OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

THE democratic state convention which convened in Spokane on the 19th, was long odds the most largely attended and enthusiastic delegate convention that has ever yet met in this state. The vigorous, though for the most part good natured, contest that was up for settlement between the two factions in King county was to some extent responsible perhaps for the unusual interest in the meeting; but the great enthusiasm manifested, and the confidence expressed by delegates from all sections of the state that "Bryan is going to win" was the most notable feature of the gathering. The convention unwillingly was forced to accept the unpleasant duty of deciding who were the rightful set of delegates from King county, and although the Hart delegation was credited with being "regular" and the Godwinites "bolters," the convention sitting in its capacity as a court of justice, was obliged to decide in favor of the latter. It has since been frequently asserted that this decision establishes a bad precedent, and it must be admitted that such is the case, but in the King county contest it was quite impossible on the evidence submitted for the convention to rule otherwise. Sharp practice in the matter of manipulating primaries for the purpose of controlling a party organization is peculiarly a republican trick and cannot be countenanced or condoned by the new democracy, and is a warning to over ambitious politicians in this state not to attempt it again in the future. The unseated delegation was made up of old time democrats, however, who took their defeat gracefully, and intimations that they will bolt the ticket in the future in order to get even, are not only groundless, but are an insult to the gentlemen that made up the Hart delegation, which included some of the most eminent democrats in the state. The delegation elected to the national convention at Kansas City, will without a doubt prove a harmonious one—differing in that respect with the one selected four years ago. The platform adopted by the convention is a splendid statement of the position on great public questions taken by the party in this state. The emphatic endorsement of the Chicago platform and the planks opposing trusts, imperialism and the invasion of this state by hordes of Japanese laborers, will no doubt meet the approbation of the majority of the right thinking citizens of the state of Washington.

JAMES Creelman, one of the ablest and most brilliant newspaper writers in the United States, in discussing the public and private character of Mr. Bryan, uses the following language: "There is something about Mr. Bryan that makes all who associate with him more ready to make sacrifices, more indifferent to mere abuse and more intensely and peculiarly American. There are no secrets in his life. To be with him is like walking on the seashore in the sunlight. At forty he has still the unsullied ideals, the unbroken faith of a boy. And any man may be his comrade if he will; nay his brother. He loves literature rather than art; the trout stream rather than the theater; the farm more than the city; the small church rather than the cathedral. He loves men more than books and books more than money. I have heard him talk of his enemies without a word of bitterness. I have heard him defend McKinley from unjust attacks. He loathes and avoids personalities or abuse in conversation. The very simplicity of his life and speech is a corollary of his native dignity, and like Lincoln his peculiarities are the signs of his pure and undiluted Americanism. Four years ago Mr. Bryan was a western man. Today he is national—almost international. Then he was an agitator; now he is a statesman. His life and conduct are based on what he believes to be the truth, and nothing can induce him to abandon a cause if he believes it to be righteous."

THE editor of this paper fully appreciates the honor that was conferred upon him by his fellow democrats at the recent convention at Spokane, and the responsibilities of the position as well. The position of delegate to a national convention, while in no sense a lucrative place, has always been esteemed a highly honorable one and the fact that a multiplicity of candidates usually offer themselves for the few places is pretty good evidence that they don't mind the expense. So far as we are concerned, we frankly admit that the expenses involved will probably much more than offset any honor that may attach to the position, but under the circumstances we are willing to blow ourselves (if we may be pardoned for using that expression) in order that we may contribute our mite towards the object in view, of keeping the great democratic party true to the fundamental principles which the mighty Jefferson constructed for its use just a hundred years ago; principles which have been reincarnated and given new life and meaning by the ablest of a long line of successors in party leadership. We refer, of course, to the matchless Bryan.

THE management of the Northern Pacific Railway company has shown a most commendable spirit in the recent announcement of the passenger department that a cut of one cent per mile will be made on all local passenger travel on the lines within the states of Washington and Oregon.

The new rate, which is a flat reduction to three cents per mile, goes into effect on July 1st, and will doubtless have the effect of giving a great impetus to travel within the territory named. A great deal of credit is due the present management of the road for the disposition that has been shown to deal fairly with the public, for it should be borne in mind that this proposed reduction from the present rate of four cents a mile is entirely a voluntary act on the part of the company and is the second reduction that has been made in the coast passenger tariff within the space of fifteen months—the rate having been reduced in April, 1899, from five to four cents per mile. Thus the late cut leaves the fare at but little more than one-half of what it formerly was, and makes a rate equally as low as obtains in most of the densely settled states of the east. In addition, a double train service has been inaugurated on the main line. By giving the public an improved and better service and at the same time a reduction of twenty-five per cent, in fares, the new company has shown a disposition to do the right thing by its patrons, which policy it will doubtless find always pays better in the end.

