OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

IN both their state platforms of 1898 and 1900 the republicans admitted the necessity of a reduction in freight rates and their candidate for governor in the latter year came out squarely in a pledge promising if elected, to see to it that the people got relief through the appointment of a commission to have full power to regulate rates and fares. Not only his party leaders, but his party press generally upheld him most vigorously in this attitude, loudly and boisterously announcing their fealty to the principle of state control and a fair reduction of rates. Mr. Frink, however, was not elected, but their party succeeded in capturing the legislature by an overwhelming majority and never had it a better opportunity to redeem its siren promises. There was no senator to be elected and thus distract their attention, and besides this a man sat in the executive chair who could be depended upon to approve any honest measure that was in the interest of the people. Still nothing has been done all winter by the republicans to redeem their promises, on the contrary they have killed every measure that has been offered looking to a reduction of rates. Three bills have been killed by an open vote in the senate and two in the house, while a number of others have been smothered in committee. The representative from this county never lost an opportunity to vote against every bill offered, just as his opponents said he would do previous to his election. But since that gentleman's political ambitions are already wrecked, according to republican testimony, it would seem like folly to pursue him farther. His party, however, cannot so easily escape and go unwhipped of justice. The republican party is responsible for Mr. Rich's record and must answer for his shortcomings. It cannot be permitted to spew him out of its mouth and let it go at that. Likewise the party in the state must answer for the sins of its majority in the legislature.

THAT gigantic biennial steal known as the river and harbor bill, was talked to death in the closing hours of congress by Senator Carter of Montana, whose own term of office expired March 4th. The senator could not have rendered his country a greater service and it seems a pity he could not have been allowed to remain in the senate to pursue his good work. The bill provided for the appropriation of seventy-odd millions of dollars, the great bulk of which was to be spent in the states or districts of senators and representatives who have a "pull." Some of the western men in congress insisted that inasmuch as so many millions were wasted annually in this way, it was no more than fair that a few hundred thousands be included for the construction of reservoirs in the arid states. The coast men scouted the idea and when pressed for reasons asserted that their constituents were not favorable to the idea of opening up new farm lands in the west, which the Almighty had evidently never intended for cultivation because of the fact that He had withheld the necessary amount of moisture. It would besides be a bad precedent to establish, they said, for the government to attempt to undertake the redemption of arid lands, which would give rise to enormous demands for appropriations in the future and perhaps bankrupt the government. The bill was put through the house easily enough, which by the way has ceased to be a deliberative body, but it ran up against a snag in the senate in the person of Senator Carter. He, realizing that the "pork" had been so divided among the senators as to give the bill a majority, determined not to allow the steal to go through and by straining himself physically was enabled to talk the measure to death in the last hours of the dying congress. The nation as a whole is to be congratulated that it was saved this plucking, as well as the more serious one which Mark Hanna favored—the ship subsidy graft.

FOR once in her history Tacoma has worsted Seattle in a commercial way, having wrested from the Queen City the government shipping for Alaska and the Orient. Seattle made a desperate and determined effort to hold this valuable business, but the extremely low rental for wharf and warehouse facilities offered the government by the N. P. company at Tacoma, together with the "City of Destiny's" enormous political pull at Washington secured to Tacoma the much coveted plum and drove Seattle out of the field. The people and press of the latter city are naturally enough feeling sore over the matter, but true to the Seattle spirit are not wasting any time in crying over spilled milk. From the view point of the disinterested, Seattle is entitled to no better treatment than she has received. She has repeatedly sacrificed her own interests by throwing down her friends in order to reward her open enemies. She preferred to have light-weight, noisy Cushman of Tacoma in congress in preference to her own faithful sons, such giant gladiators as Lewis and Ronald. Wilson, small as he is, had always as representative and senator accorded her just and considerate treatment, yet Seattle turned upon him and rended him, kicked him out of his high station and by indirection at least, placed the incompetent Foster in his place. Now Foster knows no will save that of the Tacoma Chamber of Commerce and uses most of the energy left him in his old age towards carrying out its orders. The moans that are wafted to us daily from the bustling city on Elliott Bay can excite no commiseration in the minds of those who know the full record of Seattle stupidity along political lines. Seattle made her own bed of thorns and must needs lie in it until she has developed sufficient political wisdom to take care of herself, which time will probably never come until she has reared up a new brood of statesmen.

OUTSIDE of the larger cities, there is probably no town in the state that is making as satisfactory a growth as is North Yakima. Our growth in past years has been steady and continuous and of a permanent character adapted to the needs of the city. Hence there has been no overbuilding and as business is constantly on the increase here, naturally enough more room is needed. This need will be supplied during the coming season by the erection of at least a dozen more business blocks, commodious in size and modern in design. In addition to this, contractors estimate that from the present outlook there will be constructed in this city during 1901 at least 150 new residences, many of which will be of palatial design, costing many thousands of dollars each. And as for the surrounding country, from which the prosperous town draws its sustenance, improvement is the order everywhere. Yakima is receiving daily considerable accessions from the ranks of the newcomers, who seem to feel happy in our glorious sunshine and glad to escape the biting blasts of the east. They are mainly of the right stuff too, being tillers of the soil, which is the class that we want rather than the dwellers in cities. With its tributary country, all under a high and successful state of cultivation, the city of North Yakima can afford to take its chances and will be able to look out for itself.

