. Your pardon, Mr. Lince, we stand corrected.

Dowie, who represents himself as the prophet Elijah, re-incarnated for the third time, says that kissing is a great sin. "Why," he declared, "My son Gladstone never kissed a woman in his life outside of the family." From this sensible people will be apt to conclude that Gladstone is a chubber or else his father the prophet, is a good deal of a liar.

Dr. Heg's committee says that there is nothing wrong with our city water. This falls like a wet blanket on our youthful contemporary, the Washingtonian. It cuts the ground from under the feet of the newspaper baby and leaves it like Mahomet's coffin, between the heavens and the earth.

Representative Jones, after seeing the president has decided to vote for the Cuban reciprocity bill on the ground that the republican convention of this state, held in September, 1902, in its platform had favored the passage of the bill. It seems to have taken a longer time than usual for Mr. Jones to find out that he was on the unpopular side of this long winded controversy.

When doctors disagree what can be expected from the average layman who wouldn't know a typhoid germ from any other diminutive animal that he might run up against?

A man aged 60 in Seattle ran away with his son's wife and two children. Pretty tough old fellow, much to tough to live in Seattle.

$103,000,000 For the Navy.

Secretary of the Navy Moody estimates that, reduced to the lowest figures compatible with efficiency, it will require nearly $103,000,000 to cover the total expenditures on our new navy for the fiscal year 1904-1905.

Ten years ago (1893) our total naval expenditures were $30,500,000, less than one-third of Mr. Moody's "lowest figures." For the year Garfield was elected president, only twenty-three years ago, the navy's total cost was but $13,500,000, dropping odd figures—only one-eighth of the huge total to be asked of the coming congress. And for the year preceding the beginning of the war or the liberation of Cuba and the subjugation of the Philippines (1897) less than $35,000,000—a little more than one-third of Mr. Moody's estimate.

Manifestly, too, the war with Spain gave an impulse to naval expenditures which as yet shows no sign of having reached its limit. From $56,000,000 in 1900 the navy expenditures expanded to $68,000,000 in 1902, advanced to nearly $80,000,000 for the current year, and are expected to swing well over the $100,000,000 mark in 1904-1905.

Thus by twenty-million annual advances the United States is rapidly approaching the yearly $150,000,000 of Great Britain, the power which, by common consent of the other European nations, must maintain fleets strong enough to cope with any possible hostile combination of them, and besides defend a scattered colonial empire and an ocean commerce that comprises half the total tonnage of the world.

Is this inflation of our naval expenditures necessary? Who threatens to invade us? What nation is able effectively to invade us even if it had the desire? Has not every one of the great European powers, Great Britain included, cheerfully accepted—nay, sought—arbitration of their disputes with us for many years past? Why then, this large annual addition to the big naval chip on our shoulder? Is it not almost time to revise a famous American maxim and say: "Millions for necessary defense; not a dollar for useless defiance?"—N. Y. World.

"I Am the State."

When Louis the XIV of France said: "I am the state," he was considered rather egotistical. But he then voiced a truth applicable to every citizen of a republic like ours.

There is not enough of this feeling among our citizens. For lack of this feeling men shrink their duties to the commonwealth that gives them safety, and makes possible that unity of commercial activity that brings prosperity.

"I am the state," means that the individual man is the unit upon which the fabric of the state is founded. To feel such a responsibility is to be a good citizen. To be such a unit of a democratic government means to have a voice in every public question, and to vote ones honestly matured convictions on every occasion on which public action is taken.

For every man to realize that he is one upon whom the success of popular government can be the success that it ought to be.

"I am the state." It is my business. I am responsible for its present and future success. I am to blame for every blot upon its fair name. My negligence is the cause of every defect in its administration. "I am the state."

Fellow citizens! our form of government cannot be a success without the sober attention of each and everyone who seeks to enjoy its blessings.

Some things cannot be safely delegated to others. Public policy does not shape itself. If you do not assist, who does it for you?—Seattle Mail and Herald.

Given in connection with the YAKIMA DEMOCRAT for 12 months for only $1.50; a saving on the subscription price of the two papers of one dollar.

