OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

AN election was held throughout this country on Tuesday and as a result the nation has relapsed recklessly into the arms of McKinleyism or more properly speaking, Hannaism. Bryan, the brilliant statesman and matchless orator, for the second time has gone down to defeat. He is incomparably greater, however, in defeat than is his victorious opponent in his victory. The results of this election, it will be found, are far reaching in character for if it be true that a radical departure from our established principles of government has been made by the administration and endorsed by the people the evil effects of such a policy may eventually involve the whole civilized world in misery, for the world had gradually come to look upon American liberty as the thing most to be desired in government and as the desideratum of their hopes. These liberty hungering people will have to find a new mentor now, for we have officially served notice upon the world that we have changed our time honored policy and that henceforth we are to be known as a buccaneering and colonizing nation along the lines of "benevolent assimilation."

THE second term of Hannaism in this country may be looked to without fail to bring forth bitter fruit. With a new four year lease of power wrung from the people the buccaneers of the present administration may expect to accomplish much in the next. A carnival of corruption may be expected to set in that will so far out do that of President Grant's second term that Robespierre and Belknap, if alive, would feel incompetent to mix with it. The exploitation of China as well as the Philippines by syndicates with special privileges may be looked for and in the great talk and hubbub about oriental trade that will follow, the oriental himself noting that the bars, have been left down will lose no time in intruding his presence upon the people of this coast, where he will despoil the American laborer of an opportunity to labor and support his family.

THE re-election of John R. Rogers as the chief executive of this state is the one bright spot in the returns from Tuesday. We are deeply thankful at least for this mark of favor from the hand of a chastening providence, not only because we believe and know that whether they deserve it or not the people of this state will receive four more years of good government. That is not the only reason why we rejoice over the triumphant re-election of Gov. Rogers. The second reason is that in his election the people have escaped a most disagreeable alternative—the election of Frink with all that would have implied. Had the latter been chosen we would have a repetition of the malodorous McGraw administration with its many scandals and broken promises. The election of Rogers is gall and wormwood to the Wilson-McGraw school of republicans, the leaders among whom had been counting confidently on comfortable berths in the state government with good salaries attached for the next four years. As for Gov. Rogers himself, he can justly take much pride in the victory he has won, for he has safely passed through an ordeal of fire. His administration was most unfairly and unjustly attacked by a bitterly partisan and unfair opposition press. If only the truth had been told no fault could be found, but the attacks for the most part were based on falsehood and then maliciously distorted to meet the exigencies of the campaign. The people by their votes, however, have repudiated the Wilson gang and have served notice upon them that they have no further use for them.

THE announcement of a little coterie of McKinley democrats, headed by Don M. Dickinson, that they intend to re-organize the Democratic party along the line of Clevelandism, would be amusing and laughable if the proposition did not smack so much of impudence. What right has this man Dickinson, who has fought the fought the party bitterly in two campaigns, to talk about reorganizing it? What rot, what nerve. The democratic party will remain as now organized or it will die. Dickinson's proposition is a good deal like that of the devil when he proposed to save the world.

THE editor of this paper has lost no sleep over the local postoffice; indeed he has never been a candidate for that exalted and lucrative position except in the minds of certain writers for the local press. As a new postmaster, however, seems to be a public necessity, under the present conditions we are going to take the responsibility of nominating Editor Robertson. Since the election of Gov. Rogers has cost the colonel a berth on the State Fair commission and about $100 in money, we insist that some kind of recognition is due him for his valiant services.

THE second administration of Grover Cleveland is the worst misfortune with which the democratic party has had to contend in the last two campaigns. The writer while in the east a few months ago took occasion wherever he got an opportunity to talk to laboring men, particularly mill workers, as to their probable political course of action. Almost invariably the answer came back that they felt disposed to support McKinley. In nearly every case we were told that work had been scarce and that it was a mighty hard matter to live at all when Cleveland was president. Now they said it was a little better, they had work although wages were low and everything high that they had to buy. They seemed to realize that their position was but little preferable to that of the slave, but still they knew that they were better off than they had been under the disastrous administration of Grover Cleveland. In their poor weak minds the rule of democracy meant starvation to them. The action of this class of voters accounts for the defeat of Mr. Bryan.

GENERAL FUNSTON has given the following as his opinion of the Philippine situation: "Big syndicates and capitalists will be greatly benefitted by the retention of the islands, but outside a few exceptional cases, I can see no advantage in their possession by the United States."

A LOCAL paper's "Jolly Old Uncle Josh" is a wonderfully entertaining story. The most remarkable feature of "Uncle Josh" would seem to be that a goodly number of local business men have been joshed out of good hard money in return for a worthless class of advertising.

YAKIMA county like all the rest seems to have went hell-bent for McKinley and his alleged prosperity. This tidal wave, as is usual on such occasions, carries some drift wood into the court house for the next two years that never would have reached there under ordinary conditions.

THE democratic county ticket that went down to defeat in its entirety on Tuesday was made up of the best material obtainable in the county. Each man thereon made a gallant fight, but unfortunately they had to go up against a landslide.

THE local "knockers" of the State Fair are feeling pretty cheap now. They hadn't figured on Gov. Rogers being elected and now that such is the case they see no prospect of being paid for their dirty work.

CANDIDATE KRUTZ is said to have occupied a seat on the stage at the Jones meeting on Monday night. It doesn't seem to take some men a very long time in securing a prominent position in a new party.

WE have lived through nearly four years of McKinleyism, perhaps we can endure four years more, but the conclusion of the last term is pretty apt to leave a bad taste in the mouths of the people.

"Tennessee's Pardner," Nov. 16.

Many readers remember Bret Harte's pretty story of "Tennessee's Pardner," one of his many inimitable stories of mining camp life in the far west. This story suggested the delightful comedy drama which will be seen at Larson's theater, Nov. 16. There has never been staged a play dealing with western life that has the beauty, the pathos and the power of reaching the heart as that possessed by "Tennessee's Pardner." It has been the most pronounced success of any play of its kind before the public. The production is under the management of Arthur C. Aiston and the company includes the following unexcelled collection of players: James M. Brophy, Jane Corcoran, Estha Williams, Fannie Curtis, Percy Plunkett, Annie Mortimer, Walter Ryder, Sherman Rowles, Pierre Young, James Pilling, R. S. Rex, Edward Fielding, George Mansfield and the Golden Nuggett Male Quartette. The engagement is for one night only.