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON'S sudden demise causes sincere and general regret throughout the entire country. He was not only a good man and an eminent statesman, but in his ideas of government represented the very best type of Americanism. With almost his dying breath he protested against the present infamous foreign policy of his party. It took courage to do that, but Harrison had the courage, a valuable trait of character handed down to him by a splendid ancestry.

THE legislature which has just adjourned has left behind it a record for incompetence, extravagance and of gross corruption. It has done very little that it ought to have done, left undone a good deal that it ought to have done and done a good deal that it would have been better to have left undone. One thing is certain, it has cost the state a great deal more money than its work is worth.

OUR valued contemporary, the Republic, insinuates that nobody in the "east end" really wanted county division except a handful of democrats. If this be the case then the republican representative from Riverside is placed in a still more ridiculous attitude.

The legislature adjourned sine die on Thursday night or rather Friday morning. The general appropriation bill as passed carries $10,000 for the maintenance of the State Fair for the ensuing two years.

Commissioners Horsley and Lince examined the Nelson bridge over the Natches Monday. The Natches people are somewhat uneasy over the growing tendency of the river to shift its main channel to the northward of the bridge.

Dr. Sloan, of Roslyn, will, it is understood, begin the erection of a handsome three-story building on his valuable property at the corner of Yakima avenue and First street. The building will have 50 feet of frontage on the avenue. The old frame shack on the corner will, of course, be torn out.

The race among the different organizations for the piano offered as a prize by an association of local business men is now on in dead earnest. The following is the last report of the vote: High school, 2846; M. E. church, 2826; Rebekah lodge, 2197, Presbyterian church, 686; Wenas church 440, Moxee church, 260; scattering, 868.

A laborer from the Moxee ditch straggled into town Tuesday and was finally corralled in the office of City and County Physician Frank, where it was ascertained that he had a well developed case of varioloid. The discovery stirred up the city and county authorities to such an extent that work was at once begun on a pest house which was located on the disputed tract southeast of town, where this stranger is now receiving treatment under guard.

Two youths giving their names as Thomas Culver and Jud Orme were before Judge Taggard Tuesday to answer the charge of robbery to the house of Indian Pete at Mabton. While nothing of material value was taken, the evidence was conclusive that the boys had broken into the house, and they were bound over to the superior court. The boys, one of whom claims to hail from Butte and the other from Seattle, were tramping over the country, and claim they were only looking for something to eat in the Indians house.

A grand Modern Woodmen tournament is to be held in this city on Tuesday, March 28 in Mason's opera house. It is predicted that 100 new members will have been added to North Yakima camp by that time, through the efforts of the deputies now in the field. The Woodmen of Sunnyside, Zillah, Kiona, Toppenish and Prosser will be invited to participate in the amplified adoption ceremonies, to be conducted by the Zillah Foresters. Supper will be served and all members of the Modern Woodmen of America will be in attendance.

Geo. W. Pinney, manager of the Portland branch of the American Type Founders Co., was in the city the latter part of last week, his business here being to close up the affairs of his house with Col. W. A. Maxwell, the proprietor of the late "Daily News." A large amount of the type and other printer's material was purchased by the local offices and the remainder of the outfit, including the large Hoe news press, was shipped back to Portland. Mr. Pinney after looking over the field here remarked that Yakima seemed to be a good live town, but that he was unable to see that there was as yet a field for a daily here, an opinion by the way that has been born out by two most disastrous failures.

A tremendous clash between a switch engine and some empty cars near the stock yards last Friday resulted in the complete demolition of a stock car and the fatal injuring of J. H. Jenkins, an Englishman in the employ of Coffin Bros. Jenkins had been helping in the loading of some sheep and thought to save the walk back to town by coming up on the cars with the switch engine, but the collision was so sharp that he was thrown with terrific force to the ground, resulting in injury to his spine. He was conveyed to the hospital for treatment, where death resulted Wednesday night. The deceased is said to have a brother somewhere on the coast, but his exact residence is unknown. Being friendless and penniless, the remains of the unfortunate man were buried at the county's expense.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Alexander and daughter will leave soon for Hot Springs in the hope of securing relief for Mrs. Alexander, who has been in delicate health for some time. They will subsequently leave for some point on the sea coast where they will spend the summer.

The city marshal is warning all bike riders against the use of sidewalks with wheels. The streets are in such good condition now that there is no excuse for endangering the limbs of foot passengers on the sidewalks, and the marshal says he will make an example of some violators of the ordinance if the practice is not stopped.

It is rumored that the board of the State Fair Commissioners will be re-organized soon by Gov. Rogers. Commissioners Schnebly of Ellensburg and McDonald, of Tacoma, will it is said, soon tender their resignations. A. J. Splawn, A. B. Weed, D. M. Shanks and W. W. Robertson are among the eligible citizens mentioned for places on the board.

Sheriff Tucker returned Tuesday from Seattle accompanied by a man giving the name of Crane who was arrested in the Queen City under suspicion of being one of the parties engaged in the hold-up of Shardlow's saloon some time ago. The parties who suffered at the hands of the robbers failed to identify Crane, so his fare was paid back to the Sound and he went on his way rejoicing.