Died.
Sebastian Lauber, aged 76, died at his home in this city after a short illness of one week. Mr. Lauber was one of the first white settlers in this valley coming from The Dalles and locating here in the early seventies. He settled in the homestead now occupied by James Courtwright, a part of which place he platted as an addition to this city. Deceased was born in Alsace, France, in January 1827 and was married to Josephine Eschbach in 1852, and came to America in 1854 and settled at Burlington, Iowa, afterwards crossing the plains and locating at The Dalles, thence to this place where he had since resided. He lived here and took part in the Indian war of 1878. He leaves an aged widow and a host of friends, especially among the old settlers of the county to mourn his loss.

The funeral services were held at the house, being conducted by Rev. H. M. Bartlett of the Episcopal church in the presence of a large circle of friends and old neighbors, interment being made in the Yakima cemetery. His bereaved wife has the sympathy of the entire community.

Death of J. O. Traynor.

J. O. Traynor, an old and well known resident of the Ahtanum, died at the Deaconess hospital, Saturday, Oct. 24, as the result of injuries received by his team running away and throwing him from the wagon near his home three days previously. He was brought to the hospital in order that he might have the benefit of closer medical attendance, but it was found that his injuries were of such a nature that nothing could be done to aid him. The funeral was held from Sessions & Gilbaugh's undertaking parlors on Monday, with interment in Tahoma cemetery, a large number of friends and neighbors of the deceased being in attendance. Mr. Traynor's age was 70 years, 7 months and 16 days. He leaves a widow, but no children. Deceased came to this country about 16 years ago from California. He was a man respected by all who knew him and general regret is expressed at the unfortunate accident that cost him his life.

Brought Bragdon Back.

Prosecuting Attorney Guthrie and Deputy Sheriff Edwards accompanied by Mrs. Max Mobley, left for Roseland, B. C., Sunday night in order to prosecute Dick Bragdon, arrested at that place on the order of Sheriff Grant. The legal charge against Bragdon is for the alleged theft of Prof. Lewis' overcoat, but the real thing that the authorities want to catch him for is on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Bragdon canvassed the country about here in September taking orders for enlarged pictures. After collecting all the money he could in advance on the orders taken Bragdon is said to have jumped the country, finally being located at Roseland.

Justice is swift in Canada and Bragdon was placed on trial Tuesday, charged with bringing stolen property into the dominion, he having worn the Lewis overcoat there. He was sentenced to two years in prison by the judge. The prisoner was made to believe by Guthrie and Edwards that he would get off much lighter than that in Yakima. The court stated that he would suspend the sentence if the prisoner was willing to return here with the officers and so Bragdon consented to come. He will be tried here at the December term of court.

Mr. Hurley, who has been in the east for several months, says that he was delayed in New York, where he went to find the necessary capital, by reason of the unsettled condition of the money market. He finally succeeded, however, in securing the financial assistance needed and is ready now to go ahead with the enterprise. While east he says that he placed the order for the necessary machinery.

W. H. MINNER IS KILLED

Well Known Citizen Shot to Death.

CHARLES MYERS DID IT

Latter Gives Himself Up and Claims to Have Acted in Self Defence.

As the Democrat was going to press Friday afternoon word reached this city that W. H. Minner had been killed on his ranch eight miles up the Ahtanum about noon or shortly after.

At 2 o'clock Charles Myers, who lives on the Minner ranch, reached town and was taken to Dr. Gordon's office to have a wound dressed. He then telephoned to the sheriff's office that he wished to give himself up as he was the man who had killed Minner. Deputy Cox at once took Myers into custody.

Myers says that in shooting Minner he acted strictly in self defense. Minner, who resided in this city came to the ranch about 11 o'clock and a quarrel ensued between the two men about a division of the crop. Both men got angry and Minner, Myers says, reached into his inside vest pocket for his revolver threatening Myers life as he did so. Myers says that fearing trouble he carried a revolver and pulling the weapon, covered Minner telling him that he did not want to hurt him and to put up his gun. Minner did so unwillingly.

About this time Guy Loudon and Ralph Brownlow drove up to the gate in the Old Town creamery wagon. Myers went down to meet them and Minner followed after. Minner inquired if the monthly milk check had been brought up and was told no. Myers then started back to the house, Minner following him. Suddenly the latter said, "Damn you I believe that I will fix you anyway and suiting the action to the word drew his pistol and fired the bullet striking Myers in the left arm inflicting a wound not regarded as serious. Myers says that he staggered into a ditch quickly drew his own gun and fired and Minner fell with a groan and soon expired. The two creamery boys were still at the gate and witnessed the scene in the yard. After the shooting Myers came to town to have his wound dressed and to give himself up, leaving Guy Loudon to guard the corpse.

