OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

THE approaching national convention of arid land delegates in Wyoming will have a decided bearing upon future congressional legislation. Experiments are about to be made in California with electric power for the purpose of lifting water upon arid heights, hitherto above the reach of irrigation. It is believed by placing the dynamo near water the electricity can be transmitted to pumps any reasonable distance and on different levels of land. Should the experiment be successful the national convention of irrigation promoters should urge upon congress the necessity of adequate appropriations to reclaim arid lands, which could be sold to settlers and the government recoup itself for the immediate outlay. Many large factories in Seattle are being run by the motor power at Snoqualmie Falls, and the proposed experiment is on the same principle.

A new cult has appeared in Chicago, the promoters being known as "White Boxers." The leader who orates on the order at the Auditorium is dressed in white robes and wears a mask. His identity is unknown to but one other individual in the city. It is claimed that a millionaire is backing the order with ample funds for the propagation of "White Boxer" principles. These are to elevate the white race and prevent the influx of the brown men of the Orient, who, it is feared, will supplant the white race in this country. As the Pacific coast will be the first to suffer from the inroads of the yellow heathen, the order may take root in this section, and would if populous as well as popular be a political factor of no mean proportions.

GREAT things are in store for this north coast in a commercial sense. Jim Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan, Rockefeller and others have taken hold of the Northern Pacific directory and the practical consolidation of transcontinental railways will develop a wonderful trade with the Orient. This oceanic traffic will be a feeder for the transiberian railway, with its terminal on the farther shore of the Pacific. Great steamships are being built to handle the exports and imports to and from the Sound and factories will soon begin to multiply in great numbers, making towns of villages and cities of towns at proper intervals throughout the state.

IN arguing to prove that farming pays, the Tacoma Ledger, editorially recites that there are at least three farmers in Illinois who have accumulated $3,000,000, while in the same region there are scores of men worth from $100,000 to $500,000, all made from purely agricultural pursuits.

These statements sound rather "fishy" to persons of actual experience in farming, but if the Ledger can demonstrate the truth of its assertions, J. P. Morgan will have an option on every farm in Illinois within twenty-four hours after the fact is known.

MAGAZINE hackwriters are vying with each other in telling "what a woman likes in a man." It would be interesting to read Ella Wheeler Wilcox's candid opinion. The converse of the proposition, "What a man likes in a woman," would be a fruitful theme. It would be hard to improve, however, on Bobbie Burns' dictum that of the nine parts in a woman that a man likes one is good looks, the second good fortune and seven remain for good nature.

THE head of the Union Bag & Paper trust, Francis T. Wheeler, is dead. He died worth three millions. He was fat, weighing 338 pounds, and a drunkard. Dr. Emma Warne, with her husband's consent, nursed the rich man and he promised that she should be independent for life. He died and left no provision for the doctor in his will, and she asks the court for $100,000, which the ungallant judge refuses to allow, and Wheeler don't care.

ENGLISH society is shocked because of a new fad borrowed from the all pervasive American girl. English girls are now invited alone to dances and dinners, a chaperone being considered superfluous. The influence of feminine freedom as illustrated in the daily walk and conversation of American girls is gradually dominating the old world, to the infinite advantage of womankind everywhere.

TWO notable deaths are of recent date. Robert Henry Newell, widely known as the humorist "Orpheus C. Kerr" (office seeker) was a victim of the heated term in New York. Ex-Governor Dick Hubbard of Texas, has also departed this life at his home in Tyler. Governor Hubbard was appointed by Cleveland as minister to Japan, and was otherwise known as a brilliant orator.

AN item is going about the state that the Yakima Indians are opposed, in the main, to selling the land, several hundred thousand acres, wrongfully attached to Klickitat county. This is a mistake. A recent council of the Indians submitted the proposed sale to a committee of five leading Indians and four of the committee have pronounced in favor of the sale of the lands.

R. F. RADEBAUGH, the founder of the Tacoma Ledger, in company with former managing editor, Wall, of the Ledger, announces that the "Tacoma Evening Record" will soon appear. "Rad," as his friends style him, is a brilliant writer and Wall is a great news rustler, and a lively daily may be expected under the manipulation of such experienced hands.

A TOLEDO millionaire had a dream that his favorite horse on a certain day would kick his brains out. On the day mentioned he refrained from visiting his stables. Subsequently, forgetting his vision, he went to the stall and slapping the horse on the back, he met his death in every particular as he had been warned. There is a divinity (or fate) that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we may.

NOTWITHSTANDING the treatment Mr. Bryan received at the hands of the gold bug democratic convention, of Ohio, he endorses the ticket. While he scores the platform for ignoring the money question, he urges the support of the candidates. This advice is timely as it will probably prevent two democratic tickets from being put in the field.

MR. BRYAN confirms the published story that agents of Aguinaldo approached him during the last campaign with an offer of $100,000 for his campaign expenses. As usual Mr. Bryan was level-headed and refused the offer that would have undoubtedly been misconstrued and imperiled his presidential prospects.

A significant feature of the Oriental business now so rapidly concentrating on the Sound is a recent order of the United States postal authorities. It is ordered that to facilitate mail carrying to the Orient, wherever time may be saved, all mail to China and Japan must be sent via Seattle.

A New York millionaire, in order to take advantage of the new law abolishing bank check stamps, dated a two million dollar check two days ahead. The name of this marvel of thrift is withheld, but the guess that Russel Sage was the person would not be far amiss.

THE arid region of the United States is bounded on the east by the Atlantic ocean and on the west by Pasco. The best immigration agent known is Torrid Weather and the climate west of Pasco to the Pacific ocean is attracting lots of people.

GENERAL FUNSTON is to resign from the regular army to accept a commercial position in the Philippines. The general evidently believes that peace hath her victories no less renowned than war.

L. S. J. HUNT has abandoned his proposition to start a rival daily to the Post-Intelligencer and will leave the orient for a three years sojourn to Carlsbad springs, Austria, to die or get well.

THE two Considines have been held to answer for the killing of ex-Chief Meredith in Seattle. John Considine was required to give a $20,000 bond, while his brother Tom was admitted a bail in $2,500. The case will be pushed rapidly forward or trial.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Ellensburg had a $5000 fire last week.

William Wilhite has been appointed city poundmaster.

O. A. Beasley, formerly of Lewiston, Idaho, has purchased the interests of C. A. Ross in the S. & R. barber shop.

An addition 16x75 is being built at the rear of the new armory for the purpose of conducting an up-to-date bowling alley.

Married, at Zillah, Sunday, July 14, George E. Fox and Miss Lenora Macy. "At home" cards have been issued, dating from July 25th.

The young people of the Christian church will give a lawn social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crockett on Tuesday evening, July 23. All are cordially invited.

J. L. Chamberlain this week finished hauling the lumber from town to build a new dwelling on his Wenas farm. Joe says he has grown tired of the log house, and will build a comfortable residence.

The W. C. T. U. will have a social at Mr. VanBuskirk's, Wednesday evening, July 24th. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake, will be served. All are cordially invited to come, expecting a good time.

The lodges have been notified by circular letters by J. Y. Paton to appoint committees to make arrangements for the big excursion to North Yakima. They will take steps in that direction at once.—Roslyn Miner.