There is no other publication in the world of which so many copies are printed as of the Chinese Almanac. The number is estimated at several millions and circulates among all classes of the population from the proudest viceroy or mandarin to the poorest peasant. This almanac is printed at Peking and is a monopoly of the emperor. It not only predicts the weather, but notes the days that are reckoned lucky or unlucky for beginning and any undertaking, for taking medicine, for marrying and for burying.—Ex.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Every husband would be henpecked, if he would allow it.

As soon as it gets so a man doesn't have to cut grass he has to clean out the furnace.

If men had a right to whip their wives as they used to there would be no divorces and a lot fewer women's clubs.

When there is a party all the married men get together so they can fool the old bachelors and pretend how jolly they are.

The average woman has an idea that her husband wouldn't have any show at all of getting into heaven if it weren't for all of her praying for him.

Morality is almost always a question of one neighbor.

No woman can be a loving wife and raise canary birds at the same time.

A woman always wonders how sick she would have to be before it would make her husband cry.

There will come a time when wearing a widow's veil will be considered as immoral as too much perfumery.

No really lazy man was ever in love.

The average man wouldn't have had any chance in the world if it weren't for his mother.

A man never thinks what he says before he gets married, nor says what he thinks afterward.

A woman will always be reasonably happy so long as she has enough things to worry over.

There is nothing so discouraging to a man's sense of virtue as to be a teetotaler and to have a big red nose, anyhow.—New York Press.

Odds and Ends.

The average daily newspaper, with its chronicles of crime, its solemn editorial comment, and its market quotations, is a very dull affair. Very few daily papers help to make life cheasier or easier to bear. But the country paper is a weekly joy. It is not spread all over with tails of crime and defaced with silly pictures. There is something in it for everybody.—Chicago Evening Journal.

The following is a copy of a school boy's complaint, says an exchange, to the board of directors: "Mr. Director: My sister who is a teacher whips me every day. Pa and ma told her to whip me oftener than she did the other pupils so they wouldn't think she was partial. I wrote to you to let you know that is thin. She is an old maid and gets mad because she can't get married, and when she gets mad, she larrups me. I hate to say such things about my sister; but it's so and I write to inquire if you can stop her licking me or get her a husband. Any old thing will do just so it's a man.

An orator in Missouri got off the following: We live in a land of high mountains and high taxes, low wages, big, crooked rivers and crooked statesmen, big lakes and big strikes, big drunks and big pumpkins, big men with pumpkin heads, silver streams that gambol in the mountains, and pious politicians that gamble in the night, roaring cataracts and roaring orators, fast horses and fast young men, sharp lawyers, sharp financiers and sharp nosed gossips, fertile plains that lie like sheets of water and thousands of newspapers that lie like thunder."—Argonaut.

The Original Siamese Twins.

The sleepy village of Biddenden, not far from Tenterden, celebrates yearly the memory of the two maids of that ancient hamlet who were the original precursors of the Siamese twins. In life they were joined together by a mysterious cord of flesh, and they died on the same day, leaving their property to be distributed among the poor of the parish and among all who care to apply for a dole of bread and cheese on Easter day. This benefaction has been in existence for six or seven centuries, and at present its value is about $200 a year.

Formerly the doles consisted of bread and cheese and ale, but the latter produced so much murrity in the village that it was abolished, and the charity is now limited to the two first mentioned nutritive articles. The bread is made up in the form of cakes, bearing a rude representation of the twin maids of Biddenden, and are generally preserved as curiosities by the recipients. They are baked very hard and are admirably adapted to give work to dentists by breaking the molars of those who attempt to penetrate their mysteries. The poor of the parish as distinguished from necessitous strangers are supplied with ordinary quarters loaves and cheese.—London Telegraph.

The October purple plum, for which great beauty and excellent quality are claimed, is one of Mr. Luther Burbank's latest productions.

There is no peach in cultivation which will stand a temperature of 30 degrees below zero without artificial protection. Among the hardiest peaches are Hill's Chile, Longhurst, Barnard, Early Rivers and Fitzgerald, says John Craig in American Gardening.

Take Your Choice.

Around this land no man should roam
With discontented mind,
For every class a fitting home
With greatest ease can find.

The writers all should go to Penn.,
The debtors flock to O.,
And Col. would be for colored men
A paradise, I know.

The mining class would find in Ore.
A chance to raise the wind.
And, as you may have guessed before,
The rich should go to Ind.

Religious folks should go to Mass.,
And bunco men to Conn.,
And lovers who would win a lass
Should find a home in Mon.

All other persons, near and far,
Whate'er their age or sex is,
Who are not suited where they are,
Will find there's room in Texas.

Thanksgiving Proclamation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 29.

The state department today issued the following:

"By the president of the United States of America.

"A proclamation:

"It has pleased Almighty God to bring our nation in safety and honor through another year. The works of religion and charity have everywhere been manifest. Our country through all its extent has been blessed with abundant harvests. Labor and the great industries of the people have prospered beyond all precedent. Our commerce has spread over the world. Our power and influence in the cause of freedom and enlightenment have extended over seas and lands. The lives of our official representative and many of our people in China have been marvelously preserved. We have been generally kept from pestilence and other great calamities, and even the tragic visitation which overwhelmed the city of Galveston made evident the sentiments of sympathy and Christian charity by virtue of which we are one united people.

"Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, do hereby appoint and set aside Thursday, the 29th day of November next, to be observed by all people of the United States, at home or abroad, as a day of thanksgiving and praise to Him who holds the nations in the hollow of his hand. I recommend that they gather in their several places of worship and devoutly give Him thanks for the prosperity wherewith He has endowed us, for seed time and harvest, for the valor, devotion and humanity of our armies and navies and for all his benefits to us as individuals and as a nation; and that they humbly pray for the continuance of His divine favor, for concord and amity with our nations, and for righteousness and peace in all ways.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

(Signed) "WILLIAM McKINLEY."

Great Northern Tunnel.

After nearly four years of steady work upon one of the greatest engineering feats of the age, the Great Northern railway tunnel through the Cascades was practically completed today. So perfect was the engineering work and so accurate the preliminary plans and surveys that the two forces, working from opposite ends in the big tunnel, brought the two ends together with the variation of scarcely an inch.