Coroner Frank and Sheriff Shaw promptly left for the scene of the killing followed by Mayor Shaw and J. C. Liggett with a coffin. It was not known when this paper went to press whether an inquest would be held or not.

The deceased had resided in this county for many years and was a well known citizen. Only a few days ago he was married. He is the father of J. E. Minner of this city and leaves several married daughters.

For the Brain and Nerves.

Science has demonstrated most conclusively that mental and nerve power is dependent upon food containing phosphorus.

It is but natural that the same laws which apply to the muscular system should apply likewise to the brain. For instance, wheat contains phosphorus, which it gets from the soil and in the absence of which it could not live.

Wheat is supposed to supply to the human system the elements it gets from the soil. Since the action of the mind is dependent on phosphorus, wheat, fish, cheese, oatmeal and barley can be regarded as brain foods.

It is a well known fact that the brain contains phosphorus in proportion to its power of producing mental effort and that this element must be supplied in proportion to mental activity.

So it can be readily seen that one's mental education, begins in the dining room as well as in the classroom.—American Queen.

A Clear Course.

The man who is calm has his course in life clearly marked on his chart. His hand is ever on the helm. Storm, fog, night, tempest, danger, hidden reefs—he is ever prepared and ready for them. He is made calm and serene by the realization that in these crises of his voyage he needs a clear mind and a cool head; that he has naught to do but to do each day the best he can by the light he has; that he will never flinch or falter for a moment; that, though he may have to tack and leave his course for a time, he will never drift, he will get back into the true channel, he will keep ever headed toward his harbor. When he will reach it, how he will reach it, matters not to him. He rests in calmness, knowing he has done his best.—William G. Jordan.

Washington Letter.

(From our special correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26, 1903.

The call for the extra session of congress to begin on November 9 has just been issued by the President. The "extraordinary occasion" which requires the convening of both houses, is the necessary approval by congress of the reciprocal commercial convention between the United States and the republic of Cuba, signed at Havana on December 11, 1902. The consideration of the Cuban treaty will undoubtedly be the chief business during the extra session, but any other business will be in order, as when congress is once in session it can undertake any legislation which either house desires. It is expected that many bills will be introduced, but most of the time will be consumed in debating the tariff issue which will be raised by the treaty. The comparative strength of the parties in the first meeting of the Fifty-eighth congress will be, in the senate, fifty-seven republicans and thirty-three democrats, and in the house, 205 republicans and 178 democrats. In the house of representatives there will be 118 members who have never served before, and in the senate, twelve senators who will see their first service, except that of the ten days extra session of the senate last spring. Senator Gorman will lead the democratic forces and the republicans in the senate will find themselves confronted by a united and definite policy, guided by the man whom the President regards as his most dangerous rival for the first office of the land. In the house the new speaker will try to distribute the important chairmanships without arousing animosities and dissensions in the republican party. It is said that Representative Hepburn of Iowa will take advantage of the change in the speakership to lead an attack upon the house rules which have placed the dominion of a small oligarchy consisting of the speaker and the committee on rules. He proposes to enlarge this powerful committee and also that it shall be chosen by the two parties in the house instead of being appointed by the speaker. He will no doubt have the support of the democrats and of many of the republicans who are concerned at the loss of prestige and power by the house due to the iron rules of Reed.

President Roosevelt's attitude on the canal question has displeased many members of congress and it is said that he will be called upon during the extra session to explain why, on the failure of the treaty proposed to Colombia, he did not begin negotiations with Nicaragua as he is directed to do by the Spooner act. In the Isthmian canal question he seems to have adopted the general republican attitude of "stand pat." In speaking of the president's delay in enforcing the law Senator Morgan of Alabama said: "The president seems to be in the same category as our friend Micawber. He is waiting for something to turn up. Just what that something is is not apparent. Why should he delay? There is no excuse for his tardiness in opening negotiations with Nicaragua and Costa Rica for a route. I believe a disposition will be shown in the senate and house to secure an explanation from the president as to his exact reason for the delay."