E. G. Wyman and Jas. H. Frazer have formed a copartnership for handling wagons, buggies, harness, etc. They will occupy the new Garrett Bros.' brick, now in course of construction on North Second street.

At Wenatchee last Tuesday the steamer Wenatchee, which has been plying on the Columbia, was destroyed by fire while undergoing repairs in the ways. The origin of the fire is unknown. Loss $5,000, with $3,500 insurance.

F. D. Clemmer, of this city, has been appointed deputy state inspector by the barbers' state examining board which has been holding session in Spokane. Mr. Clemmer is to enforce the state law hereabouts with reference to barbers.

Deputy Marshal Dilly on Tuesday conveyed to Spokane Jim Coy and George Donley, charged with selling whisky to Indians. The prisoners will be confined in the Spokane county jail pending trial before the U. S. court next September.

The local lodge Knights of Pythias have entered into a five year lease with the Masonic fraternity and will occupy the new quarters in the Mason opera house building as soon as changes and improvements now going on are completed.

The supreme court in a recent decision declares the licensing of bicycles to be unconstitutional, on the ground that it serves as a double tax. The decision will not materially affect North Yakima, as no licenses have been collected under the recent ordinance.

Wm. Werlick, recently from Seattle, was picked up on the streets Wednesday by Officer Marchildren in a crazed condition. He is now confined in the county jail, awaiting the result of a writ of lunacy, which will be issued as soon as Judge Rudkin returns from Ellensburg.

A monkey has been monkeying on the south end of Natcheez avenue lately. The animal must have escaped from the monkey-estrian gang belonging to the Campbell Bros.' circus, as he has a penchant for jumping on horses' backs and scaring the animals of the neighborhood into fits.

Fruit growers who ship their product at Simcoe station are very wrathful at the Northern Pacific for failing to put an agent in charge of the office there, as has been promised. They say large quantities of peaches are spoiling because of their inability to ship, as trains will not stop even when flagged.

A remittitur has been received by the county clerk from the supreme court dismissing the appeal of James Dillard, one of the Prosser box-car robbers convicted in the December term of superior court and sentenced to five years in the pen. The sheriff took Dillard to Walla Walla on Wednesday to serve the sentence.

Alfonso Gutoli, an Italian, was brought to this city from Toppenish Wednesday morning with his right leg broken below the knee. While unloading steel rails along the N. P. line, he was caught by a falling iron, resulting in a simple fracture of the leg. Dr. Gunn dressed the broken limb, and the sufferer was taken to the hospital at Tacoma to be nursed to recovery.

Deputy U. S. Marshal Dilley in response to a wire from Tacoma arrested a Chinaman at the depot Thursday afternoon while enroute to Helena, Mont. The Chinaman wanted is Chong Bing Chong, of Port Townsend, charged with being unlawfully in the country. The arrested man answers the description but claims his name is Wa She Ching, of 208 Main street, Helena. He was held for identification.

Arrangements have been perfected for the formation of the American Fraternal League, with headquarters at North Yakima. The objects of the new order are only partly set forth in the name, it being intended to insure the lives and limbs of its members in any sum not exceeding $500. The plan of the organization so far as formulated partakes of the best and safest principles of the soundest and most popular of fraternal and other protective societies.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Guy Tracy, of Sunnyside, came up Friday on business.

F. E. Thompson, of Parker, is a Tacoma visitor this week.

Wallis Williams and family are visiting relatives at Oregon City.

R. P. Hayes mourns the loss of an Ideal bicycle, frame No. 38,265.

A sister of Mayor O. A. Fechter arrived Tuesday from Wisconsin on a visit.

J. H. Simmons left yesterday for Helena, Mont., to look after some mining interests.

Mrs. W. W. Robertson and children left this week for a two weeks' visit with relatives in Chehalis.

Mrs. F. H. Plumb and baby left this morning for Gillette, Wis., on a visit to Mrs. Plumb's aged mother and other relatives.

George Kohls returned yesterday from Minnesota, and was gladly welcomed by his friends, particularly of the baseball fraternity.

A runaway team at Fort Simcoe last Tuesday severely injured Miss Ball, a teacher in the Indian school, and a small boy was also hurt.

Two burial caskets were shipped to Kiona Thursday by Liggett & Short. The names of the deceased were not obtainable, but both were adults.

E. R. Leaving, Mrs. Fred Parker and family, accompanied by Misses Howarth and Nora Plumb, leave today for a summer outing at Fish Lake, Kittitas county. There camp outfit was started several days ago.

Mrs. J. T. Foster this week received a letter from Mrs. Murane, dated at Nome, July 5. The letter states that F. C. Henton had just arrived; that Dan Simmons had been appointed deputy U. S. marshal there, and that the Yakima contingent generally was doing well.

One of the nicest little pieces of street work in North Yakima is just receiving the finishing touches on C street, between First and Second. Messrs. Whitson, Donald and Ayres joined in and had the street graded and covered with cinders, and it makes a good job.

The city council made two abortive efforts to hold a meeting this week. Monday evening was the time for the regular session, but a quorum failed to appear, and adjournment was taken to Thursday, when the same condition appeared. Another attempt will be made next Monday evening.

A thunderstorm on the Cowychee last Saturday frightened a team hauling hay on Tom Fear's ranch, and Ira Scribner, the driver, was thrown to the ground, sustaining the fracture of a leg in two places and a dislocated ankle. It is said lightning struck in the field and badly shocked a boy at work there. This is certainly something unusual for Yakima.

J. H. Clogg, of Brooklyn, has filed a petition with the city clerk asking the council for a permit to build a two-story brick, with 100 feet frontage and covering the entire depth of the lots on the north side of Yakima avenue, opposite the Hotel Yakima. Mr. Clogg has great confidence in the future in store for North Yakima, and shows a willingness to back his judgment.

Go to Keene's for spectacles. 44-tf

J. E. Austin, of Seattle, arrived on Wednesday to take charge of the architectural and construction work of the large new hop house of the Seattle Brewing & Malting Co. on the Moxee, where in it is proposed to dry large quantities of hops on the Bavarian principles this fall.

The DEMOCRAT composing room received quite a set-back this week in having about a yard square of plaster fall in several cases of type. The accident was caused by the overly energetic efforts of workmen engaged in remodeling the floor above jarring loose a big section of the ceiling.

Work has begun on the 100-foot addition to the N. P. freight depot. The building, when this addition is completed, will be 300 feet in length, the company having found its freight accommodations too limited for the rapidly growing business of the valley. This station continues by long odds in the lead of any point between the Sound and St. Paul as a money-maker for the company, which of course indicates the rapid and steady development of the country's resources.

Games Played and Future Events On the Local Diamond.

Ellensburg failed to appear for the Saturday game advertised, but the team arrived with a whoop to do up Yakima on Sunday. The game proved quite interesting for one side, but Ellensburg wasn't "it".

Turnell started in as official umpire, but the job proved too onerous and he felt constrained to resign the position in favor of Abbie Jordan, who escaped from the grounds at the risk of his life after the game was closed.

The losers, as is usual, charged unfairness in umpire decisions, and were loud in their bluff of $250 that they could beat North Yakima at any mark in the road when it came to "playing ball," but a sight for their money resulted in a sudden chilling of the atmosphere around their pile of "long green".