What came near resulting in a serious accident happened between the tracks on Yakima avenue Thursday, when a team belonging to the Moxee company, awaiting its turn to unload hops in a car, became frightened at a passing freight and started to run. Making a short turn, however the reach was broken and the wagon pulled nearly apart before the team was stopped.

Sam Ching, who was ordered deported last week by U. S. Court Commissioner Howlett, on account of having no certificate, appeared in Seattle last Saturday by his attorney, I. P. Englehart before Judge Hanford, who on the showing made allowed Ching to take out a duplicate certificate, his first having been lost. Ching is still confined in the city jail, pending the arrival of his papers from Portland.

The paint store of W. M. Metcalf was closed by the Sheriff Monday morning to satisfy a mortgage held against the stock by W. F. Grass, of Tacoma, who was formerly a partner of Mr. Metcalf. It is understood that an arrangement is being perfected for the disposal of the goods without the necessity of a forced sale. Mr. Grass who was in the city Saturday, is represented by the legal firm of Snyder & Preble.

The Water company is this week laying an extension of their mains on Second street two blocks south of Maple street and also from A to C on Sixth street. Plans have been made for a number of other extensions which will be made this season. Among other improvements contemplated is a substantial increase in the pumping facilities at the power house, the need of additional pressure being clearly apparent.

The Deputy Assessors.

The following list of field deputies began making the assessment in Yakima county on March 1st:

District No. 2, J. M. Brown.
District No. 3, Wm. Burgess.
District No. 4, D. D. Peck.
District No. 5, J. N. Scott.
District No. 6, Henry Wynneberg.
District No. 7, Wallace Goodsell.
District No. 8, F. McNobb.
District No. 9, J. J. Calloway.
District No. 10, G. C. Seal.

District No. 1, which comprises the Mt. Adams country no deputy was appointed for, as Assessor Scott considered that the amount of the exemptions allowed the denizens of that section would more than counterbalance their assessable property.

The Pathway of Man by Edwin Markham.

Lo, man has laid his sceptre on the stars.
And sent his spell upon the continents.
The heavens confess their secrets, and the stones,
Silent as God, publish their ministry.
Man calls the lightnings from their secret place

To crumple up the spaces of the world
And snatch the jewels from the flying hours.

The wild white smoking horses of the sea,
Are startled by his thunders. The world-powers

Crowd around to be the lackeys of the king.
His hand has torn the veil of the Great Law,
The Law that was made before the world's—before

That far first whisper on the ancient deep,
The Law that swings Arcturus on the north,
And hurls the soul of man up on the way.

But what avail, O builders of the world,
Unless ye build a safety for the soul?
Man has put harness on Leviathan,
And hooks in his incorrigible jaws.

And yet the perils of the street remain,
Out of the whirlwind of the cities rise
Lean hunger and the worm of misery,
The heartbreak and the cry of mortal tears.

But hark thy bugles blowing on the peaks;
And hark, a murmur as of many feet;
The cry of captains, the divine alarm!
Look, the last son of time comes hurrying on—

The strong young titan of democracy;
With swinging step he takes the open road,
In love with the winds that beat his hairy breast,

Baring his sunburnt strength to all the world,
Then casts his eyes around with Jovian glance;
Searches the tracks of old tradition;
scans

With rebel heart the books of pedigree;
Peers into the face of privilege and cries
Why are you halting in the path of man?
Is it your shoulder bears the human load?

Do you draw down the rains of the sweet heaven
And keep the green things growing?
Back to hell.

We know at last the future is secure;
God is descending from eternity
And all things good and evil, build the road.

Yes, down in the thick of things, the men of greed
Are thumping the inhospitable clay;
By wondrous toils the men without the dream
Are laying the foundations of the dream,

the kingdom of fraternity foretold.

NATURAL GAS AT CLE-ELUM

A Man Bores for Water and Strikes Gas Instead.

Walter J. Reed made a trip to his old home in Cle-Elum Sunday, to investigate sensational rumors heard on the streets here that a wonderful flow of natural gas had been struck by an artesian well-borer at that place. Mr. Reed on his return stated that the gas strike is a fluid fact of large proportions, and goes on to say that H. J. Spratt, well known in this section as an explorer of subterranean depths through the medium of rotary drills, was boring a well on the place of Thos. L. Gamble in the Cle-Elum town site, in hopes of striking artesian water, when a deep, sullen rumble in the bowels of old mother earth caused him to call for the assistance of an expert, whose experience in the gas fields of Pennsylvania at once convinced him that the symptoms indicated the presence of a large deposit of natural gas. Spratt had some difficulty in removing his boring apparatus, as the sparks from his engine suddenly ignited the escaping gas, and it was some time before the fluid could be controlled sufficiently to allow a four-inch pipe to be placed over the "bore." This pipe was twenty feet high, and Mr. Reed says that when he left Cle-Elum for North Yakima a flame at least three feet in diameter and height accompanied by a prodigious rumble, was issuing from the end of the pipe. Mr. Reed also states that steps have already been taken toward the organization of a company for the purpose of investigating the extent of the gas field, and if found in sufficient quantities, of which he has little doubt, pipes will be laid to the Sound cities and as far south as North Yakima, for conveying the fluid for light and power purposes.