The terminals of the tunnel are at Cascade tunnel and Wellington. This great piece of engineering is two miles and a half long, 13,200 feet. The roof is at one place of solid granite, 5,350 feet thick. The tunnel runs in a straight line from the head of one canyon to that of another, with a slope of about 90 feet to the mine. The east portal is at an elevation of 3,375 feet above the sea level, while the west portal is about 3,125 feet above the same base. It is estimated that the tunnel when completed will cost $5,000,000. The average progress was from 18 to 20 feet per day. A tunnel will abolish the "switchback" over the Cascades, which in itself has always been looked upon as a magnificent engineering achievement.

Work on the approaches to the tunnel began in January, 1897, but it was late in the summer of that year before the workmen got fairly under cover and had the compressor plants installed. About 800 men, all told, are employed in and about the tunnel. Most of the work is done by machinery. The 32 rock drills driven by compressed air are used to bore large and deep holes in the rock at the end of the workings.

The inside of the tunnel is lined with an imperishable wall of concrete four feet in thickness. The completed tunnel is 23 feet high by 16 feet wide. Electric locomotives will be used to haul trains through the tunnel, so that no annoyance will be caused by smoke and gas from the ordinary coal burning engines. The immense white tube will be lighted by double rows of electric lights, and as far as human foresight can predict the tunnel will endure for countless ages, a monument to the daring ingenuity of the Great Northern engineers. —Cor. Chicago Times-Herald.

On a Pretty Face

Glasses are often an improvement—always so on the face of one who really needs them. They drive away that squinting, drawn, unnatural expression seen in defective eyes.

The old style, heavy bowed, ill-fitting and ill-looking spectacles, fitted by one's self or incompetents, have given people the idea that glasses detract from one's appearance. Our light, strong, serviceable glasses enhance rather than spoil the looks of the wearer. Eye defects a specialty.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2, 1900.

Chairman Richardson, of the democratic congressional campaign committee, who has been dividing his time between the New York branch of national headquarters and Washington, returned to Washington this week. The work of the committees, both national and congressional, is done, and the result is in the hands of the voters. Mr. Richardson is confident that a democratic victory is in sight and that it will include a majority of congress as well as the presidency. Said Mr. Richardson: "The reports received at democratic headquarters in New York from the different state chairmen are most encouraging and full of confidence of success at the polls." Of Mr. Bryan's extraordinary reception during his speaking tour of New York, Mr. Richardson said: "There is not another man in the world that could create enthusiasm equal to that aroused by Mr. Bryan on his trip through New York. It was marvelous. There is nothing like it on record."

If proof were needed that the life of a private in the United States army under existing conditions is not a pleasant one, it just made public, which shows that there were 3993 desertions during the last fiscal year. The large and respectable element which oppose the "army canteen" are given a slap in the face by the report, which says that the "army canteen" has grown to be an absolute necessity, and that a business of $1,915,862, with a net profit of $464,504, was done by them during the year.

The growth of the United States in population during the past ten years (nearly 21 per cent.) as shown by the official figures given out this week (76,295,220) has been entirely satisfactory. Whether the same can be said of the growth of manliness, independence, and political intelligence cannot be positively stated until after the election, which will show whether a majority of the voters will vote their known convictions or will allow themselves to be driven to the polls and to be made to vote as the local bosses in the pay of the trusts shall dictate. American manhood vs. Serfdom, is an issue as well as the Republic vs. Empire.

John M. Sherrouse, of New Orleans business man and a brother-in-law of Representative Robertson, of La., was in Washington this week. He said of the political outlook: "I hope that Bryan will win. I am opposed to aggressive expansion and also to benevolent assimilation through the mouth of the cannon. In the case of the Philippines, we are attempting to conquer lands thousands of miles away and assimilate a people whom Infinite Wisdom has made so different as to render all our efforts fruitless. We have already an alien race with us that has grown into a national problem, and it will be only adding fuel to the fire to bring more alien races in."

How some New York republicans regard Mr. Bryan may be judged by these remarks, made in Washington by W. D. Pearson, a prominent member of the New York bar: "I don't believe there ever has been a presidential candidate who was so deserving of success as is Mr. Bryan. I am bound by principle, as a good republican, to cast my vote against him, but I could almost cheer if I learned that he was elected. He is absolutely sincere, and just such a man as would make a good president. I think there are a good many more republicans in the empire state who think as I do, and the republican leaders are not at all certain of carrying the state."

Some idea of republican methods in West Virginia may be had from the following statement, made by H. M. Richards, of Wheeling: "Hanna is working hard to capture West Virginia. When I left Wheeling the two circuit court judges were working overtime to naturalize the gangs of foreigners run into the state by Steve Elkins and the republican campaign committee. It is the most disgraceful incident in the history of the commonwealth."

The prediction made some weeks ago by Senator-elect Blackburn, that the republicans intended to try to carry Kentucky by the use of a small army of U. S. deputy marshals, has been fully verified by the news of the week, even to the name of the man who is at the head of the movement, Judge Evans, of Louisville. This desperate sort of move together with things of the same kind in other close states, makes it evident that the republican bosses are far from being as confident of Mr. McKinley's re-election, as they pretend to be. Men who believe they can win fairly and squarely do not resort to illegal methods to gain votes.

Made Young Again.

"One of Dr. King's New Life Pills each night for two weeks has put me in my 'teens' again" writes D. H. Turner of Dempseytown, Pa. They're the best in the world for liver, stomach and bowels. Purely vegetable. Never gripe. Only 25c at Quiett & Ayer's Drug store.

What Boutwell Says.

Hon. George S. Boutwell, former governor of Massachusetts, and one of the most able and highly respected republicans in the United States, says:

"The nation is passing through a crisis, or rather it is in a crisis, which portends all of evil to the laboring population that can ever come to them—their downfall from a condition of independence, of power in the affairs of the country to a state of servility through competition with the millions of the Oriental world. The Philippines are never to be surrendered. So says the president. They are to be conquered, and they are to be kept within or under the jurisdiction of the United States. The laboring population of this country have one means of averting the evil, and I do not hesitate in advising its use. Let them unitedly and with energy oppose the re-election of President McKinley and their days of peril will be ended and the country will be saved from the grasp of imperialism."

Brave Explorers.