Of course, due allowance was made for their chagrin at losing the third game played with Yakima this season; for the local nine was thoroughly acquainted with the sensation caused by a recent similar experience on their part with the Ritzvillians.

The Ellensburg boys are thorough good fellows, and North Yakima is always glad to have them come down and enjoy themselves.

The makeup of the teams playing Sunday was as follows:

Ellensburg	Position	North Yakima
Daviscourt H	catcher	Wilgus
Gilmore T	pitcher	Hickling
Rogers	first base	Grafton
Daviscourt J	second base	Stacy
Weaver	third base	Shaw
Shoudy C	shortstop	Morrison
Gilmore F	rightfield	Burns
Zetche	centerfield	Dunbar
Shoudy L	leftfield	Dustin

The score resulted: Ellensburg, 3; North Yakima, 20.

The Walla Walla nine will play North Yakima today and tomorrow (Saturday and Sunday), and it is thought that Roslyn may send her team down next week.

The saloon attachees here have organized a club and will give a novel exhibition in Ellensburg, Sunday, July 28, in competition with the "beer slingers" of the burg. The Yakima band will accompany the "gang", and enliven the performance.

The county officials have been challenged by their brother officers of Kittitas for a match game, but no arrangements have as yet been made.

It is the intention of the baseball association to try and raise funds for the purchase of the grounds now played on and equip an up-to-date athletic park. It is hoped lovers of athletic sports will take sufficient interest to turn out and help swell the gate receipts, as the money thus obtained will be applied to the improvement of the grounds, and assist in the final purchase.

A New School Superintendent.

The school board met last Monday evening and elected Prof. A. R. Jolly, formerly of Mineral Point, Wis., to the position of superintendent, of the city schools for the ensuing term. Prof. Jolly was present, and thanked the board for the honor conferred.

There were twenty-six applicants for the position, twelve states being represented in the list of aspirants.

Director Nichols was inavoidably absent from the meeting, Messrs. Larson and Weed being the only directors present.

A GILDED MAN TRAP.

Many are the plans and allurements that Satan devises to draw men to ruin. Money is freely expended to entrap the unwary, to retain the old customer and thus increase trade. The costly adorned saloon is one of the most enticing places for man's destruction. The old, bloated, miserably wrecked drunkard, with blood-shot eyes and paralytic limbs, depraved heart and hard looking visage, asks no specially beautiful surroundings when he goes to drink his poison. He can take it from an old filthbesmeared counter, and ask no questions. The fiery potion is all he wants; surroundings are nothing.

Not so with the tony and aristocratic customers. They want their way, though it be a fearful downward one, lined with objects of beauty and costly expenditure. The saloon-keeper knows this, and those who can afford it, in order to entice customers away from other less attractive places, go to great expense to have everything in the most attractive style possible. The bar, with all its surroundings, must fairly glitter with beautiful ornaments. Very large, expensive mirrors, reflecting every object and person in the room, adorn the walls.

But first let us look at the drinking place of the common-herd. Here they drink, and smoke and chew tobacco; here they spit tobacco juice and toss their quids into the spittoons; and here they tell their impure, loathsome jokes; here they swear, and form degrading, base associations, and here they gradually—sometimes rapidly—pave the road to ruin, crime and a miserable death.

But another room, very different to the one just described, often adjoins this, where the aristocratic, the privileged few, resort—those who want to go to destruction on a special train. Here the tony merchant, the wily lawyer, the trading speculator, the sly commercial agent and the whiskey loving deacons of the worldly church, are to be seen, often with brain sadly muddled.

These parties are all too good, too tony to drink in the common drinking room with "publicans and sinners." No, no; they are a select few; a chosen band, like the ancient Jews who had a partition wall between them and the gentiles. Liquor will take down this partition wall; and the tony drinker becomes in time the most besotted of the common lot. The saloonist knows that many prefer the gilded stairway; but when the bottom is reached, and they look back on the loss of health, honor and friends, they cannot retrace their steps, for they have waited to repent at "heaven's gate."

NORTH YAKIMA, JULY 20, 1901

Gave the Broker a Shock.

At the same time, the broker must be cautious in his dealings with the stranger who accosts and claims acquaintance with him on the street. There are many varieties of speculators, and some of those who drift in from the country districts wearing clothes that would make a hit on the variety stage, are too good customers to lose. A certain member of a big Wall-street firm had an unpleasant experience in this line recently. As he was going to the exchange an elderly man addressed him timidly:

"Ain't you Mr. So-and-so?"

"Yes, I am; but I'm in a great hurry."

"I just wanted to ask you if you couldn't—"

"No, sir, I can not," said the broker emphatically, scenting a "touch."

As he stalked away he was dimly aware that some messenger boys laughed at the figure his interlocutor cut as he stood, staring and discomfited. Half an hour later the broker came out upon the street again, only to run into the seedy little man.

"Mr. So-and-so," began the little man, "I only wanted to ask you if you couldn't—"

"Now, see here," cried the outraged broker, "I won't stand being held up this way. If you do it again I'll have you arrested."

"Then give me back my twenty thousand dollars," said the little man patiently.

"What!"

"I've got $20,000 with your firm in Combined Wheat, and I just wanted you to tell me whether I'd better hang on or sell."

The seedy little man was a country mill owner and a considerable speculator. It took the broker ten minutes to apologize in a manner befitting the occasion.

Better Had Listened.

A correspondent in South Africa tells this story at the expense of the British columns engaged in clearing the Orange River Colony of supplies: Scene—Boer farmer sitting at the door of his cottage; large stack of oat straw in the back-ground. Enter British staff officer. Staff officer: "I have orders to either buy or destroy all forage and food in this district. I therefore give you notice that I am about to set fire to that pile of oat straw."

Boer Farmer—"Bod, I dell you—"

Staff Officer—"Resistance is futile."

Boer Farmer—"Bod would you please—"

Staff Officer—"I can listen to no excuses."

The stack of straw presently bursts into flame, and the staff officer goes on his way rejoicing. The Boer turns to his wife and says: "Dose Khakis are strange peoples. I wanted to dell him dis vas de oat straw dat I haff sold to do English colonel half an hour ago." And he thoughtfully jingled the British sovereigns in his pocket.—Minneapolis Journal.

Dog Show Destroyed.

The Gentry dog and pony show, which gave such a creditable performance in this city last month, met with a serious accident at Grand Island, Neb., on July 4. A tornado of great violence swept over all of Hall county, and the little circus being in its pathway, was literally wiped out. In speaking of the storm, the Pioneer Press, of St. Paul, says:

"A large number of people were injured in Grand Island, several probably fatally, but the greatest difficulty is being experienced in securing details and names of injured because most of the destruction in this city developed at the Gentry circus, which was completely blown away. The cages were overturned and many valuable animals killed."

"The tents were ripped to pieces, and the circus property is scattered over a space 20 miles long by two miles wide. When the tent was ripped to pieces the crowd attempted to escape from the tangle of ropes and wires, and then the seats collapsed. The high wind was followed almost immediately by a torrent of rain, and this added to the confusion. The injured could not be relieved for an hour, so fierce was the wind and rain. Contrary to usual cases, however, the twisting motion was absent and the wind was a straight-away blow. The velocity was 72 miles an hour."

Not the Honey He Wanted.