Hop Notes.

The Moxee company this week hauled in for shipment about 700 bales, the remainder of the crop of 1200 bales sold three months ago.

Horst, Lachmand & Co. have purchased the crop of Capt. Robert Dunn, of Parker, comprising 284 bales, and that of George Wilson, of Wide Hollow, numbering 89 bales, at 15 cents.

Chas. Carpenter secured the 75 bales held by Geo. C. Mitchell at about 14 3/4 c.

Growers say only 43 bales of 1900 hops remain in the hands of Yakima growers, and those are held by David Ferguson, who hopes for a raise in prices.

Buyers report a few contracts being made with growers, but as a general thing the producers are rather shy of the proposed contract price of 11c.

Hop factors who are familiar with conditions throughout the country report a largely increased acreage over that of last year, and are inclined to the opinion that if the increase is general it will have a bad effect on the market should England's crop be a full one.

Seed Potatoes.

Farmers if you are going to raise potatoes for outside markets you must change your seed. I have several cars of Columbia river Burbanks to arrive from Portland, and ask that all who desire to assist in redeeming the reputation of Yakima Burbanks to place their orders as early as possible. Prices depend on quantity desired.

Surprised Her Husband.

"I used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription two years ago," writes Mrs. Alfred Clark, of Hiteman, Monroe Co., Iowa, "and the result was a fine baby girl of eleven or twelve pounds. I am about to become a mother again, and I have been troubled with morning sickness and vomiting. I could not eat any breakfast, but two days ago I began taking your 'Favorite Prescription' twice a day, a teaspoonful at a time, and I am pleased to say that I have not had a vomiting spell for two mornings, and I had not been free from these for four months, and I can eat a hearty breakfast with the rest of the family. My husband is surprised at the change in me. It would be a blessing if more poor broken-down women knew of the 'Favorite Prescription.' It would save them hours of misery. I could write more about my suffering but I don't need to now for all my aches and pains are gone."

Worth $100.

"I received both of your letters," writes Mrs. Eva Vedder, of Oneida, Lenawee Co., Mich., "and would say I do not know what my trouble was, unless it was a misplacement of some organ in the abdomen. I was so weak I did not have strength enough to stand on my feet long at a time, neither could I sit up very long. There was a sore spot on the left side of my abdomen which pained me very much when I walked. I lost my appetite, had a severe pain in the pit of my stomach which was worse when lying down. I commenced with your 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' taking the two kinds alternately, and when I had the two bottles half taken I was much improved. I took four bottles, and to-day am just as well and strong as anybody could ask to be. My husband says 'Dr. Pierce's medicines have been worth one hundred dollars to us.' We cannot say enough for the good I have received from your medicines. I thank you for your kind and quick replies to my letters."

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free of charge. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

Cleveland Man Attracts the Attention of Doctors by His New Discovery.

Of the many cures for consumption that have attracted attention during the last century none has come so suddenly into prominence as that of Dr. Alexander Ramage.

Ramage is not a doctor of medicine, but is called a doctor of chemistry, after the German fashion, he having been a Heidelberg university man. Five years ago Ramage's 7-year old daughter was dying of tuberculosis of the lungs. After the father had been told that she had only a few hours to live he tried his ozone treatment and cured her.

Dr. Ramage gives out the following statement concerning his discovery:

"The medicinal principals of eucalyptus oil, made from the eucalyptus tree of Australia, is dineol. Oxydizing eucalyptus oil by means of ozone forms dense white fumes of camphoris peroxide, a new compound, which has remarkable curative properties."

Here is the paragraph which perhaps more than any other in Mark Twain's recent assault upon republican imperialism, wounded the feeling of administration sticklers. It is a fine-pointed analysis of Mr. McKinley's flopdoodery on imperial enterprises: "Moved by a high inspiration he threw out those stirring words which proclaimed that forcible annexation would be 'criminal aggression,' and in that utterance fired another 'shot heard round the world.' The memory of that fine saying will be outlived by the remembrance of no act of his but one—that he forgot it himself within the twelvemonth, and all its honorable gospel along with it."—Whatcom Blade.

Bend to the Yoke.

It is not likely that protesting stockholders of the National Tube company or any other concern sought to be absorbed by the steel trust will be able to prevent the full carrying out of the plans of consolidation perfected by the world's greatest combine.

The power of enormous capital and of masterly and relentless intelligence is behind the $1,100,000,000 trust organized by Pierpont Morgan. As that organization now stands it is well nigh irresistible. It possesses both the strength and the determination to crush all opposition from its path toward complete monopoly. Stockholders of smaller concerns that are within the "sphere of influence" of the steel trust will inevitably find that the best course possible to them is to make terms with the giant. It must be this or ruin in the end.

The Pierpont Morgan $1,100,000,000 steel trust is trustism incarnate. It is the master-creation of commercial greed and of commercialized government. It is the logical and typical product of McKinleyism and Hannaism. In its every detail it represents the sacrifice of the rights of the many to the privileges of the few. The American people should watch with untiring eyes every movement of this money monster. For, if they are to remain a free people, the time is coming when they must intelligently grapple with it in defense of the very life of popular instructions.—St. Louis Republic.