Senator Gorman's stinging criticisms of the president for his interference in the Maryland campaign is having a visible effect. The Marylanders resent the implication that they are unable to manage their own affairs without the aid of Washington, and this resentment is by no means confined to the democratic party. While the president may have succeeded in bringing about a semblance of harmony between the leaders of the republican factions, every time he summons them to the White house he brings votes to the democratic party. It is said that the president has more to fear from Gorman than from any other candidate the democrats might nominate and he is doing all in his power to prevent a republican defeat in Maryland. It was no doubt with his approval that Senator Gorman's brother has just been dismissed from the treasury department "for the good of the service." The treasury officials would not give out the exact nature of the charge. Whatever it may be, the dismissal comes at a moment which justifies suspicions of political revenge.

The official announcement of the Alaskan boundary commission was given out last Tuesday and the victory of the United States has pleased the Americans, angered the Canadians, and surprised the British. The Canadian commissioners refused to sign the award, but they affixed their signatures to the map which was agreed upon by the majority. The boundary decided upon lies far from the coast, and gives to the United States substantially all the territory in dispute. The line clears all the bays, inlets and means of access to the seas and establishes a complete barrier between Canada and the sea from the Portland canal to Mt. St. Elias. Around the head of the Lynn canal the line follows the watershed. The Canadians get the canal and the Pease and Wales islands, but we were given the two islands which lie immediately outside and they are of far more strategic importance than the others. The decision in our favor was due to the vote of Lord Alverstone, the British representative, who became convinced of the justice of the American claims. The Canadians accuse him of partisanship, and make no attempt to disguise the fact that they are disappointed and angered. But both the commissioners and the Canadian public are far more bitter against the British government than against the Americans. The following interview from one of the Canadians connected with the case illustrates their attitude toward the award: "It is the hardest blow the imperial tie has yet received. The place Lord Alverstone filled was so clearly that of agent for the British government. It was a shock to the Canadian people to know that notwithstanding all the professions of friendship and sympathy the solemn formalities of the international court have simply been used for the purpose of handing over Canadian territory to the United States. Canada must now face the fact that when imperial interest of friendships requires it, her territory may be handed over without the slightest hesitation. This marks a most serious epoch in the relation between the mother country and Canada." The Canadian commissioners are especially bitter over the acquisition by the United States of the two outermost of the four islands off the mouth of the Portland canal. They give as their reason the extreme strategic value of the islands. However, they might know that in case of a conflict between the United States and Canada the strategic value of these or any other islands would have an infinitesimal influence on the outcome of the struggle.

Presence of Mind.
A gentleman on a visit to an asylum was walking in the grounds when a man came up to him and entered into conversation.

After walking about for some time, discussing topics suggested by the place, the two set out on a tour of inspection, the man, apparently an official, inviting the visitor to go over the asylum.

At length they reached the foot of a flight of steps, up which the guide led the way, and at the top the visitor found himself out upon the roof, a height of more than a hundred feet from the ground.

As they gazed below his companion started him suddenly by proposing to see who could jump farthest toward the grounds! Not until then had it dawned upon the visitor that his guide was mad. Mercifully, he was a man of ready wit, and his wit saved the madman's life. "Oh, anybody can jump down," said the visitor. "Let us go down and see who can jump to the top." The madman thought it a good idea, and, retracing their steps, the two began their jump from the earth instead of from the roof.

Why the Stomach Lasts.
An old question which has long puzzled physiologists is, Why does not the stomach digest itself? The walls of the stomach are in substance not unlike the food which they contain and which is digested by the peptic fluid. The stomach is able to digest protein food when introduced into it, yet it does not digest itself.

The reason for this has been shown by Weinland. Weinland found that a substance can be extracted from the cells of the stomach which, when added to proteid material, will not allow it to be acted upon by the pepsin of the stomach. This substance belongs to the class of so called antiferments—that is, a group of bodies which by their presence inhibit fermentative actions. The presence of this antiferment in the cells of the stomach prevents them from digesting themselves.

After death, when this substance decomposes, the stomach will digest itself.

Tea Smoking.
It has been recorded on good authority that one of the early uses made of dried tea leaves was to smoke them after the manner of tobacco.

On the first introduction of tea into Europe, in the seventeenth century, pipes, especially in France, were frequently filled with tea, at least among the wealthier classes of society, to whom on account of its high price it was alone accessible, and the fumes of the leaf were thus enjoyed, like tobacco, without prejudice to the use ordinarily made of it as a beverage.

Blegny, a French physician of the time, in a work published in 1687 and quoted in Le Grand d'Aussy's "Histoire de la Vie Privée des Français," has a reference to this practice of smoking tea, which was then, as he affirms, a frequent and popular fashion.