Frank Anderson was for years a well-known commercial traveler who regularly visited Galena, Kas. He was passionately fond of honey, and the proprietor of the Galena hotel at which he always stopped always had some on hand for him. On one trip Anderson took his wife along, and as he approached Galena he mentioned to her that he was getting to a place where he could have honey. When the pair were sitting at the supper table that night no honey appeared, and Anderson said sharply to the head waiter:

"Where is my honey?"

The waiter smiled and said: "You mean the little black-haired one? Oh, she don't work here now."

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly.—His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by Quiett & Ayres, Druggists.

For Sale.

The Yakima Machine shop is now offered for sale. The size of ground is 50x140 feet. Main shop is 25x100 feet and in addition there are smaller buildings. The shop is fitted with a first class steam-power and have all the necessary tools as good as new. This is the only machine shop in the county and is doing an A 1 business. Reasons for selling are that other lines of business require all of our attention.

WASHINGTON LETTER.
(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, July 12, 1901.

It seems to be difficult, if not impossible, for this administration to perform any official act that does not, directly or indirectly, open the way for a gang of thieves to profit at the expense of honest men. The ink was not dry on the proclamation for the opening to settlement of the Indian reservations in Oklahoma before the thieves had discovered a way to profit under the regulations provided for the opening and started the machinery for doing so. The machinery was ready before the proclamation, as it has been known for some time that honorably discharged soldiers, sailors, and marines would be allowed to enter homesteads through an agent, while others could only do so in person, and the general land laws gives ex-soldiers and sailors credit for the time they served in the army or navy in counting the time necessary for residence on a homestead claim in order to acquire title, while all others must reside thereon for five years. That was all the land pirates, who are plentiful in Washington, wanted to know. They began hunting up the records of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors, with three or more years service to their credit, and to make deals with them to have homestead entries made in their names, and as soon as the proclamation was issued they began telegraphing the names of these bogus homesteaders to their agents in Oklahoma, who will file the applications. Those applications which draw desirable land in the lottery to be held next month the pirates will hold on to by purchasing the claim of the soldier or sailor in whose name it is registered. One citizen of Oklahoma—Mr. Thomas F. Black—who is now in Washington and who knows all about the scheme of the land pirates said: "The applications of honorably discharged soldiers and sailors for land will be many times greater than that of any other class, but I would like to bet that there will not be a corporal's guard of them who will become settlers or even go to the territory."

The only applications for patent that will be delayed by the action of the commissioner of patents in suspending hearings before himself and the assistant commissioner during July and August are those in which appeals are taken from the 140 examiners, whose work has not been and will not be suspended, and C. A. Snow & Co., the successful patent lawyers, say they average scarcely more than one in each hundred of the applications filed.

The popular impression is that the bank examiners, whose business it is to keep watch on the doings and condition of the national banks, are chosen because of their expert knowledge of banking methods. Of course, they should be. But Capt. Andrew Jackson Duncan, a gentleman with a good old democratic name and a big republican pull, and who has been a special Indian agent for four years, has just demonstrated that the popular impression is wrong by getting himself appointed bank examiner for the Canton-Akron, Ohio, district, with no special qualifications for the place except that he is Mr. McKinley's brother-in-law and desired the place. Senator "Billy" Mason ought to be able to make some use of this appointment, as it was made by Comptroller Dawes, the administration candidate for his seat in the Senate.

Strong efforts are being made by the big interests behind the publications, fake and otherwise, that are getting the benefit of the $30,000,000 a year the government loses by carrying at second class rates publications not entitled to be in that class, to frighten Postmaster General Smith into not issuing the announced order defining more strictly the requirements to be exacted of publications carried for one cent a pound. Mr. Smith says the order will be issued, and that it will accomplish its purpose, but it will be just as well to wait and see before giving him credit for possessing the courage to resist the influences which desire to go on profiting at the people's loss. If it be the real thing, the country will know it.

That branch of the steel trust which supplies the navy department with machinery forgings is overplaying its greed, and the result may be the biggest sort of a congressional row, which may show up the responsibility for the clause in the contracts for new ships that makes the government a helpless victim in the clutches of these greedy concerns. The clause is that which forbids the use of any foreign material in the construction of new warships. Under that claim the Midvale Steel company and the Bethlehem Iron company have put their prices for machinery forgings at a ridiculously high price. To give an illustration of the manner in which the government is gouged, it is only necessary to mention one article—crank shafting—of which many thousand pounds are used. This government has to pay $2.25 a pound, while in England the same grade of crank shafting sells for 48 cents a pound. There is no doubt of where the instigation for that anti-foreign clause in these contracts came from, and congress should see to it, not only that it is struck out, but that individual responsibility for it should be placed. Let the country have the name or names of the creature or creatures of this greedy trust.

PUNCH'S LATEST JOKE.

How Mr. Yankes Bought an English Manor House.

The latest issue of London Punch to reach this side has this rich bit of pleasantry about American commercialism:

Grateful on this afternoon of mid-summer was the double line of lofty elms that led up to the Moated Manor House, with its guard of Norman towers. So it struck the fancy of the person of exotic aspect who was striding easily up the avenue at the end of a long cheroot, with a small Stars and Stripes flag under each arm, and whistling a bar or two of "The Stately Homes of England."

"Say," said the perfect stranger, as he overtook a gentleman of homely exterior and clapped him pleasantly on the back, "you happen to know if the proprietor of these ruins is anxious to do a deal?"

The Lord of the Manor answered with a noble dignity. "If you are good enough to refer to myself," he said, "I have no intention of disposing of my ancestral property. My name is Bull."

"Proud to make your acquaintance Mr. Bull. Shake. You are at present conversing with Jonathan M. Yankes, of New York City (M. for Monroe, sir), and agent for the Great American, Pioneer and British Isles Development Trust. That is my card, sir. And let me tell you there is a future before your country, sir, soon as we start in under the Pond with our Pan-Anglo-Saxon Submarine Toob. We are dead set on opening up these islands, sir, but we allow that there are some institutions in the old place which give us a six-holes beating in the matter of sentiment and picturesqueness, doo to age."

The Lord of the Manor bowed coldly. "When we can persuade the holders to let go of their assets," continued the stranger, "we propose to take these relics over as going concerns and preserve them for posterity. We are now sizing up some of your brightest antiquities, such as Stratford-on-Avon and the like. With your permission, sir, I will proceed to sample the heir-looms. If you hev a catalogue handy we might get through with this business in time for me to hitch my private car on to your Down-South Night Crawler. A seance of the British Museum Roof-Garden Cafe Syndicate is fixed for tomorrow, 10 a. m., and at noon I reckon to take a short run west to peg out the Old Windsor Boar Park, where we are laying down our Whitney-Huggins Stud Farm for the Improvement of the British race horse. Things are humming, sir, both in and around your Capital."

A fine reserve characterized the reply of the Lord of the Manor. "You do not appear," he said, "to grasp the fact that there are things which money cannot buy from an honorable Englishman, but I shall be happy, in the capacity of host, to show you over my place."

"That there, sir," said the pioneer later on, "is a cunning soot of armour, Med'eval, I guess?"

"One of my people wore it at Agincourt, I believe," said Mr. Bull.

