

District Land Offices in Various States," and Commissioners of the General Land Office and Directors of the Bureau of Land Management.

STRANGERS ON THE LAND, by Click Relander, is subtitled "A historiette — of a longer story of the Yakima Indian Nation's efforts to survive against great odds." It was published by the Yakima Tribe (1962) and is available from them at Box 632, Yakima Indian Agency, Toppenish, Washington for $2.25. It contains information on the Yakima Indian War, some Indian legends including the origin of the horse; description of land occupied by the Yakimas; Chief Kamiakin; the allotment act, homesteading and irrigation; treaties; tribal government and the Yakima police force.

THE WESTFALL COUNTRY: THE STORY OF AN EASTERN OREGON COMMUNITY AND THE PEOPLE WHO SETTLED AND LIVED THERE, by Earl R. Smith (Exposition Press, New York, 1963), includes the author's experiences in eastern Oregon about 1910-20, a description of people, towns, ranches and activities in the Bully Creek drainage. Those who enjoyed reading Earl Smith's article on Westfall in the December, 1962 Quarterly, may want to enjoy the whole of his book, with illustrations and the additional material he gives on families who pioneered the area. Available postpaid from the author for $6.25, at 2020 Jewell Lane, Redding, California, 96001.

Old photos illustrate the Fort Vancouver Historical Society's 1963 edition of CLARK COUNTY HISTORY, edited by Roy F. Jones. Among articles are: "Postmarked Washington," Clark and Skamania County post offices, by Guy Reed Ramsey, with indexes; "Chinookan Religion," by Wilson K. Peery; "Boyhood Days on the Columbia," by Alphonse L. Parmantier; "Davis Ferry and Pekin," by Ruth Erickson; "Building Our Roads," an interview with Walter A. Schwartz; "A Vignette of Fort Vancouver History," by Howard J. Burnham; "Entertainment, Western Style," by Grace C. Jones.

The cattle raising issue of THE SISKIYOU PIONEER, 1963 (Vol. 3, No. 6), illustrated with historic photos, from the Siskiyou County Historical Society, includes: "Journal of the Route from Table Rock, Shasta Valley to John Day River . . .," diary of R. M. Martin, dated May-December, 1864; "Half A Century of Cattle-Raising—Half A Century Ago . . .," by Willard Stone; articles on early settlers who raised cattle, pioneer stockmen and ranchers; "The Original Owners of Klamath Hot Springs," by Lottie Beswick; information on Siskiyou County "Cattleman of the Year," 1955-62.

HOW SILENTLY—A HISTORY OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH OF THE BIG BEND MISSIONS AND ST. ANNE CHURCH, MEDICAL LAKE, by Rev. Edward J. Kowrach (Medical Lake, Washington, 1963), includes a map, bibliography, illustrations and index (94 pages). It contains some history of the Medical Lake, Washington, area, early settlement there in the 1880s and beginning of Catholic churches, outstanding members and priests. Available from the author for $1.40 postpaid, at Box 125, Medical Lake, Washington.

News Notes

Milton-Freewater Population Growth, and Hermiston Oregon Population Growth, two 1962 publications of the University of Oregon Bureau of Municipal Research and Service, include some historical material on the growth of the towns.

The May 10, 1963 Bulletin of the Portland City Club has a "Report on Graduate Education and Research Facilities for Metropolitan Portland."

Historical photos are included in 50 Esco Years, history of the Electric Steel Foundry established in 1913 by C. F. Swigert and sons.

In "More Banking Anecdotes from Yesterday," in the Oregon Business Review, January 1963, O. K. Burrell gives a history of "The Northwestern Marriage Insurance Company," and information on the effects of banking legislation of 1907 and earlier court rulings. The Myers brothers, F. N., M. S. and H. S., incorporated twenty-two banks shortly after their arrival in Oregon in 1906. The same author has "Pack Train Banker of the Inland Empire," about Levi Ankeny, in the June 1963 issue.

William J. Betts discusses Asahel Curtis in "Pioneer Photographer's work Lives On," in the Sunday Seattle Times Magazine, July 28, 1963.

The Spring 1963 issue of The Call Number reproduces 1910-25 photos from Angelus Studio negatives under the title "Portland Portrait: A Photographic Essay."

Some history of Battery A (dating back to 1866), "the oldest artillery unit in the West," appears in the February 1, 1963 Oregonian under the title, "Veteran Artillery Unit to Gather for 97th Annual Group Reunion."

"Unnoticed Centennial," in the January 19 Oregonian, recalls the Mullan Road between Forts Walla Walla and Benton, completed August 1862.

Restrictive Oregon laws of the 1860s relative to Chinese are discussed by Allen Morrison in the Salem Oregon Statesman, March 17.

Another story by the same writer in the January 27 Statesman describes the explosion of the Willamette River steamer Gazelle on April 8, 1854.

Peter Thompson writes the editor of the Oregon City Enterprise-Courier, in the April 10 issue, about the sternwheeler Henderson, now beached at Columbia City.

According to Lester L. Schilling in the April 7 McMinnville News-Register, actor Stephen C. Massett "... Found Oregon Lacked Refinement" in the 1850s.

In "Edward Mead, Among the Last of the Northwest Barnstormers," in the Medford Mail Tribune, February 24, Arthur S. Taylor quotes from Mead's Doubling Back.

Homer Davenport is the subject of Evelyn Gaffey's "County Lad Found Fame with Pen," in the February 16 Salem Capital Journal.

The Bend Bulletin of February 19 has a story about Andrew Wiley, Linn County settler who made many hunting trips across the Cascades into central Oregon. The Wiley Trail is now called the Santiam Pass route.