Like Stanley and Livingstone, found it harder to overcome malaria, fever and ague, and typhoid disease germs than savage cannibals; but thousands have found that Electric Bitters is a wonderful cure for all malarial diseases. If you have chills with fever, aches in back of neck and head, and tired, worn out feeling, a trial will convince you of their merit. W. A. Null of Webb, Ill., writes: "My children suffered for more than a year with chills and fever; then two bottles of Electric Bitters cured them." Only 50 cents. Try them. Guaranteed. Six terrible failures of six different doctors nearly sent Wm. M. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All said he had a fatal lung trouble and that he must soon die. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of throat, chest and lungs, including coughs, colds, la grippe, pneumonia, bronchitis, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough. 50c and $1. John Bell died at the hospital Thursday night of old age, he being upward of 90 years. Mr. Bell was a well known figure upon the streets of North Yakima and had many warm friends who administered to his wants during his declining days. The funeral will occur probably today from Whitlock's undertaking parlors.

"Tennessee's Pardner."

The successful playwright is one who properly blends the elements of pathos and comedy. The author of "Tennessee's Pardner" has done his work successfully, and a more pleasing dramatic entertainment has not been seen on the stage for a long time. It is a play full of human interest, tender sentiment, manly spirit and wholesome comedy. Those who fancy "Tennessee's Pardner" a sort of wild and woolly, lurid, western melodrama will find themselves agreeably deceived by a series of stage pictures as unique and delightful as those described in Bret Harte's sketches. This is the fourth successive season's tour of the attraction, under Arthur C. Aiston's management, and the story of the play is too well known for a detailed description. The acting company is the same that has been identified with the success of the performance in former

It can not be said that this cup will cement the two cities in bonds of eternal friendship, for the whole souled character of the members of your excursion had that effect, but it can be said that as a token of your regard, it will ever be cherished and preserved by this club. The entertained committee (which has been made permanent) proposes the toast, to which each individual member of the club has already "Seattle to be the New York of the Pacific coast."

A hunter recently fell dead while hunting. He passed by a dozen farms where there were signs posted all over them. "No hunting allowed." He finally passed by a farm where there was a sign which read: "Hunters come in. Hunt until you are tired and then come to dinner." He read it a time or two and when he had taken in the full meaning of it; he fell dead.—Iowa Homestead.

"The Man from Mexico."

Incidental music is often responsible for a large measure of the success attending dramatic productions, but seldom does it play as important a part in farce as is evidenced in "The Man from Mexico," where sixteen bars of a march create quite as much laughter whenever heard as the bright lines and humorous situations furnished by the author. Benjamin Fitzhew, a clubman and all round good fellow enjoys an evening's dash at dissipation, and finds himself burkened with a thirty days' sentence in the city prison, the next morning, in consequence of trying to induce a cabman to look upon matters in general, through closed eyes. Fitzhew aided by his friend Majors, conceives the idea of telling his wife that business of an important nature demands his presence in Mexico for the next thirty days and departs for the prison where the strains of the march are heard for the first time, when the unfortunate makes his appearance, clothed in prison clothes and engages in the evolution of the lockstep in connection with a number of other convicts. The music creates but slight impression at first, but frequent repetitions cause the smiles to turn to laughs, the laughs develop into roars, and the roars to sweep all before them as the denouement is reached. The march was written by the late Percy Gaunt, who was for several seasons conductor at Hoyt's New York theater. "The Man from Mexico," now on its third successful tour, is headed this way and will be on view at Larson's theater, Nov. 12.

Its success is as great as in its early career, the cast including George C. Boniface, jr., Gus Pixley, H. L. Heckert, Robert Deshon, Arthur Villars, J. Trew Gray, D. H. Landon, D. W. Siegrist, F. W. Bernard, Helen Baird, Adeline Mann, Agnes Burke and Mildred Keith.

Aphids, or Plant Lice.

Aphids are sucking insects, taking their food through a slender tube which is thrust deep into the tissue of the plant. For this reason any arsenical poison that may be deposited on the surface of the plant will do them no harm. They will thrust their beaks clear through the poison into the plant and will suck the sap from beneath the surface. To kill these little robbers it is necessary to use contact poisons, such as kerosene emulsion, whale oil soap, tobacco water, pyrethrum, or some application which kills by closing up the pores or by irritation, or else to use some vapor, smoke or gas, such as tobacco smoke or carbon bisulphide. In exceptional instances, as in the case of lice that live underground, it is necessary to use some special treatment.

The Strains They Suffered.

For exercise in expression the teacher daily asks her scholars to describe some of the happenings of the day at home.

Little Minnie, loquitor: "When my papa went to go down into the woodshed the other evening, where it was dark, he slipped on the stair and strained his foot, and now he can't walk."

Here another little girl was evidently reminded of something, and she raised her hand and fluttered it to get the teacher's attention.

"Well?" suggested the teacher.

"Please, ma'am, when our cow came home from pasture last night she slipped in the mud right in front of the house and strained her milk, but she is able to walk just the same."—Lewiston Journal.

THE CHEAP LEAVEN AT WORK

The Coolies are Coming With a Hurrah—Can Labor Witness Their Advent Unmoved?

In the labor market, as in every other market, the law of supply and demand holds good. A man may be in full sympathy with the American workingman, but is there is a supply of coolie labor in the market, he will soon find that he must employ it or go out of business. So long as coolie labor can be had for $1 a day or less, he cannot employ American workmen at a decent wage and expect to compete with other men in the same line of business. An instance of this kind occurred in Tacoma last week. One of the largest wood contractors in that city lost three large wood contracts to a company employing coolie labor. He has heretofore always employed white men, but in conversation, just after hearing of the loss of the third contract he said:

"I don't like to do it but it is either that or quit the business. I have been paying white men $1 per cord for cutting wood and everybody knows that is little enough. These other people are getting the work done for 75 cents by Japs and I must do the same thing or quit the business."

Last week a Buckley farmer hired fifteen Japs at $1 a day to dig his potatoes. He said that everything he had to buy was costing him from 25 to 50 per cent more than formerly and that, if he was to make ends meet, he would have to employ the cheapest labor to be had. The presence of a comparatively small number of coolies is sure to force the wage of the whole labor community down to the same level.—Olympia Standard.

In New York's New Rich Society.

A salient feature of the reign of the new rich is the habit of estimating a man's success in life solely by the money he has acquired. There are gatherings of society in New York where if the question were asked about a fellow citizen, "Has he been successful?" the answer would be in the negative had the person inquired about not accumulated wealth. No matter whether he had served his country as a soldier, statesman or philanthropist, had led the youth of his generation as a college president, had been an educator of the people in school or pulpit, had achieved wide renown as a jurist, had written a great book, had held multitudes enthralled by his poetry, had painted noble pictures, had advanced science or surgery, had created a leading newspaper or magazine! Nothing of all this tells. He is not a "success" because he has not piled up dollars to flaunt in the world's face!—Saturday Evening Post.