The first president of the republic in the twentieth century inaugurated himself like a soldier, like a militarist, with the mocking reference to the civil branch of the government which the Roman emperors never failed to display, but with a bold proclamation of his love of gold lace and steel and brute force.

A few moments after down the streets of Washington were bristling with guns, and from every direction came the sounds of military music and the military step. It was for the first time evident that a purely military pageant was about to occur. All of the early morning the throngs pressed close to the sidewalks by the watchful police were entertained by the marching and the countermarching of soldiers and the mad dashes of aides in gorgeous uniforms.—N. THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT

NORTH YAKIMA.....MARCH 16, 1901

"Pork" vs. Principle.

By a vote of 45 to 27, following the party lines, except that Senator Hoar voted with the democrats the senate Wednesday passed the Spooner amendment to the army appropriation bill. This turns over the Philippine Islands to Mr. McKinley's absolutely personal government, free from the control of congress and unfettered by the provision of the constitution of the United States.

Every amendment offered for the purpose of limiting Mr. McKinley's sovereignty over the islands was voted down except that of Mr. Hoar, which puts a check on the selling or leasing of the public lands and the granting of public franchises. And even Mr. Hoar's amendment may be finally rejected though it has been accepted by the republican majority.

The World's Washington special says that administration senators received word Wednesday that in Mr. McKinley's opinion the Hoar amendment was "too drastic" and ought not to be accepted. It is probable, therefore, that an effort will be made to strike it out when the bill goes into conference.

The Cuban amendment was taken up immediately after the Philippine rider had been adopted, and was passed before midnight.

The paralysis of the democratic opposition is a painfully conspicuous feature of the situation. It is most unfortunate for the integrity of republican institutions and for the future of the democratic party that opposition to both amendments should have been weakened, and in some cases stopped altogether, by the distribution of fat pieces from the government pork barrel.

Republican dispatches do not hesitate to say that exposition and river and harbor appropriations have induced democratic senators to permit the administration to have its way in its colonial policy.

The Cuban amendment is a direct repudiation of the nation's pledge not to exercise "sovereignty, jurisdiction or control" over that island; and though its constitutional convention manifests a willingness to agree to some of Mr. McKinley's terms, their imposition by moral and military duress will be a shameful act of national bad faith.—N. Y. World.

The Carcass and the Eagles.

Congressman Hull, of Iowa, author of the bill increasing the army for the purpose of holding down the Philippines, makes a frank avowal of his commercial interest in the islands. He is the president of the Philippine Lumber and Development company, and he says: "The company had decided not to invest a dollar if Bryan was elected, but after McKinley was elected it decided to invest every dollar it had."

In other words, Hull and his colleagues knew that McKinley's election meant a free hand in the Philippines for all sorts of organized looters disguised as commercial enterprises." As St. Matthew observes, "Whosoever the carcass is, there will the eagles be gathered together."—N. Y. World.

TO RENEW THE RANGES

Prof. Spillman is Making Some Important Experiments.

Prof. Spillman of the state agricultural college at Pullman has been at Sunnyside recently where he selected a quarter section of land for purposes of an experiment in range grasses. Two tracts have been offered—one by a prominent rancher living a short distance from Sunnyside and one by the Dunkard colony of that place. The experiment will take three years to complete. In discussing this important matter Prof. Spillman says: "We are going to ascertain what the range lands will do when left alone. For this purpose we will fence a quarter section at one time covered with bunch grass, but now nearly bare, except for the weeds that the stock do not eat. We hope to ascertain whether the ranges will again be covered with the native grasses if the stock on them is reduced sufficiently, and also how long it will take to regrass them. A portion of the area under fence will be sown to about 20 kinds of grasses that we think are promising. We want to see if simply scattering the seed is sufficient to establish them. Some will be sown in the spring, some in the fall. Part of the area will be pastured and part kept free from stock. "We have just taken up this phase of the grass question in connection with the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C. We are about to complete arrangements for a three years' experiment. When we have found out which grasses are the most promising and the best way of getting them started we expect to extend the work to other parts of the state and give our work the widest possible publicity, so that others may be ready to take it up when it has passed the experimental stage."

As to those "Loyal Millions."

One of the really amazing statements of Mr. McKinley's inaugural is that "the greater part of the inhabitants" of the Philippine islands "recognize American sovereignty and welcome it." Emphasizing this astonishing assertion Mr. McKinley speaks of "the loyal millions in the islands" and "the disloyal thousands."

How can he expect the American people to be misled by an airy assumption like this, which is at odds with so many hard and staring facts? If the Filipino millions are "loyal" and only a few thousands "disloyal," why has Mr. McKinley needed to keep 65,000 American soldiers in the islands for these two years past, and why does he still keep them there? Cannot the loyal "millions" protect their own interests and keep the flag of their choice flying against the few feeble "thousands" without an American army 65,000 strong to help them?