THE supreme court of the United States on Monday destroyed the last lingering hope of Taylor, the usurper who claimed to be the governor of Kentucky. Thus ends in ignominy the public career of this weak and over ambitious man, who rather than obey the mandates of law, requiring him to abandon his pretensions, chose to invite murder breeding anarchy—a veritable reign of terror. Taylor is now politically dead, Goebel, his murdered rival lies mouldering in his grave and the angel of peace hovers again over the green fields of old Kentucky.

THE DEMOCRAT man embraces this opportunity of returning thanks to the democracy of Yakima county and of the state, but particularly to the home delegation, for the loyal and unwavering support given him in the late canvass. We may also indulge the hope that in the future our good friends will not regret having done so.

GOV. Rogers, in the exercise of his constitutional duty, has seen fit to appoint Hon. Bill White to the vacancy on the supreme bench. The appointment reflects a good deal of credit on the Hon. Bill, but very little on his excellency.

THE Confederation of Woman's Clubs of the state, will meet in this city next week in annual convention. Yakima extends the ladies a hearty welcome.

PERSONAL MENTION

George Farrah, wife and child spent the week visiting relatives at Ellensburg.

Dr. and Mrs. P. Frank left on the delayed train Monday evening for California.

Miss Ella Estes, who has been seriously ill for the past three weeks is now convalescent.

Mrs. N. S. Johnson, of the Hotel Yakima, was registered at the leading Seattle hotel on Thursday.

Mrs. Vestal Snyder is entertaining Mrs. Wm. Harrison, of Spokane, and Mrs. A. G. Angus of Tacoma.

J. H. Junette, of Tacoma, one of the guards of the Ranier forest reserve, is the guest of the Hotel Bartholet.

Mrs. A. J. Splawn and little son, of the Cowichie left Wednesday for Ellensburg on a visit to relatives and friends.

R. H. Denny, of Seattle, treasurer and manager of the Washington Irrigation company was in the city early in the week.

Jay Lynch, Indian agent on the Yakima reservation returned Monday from a business trip to the eastern part of the state.

Nels Short, while breaking a cayuse to ride on Saturday evening, received some minor bruises about the head and face which will mar his good looks for some time to come.

B. L. Bogart, a wealthy and prominent attorney of Wahpleton, North Dakota is in the city, the guest of his boyhood friend, Mr. Vestal Snyder. Mr. Bogart may conclude to locate here permanently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reed left Thursday for Ellensburg to attend a session of the superior court of Kittitas county. Mr. Reed is the plaintiff in a suit involving a large portion of the townsite of Cle-Elum, which came on this week for a hearing.

G. M. McKinney, who is spending a few days with his family in this city, states that business conditions in Michigan and Illinois are by no means as favorable as was the case a few months ago. Manufacturing in all lines he says, except iron and high class furniture is over done which has already resulted in over production. Mr. McKinney will return east in a few days.

The delegates and attendants from this county to the democratic state convention at Spokane all returned home early in the week; Messrs. McPhee, Garrett, Ritter, Dulin and Snivey reached home Sunday morning. Messrs. Splawn, Krutz, Strobach and Medill arrived Monday morning, while Thomas Lund, forming the rear guard did not reach home until Tuesday evening.

Hon. A. V. Fawcett, ex-mayor of Tacoma, and a prominent candidate for governor on the democratic ticket, stopped off on Monday morning on his way home from the Spokane convention and spent the day pleasantly with his many friends here. Although Mr. Fawcett for over 10 years past has been the head of the well known firm of Fawcett Bros., of this city, he had not visited this place for six years—a fact which speaks volumes for the confidence he reposes in his local manager, Mr. N. Hartung.

The rose carnival under the auspices of the ladies of the Christian church has been announced for June 5. The queen, maids of honor, knights and fairies will be a beautiful sight. First and second prizes will be given for best Yakima grown roses.

Mr. Parsons, late of Tuscarora, Ney, who with his family has been stopping with his father-in-law, E. S. Yeates, for the past few weeks, left on Friday morning for Cape Nome.

Program for Memorial Day.