Some Small Sweet Way.

There's never a rose in all the world
But makes some green spray sweeter;
There's never a wind in all the sky
But makes some bird wing fleeter;
There's never a star but brings to heaven
Some silver radiance tender;
And never a rosy cloud but helps
To crown the sunset splendor;
No robin but may thrill some heart,
His dawn-like gladness voicing;
God gives us all some small sweet way
To set the world rejoicing.

Slums of a Great City.

Noticing in your last issue a reference to an article, "An Example of Chicago's Shame." I would be pleased to say that the half has never yet been told, so far as filth and squalor is concerned. I have been in the city eight months, and have seen a great deal of the doings of a great city, and what I have observed is no more than any one else could see. There are hundreds of children, from the ages of six years on up, who make an existence, picking up the butts of cigars, and they know at a glance, the grade of tobacco in a stump when they see it. They carry a peach basket, all closed except a small aperture in the lid, into which the gutter soaked butts are thrown, they work systematically, two of the Arabs going together, one on each side of the street, and up the next when the former has been harvested. For these dirty, filthy stumps they are paid from 8 to 10 cents per pound according to quality, and they are made up into the cheaper tobaccos, of commerce and the cigarette. One can imagine the filth on the party collecting them, when they are told they do not wash from one week to another, sleeping in their clothes anywhere they happen to be, and most of them never take their clothes off until they become so filthy that decay begins, and the cloth no longer holds together. A familiar character about Wabash Avenue, (the center of the harvest field) is an old bearded Italian, who is even more filthy than the younger dagoes, so far as bodily appearance is concerned. He has pockets sewn around the inside of his coat, all wao around, into which he puts the butts according to grade. He works rapidly using a knife in his right hand to cut away the burnt ends, instead of biting as the younger ones do. Theater entrances and in front of hotels are the favorite places, but every inch of gutter in the business district is thoroughly inspected and nothing escapes their eyes. This is not the worst filth the city has, for anyone in the city has seen men going through a garbage box for something to eat, which has been cast into a wooden box containing anything from dead rats on up. This is not exaggerated in the least, but of course must be seen to be believed by a great many people, who do not, as the saying is, "know how the other half lives." There men and even women, who stand on the corners selling dogs, newsboys who collect the papers from people who cannot read them, fold them again and sell them once more, women who go about the streets collecting old paper, rags and wood, carrying their load upon their heads; the cripples of all kinds from paralyzed on up and summing it all up Chicago has more than her share of filth. Clothing stores, owned by the lower class of Jews are so filthy that even a strong nerved person, has all he can do to go in and out without falling down, overcome by the stench. Street after street has its rows of garbage boxes, and we cannot help wondering how people live amid such surroundings. — W. F. Kuehl, in Milan, Ill. News.

Hon. John Sherman for Freedom

To the editor of the World—In response to your request I express my well considered opinion that the United States ought not to accept sovereignty over the Philippines, but should secure the inherit right of the people of those islands to form and maintain a republican government similar to our own.

JOHN SHERMAN.

Washington, Aug. 31, 1898.

A Plea of Guilty.

A charge is brought against the democrats and other anti-imperialists that the Filipinos look to them as "their only hope."

Their only hope of what? Why, of freedom and independence—of securing their "unalienable rights" to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

To this terrible charge the democrats stand ready to plead guilty. They account it an honor that any people "struggling for liberty," as Washington said, look to them for sympathy in their endeavor. They are proud to feel that they are descendants of the Americans who fought for their own independence in the great revolution, and of those who sympathized with the struggles of Poles, Hungarians, Greeks and Boers for freedom and the right to govern themselves.

No more conclusive proof could be offered of the great and radical change that has taken place in the character and policy of the republican party than the fact that nowhere in all the world does any people who are fighting for liberty look to it for encouragement.— N. Y. World.

Belgian Hares.

The advantage of shade in summer cannot be overestimated. All hutches and runs should be so constructed that hares have no difficulty in finding shade, and of sufficient density to protect them from the intense heat of the sun. In this the indoor quarters are ahead of open air hutches, although the latter may be made comfortable by shedding. The writer has seen hares penned out in the sun, with no protection whatever from its intense rays, except, possibly, a box for the little fellows to run into; and in case such a box was provided, they would creep into it, and could not be induced to come out for feed, or anything else, until the heat had abated.

Hares suffer from heat. They can stand the cold without seeming to notice it in the least, but they must be protected from the heat. One of the largest rabbitries of Denver has a roof extending over the sides of the building about three or four feet, and up under these immense eaves there is a two-foot space on each side left open for the admission of air. In such a building it is almost impossible for hares to suffer from heat. This plan would apply well to small sheds. A foot or so could be left open and covered with wire netting, provided the eaves project far enough, so that the rain could not enter.

A neighbor who raises Belgian hares has a neat run in a barn that protects his hares from the heat well. It is the width of a stall, and runs back to the side of the barn, through which he has cut a window near the ground to admit light and air to the pen. This window is covered with wire netting. The top of the run is an immense wire door, extending over the entire run and hinged at the back, so that it can be opened and the pen cleaned. He has made a drinking fountain of a keg, which allows the water to flow out into a dish as fast as it is drank out by the hares. We like this plan very much; and if we had a similar building would adopt it. In the construction of the rabbitry, protection against heat is about as important as any one item we can think of, unless it is that of protecting against dampness. To illustrate, we know of a family who bought a pair of fine Belgians, and, having an alfalfa field, they concluded it would be a good plan to stake it out, so that they could eat all they wished. The day was hot, but they tied the pair out in the field where they found them a few hours later, both dead. During one of our hot days this summer we were rather uneasy about some of our hares, so we carried water and deluged the hutch floors. Such a scampering and flinging of feet and throwing of water was never witnessed. They jumped on the boxes and looked at us with such an aggrieved air that we did not repeat the operation. As our rabbitry is well ventilated, we have not lost a single hare from heat.

Dampness is another most important thing to guard against. As the chicken thrives best in dry quarters, just so the Belgian hare. As a rule, this little animal is comparatively free from disease. But in damp, filthy quarters they are often pursued by that dreaded disease "snuffles," just as the chicken is by roup of the same cause. Construct pens that are free from dampness and direct draughts, and you will have little to fear from this disease.