Surely it is time for Mr. McKinley to drop this humbugging affectation of a belief that only a small minority of the Filipino people are opposed to American sovereignty. The American people are not deceived by it. It is a case where illusion is impossible. By repeating this absolutely puerile pretense Mr. McKinley endangers his large and growing reputation for "cleverness." He must not forget Lincoln's shrewd aphorism about the futility of trying "to fool all of the people all of the time."—N. Y. World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, March 8, 1901.

Senator Platt, of Connecticut, who did not make himself conspicuous as an advocate of the ship-subsidy bill, is the ostensible author of the resolution for the adoption of a cloture rule in the senate, but that doesn't blind anybody. The Hanna crowd is behind the movement, the principal object of which is to make sure that the ship-subsidy bill does not fail when it is next brought forward, as it did in the last congress. There is a suspicion also that this cloture rule job, if successful, will involve the unloading of the Panama canal, with its long and dirty record of fraud and theft, on this country, and other reckless jobbery to be paid for by the taxpayers money. It is believed to be the advance move in the most gigantic scheme of public looting ever seen in this or any other country. With a cloture rule in the senate congress would be a mere machine to register the will of the bosses of the republican party. It was at first intended to jam this resolution through at the present session of the senate, although it has always been the custom to deal with nothing but executive matters at these special sessions, but so determined was the opposition that it was clear the special session would run on indefinitely if it were attempted, so the resolution was referred to the committee on rules.

Well, well! Teddy is tired of being the whole show already. He glared at the galleries, the occupants of which were applauding him, and threatened to have them cleared by the sergeant-at-arms if the applause was repeated. Really, Teddy will have to take something for his ingrowing modesty.

Senator Morgan is determined to keep before the people the fact that it is British influence that has caused and is causing republican opposition to Nicaragua canal legislation. In view of the fact that the Hay-Pauncefote treaty lapsed by limitation March 4th, and in line with that determination Senator Morgan has introduced a resolution declaring the Clayton-Bulwer treaty abrogated. The republicans have met this by declaring that the senate cannot alone abrogate a treaty, and have gone away back to 1808 to find a precedent showing that the house must also act and the president sign to bring about the abrogation of a treaty. This is because they do not wish to have Senator Morgan's resolution considered at the present extra session of the senate. Senator Morgan made a speech in support of his resolution that was one of the warmest heard on the floor of the senate for a long time, in which he said of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty: "We will make no compromise with Great Britain on that subject. We will make no concession to Great Britain in relation to that treaty. What we shall do with it (and some of our people are opposed even to that) is that we shall declare it abrogated. If the vote on my resolution could be taken today it would inform the president that he has no two-thirds vote in the senate to adopt any compromise he may make with Great Britain. If it is the purpose of Great Britain still to look for delay she will not get it. If it be her determination to pick a quarrel with us about it she will find the U. S. can muster at least half of the number of men who voted for president in the last election-fighting men. And she will find, when the war terminates, that the steel band which binds the throne in London, with Australia and India and passes through Canada will have been rent in twain; and with its severance down will go the empire."

Senators Patterson, of Colorado, Dubois and Heitfield, of Idaho; Harris, of Kansas; and Turner, of Washington, attended the caucus of democrats held this week to consider ways and means of dealing with the republican scheme for introducing the Reed rules in the senate and making that body, like the house, merely a machine to record the will of one man. Senator Jones, of Nevada; Wellington, of Maine; Teller, of Colorado; and Allen, of Nebraska—Mr. Allen will retain his seat in the senate under the governor's appointment until his successor is elected or the legislature adjourns without electing a senator—who now call themselves independents, did not attend the caucus, but it is believed that they will join the democrats in opposing a cloture rule in the senate. Senator Teller says that whatever may be done at the regular session, he is very certain that no cloture rule will be adopted by the senate at the extra session. It is difficult to see how one can be adopted at any session, without the consent of the minority, as the proposition can be indefinitely debated under the present rules.

The secret of why senator Carter so unexpectedly talked the river and harbor bill to death in the closing hours of the recent session of congress has been ascertained. He acted for Mr. McKinley, who owing to the enormous total of appropriations, wanted the bill killed, but did not care to offend those interested in it by doing it with his little veto. Carter was chosen to do the work because as he was about to leave the senate he did not object to offending influential senators and he knew that the failure of the bill would not make him any enemies in Montana. It is said that Carter's reward will be aid from the administration to return to the senate, and failing in that a fat federal office for himself or the control of federal patronage in Montana as he may prefer.

Mr. McKinley has stated that he would not again send the nomination of either Schley or Sampson to the senate for promotion. In that case they will both be retired as rear admirals. Schley goes on the retired list next October, and Sampson three months later, and Schley will receive no reward for having destroyed Cervera's fleet.

Chinese Games of Chance.

Ah Wah and Sing Foy, two celestial financiers, were before Justice Taggard last Saturday, charged with running a "sure-thing game" in shape of a lottery, contrary to law. The method of conducting the lottery is that tickets are issued monthly and purchased solely by Chinamen and the fortunate winner of the capital prize (some $300) is in honor bound to stand sponsor for the next grand drawing of the succeeding month. This monthly change of management is a new feature in an old game and seems to have attracted such a high degree of popularity that the almond-eyed speculators fairly fall over each other in their efforts to effect the dealership. Several tan games and at least one opium joint are said also to exist in our Chinatown; but, as was the case in the trial of Wah and Foy, it is difficult to secure convicting evidence, both of those "plungers" having been discharged because of insufficient testimony.