On Sunday May 27th at 1:30 p.m. Meade Post No. 9, Grand Army of the Republic, and the Woman's Relief Corps will meet at the Grand Army hall and march to Mason's opera house, where a memorial sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. H. Condit, assisted by others.

On Decoration Day, Wednesday, May 30, all fraternal orders are asked to form in line with the two military companies and the Grand Army post on the corner of Yakima avenue and Second street and march through the principal streets headed by marshal music, returning to the place of starting and then disbanding and proceeding to the cemetery to decorate the graves of our friends and fallen comrades, where the regular Grand Army service will be held.

At 1:30 p. m. of the same day the Grand Army post with the Woman's Relief Corps will again meet at their hall, and from there march to Mason's opera house, where the following program will be rendered:

Music.
Invocation.
Address of welcome by the mayor.
Music.
Recitations.
Grand Army order.
Music.
Oration by Rev. Woods.
Music.
Benediction.

Everybody invited and requested to bring flowers to the Grand Army hall at 8:30 a. m. Decoration Day.

C. V. BISSELL,
Commander.

Delirium of Empire.

My president, I know how imperfectly I have stated this argument. I know how feeble is a single voice amid this din and tempest, this delirium of empire. It may be that the day is lost. But I have an assured faith in justice and the love of liberty of the American people. The stars in their courses fight for freedom. The Ruler of the heavens is on that side. If the battle of to today go against it, I appeal to another day, not distant and sure to come. I appeal from the clapping of hands and the stamping of feet and the brawling and the shouting to the quiet chamber where the Fathers gathered in Philadelphia. I appeal from the spirit of trade to the spirit of liberty. I appeal from the empire to the republic. I appeal from the millionaire, and the boss, and the wire-puller, and the manager of the statesmen of the elder time, in whose eyes a guinea never glistened, who lived and died poor, and who left to his children and to his countrymen a good name far better than riches. I appeal from the present, bloated with material prosperity, drunk with the lust of empire, to another and a better age. I appeal from the present to the future and to the past.—Conclusion of Senator Hoar's great speech.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

The public schools of North Yakima closed yesterday for the summer vacation.

The contract for the erection of the new school building in this city will be let on Monday the 28th.

James Carr and Miss Sadie Reynolds of this city were granted a permit to wed by Auditor Kelso on Monday.

The majority of the Yakima contingent enroute to Cape Nome, sailed from Seattle last Monday on the Steamer Nelson.

Read the announcement of the grand opening of Larson's theatre by the "Evil Eye" company on June 11th. Seats are now on sale at the music store of Briggs & Dam.

Henry Kampeter informed THE DEMOCRAT on Thursday that he was engaged in cutting alfalfa—just four weeks earlier than last year. Mr. Kampeter also placed new potatoes on the market Thursday.

The fire department was called out on Friday afternoon of last week to extinguish a blaze in the roof of L. E. Sperry's dwelling on Natches avenue. The damage done is said to have been about $300 and is fully covered by insurance.

Barlow's minstrels gave a clean and generally satisfactory performance at Mason's opera house on Wednesday evening. The specialty work was good and some apparently new jokes were introduced by the end men. The attendance was only fair.

Invitations are out for the reception to be given at the Commercial Club rooms on the evening of the 29th, by the Yakima Woman's club to the visiting delegates. The state convention will open at 10 a. m. on Tuesday next in the M. E. church. About 150 delegates and visitors are expected, the most of whom will be entertained by the ladies of this city.

Register W. J. Reed on Monday bought what is known as the Howlett building at the corner of Second and Chestnut streets, the consideration being $2500. The property was purchased from Fred Rolen, who is now here from San Francisco, and is considered a "snap" by every person familiar with values in the business district of this city.

Mr. Vischer, who with his associates in this city is engaged in farming on a big scale on the reservation, on Saturday last completed the construction of a new ditch which taps Toppenish creek and conveys water for the distance of 5 3/4 miles to irrigate the new fields which are sown mostly to wheat and alfalfa. The ditch is capable of carrying two feet of water.

The elopement of Mrs. Brackenbury with a professional crook is a lamentable occurrence and pretty conclusively proves the demented condition of her mind, although there is no accounting for tastes. The lady had hitherto conducted herself with becoming modesty having enjoyed the highest respect of the best people wherever she has lived. It seems improbable that a woman in her right mind could so disgrace herself and family, let alone associating herself with such an unco-genial spirit.—Prosper Record.

FOR SALE

Allen Converse and Miss Mary Clark took out a marriage license on Friday.