"Wa'al I grant it looks more at home here than it would in your War Office. Its rel'tive up-to-dateness would jar on the official sense of antiquity in that Bureau. We opine, sir, that we have no place in our Pioneer Scheme for your military institutions. We reckon to keep them on ice for the future stoddent of antiques. And now, sir, I will ask

A Cross Clerk

Is a rarity. For the most part the young woman behind the counter is smiling and obliging, though her back hurts, her side pains, or her head throbs distractingly. The wonder is, not that a clerk is sometimes irritable, but that she so rarely shows irritation, when every nerve is quivering and she hardly knows how to hold her head up.

The cause of this suffering is not far to seek. It grows out of some derangement of the feminine functions or disease of the delicate womanly organs. Until this deranged or diseased condition is cured there will be no relief from pain.

The nervous condition, headache and weakness which are the results of irregularity or a diseased condition of the womanly organs, can be entirely cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates the functions, stops enfeebling drains, strengthens the nervous system and promotes the general health of the entire body.

There is no alcohol contained in "Favorite Prescription," and it is entirely free from opium, cocaine and all other narcotics. It is a temperance medicine, prepared of vegetable ingredients, especially for woman's needs, and cannot harm the most delicate constitution.

Do not be deceived by the claim "just as good," which is sometimes made by dealers who seek to make an excessive profit by selling less reputable wares. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has cured hundreds of thousands of sick and suffering women. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

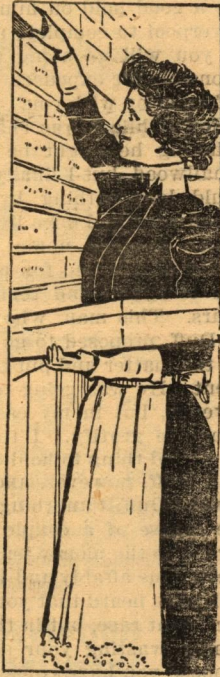

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free of charge. All correspondence private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"A Blessing for Weak Women."

"Having used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery' during the past year," writes Mrs. Mattie Long, of Pfouts Valley, Perry Co., Pa., "I can truthfully recommend the medicines for all female weaknesses. I have used several bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' which I consider a great blessing for weak women. I was so nervous and discouraged that I hardly knew what to do. Your kind advice for home treatment helped me wonderfully."

A $25,000.00 GIFT.

In the past year it has cost Dr. Pierce over $25,000.00 (exclusive of postage), to give away copies of his great work—The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. This book containing 1008 pages and over 700 illustrations should be in every family. It answers the unspoken questions of young men and women. It points the path to healthy, happy life. It is sent free on receipt of stamps to defray expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

you to name a price, right away, for this baronial mansion, with grounds, relics and general fixings, as it stands."

"I repeat," said the Lord of the Manor, "that money cannot buy my family possessions. I would not part with them even for ten times their market value; no, not for a million sterling. English gentlemen, I am glad to think, retain something of their old pride and patriotism."

"If you will throw your eye over this document," replied the stranger, imperiously, as he handed him an envelope, "I will walk around the partures for a matter of five minutes and come back to you right here."

The interval for reflection, brief but sufficient, had expired. The eye of the Lord of the Manor still rested lovingly on a check to bearer for fifteen million dollars.

"You see me, sir, on time," remarked the Pioneer. "I reckon we've fixed that trifle up straight enough. Say, how soon can you quit?"

"Had you been a foreigner in the full sense," replied Mr. Bull, "I must undoubtedly have declined your highly generous offer. But blood, as I now feel, is thicker than water, and I am conscious that our two countries are daily drawing closer under the influence, if I may employ a pleasantry, of the recent Morganitic Alliance."

A Three Cornered Swindle

BY M. QUAD.

COPYRIGHT, 1900, BY C. R. LEWIS.

It wasn't what a conservative old lawyer would call a straight case. I had been sent to London to look up a sharper and make him disgorge for the benefit of the heirs of another sharper. The wife of one John Saunders, an Englishman who had died in Buffalo several years previously, had put her claims in the hands of a New York lawyer. This Saunders had been mixed up in a big swindle before leaving England. Something like £20,000 had been reaped from it, but his partner in the transaction had gobbled on to most of it and had also managed to pull his neck out of the noose, while Saunders had been hunted out of the country. It was the claim of one swindler against another—no more, no less. The leverage we had consisted of a number of papers to which both names were attached. The name of the living partner was Smallwood, and it was understood that he had set up as a money lender. These papers criminated Smallwood in a sense, but in case he was defiant we could not push the case against him.

After some little trouble I found Smallwood and his den. He was a burly, big man, with a loud voice and a domineering way. In assisting to per-

SAT DOWN BESIDE ME AND FELT MY PULSE. He had a narrow escape, and he realized that in a way he was still under the surveillance of the police, but I put him down as a man not to be easily frightened. I found I was right in this. When I had stated my errand, he laughed in my face and called me a fool. Between ourselves he did not deny the swindle. On the contrary, he boasted of the slick way in which it had been worked. He had furnished the brains, and John Saunders was the catpaw. He had secured £19,000 of the money and escaped the law, while his partner had fled to a foreign land with the remnant and strangers.

"Sir," he said as he smiled to and fro, "you were a dolt to come on any such errand. You have papers, but I would not give you the price of a dinner for them. I am solid, and you can't disturb me. Go to Scotland Yard, go to the attorney, do what you will, and I shall only laugh at you."

Neither Scotland Yard nor the attorneys could help me in the case. While it couldn't be called blackmail, it was an attempt to squeeze money out of a swindler. The one interview satisfied me that my mission was a failure, and I bade Mr. Smallwood good day with as much courtesy as I could assume. It was about lunchtime when I left his office, and I dropped into a modest res-try got seated when a stranger who had a seedy-genteel look about him asked permission to take the opposite side of the table, saying he had some information to give me. When we had begun on our meal, he said:

"I saw you leave old Smallwood's office and followed you. Has he done you a bad turn?"

I did not give my case away in replying, but gave him to understand that the money lender had refused to do the square thing by me.

"He's a cur, a cheat, a swindler and all that's mean and contemptible!" continued the stranger, with a good deal of feeling. "He has cheated and wronged me, and I can get no satisfaction. Today, however, I learned of an incident in his past life that will give me a good hold on him. I must go to Liverpool to complete my information. If you will go along and become responsible for expenses, I will share the information with you."

For awhile I was chary of the man, thinking he might be in the pay of Smallwood, but I finally decided that I could lose nothing by trusting him. Smallwood had once lived in Liverpool under another name and had been guilty of a crime for which he had to flee to Brazil and remain for several years. This man, who gave the name of Duff, proposed to go down and look up the matter and put the police on the scent. He was going to do this out of revenge, but in my case I had no revenge to gratify. I thought it might be a good thing to hold over Smallwood as a bluff, however, and I promised to reward Duff if anything came of it. In the course of a couple of hours I returned to the money lender's office. He greeted me affably and laughingly said:

"I have heard that you Yankees are a persistent race, but in this case you are simply wasting your shoe leather. I suppose you have come to make a new offer?"

"I have come about that Liverpool affair," I replied, and I went on and stated the nature of his crime and the name he used to sail under.

The shot told. The man grew nervous and pale faced, and when I had concluded he said:

"How you secured your information I do not know, but I will frankly admit that it is partly correct. I have little fear that the police would meddle with me at this late date, but I do not care to have the affair stirred up. I am willing to make a fair financial arrangement with Saunders' widow."