Robert Kershaw sr., of the Natches, returned Wednesday morning from San Bernardino, Cal., where he has been visiting for the past three months. His son, Albert, went down to meet him last week and remain for a time on account of his health, but owing to delay in receiving mail, his father started home without seeing him. In speaking of that portion of California which he visited, Mr. Kershaw stated that owing to the scarcity of water during the past two years, crops had been very poor and the prices of farm products as a result are correspondingly high. Alfalfa hay selling at $17 per ton and everything else in proportion. Over 2000 cars of oranges were shipped out of the San Bernardino valley during the past season, the price in the orchard averaging about 50 cents per box. The oranges that are unmarketable have to be carted out of the orchard as the certain result of their decay under the trees is to sour the soil and render it unproductive. Mr. Kershaw on the whole was well pleased with California but thinks that for a permanent place of residence the Yakima valley is much more desirable.

AFTER RAIN.

The country road at lonely close of day
Has rest awhile from the long stress of rain;
Dripping and bowed, the green walls of the lane
Reflect no glistening light; no colors gay
Has dying summer left; the sky is gray,
As though the weeping had not eased the pain;
The autumn is not yet, and all in vain
Seems summer's life—a blossom cast away!
The air is hushed, save in the emerald shade
The rain still drops and stirs each fretting leaf
To soft insistence of its little grief;
The hopeless calm all thought of life denies;
But, hark, and now through silence, unafraid,
A robin ripples to the chilly skies.

NAN'S METAMORPHOSIS.

A Story of a
Spelling Match.
By Adelbert
F. Caldwell.

She was such a forlorn looking figure as she shuffled along the frozen river road in the late November sunshine.

"I believe I never saw such an aimless, shiftless family in my life," declared Judge Hilton emphatically as he and his daughter Mildred detected the thinly clad figure before them. "If anything, she's as bad as the rest, though when her mother died I imagined the responsibility of caring for the family would have a beneficial influence on Nan. Instead I actually believe it's had the opposite effect. Just look at that torn dress and ragged shawl! If a girl had any spunk, she'd never be seen on a thoroughfare as public as this in such a slatternly condition."

"But think, father," and Mildred looked up considerably, "how hard she must be obliged to work even to exist the family, as Uncle Joe used to say. I believe she has a load of evergreen now to sell for winter decorations. It isn't an easy lot by any means the poor girl has." And Mildred tucked the thick robe more snugly about her.

Nan Hascall lived in the old abandoned mill down by the falls. 'Twas all the shelter Job Hascall could get after his wife's death, for rents were not easily obtained when it was known that the family's one source of income was cut off.

Mrs. Hascall had somehow succeeded as by almost a miracle, frail as she was, in providing food and shelter for the growing family of ten.

Job was forever lounging about the postoffice steps in summer, and his winter watch tower was the settee in the west window of the small variety store near the tavern.

"P'rhaps next week I'll be able to get a job somewheres," he would say in the early spring days, as in a shamefaced manner he went by his wife at the washtub, bent on his accustomed loitering ground, and when the first frost came in the fall he would brace himself to declare: "I may get a chance loggin' fore winter's gone. Wouldn't wash all the time. Better let some few things go."

But to let anything "go" was impossible and keep the roof over their heads and shoes on the many pairs of feet.

The morning after Mrs. Hascall's burial Job said to Nan: "Do the best you can, child. 'Tis all we can do, even the best of us, and p'rhaps somethin' will turn up."

However, nothing had, save the rent bill, and as there was nothing with which to meet it they were obliged to move into the tumble down mill.

"I guess we can live here awhile," concluded Job, "if we can get 'nough to eat and somethin' to wear. No matter if we don't have the best."

After her mother's death the struggle for existence rested almost wholly on Nan. How she managed to get along was a six months' mystery. After that the people ceased to wonder, and the Hascalls lived only in their own thoughts.

"Who do you imagine will get the scholarship and money for expenses at the seminary?" asked Mildred as they were going up the half mile hill before reaching home.

"I haven't an idea! Yes, I have too. I shouldn't say that." And Judge Hilton looked out of the carriage thoughtfully. "Either Ralph Holman or Ethel Maynard will get it. They're by all odds the best spellers in town."

"I don't know," deliberated Mildred. "When Nan was in school, she had the reputation of being able to spell any word given her. No one ever got above her. To spell well seemed to be her one ambition. She never recited correctly in geography. Were she asked where Russia is it might be the longest river in Maine or the capital of Ireland for anything she could tell, and she never was accused of saying the multiplication table accurately."

"But she will not go," laughed Judge Hilton.

"No; I don't suppose she will, but if she should she'd give them a pretty hard push—and might win. Of course no partiality could be shown in such a contest. I wish she'd go," impulsively.

And at that very moment Nan herself was meditating on the same subject.

"I'd like to go, just to show them I'm not all fool. Don't care nothin' for the prize. What would I want of a scholarship?" And Nan smiled grimly at the thought of such a thing. "But I can spell, if I don't know anything else."

A sudden, defiant glance shot from her deep, angry eyes.