Mrs. E. M. Harris is making some substantial improvements on her Second street property this week.

E. J. Walsh, of Tacoma, spent Monday in this city on his way home from the Spokane convention.

Joseph Handy, aged 25 years, died on Monday at the home of his mother in the Eastern addition, from the effects of an abscess. The funeral occurred on Tuesday.

Davis, the alleged scene painter at Larson's theatre has jumped his job and left for parts unknown. Mr. Larson has engaged a Seattle painter to finish the work.

Will Thompson, of this city, passed a very creditable examination for admission to practice before the supreme court at Olympia last week. He returned home on Saturday.

THE DEMOCRAT has received a number of year books from the agricultural department at Washington. Our friends are welcome to a copy each if they will call at this office.

D. D. Weddle and family of the Cowichie, will leave this week overland for their new home in Lane county, Ore., where they expect to permanently reside.

Jack Campbell left for Gold Hill this week to begin the season's development work on his properties there, which are regarded by local prospectors as extremely promising.

The people of the Ahtanum in the neighborhood of the Woodcock academy were treated to a little sensation on Monday morning that a number of them appeared to relish. The sensation was in the nature of an extempore sparring match for blood between an "eccentric" divine and a horny handed tiller of the soil in that neighborhood. While the battle was not fought according to Queensberry rules it is reported as having been very fierce and to have resulted disastrously to the man of books. The minister in the case is said to be the same party who got the benefit of a little newspaper notoriety lately, without getting his name in print.

What a Woman Needs.

In the preparation of this article we made many examinations and investigations of the different methods of treatment and remedies for all the ills so common to the female sex, and our INVESTIGATION has brought forth the fact that nothing proves so uniformly successful in restoring health and happiness to worn out women as the "Viavi Treatment," and we also found that this was the opinion of the most careful and SCIENTIFIC MEDICAL MEN OF THIS COUNTRY. This system of treatment has been remarkably successful in all cases of chronic diseases peculiar to women. No more trouble, misery, and suffering are among the speedy results after its use, as it certainly represents the latest and best treatment for all complaints of women's diseases. It has been proven by years of success and the testimony of thousands of ladies, including the highest and most noted of the women of the United States and England, who have been restored to health and the enjoyment of life by reason of "Viavi Treatment" even after all other methods of treatment had been tried and found wanting. The "Viavi remedies" are composed entirely of vegetable ingredients, and are manufactured under conditions of perfect cleanliness. Upon entering the system it supplies at once a clean, wholesome food to the muscular tissues and nervous fibres. It makes the circulation full and vigorous, and in this way enables the veins to carry to the organs of elimination all the impurities which it is their function to remove from the body. It acts as a prompt specific for all nervous and other troubles common to women, including irregularities, prostration, headache, anemia, palpitation of the heart and the thousand and one ills peculiar to the sex.—Extract from the National Health Journal.

Office, Lund block, North Yakima.

THE DEMOCRAT office has been awarded the contract by the state fair commission of getting out the annual premium list for the fair this year. The issue will be not less than 3000 copies, and the work will be a handsome pamphlet of 100 pages and will be ready for circulation in 30 days. As the work will be circulated almost exclusively among the farmers, its advantages to business men as a first class advertising medium is apparent.

State Dairy Commissioner McDonald was a Yakima visitor on Friday. He states that the dairy industry of this state is beginning to assume large proportions and that it holds out great inducements, particularly to the Yakima farmers.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

F. H. Hunter returned on Thursday from a visit to Portland.

Alex Miller left on Friday for Eastern Washington points on a wheat buying trip.

J. W. Draper, the genial freight agent of the Q road, is the guest of the Bartholet.

HELD FOR ROBBERY

Two Men and One Woman Implicated in a Recent "Hold Up."

Another Chapter to the Shameful Dengel-Brackenbury Elopement Case.

On information secured after THE DEMOCRAT went to press last Friday the sheriff and his deputies succeeded in drawing the meshes of the law more tightly about the man F. P. Dengel, who enticed Mrs. Brackenbury away from this city recently. Dengel, together with John Cox and a woman named Annie Smith, now lie in the county jail charged with having held up and robbed Norman Stevens of some $50 in the tenderloin district.

The evidence on which the prisoners was held is very strong and justified the judge in holding the accused to appear before the superior court, Dengel in the sum of $1000 and Cox and Annie Smith each in the sum of $500 each.