Report of Pacific University's celebration of the centennial of the

News Notes

Milton-Freewater Population Growth, and Hermiston Oregon Population Growth, two 1962 publications of the University of Oregon Bureau of Municipal Research and Service, include some historical material on the growth of the towns.

The May 10, 1963 Bulletin of the Portland City Club has a "Report on Graduate Education and Research Facilities for Metropolitan Portland."

Historical photos are included in 50 Esco Years, history of the Electric Steel Foundry established in 1913 by C. F. Swigert and sons.

In "More Banking Anecdotes from Yesterday," in the Oregon Business Review, January 1963, O. K. Burrell gives a history of "The Northwestern Marriage Insurance Company," and information on the effects of banking legislation of 1907 and earlier court rulings. The Myers brothers, F. N., M. S. and H. S., incorporated twenty-two banks shortly after their arrival in Oregon in 1906. The same author has "Pack Train Banker of the Inland Empire," about Levi Ankeny, in the June 1963 issue.

William J. Betts discusses Asahel Curtis in "Pioneer Photographer's work Lives On," in the Sunday Seattle Times Magazine, July 28, 1963.

The Spring 1963 issue of The Call Number reproduces 1910-25 photos from Angelus Studio negatives under the title "Portland Portrait: A Photographic Essay."

Some history of Battery A (dating back to 1866), "the oldest artillery unit in the West," appears in the February 1, 1963 Oregonian under the title, "Veteran Artillery Unit to Gather for 97th Annual Group Reunion."

"Unnoticed Centennial," in the January 19 Oregonian, recalls the Mullan Road between Forts Walla Walla and Benton, completed August 1862.

Restrictive Oregon laws of the 1860s relative to Chinese are discussed by Allen Morrison in the Salem Oregon Statesman, March 17.

Another story by the same writer in the January 27 Statesman describes the explosion of the Willamette River steamer Gazelle on April 8, 1854.

Peter Thompson writes the editor of the Oregon City Enterprise-Courier, in the April 10 issue, about the sternwheeler Henderson, now beached at Columbia City.

According to Lester L. Schilling in the April 7 McMinnville News-Register, actor Stephen C. Massett "... Found Oregon Lacked Refinement" in the 1850s.

In "Edward Mead, Among the Last of the Northwest Barnstormers," in the Medford Mail Tribune, February 24, Arthur S. Taylor quotes from Mead's Doubling Back.

Homer Davenport is the subject of Evelyn Gaffey's "County Lad Found Fame with Pen," in the February 16 Salem Capital Journal.

The Bend Bulletin of February 19 has a story about Andrew Wiley, Linn County settler who made many hunting trips across the Cascades into central Oregon. The Wiley Trail is now called the Santiam Pass route.

Report of Pacific University's celebration of the centennial of the District Land Offices in Various States," and Commissioners of the General Land Office and Directors of the Bureau of Land Management.

STRANGERS ON THE LAND, by Click Relander, is subtitled "A historiette —of a longer story of the Yakima Indian Nation's efforts to survive against great odds." It was published by the Yakima Tribe (1962) and is available from them at Box 632, Yakima Indian Agency, Toppenish, Washington for $2.25. It contains information on the Yakima Indian War, some Indian legends including the origin of the horse; description of land occupied by the Yakimas; Chief Kamiakin; the allotment act, homesteading and irrigation; treaties; tribal government and the Yakima police force.

THE WESTFALL COUNTRY: THE STORY OF AN EASTERN OREGON COMMUNITY AND THE PEOPLE WHO SETTLED AND LIVED THERE, by Earl R. Smith (Exposition Press, New York, 1963), includes the author's experiences in eastern Oregon about 1910-20, a description of people, towns, ranches and activities in the Bully Creek drainage. Those who enjoyed reading Earl Smith's article on Westfall in the December, 1962 Quarterly, may want to enjoy the whole of his book, with illustrations and the additional material he gives on families who pioneered the area. Available postpaid from the author for $6.25, at 2020 Jewell Lane, Redding, California, 96001.

Old photos illustrate the Fort Vancouver Historical Society's 1963 edition of CLARK COUNTY HISTORY, edited by Roy F. Jones. Among articles are: "Postmarked Washington," Clark and Skamania County post offices, by Guy Reed Ramsey, with indexes; "Chinookan Religion," by Wilson K. Peery; "Boyhood Days on the Columbia," by Alphonse L. Parmantier; "Davis Ferry and Pekin," by Ruth Erickson; "Building Our Roads," an interview with Walter A. Schwartz; "A Vignette of Fort Vancouver History," by Howard J. Burnham; "Entertainment, Western Style," by Grace C. Jones.

The cattle raising issue of THE SISKIYOU PIONEER, 1963 (Vol. 3, No. 6), illustrated with historic photos, from the Siskiyou County Historical Society, includes: "Journal of the Route from Table Rock, Shasta Valley to John Day River . . .," diary of R. M. Martin, dated May-December, 1864; "Half A Century of Cattle-Raising—Half A Century Ago . . .," by Willard Stone; articles on early settlers who raised cattle, pioneer stockmen and ranchers; "The Original Owners of Klamath Hot Springs," by Lottie Beswick; information on Siskiyou County "Cattleman of the Year," 1955-62.

HOW SILENTLY—A HISTORY OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH OF THE BIG BEND MISSIONS AND ST. ANNE CHURCH, MEDICAL LAKE, by Rev. Edward J. Kowrach (Medical Lake, Washington, 1963), includes a map, bibliography, illustrations and index (94 pages). It contains some history of the Medical Lake, Washington, area, early settlement there in the 1880s and beginning of Catholic churches, outstanding members and priests. Available from the author for $1.40 postpaid, at Box 125, Medical Lake, Washington.