"I'll go if I don't want it, just 'cause I—I hate them—the whole kit. George Lewis, Ethel Maynard, Ralph Holman and all 'cept Mildred. She's the only one that's ever treated me decent. Guess they'll be surprised when they see me there." Nan snapped off a twig by the roadside. "And I'll beat them too."

After that, wherever Nan was—gathering evergreen, going after her weekly washing or cooking their scanty meals—a disputable looking spelling book was her furtively hidden companion, from which, when no one was noticing, she selected for constant review the words of foreign derivation and those which she herself designated as having been thrown together in the dark.

"I can spell all the common ones without looking at them. J-u-d-g-m-e-n-t," she spelled. "Leave out the 'e' before 'ment.' Separate looks easy, but some'll spell it with an 'e' every time."

In early November Dr. Randall, a genial, retired practitioner, a man who had won the distinction of being the philanthropist of the village, had offered tuition and all legitimate expenses for one year at Douglass seminary to any young man or woman who should spell all others down in an old fashioned contest. This was to be held at the high school building about the middle of December. It made no difference whether the contestants attended school or not, the only requirement being that they couldn't be over 21 and must reside in town.

That Ethel Maynard or Ralph Holman or perhaps George Lewis would get it was the foregone conclusion in the minds of nearly all the inhabitants of the village.

"Just you wait. Perhaps you'll be mistaken," was Nan's soliloquy after hearing the matter thus prematurely settled. "I don't care for the old tuition; wouldn't have it anyway, but I'll show you I can do something," and she nodded her head defiantly to an imaginary, unsympathetic audience.

"All ready?" asked Dr. Randall the evening of the contest, glancing at the eager faces about him. "I think so," he added. "Ethel Maynard and Ralph Holman may be captains and choose."

Amid intense excitement long lines of spellers were soon in their places. "Any one else like to spell who hasn't been drawn?" And Dr. Randall looked over his gold bowed spectacles inquiringly. "I'll just wait a moment."

There was a slight stir back in the corner, and Nan Hascall slowly arose. "She here—Nan Hascall!" and a titter ran round the room.

Nan's face flushed with indignation. Mildred caught her eye and smiled approval.

"Your turn to choose, Mr. Holman," said Dr. Randall.

"Did Miss Maynard choose last? Very well. Nan Hascall!"

"Spell your best," whispered Mildred, and she pressed Nan's hand as the girl hurried by, her look of anger changed almost to a smile by Mildred's sympathy.

"I'll give you an easy word first." And "daguerreotype" was given out.

"If that's easy, I don't know what he calls a hard one." But Ralph spelled it correctly.

"Idiosyncrasies" followed. Three missed on "parallel," and Nan spelled it.

"One of the easy ones," she whispered.

Word after word was given out until only four spellers remained on the floor, the two captains, George Lewis and Nan Hascall.

Mildred was never more anxious. "I do hope"—She was too interested to finish her sentence.

For ten minutes each spelled accurately every word that came to him.

"Neophyte."

George hesitated, then spelled it with an i.

"N-e-o-p-h-y-t-e," spelled Nan calmly.

There was hardly a breath in the room, so great was the suppressed excitement.

During the next five minutes Ralph took his seat, beaten.

"Well, well!" It was Judge Hilton's ejaculation of surprise.

"Metamorphosis."

Ethel began, hesitated, looked up in consternation, spelled it—wrong.

"Miss Hascall, metamorphosis."

"M-e-t-a-m-o-r-p-h-o-s-i-s," confidently.

As she finished Nan was greeted with a round of applause such as had never before emanated from a Welchville audience. Again and again as it began to die out it was increased with greater intensity.

Mildred slipped on to the floor and gently drew Nan to a seat.

"I knew you'd win," she whispered. "I'm proud!"

"Of me?" interrupted Nan passionately. "Then—then I'll take the prize—and—and be somebody!"

"Your mother was always right smart at spelling." 'Twas Job Hascall's husky congratulation as he clumsily patted Nan's yellow braid.

"I decided 'twould be indeed a metamorphosis when I saw your look of anxiety and knew you cared," confessed Nan the day of her graduation. "If it hadn't been for that—oh, Mildred, I shudder to think!"—Forward.

Blackfish Crushers.

"I have watched the blackfish feeding on shrimp and young rock crabs among the stones of the cribwork of the old pier that formerly stood at Holland's Landing, Jamaica bay," says Henry Brand in Rod and Gun. "They approach their prey very slowly and without showing any motion of their fins and body, and after succeeding in catching a shrimp they would not dart away the same as other fish do after securing food, but would remain still for awhile and begin to chew and then slowly swim away, looking for more."

"The blackfish is provided with a pair of crushers situated in the back part of its mouth and consisting of two flat groups of ball shaped teeth, between which they crush small crustaceans and mussels before swallowing them. The crushing apparatus of a four pound blackfish is about as large as a dime. The blackfish seemingly uses its teeth for loosening mussels from their fastenings and to draw small crustaceans from their hiding places. After the food is secured it is passed to the crushers. When it takes an angler's bait and passes it to the crusher, a peculiar succession of bites is felt by the fisherman, and many a fine one is missed by the angler being too hasty to hook it after the first indication of a fish taking the bait."