In constructing open air hutches and runs, bear in mind that hares burrow—that is, the Belgian hare does. It resembles the rabbit in that respect. All runs should be floored, or else the ground should be covered with woven wire, and it in turn covered with sand or dry straw to a depth of two or three inches.—Rural Home.

Hair Ropes.

Perhaps the most useful gift a bride can give to her groom is a horse hair, or better still, a human hair rope. That is, if you live on the lonely Island of St. Kilda. The rock scalers there consider themselves rich if their prospective brides are able to furnish them with a rope of this nature. The ropes vary in length, a really good one of 40 to 50 feet in length being especially prized.

According to a lady traveler who has spent much time in St. Kilda, the usual rope is a stout hempen cord wrapped round and round with sheep's wool; over this a lining of horse hair, finally brands of human hair. To manufacture such a rope is the work of years; but the St. Kildian girl saves her hair combings most religiously; also, drying and bleaching the fibres of rough grasses that grow on the wind-swept island. These fibres strengthen the cable, while the elasticity of the hair prevents chafing against the rude cliffs during the rock scaler's descent.

A curiosity collector wished to purchase a fine specimen of hair rope, but the $100 offered was very calmly refused by the professional "egg gatherer." The cord in question was veneered with auburn hair—the 30-year's collection from heads of parents, aunts, cousins and acquaintances. This may not seem remarkable to those who know little about St. Kilda; but when it is said that the population is about 200, and that a good walker could circle the island in two hours, a different notion must be entertained.

Occasionally an accident will happen to the best rope. Imagine yourself dangling in midair, the rope held by two or three men on the top of the cliff, far out of sight. Thundering waters below and thousands of sea birds wheeling in frightened confusion above, about and all around you. Then, when a sharp corner of the cliff interrupts, there is the sickening cutting of the slender sting—for slender it seems under existing circumstances.

If the climber is agile he will swing toward a ledge, where, companion of the guillemots and razor bills, he must wait until a second rope is lowered for his deliverance. If no ledge is approachable the angry foam hides him forever.

An advertisement appeared in an Irish paper some time ago, the advertiser offering $150 for a genuine St. Kildian hair rope.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A marriage license was granted on Monday to J. L. Morris and Miss Emma Lee, of Wide Hollow.

C. A. Sherwood of Fruitvale, on Thursday fell from a wagon loaded with fruit boxes, and had several ribs broken.

The local "knockers" of the State Fair are feeling pretty cheap now. They hadn't figured on Gov. Rogers being elected and now that such is the case they see no prospect of being paid for their dirty work.

Candidate Krutz is said to have occupied a seat on the stage at the Jones meeting on Monday night. It doesn't seem to take some men a very long time in securing a prominent position in a new party.

Local sports who have money up on either Rogers or Frink have been very uneasy this week as to the outcome of the gubernatorial fight. The Rogers men seem to have, the best of it, however, and are inclined to be hilarious while the Frink men have little to say.

The band boys will give the first of a series of dances on Thanksgiving night, Thursday, Nov. 29. The boys are laboring earnestly to make the organization a success and a permanent thing, and if you have any pride in having a band in the city, patronize these dances. Tickets are placed at $1 for each of the dances which will be held at Mason's opera house.

Miss Lettie Kingsbury, who is one of the teachers in the Sunnyside school, is ill with typhoid fever.

A farmers institute will be held at Sunnyside, December 19 and 20, the program of which will be announced later.

The entertainments held at the Episcopal rectory are to be made one of the leading social features this winter. A very enjoyable social was given Friday evening last.

Jim Sitwell, a Yakima Indian was committed by Justice Taggard on Wednesday to the county jail in default of $700 bail on the charge complicity in the robbery of F. W. Spence last week.

J. Weatherwax, a noted Masonic lecturer, will deliver a lecture at Mason's opera house, on Nov. 23. The lecture will be under the auspices of the ladies of the Eastern Star. Tickets will be on sale next week.

United States Deputy Marshal Dilley, Ide of Spokane, and Davidson, of Tacoma, left Thursday night with 28 prisoners for trial at the session of U. S. court now in session at Walla Walla. A special car was needed for the bootleggers, guards and witnesses.

A good deal of sorghum is being manufactured this year in Yakima county. J. D. Simon, of the Moxee, will make some 600 gallons, while S. Bergevin of the same neighborhood will turn out over 200 gallons. The McDermott brothers, or Wide Hollow have also made quite a large quantity.

Miss Belle Yeates is employed in the postoffice until after the holidays.

It is reported that there are a great many cases of smallpox of a mild nature at Roslyn.

A horse attached to single buggy became frightened at the firing of bombs Monday evening, broke loose and ran away, making a total wreck of the vehicle. The outfit was the property of Harvey Zirkle, of the Cowichie.

The High school was occupied on Friday of last week by the high school pupils. They were escorted to their new quarters by the eighth grade pupils. At the new building a program was rendered consisting of toasts, songs etc., the afternoon being spent very pleasantly.

The remains of Thos. L. Littlewood, the man who was killed at Toppenish on Thursday night of last week, were brought to this city Friday by the corner and buried from Whitlock's undertaking parlors on Sunday, the undertaker, having been instructed by wire to bury the body here.

Elgin Baxter was taken from this city to the Medical Lake asylum on Wednesday night by J. M. Baxter, father of the unfortunate young man and Deputy Sheriff Sindall. Young Baxter recently arrived at Seattle from Cape Nome, where he had a severe attack of the fever prevailing. Lack of proper nursing and the rigors of the climate caused mental derangement, and he was sent down by steamer to Seattle, where his father met him and brought him home to this city. The many friends of the Baxter family in this county and elsewhere sincerely hope that under the treatment the young man will receive at the hospital, that he will soon return home fully restored to health.

The attention of the committee on streets and ditches of the city council is called to the miserable condition of west B street just across the railroad right of way. The residents of that part of the city are getting tired of the pond of water that stands about six months of the year in B street, where a few loads of earth at the ditch crossing on Selah avenue would do away with the nuisance.

The County Election.

The result of the election in the county was a landslide for the republicans. The magnitude of their majority was simply a surprise for the republicans, while it stunned the democrats. In a vote of 713, McKinley received a plurality in this city of 187, carrying all three wards, the first by a plurality of 103, the second by 52 and the third by 32. On the office of governor and most of the county officers a large amount of scratching was done apparently on both sides, the preponderance, however, of scratching being on the republican side, which indicated wide spread dissatisfaction with some of their own nominees.