That was a matter to be talked over at another meeting. I was a bit surprised that Smallwood should give in so quickly, but concluded that the Liverpool affair was rather serious and that like a man of sense he preferred to part with a couple of thousand sooner than have it resurrected. He had rooms over his office, and I was to sup with him on the next evening but one at 8 o'clock, and the matter of restitution would be arranged. I went to the place appointed by Duff to meet him, but he was not there. I had given him my address, but he did not call on me. As a matter of fact, I never saw him again. After he had played his part he vanished.

When I made my third call on Smallwood, I was cordially received, and while waiting for supper to be served we came to an understanding. He was to give me $10,000 for Saunders' widow, and I was to give him a receipt in full. He grew sociable and jolly as the affair was concluded, and my glass was no sooner empty than he pressed me to drink again. Of a sudden things began to whirl, and then came a blank. When I recovered consciousness, it was morning, and I was lying on a cot bed in a strange room. My head buzzed and racked, my throat was as dry as paper, and as I rolled out of bed and attempted to stand my knees gave way and let me down. A strange man came to me and talked, and I was given something to drink, but it was late in the afternoon before my brain was clear enough to understand things. As I sat up on the edge of the bed and wondered what had happened and where I was a quiet spoken man who had the look of a doctor entered and sat down beside me and felt my pulse and said:

"You will do now if you keep quiet. Let me say for your encouragement that cases just as bad as yours have been cured in three months. The great point is to avoid excitement."

"In the first place, where am I?" I asked.

"In Dr. Colwell's private lunatic asylum," he replied.

"Who brought me here?"

"Your friends. The loss of your money in that Peruvian speculation unbalanced your mind. You will be well cared for here, and if you aid me as you should your detention will not last over three months."

"I see how it is," I said as I looked him straight in the eye. "I am indebted to Smallwood for this. He drugged me and had me brought here that he might have time to fix up his affairs and skip. I demand my liberty this instant!"

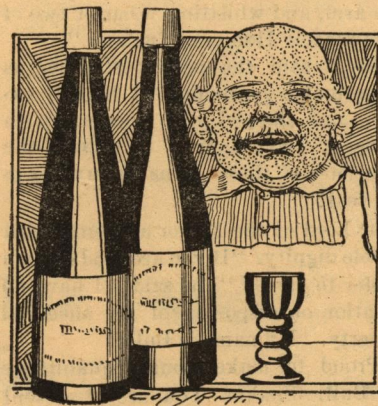

"Come, come," he replied in a coaxing way as he patted me on the shoulder. "I know no one named Smallwood. Your friends in Beacon street brought you here, and Dr. Henry made out the papers. All was perfectly regular. Let us have no excitement. Dinner will be ready in half an hour. Meanwhile think it over."

In that half hour I figured it out. Smallwood had drugged and abducted me. It might or might not be a private insane asylum, but the man had surely been bribed to hold me fast for a time. If I raised a row, it would be the worse for me. If I remained passive, I would be set at liberty as soon as the money lender left the country. I decided to make the best of things, and when the doctor returned I was very quiet. The two of us ate supper together in a small room and were waited upon by an old woman. He called me Mr. Perrine, and, according to his talk, I was a member of a mercantile firm in London. Next morning I was taken to walk in a narrow garden surrounded by high walls. I got sight of no other person, nor could I make out what sort of place I was in. During the day I had the use of a sitting room off my bedroom. It looked out on the rear yard, and the windows were barred. I was given plenty of reading matter, and the doctor played chess with me, and taken altogether the time did not pass unpleasantly. In the three weeks I was in the house I saw only the doctor and the old woman. At 9 o'clock one evening I was told that my cure was complete and ten minutes later was being driven away from the building in a closed carriage. After an hour's ride I was set down in a street in White-chapel, and had I been backed by all the police of London I could not have found the house where I had been held captive. Smallwood had been gone a week—gone no one knew where. While I do not believe there was anything in the Liverpool story told me by Duff, the money lender was more afraid of me than he need have been and had played me a pretty little trick to give himself time to settle up his affairs and move on. I did not go to the police officially, but I did tell the story to a detective on the quiet. How they would have regarded it at Scotland Yard may be judged from what the officer said to me. At the end of the story he winked and grinned and observed:

"What a race of natural born liars you Yankees are!"

The Woman and the Lawyer.

"It's tricks, me boy, tricks, that make the successful lawyer nowadays," once more remarked a famous East-side lawyer the other day in a Police court as he walked out of the court room with a client who had just been discharged on a charge of attempting to pick a woman's pocket.

When the prisoner was first arraigned the day before a central office detective swore that he saw him with his hand in the woman's pocket in a crowd in Grand street, and that when he pulled forth the hand suddenly it clutched a pocket-book. The woman was present in court to corroborate the detective, but the case was continued before she was called.

The aforesaid lawyer was later seen in conversation with the woman on the sidewalk.

On the stand the next day the woman was not sure that she felt a hand in her pocket, but would not deny it. The detective was positive, however. Then the lawyer cross-examined the woman.

"Madame, are you now wearing the dress that you wore yesterday?" he asked.

"I am," she replied.

"Are you positive, on your oath?"

"I am."

"Is there a pocket in your dress?"

"I don't know," answered the woman.

"I scarcely ever use a pocket and I know most of my skirts have none in them."

"Then look and see now if there is a pocket in this dress and stand back so his honor can see you," said the lawyer sternly. The woman fumbled around the dress for a few minutes and then said: "Why, no, this dress has no pocket in it at all."

"That is all, your honor, that is all," said the lawyer triumphantly. The magistrate discharged the prisoner and indorsed on the paper "the officer swore he saw defendant's hand in woman's pocket. The woman had no pocket in the dress."

The detective muttered something under his breath and went away.

"Yes," added the lawyer afterward to a group of his legal friends, "my rival down street would make a grand speech and his client would go to Sing Sing. I say nothing and my client goes free. It's tricks that win over eloquence and the Penal Code nowadays among top-notchers of the profession like me."—New York Evening Sun.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

AN INDIAN'S LOVE.

Had Rather Have the Team Than His Family.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Painter, who returned Sunday from a trip to Portland by way of Puget sound, recounted an incident which came under his observation near Yakima, and which, but for the possibility of a tragedy in connection with it, might be considered amusing. The story has to do with an old gentleman Indian, and old lady Indian and three little boy and girl Indians and the way it is told by Mr. Painter is as follows:

"The train was bowling along at the rate of perhaps 30 miles an hour over in the Yakima country and I was dodging dust and looking out of the window at the scenery between whites. Suddenly from out a dust fog in the wagon road beside the track there emerged a wagon containing an old Indian and squaw and three papposes. As soon as the horses got sight of the train they took fright and began to run away. The old brave manfully clung to the lines and for a short distance the race was nearly even between the runaway and the train. Suddenly one of the front wheels of the wagon telescoped and the result was dire. The axle dropped into the ground and the next plunge of the horses the wagon box and its entire contents were ended on top of the frightened steeds."

"Now comes the queer part of it all. The old buck rolled over twice, got up, shook himself, spat out a mouthful of dust and took out after his team without even deigning to look after the rest of his family. The last I saw of him he was doing the hot foot down the road leaving a smoking cloud of dust and about the wreck all was still. Unfortunately the train did not pause long enough for me to see just how many were killed."—Walla Walla Union.