The Smell of the Sea.
The odor of the sea—the wild, salt tang "from wind swept spaces blown"—what freedom is in its breath! "Sea folk and therefore free folk" are they who breathe it. Not all the sweets of summer roses steeped in sunshine can lull the homesickness of sea folk long banished from sea smells, and when at last their strong, free gladness again salutes the sense it is as though a barrier falls, and the heart finds home. So with the pine smell to the mountaineer. "Damp, wood smoke, dripping undergrowth and rotting pine cones—that is the true smell of the hills, and it once gets into the blood of a man he will at last, forgetting everything else, return to the hills to die."

Dressed Turkeys.
Miss Sallie Blake, who lived in Calvert county, Md., some years ago, was in the habit of gathering chicken grapes in the autumn and making them into medicine by preserving them in spirits.

It happened once, after the contents of a jar containing the decoction had been exhausted, that Miss Blake emptied liquor soaked grapes on the ground. Here her fine brood of turkeys quickly gobbled them.

Presently Miss Blake found the turkeys lying on the ground, and not realizing the cause of their stupor she thought they were dead. In order to realize something from the feathers, she had the turkeys picked. The carcasses were thrown outdoors.

The next morning there was a great hue and cry from the servants in the back yard, and, looking out of the window, Miss Blake saw her turkeys walking about absolutely bare except for a few tail and wing feathers.

In order to protect them from the cold, the good woman bought enough red flannel to make each turkey a comfortable garment. Very soon, to the wonder of the neighbors far and wide, Miss Blake's turkeys stalked abroad, wearing their red coats with the same easy grace with which they had worn their feathers.—Youth's Companion.

Queer Revenge.
"Speaking of queer revenge," said an Englishman, "I remember how, according to a friend of mine, the natives of certain villages in India treat their enemies."

"Do you know what they do? They just get a few handfuls of rice and sprinkle it on the roofs of the people they hate."

"Then what do you think happens? Why, then the monkeys come flocking down from all the trees on to that roof after the rice. They eat all there is on the surface of the roof, and then, to get at the stray grains that have lodged in the crannies, they begin to pull the shingles off. Wherever there is a grain to be seen far down in some crack or other place they pull the roof up to get at it, and finally, lo and behold, there is no roof left! The monkeys have torn it all away. Then the man who spread the rice laughs subtly, for he has had his revenge, and yet no one knows and he cannot be punished."

Births.
In the matter of births in general the popular months in their order are January, March, February, April and October. As to the hour of birth, from midnight to 6 o'clock in the morning ushers in 29.5 per cent of the children, from 6 in the morning to noon 24.5 per cent are born, from noon to 6 o'clock in the evening 22 per cent and from 6 o'clock to midnight 24 per cent.

As to the classes arranged according to worldly wealth and without regard to occupation, it has been asserted that 100 rich families will have 313 children, 100 families of moderate means will have 360 children, while 100 poor families will have 370 children. In general, there is a tendency among young couples toward male children and of middle aged parents to female offspring.

Training a Hunting Horse.
The training of a hunting horse is thus described by Sewell Ford in "Horses Nine." When the time was ripe began the hunting lessons. Pasha came to know the feel of the saddle and the voice of the hounds. He was taught the long, easy lope. He learned how to gather himself for a sail through the air over a hurdle or a water jump. Then, when he could take five bars clean, when he could clear an eight foot ditch, when his wind was so sound that he could lead the chase from dawn until high noon, he was sent to the stables of a Virginia tobacco planter who had need of a new hunter and who could afford Arab blood.

Couldn't Find Rosa.
The youngster in the art gallery looked long and earnestly at the painting. Then he read the inscription.
"Do you like it?" asked his mother.
"Oh, I like it well enough," he answered, "but I don't understand it."
"What is it you don't understand?"
"Why, it says 'Wild Horses—After Rosa Bonheur.' I see the horses all right, but where's the girl they're after?"—Chicago Post.

Clews.
"Have you any clews to the murder?"
"We have plenty of clews—too many, in fact."
"Then what are you waiting for?"
"We can't decide which to follow first. If we tried to follow them all, it would take a lifetime."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Chop.
Sadie was eleven and Alice was seven. At lunch said Alice:
"I wonder what part of an animal a chop is. Is it a leg?"
"Of course not," answered Sadie. "It's the jawbone. Haven't you ever heard of animals licking their chops?"—Little Chronicle.

Two of a Kind.