Messrs. Davidson, Splawn, Shaw, Taylor, Preble and Miss Young were all the recipients of a good many republican votes, but not enough unfortunately to give them a chance of election. The democrats felt somewhat elated over the result in such precincts as Ahtanum, Fruitvale, Selah, Moxee and Nile, where substantial majorities were given for the democratic ticket. The returns from Cowychee and Wenas, where democratic pluralities of 30 to 40 were confidently looked for, were disappointing, Bryan's plurality being only 6 in Cowiche and 3 in the Wenas.

The highest vote cast in the county was 2573 on the office of clerk, while the highest vote cast for elector according to the returns it seems is only 2219. We are unable with the figures at hand to explain the discrepancy. The vote of each candidate follows in detail:

There is some very silly newspaper talk about this government still enforcing the Monroe doctrine, against Germany's alleged effort to secure a coaling station in South America. How can an honorable government uphold in the western hemisphere the principle that it spectacularly and unjustly violates in the eastern hemisphere? If we may not be consistent let us have good sense at least—Whatcom Blade.

Visitors From Space.

Whatever be their origin, it would seem that these solid bodies (meteorites) are hurdling through space at velocities which may be anything between 10 and 40 miles a second. If they come near enough to this earth to be attracted by it, their course is changed, and presently they enter our atmosphere. The result is a sudden check to their speed, owing to the intense resistance and friction engendered by contact with the air particles.

What happens may be likened to the sudden application of the wooden brake block to the rapidly moving wheel of an express train. Heat is generated in exchange for motion, and the trail of sparks from the checked wheel is represented in the checked meteorite by a luminous trail. We commonly call it a shooting star, and if its mass be small it is possibly altogether dissipated in heat and gas, or it may ultimately find its way to our earth as dust. Such "meteoric dust" has been found on the eternal snow of mountains, where dust of the ordinary type would be impossible. If, on the other hand, the mass of matter be large, its surface only will be affected by the sudden heat generated, and it may fall to the ground entire or possibly explode and be scattered in fragments over a wide area.—Chambers' Journal.

The Blue Hole of Kentucky.

One of the places in our neighborhood which is shunned alike by saint and sinner is the old spring near our town, in Logan county, known as the Blue hole. Though legendary, the story I shall relate of this spring is true, for it has been corroborated by the former generation, by the older men of the present century. According to this story, when the Shaker village at South Union was first established by a few venturesome though hardy pioneers, a member of the sect was dispatched on horseback to put the money in a safe in the county capital.

When the treasure bearer reached the spring, he rode his horse in to give it water, but rider and animal were swallowed up, never to rise again. It is said that the Shaker's friends used as much as 500 feet of rope in an attempt to recover the body and coin, but never struck bottom. I myself have heard old men say they have tried to find the bottom of the spring by using hundreds of feet of cord and a lead sinker, but without success.—Auburn (Ky.) News.

A Fisherman's Trick.

"One day I was talking fish with a number of friends," said an old fisherman, "and I made a bet that I could catch more perch than any other man in the party in a given time. The crowd picked out the most experienced fisherman in the lot, and we set a day to try our luck. The day before the match I got a large glass jar, filled it with water and put some minnows in it. Over the mouth of the jar I put a piece of parchment in which I had made some small holes. Then I went to a point just east of the waterworks, picked out a likely spot and sank the jar in the river, first attaching a cork float to it by which I could locate it next day.

"We went out for the fishing match the following afternoon, and I soon found my float and anchored there. The other man located a short distance away, and we began. The perch were just beginning to run, and in a little while I had pulled in 180 perch, while my opponent got only 24. Then he gave up, and I won my bet.

"I showed the boys the trick before we left the fishing ground. You can always in that way make a good catch of fish that will swallow minnows. The sight of the bait in the jar always attracts a crowd of fish and seems to put them in good biting humor."—Detroit Free Press.

Plausible, but Failed.

The cunning of children is well recognized to be of a very superior kind, and it is seldom if given a chance that they cannot inveigle their elders into seeing things their way. The following is an instance of where a little girl slipped up on this by not taking into consideration that her mother had had enough experience with children to have an insight into their nature.

The girl's birthday was a couple of weeks off, and her parents had told her that they were going to give her a handsome present upon that occasion. She had been counting "the minutes" for several days, but thinking she could not possibly await her birthday without knowing what her present would be she stole softly up to her mother and begged her to show her the present.

"Why, it wouldn't be right to show it to you now," her mother answered, "because we want to surprise you on your birthday."

"Oh, that's all right!" exclaimed the little one. "I'll forget what it is before then."—Memphis Scimitar.

A Phillips Brooks Story.

The spirit of love and kindness to all which pervaded every word and deed of Phillips Brooks did not hinder his keen appreciation of others' failings and shortcomings or his own.

"Why in the world doesn't Brown write his autobiography and have it published?" said one of the bishop's friends, referring to an incessant talker and most egotistical man who had been wasting an hour of the bishop's most precious time by a rehearsal of some unimportant happenings.

"Why, he'd rather tell it, of course," said the bishop, and then like a flash came regret for the quickly spoken truth, and he turned on his friend with a half humorous, half distressed face.

"What do you mean by asking me such a question as that when I'm off my guard?" he demanded reproachfully.—Youth's Companion.

The Hindoo Dead.

The Hindoos consider their dead as sacred and do not allow them to be handled by alien hands, the nearest male relative—son, father or brother—preparing the body for burial, and if there be none of these relatives a son is adopted by the family for the purpose.

It Carries the Current.

"If I were you, I wouldn't lean against that post. You might get hurt."

The speaker was a policeman, and the person to whom his words were addressed was a young fellow who stood under an iron awning with one hand resting on an iron post which helped to support the awning. The young man jerked his hand away quickly.

"What's the matter with the post?" he asked. "It looks all right."

"Yes, it does," responded the policeman, "and it may be all right. But it's iron, and its surface is wet from the rain that is falling. There are a whole lot of telephone and telegraph wires in the vicinity. One of them may be mixed up with an electric light wire somewhere and may also be rubbing up against some part of this awning. Understand? If it should be, the combination would be one that, with the water that is running down the post as a conductor, would be apt to put you out of existence. I've seen one man killed in just that way, and I really don't want to see another. That's all. Goodby."