The Divorce Court.

In the superior court last Friday Bert H. Allen was granted a divorce from Mary E. Allen on the grounds of incompatibility of temper; and on the same day Daisy L. Waggoner, for the same cause, was legally separated from her husband, John D. Waggoner, the plaintiff, being awarded the custody of three minor children.

On Tuesday Anne Robinett was given a divorce from James Robinett for desertion.

The case of Julia C. Hays vs Isaac Hays was heard before attorney William Thompson, who was appointed referee.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL.

Orlando Beck has been appointed by the committee on display at the Elks carnival at Tacoma, August 14 to 24, to act as a committee of one in gathering a display of products from Yakima county. Contributors are requested to leave samples at Schott's store between August 10 and 12. Each contributor's name will be placed on his exhibit and sent with the same to the carnival. This will prove a good opportunity to do a little advertising for Yakima county, as all other counties are invited to do the same.

Thursday was a day for runaways in the city. Two occurred on North First street in the forenoon, resulting in numerous mixups, with small resultant damage. In the late afternoon the team of Joseph Perham, an old man residing on the Moxee, took quite a spin on the southern extremity of Second street, throwing the old man out and severely bruising him. In the evening he was conveyed to the hospital, and is now reported very much improved. An inordinate quantity of stimulants, which the old fellow had aboard at the time of the accident, probably saved his life, as no sober man could have withstood the jolts he received.

A Piece of Good Luck.

I had been knocked down by a cat on the streets of Paris and taken to a hospital. I was hurt about the head and shoulders, and, though I had no broken bones to mend, I was so badly bruised that the surgeon told me I wouldn't get out for a month. Hard up though I was in a financial sense, I had enough money in my pocket to get me into a pay ward, and they gave me one of the 14 cots on the third floor front. It was summer, and I was close to the seventh window, counting from the left.

The routine of a hospital for an injured man is a monotonous one. After the first three or four days they put me on full diet and gave me books to read, but I could not leave my bed, and it was against the rules to converse with the other patients. It was read, sleep, think and plan, with one visit a day from the surgeon. I could not see the street from my window as I sat propped up on my cot. The only sight to greet my vision was a quaint old house opposite. The structure was two stories high, and I could see the upper halves of four windows. The house looked to have been built 100 years ago and was in a sad state of neglect and untenanted. I don't know why I should have been interested in that house except that a sick man will turn to the veriest trifle to make a diversion. I saw by the state of the windows that the house was tenanted, and yet I had the curiosity to question the nurse about it.

"That house has been empty for many years," she replied "and as it is in law it will probably fall down before the heirs come into possession. You cannot see that far down, but the lower doors and windows are boarded up to keep tramps out. I have often wondered if the place has not a ghost."

I fell into the habit of watching those four windows as closely as if I had been employed as a watchman. It seemed that if I waited long enough I should see a face at one of them. When evening came, there was an electric light somewhere which struck the front of the old house, and I would watch those windows until the nurse enjoined me to turn away and go to sleep. It got so at last that I felt certain of making a discovery, and one evening, when I had been in the hospital nine or ten days, the face I had looked for appeared at one of the middle windows. It was that of a man.

The window was 150 feet from me, but by the assistance of the electric light I made out the face very clearly. It came into view gradually, as if the man slowly advanced across the room, and it remained at the paneless sash for a full minute. It was the face of an evil man. It was dark and bearded, and the eyes traveled up and down and across the street as if looking for danger. Whoever the man was he was no tramp, nor had he a lawful right in that house. As he left the window I called to the nurse and told her of his presence, but she laughed and replied:

"Ah, but we are not to concern ourselves about what goes on over there. If it is some prowler who has broken in, the police must take care of him."

I now had something to occupy my full attention, and I gave up everything to watch the windows opposite. Nothing appeared next day, but at about half past 8 o'clock in the evening I saw the same face again. There was more boldness in the way the man approached the window, and he seemed to feel himself more secure as he surveyed the street. If he were not a fugitive in hiding, why should he be taking peeps at the neighborhood? A vagabond, having entered to obtain shelter for the night, would keep clear of the windows. On this second night the man seemed to be looking intently at the sidewalk running in front of the hospital, and by and by he started and turned away as if he had received some signal. When the nurse came, I told her of the incident. She was as much amused as before.

"You certainly have a mind for mysteries," she laughed, "but if you become too interested you will develop a fever and have a pullback. When you are able to leave us, you can tell the police about the man, who will probably turn out to be a shadow."

I gave the windows but little attention in the daytime after that. The face appeared on the third evening at the same hour, and I felt so sure that a confederate made signals from the sidewalk that I took a convalescent into my confidence. He was an old soldier who was being treated for an old wound and was allowed the run of the place. I told him of the face and the confederate, and he was interested at once. It was arranged that he should be in front of the hospital at half past 8 and watch for the confederate, and luck attended him. He saw a well-dressed but evil-looking man make signals to the man at the window. The signals were made with a folded newspaper and would not have been noticed by any one not on the watch for them.

"Now, then," said the old soldier as he returned and reported, "we have a mystery on hand. Luck has thrown it in our way that we may make a few goldpieces. Let us work it out together and share the reward."

None of us in the ward had seen a newspaper for a week. They were not interdicted, but none of the patients seemed to care for outside news. Next morning the soldier went out and purchased the journals for the previous five or six days, and as we looked them over we struck a sensation. A boy 10 years old, the son of a rich iron founder, had been kidnaped and spirited away, and it was stated that the whole police force of Paris was on the quiver. The kidnaping had taken place three days before I saw the face at the window, and I was arguing that our mystery could have nothing to do with it when the soldier said:

"It is at least 12 miles from here where the lad was picked up. He was probably hidden somewhere else for a day or two, but the scent got so hot that he was moved. Don't you fear that he is not in the old house opposite at this very moment?"

"Then we should inform the police."

"Pooh! We must wait for a reward to be announced. Never slap luck in the face."

On the fourth night and fifth night the face appeared at the window at the usual hour, and the same man made the usual signals. As the police were yet at fault, those signals must have meant that things were all right for the kidnapers. It was now eight days since the boy was taken, and as no trace could be had of him it was believed that he had been killed or taken out of the country. The papers gave it to the police pretty hot, and it was intimated that the father was ready to pay almost any sum to have his child restored.

"Now we are coming nearer to it," said the old veteran. "What the kidnapers have been waiting for is the reward, but we must be ahead of them. You have some money, but I have none. You must give me enough to take me across Paris to the father."

It had come to be understood in our corridor that we had some scheme, but we refused to answer any questions. The soldier started off one morning, and before noon he was holding an interview with the father of the abducted boy. The distracted man was willing to give his last franc, but the soldier stopped at 20,000. He got a promise in writing that he should be paid that sum when the boy was delivered up, and then he went to the police to find if there was a reward for any particularly desperate character. There was. It was believed in police circles that the kidnapers were two escaped convicts, and there was a reward of 10,000 francs on the head of either. When it had been agreed to give him half the reward, the veteran gave our mystery away. The police waited until evening and then caught the confederate on the street after he had signaled his "All right." Half an hour later they surrounded the old house, broke their way in and not only found the other convict, but found the kidnaped boy a prisoner in one of the rooms. The lad had been fairly well treated, but had been closely guarded every hour since he had come into the man's hands. He had seen only that one man and had been told that he would be set at liberty when his father had paid 250,000 francs as a reward.

The old soldier divided fairly with me, and we were not only enriched by the double reward, but were the means of returning to custody two as desperate criminals as ever broke bars. It was considered an incomprehensible thing around the hospital, and doctor, nurse and fellow patients were never tired of saying:

"How strange! You lie in your bed and look at the windows of an old house across the way, and, lo, there come 15,000 francs rolling in to you!"

An Interesting Link.

One curious incident in the siege of Badajoz may be related. The day after the assault two Spanish ladies, the younger a beautiful girl of 14, appealed for help to two officers of the rifles, who were passing through one of the streets of the town. Their dresses were torn, their ears, from which rings had been roughly snatched, were bleeding, and to escape outrage or death they cast themselves on the protection of the first British officers they met. One of the officers was Captain Harry Smith of the rifles. Two years later he married the girl he had saved in a scene so wild. Captain Harry Smith in after years served at the Cape as Sir Harry, and this Spanish girl, as Lady Smith, gave her name to the historic town which Sir George White defended with such stubborn valor.—"Wellington's Men."

They Were Attentive.

A clergyman preaching in a country church for the first time was delighted to find the congregation very attentive and told the verger so after the service.

The verger replied, "Lor' bless you, sir, we was all looking for you to disappear!"

"Why, what do you mean?" said the clergyman.

"Well, sir, you see, the pulpit is rotten and hasn't been preached in this ten year or more."—Pearson's Weekly.

Some Odd Mistakes.

An urban chemist advertised in his shop window: "Artificial eyes. Open all night." Away down south in front of the postoffice in an inland town may have been seen this legend, "Post here letters too late for the next mail." In a picture of the departure of the pilgrims from Delfthaven the artist placed a large steamer in the distance leaving the harbor under full steam.

All Off.

Tom—So your engagement with May is broken. I thought she fairly doted on you.

Dick—So she did, but her father was a powerful anti-dote.—St. Louis Republic.

Looking Without Seeing.

Perhaps you are an exception to the rule, but if you are not you have probably on many occasions, just after looking at your watch, been forced to acknowledge to a friend who asked you the time that you did not know what it was. Yet you undoubtedly took your timepiece out of your pocket, looked at its face and carefully replaced it in your pocket, showing a logical sequence of thought and a well defined object, which did not, however, result in leaving a sufficiently distinct impression on your mind to satisfy your friend's curiosity as to the hour of the day. The motion was not an involuntary one, like that of the boy who cannot too often admire his first chronometer, nor yet habitual, for few persons are merely in the habit of taking out their watches. One does so only for a specific purpose.

Now, how may this seeming contradiction be accounted for? Perhaps the reason is that not once in ten times does a man look at his watch to see what the actual time is, but rather to learn whether he still has time to accomplish some purpose. He may want to keep an appointment at a certain time or to be sure not to miss a boat or train. When he takes out his watch, therefore, he instinctively looks for the hands in the position called for by that particular moment, and when he sees that they have not yet reached that point he returns the watch to its resting place, with his mind relieved.

The actual position of the hands really plays no part at all in the operation, and so when the time is asked of him he is unable to reply. In other words, he accomplishes the paradoxical feat of intently looking at a thing without really seeing it.

Trouble With a Telescope.

Continued observation with the telescope of the Yerkes observatory revealed the unpleasant existence of a number of curious streaks of light running horizontally, whose appearance had certainly never been noticed before and gave rise to redoubled uneasiness. And yet everything seemed right with the glass viewed externally and the most searching investigation could discover no cause.

At last in desperation the eyepiece end was unscrewed, and Professor Ellerman, the slimmest of the party, was bidden to crawl, as he well could do, along in the tube itself, and see if he could discover aught amiss. He crept along well enough, so wide is the tube, till he got beyond the center, when the telescope began to turn over with his weight, and he would have slid down on the top of the glass had not the other end been promptly seized and held fast. Then he continued his journey, and in another moment had discovered the unsuspected author of the mischief, an overindustrious spider and her equally hardworking progeny, who had succeeded in filling up the entire end of the tube with a mass of cobwebs in the hope of catching what must have been wholly imaginary flies. The webs and their spiders were carefully removed, and from that day to this the behavior of the Yerkes 40 inch glass has been all that heart could desire.—Good Words.

Waste, Rest and Exercise.

William M. Evarts was a marvel of intellectual vitality to an advanced age, and he used to explain it by saying that he slept late in the morning and never took any exercise. There is no advantage in getting up early in the morning if you need the sleep. Many a man is burning the candle at both ends by getting up at an early hour simply because his housekeeping is adjusted to that programme. As to physical exercise, Mr. Evarts had discovered for himself what our physiologists are now beginning to teach—namely, that if a man consumes tissue in hard intellectual work the way to repair the loss is by resting and not by consuming more tissue in physical exercise. To the majority of brain workers oxygenization of the blood is far more important than physical exercise, and there are two very good ways to secure that: Sleep with your bedroom window wide open in summer and winter, and, if you can afford it, keep a horse and drive in the open air.—Boston Watchman.

An Abandoned Test.

Sir Hiram S. Maxim was once a victim of one of the British war office's sudden freaks. When the Maxim quick firing gun was being tested by the government with a view to finding out its weak points, its inventor was asked to have 10,000 rounds fired at the highest possible speed. The experiment was successfully carried out, but the chairman of the committee of investigation was still unsatisfied.

"That's very well as far as it goes," he exclaimed, "but could you guarantee your gun to go on firing automatically at the same rate for, say, 24 hours?"

"I can," was the quiet reply, "and I will—on one condition."

"And that is?"

"That the government finds and pays for the ammunition."

At first the committee were inclined to close with the offer, but when it was discovered that 864,000 rounds would be fired and that the cost of the experiment would be something like $5,760 they dispensed with the trial.

Utilizing the Waste Product.

A parish in the highlands had been cut off from communication with the nearest town owing to a severe snowstorm, relates The Scottish American. Supplies began to give out, and the minister was much perturbed in mind as his snuffbox was quite empty. The Sabbath came round. How was he to get through his discourse without the aid of his usual stimulant? He appealed to his faithful henchman, the sexton. Alas, he was in a similar unsatisfactory predicament! How was it to be remedied? Andrew shook his head, thought long and suddenly disappeared. Presently he returned with something resembling snuff wrapped carefully in paper. The minister took a hearty pinch or two and then asked:

"Where did you get it, Andrew?"

"Please, sir, I just went and swept the pulpit out," was the reply.

Fair Sized.

"No," said the retired showman, "I won't say that we had the biggest giant that ever happened, but it is a solemn fact what I am going to tell you. This giant had a pen-hance, or whatever you call it, for trying new styles of whiskers."

"M-hm."

"Well, when he wanted a new style laid out he had to send for a landscape gardener."—Indianapolis Press.

Toads Inclosed In Rock.

The Rev. W. Buckland, from experiments on toads in holes of oolitic limestone and sandstone covered with glass, finds that, while limestone preserved them alive, sandstone killed them. His conclusion is that unless a toad imprisoned in a stone gets a little air it cannot live a year, and unless it gets food it cannot live two years.—London Globe.