Then the policeman walked off down the street, leaving the young fellow staring first at the post and then at the wires overhead. But as long as the saunterer remained under the awning he kept his hands away from the wet iron.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Not Wanting a Job.

When the late W. E. Gladstone was chancellor of the exchequer, one day he was in the shipping department of the government office getting some information and figures for the coming budget. While thus engaged a Sunderland shipowner called to see Mr. Lindsey, the then member for Sunderland.

While waiting for Mr. Lindsey to come in the shipowner got his eye on Mr. Gladstone and was watching him closely. After doing so a little while he thus addressed him:

"Thou seemst a good writer and clever at figures. I'll give thee £100 a year, and that's an offer thou'll not get every day!"

Mr. Gladstone thanked him and said he would see Mr. Lindsey.

Just then Mr. Lindsey entered. Then Mr. Gladstone told Mr. Lindsey of the offer his friend had made him.

Mr. Lindsey said it was a very good offer, but he did not know if Mr. Gladstone could be spared. Anyway he had better introduce them. Turning to his friend, the shipowner, he said: "Allow me to introduce you to W. E. Gladstone, chancellor of the exchequer—Mr. So-and-so, Sunderland." The amazement of the shipowner cannot be described. The Grand Old Man laughed immoderately.—London Answers.

Why So Many Young Men Fail.

"One trouble with many young men who start out in business is they try to do too many things at once," says Hetty Green. "The result is that they don't know as much as they ought to about any one thing, and they naturally fail. The trouble with young men who work on salaries is that they're always afraid of doing more than they're paid for. They don't enter into their work with the right spirit. To get on and be appreciated a young man must do more than he's paid to do. When he does something that his employer has not thought of, he shows that he is valuable. Men are always willing to pay good salaries to people who will think of things for them. The man who only carries out the thoughts and ideas of another is nothing more than a mere tool. Men who can be relied upon are always in demand. The scarcest thing in the world today is a thoroughly reliable man."

Two Straight Flushes.

I played poker for 12 years and never saw a straight flush. A few nights ago a woman in a millionaires' row palace held one and, disdaining the small pile of cash on the table, called for her check book. Everybody except an old bachelor who had learned the game in the Union club laid down. He, scorning to take advantage of a weak woman, said:

"Mrs. B., let me advise you to be careful. I shall see you for any amount and raise you. The limit is off, I suppose?"

She said it was and cast a check for $500 in the pot.

"Before I see that may I ask a question?" he said to the assembled players. "I want to know this—in case there are two straight flushes, each ace high, which suit wins?"

"Diamonds," was the unanimous reply.

He handed to Mrs. B. her check and, laying down a ten, jack, queen, king and ace of diamonds, remarked that she was a very brave woman. But she assured him that her hand was worth $500 and exposed a ten, jack, queen, king and ace of clubs.

"How far would you have gone?" some one asked her, to which she made answer:

"I shouldn't have thought of stopping under $5,000, and I am half angry that he didn't give me a chance to bet, it's such glorious fun."—New York Press.

Powder Burns In Shooting Cases.

"Powder burns have played a curiously important part before the courts," remarked a New Orleans lawyer who has a large criminal practice. "Their presence or absence is often depended upon to determine proximity in mysterious shootings, and they have frequently settled the question of suicide or murder where the fact was in doubt. I was interested in a case of that kind in the early days of my practice and prevailed upon a prominent surgeon of this city who is now dead to ascertain for me by practical experiment upon a body in the dissecting room exactly how far away the explosion of a pistol would produce burns and powder marks. He used a .32 caliber revolver and found that the flame of the discharge made a distinct burn at a distance of 2½ feet, and powder marks were left at a distance of more than two yards.

"Of course the grains were not actually driven into the skin, as they are at shorter range, but the marks were clearly discernible and could not be easily removed. I was surprised at the result, and it satisfied me that many erroneous conclusions had been drawn from such evidence in the past. It is generally supposed that the weapon must be held almost against the skin to leave traces of flame and powder."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Gratitude In Women.

Are feelings of gratitude absent in women? That clever gentleman who does the Private Diary in The Cornhill Magazine is not quite satisfied upon the subject. This is his way of putting it: "As gratitude depends upon imagination, it may well be that women, having less imagination than men, are less grateful. The doctor told me 'intermittent heart' is a not uncommon female ailment." To sugar the pill, however, the diarist says: "In defense of the maligned sex I should like to record a case of gratitude in a woman that left me a little mournful. I had sent Charlotte a book for her birthday last autumn, and at breakfast today she said, 'Oh, thank you for that delightful book you sent me!' 'Oh,' I said, 'what was it?' 'Dear me,' said Charlotte, 'I have quite forgotten.'"

The tomahawk pipe was not only attractive and popular in trade, but, like the earlier trade pipe, was given as a present at councils and ratifications of treaties. It was a pipe, a hatchet and a mace or hammer all in one and answered an important military requirement in lessening the weight and incumbrance of the warrior, who otherwise would have tenaciously held to the stone pipe, which in itself was heavier than the tomahawk.—Smithsonian Institution Report.

It leaked out of the sheriff's office on Monday that the man who shot W. W. Scott at Prosser a few weeks ago had been arrested at La Grande, Ore.

The man proved to be Harry Miller or Albert Parsons, which latter name he was traveling under at the time of his arrest. The La Grande authorities in order to legally hold the man pending communication with the authorities here, convicted him of carrying concealed weapons and gave him a jail sentence of thirty days. A photograph of Parsons was taken about the 11th of October, but from some reason did not reach this city until the 29th. Immediately upon receipt of the photograph it was sent to Kiona where a number of people identified it as the picture of the man who killed Scott. It was then decided to send responsible citizens who knew Parsons to La Grande to identify him and Messrs. John Frost and William Browning, were selected to make the journey, which they did and both positively identified Parsons as the man wanted.

It is understood that the prisoner will return to this state without extradition papers, and an officer will soon leave to bring him to this city for trial.

When Egypt went down, two per cent of her population owned 97 per cent of her wealth; when Rome collapsed, 1800 men owned the empire; when Persia fell one per cent of the population owned all the land; when Babylon perished, two per cent of the population owned all the wealth. It was all done by special governmental favors for "the gilded circle." In the United States less than one-twentieth of one per cent, or 31,000 men, own more than fifty per cent of the wealth—nine per cent of our people own seventy-one per cent of the wealth—and the margin is rapidly narrowing.—Whatcom Blade.