The prisoners are all morphine fiends, and Dengel, whose true name is said to be McNeff, has a very bad reputation. He is said to have served a long term at Walla Walla and is wanted now at Spokane for robbery. Sheriff Tucker stated that had the Spokane authorities been able to have located a certain witness Dengel would not have been delivered to him. The "rogue's gallery" at Spokane contains a photograph of the prisoner. He is no doubt a hardened criminal and as he is a man of perhaps 45 years of age, if he receives a heavy sentence in both of the charges on which he is held, will not soon again break one of the laws of the land.

Dengel's victim is the chief witness against him in the robbery case. The man seems to have had an unnatural influence over this woman through what cause may never be known; but those who have heard the story of her wrongs from start to finish are slow to condemn her, or believe her willfully guilty of a crime.

The City Council.

Mayor Redman and Councilmen Sinclair, Aikins, Shaw, Reed and Hough transacted the business at the meeting of the city council Monday evening last.

Messrs. E. Whitson, G. A. Graham, A. B. Weed and Geo. Donald appeared as a self-constituted committee and requested the council to reduce the theater license to $50 per year. The matter will be disposed of at the first regular meeting in June.

The council accepted the grading on Yakima avenue west.

The matter of paving Yakima avenue, after much discussion, and after remarks by A. B. Weed and others the council concluded to have the street and ditch committee confer with the board of county commissioners regarding the joint purchase of a rock crusher, and concluded that this would be the simplest way to solve the street problem.

The street commissioner was instructed to continue sprinkling of newly graded streets.

The fire department, through the mayor, registered a number of "kicks" about matters pertaining to the fire apparatus; but received no consolation from the board.

Complaint was made regarding the butcher shops trying out fats and cooking meat that cause a very disagreeable odor in the business part of the city; but while some members of the council thought the complaint timely and just, no action was taken in the matter.

The city park came in for a hearing, and two applications for park tender were read, namely, George Hards and P. L. Walen; but it was the sense of the council that after a week or so it would not be necessary to keep a man employed more than one day in seven to properly care for the parks.

Moving frame buildings in the fire limits also came up for consideration. The fire limit ordinance was ordered to be looked up, and if found necessary to draft a new one that will cover the ground thoroughly.

Sinclair then brought up the Pressey bond case, and at the request of the attorney the board went into a sort of "secret session" on the matter; but before this subject was taken up for discussion the spectators were dismissed.

The conclusion arrived at by the board is not a matter of record in the minutes of Monday evening's session; but it is understood that the case will be settled without further litigation.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT.

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH., MAY 26, 1900

Will Defeat McKinley.

Hon. F. C. Robertson, assistant attorney-general under President Cleveland, in an interview on his return from the Coeur d'Alene hearing in Washington, said:

"I believe the Coeur d'Alene hearing in Washington will cause McKinley's defeat at the next election. You have no idea how the leading labor men of the east have lent their ears to those proceedings and the revelations are bound to bear fruit."

"The report of the investigation will undoubtedly be presented to the house before the first of June," continued Mr. Robertson. "Although the weight of evidence and the law is upon our side, it is likely that there will be two reports. The vote in the committee was repeatedly drawn on party lines. I do not care to express any positive opinions. It is possible Mr. McKinley may be cleared of all responsibility and General Merriam shouldered with the entire blame. In my remarks I undertook to show that the law holds the highest military official responsible for all acts committed under military law, and therefore the general must stand the brunt of criticism for the permit system which is absolutely illegal."

"Blanket warrants, practically lettres de cachet, were issued permitting soldiers to make arrests on their own authority. Men were arrested for working without permits on their own property and one man testified that he lost a valuable claim because of his arrest. This property was jumped by the friends of Steunenberg."

"The permit system is invalid. The same thing was attempted during the reconstruction period. Out in Missouri a law was passed making it illegal for a man who had borne arms against the government to teach or preach without having taken an oath of allegiance. A Catholic priest occupied his pulpit and was arrested. He was sentenced to imprisonment, the supreme court of the state sustained the judgment, but the United States supreme court decided the law was in the nature of a bill of attainder, that it was ex post facto legislation, and beyond the power of the authorities to enforce. In the case of A. H. Garland, attorney-general under Cleveland, who was denied the right to practice law because of his position during the war, the supreme court decided practically the same thing. Another similar case in California was also settled in the same way."—Chicago Bulletin.

Humor and the Presidency.

The chief penalty one pays for fame as a funny man is that the public refuses to take anything he says seriously. Hence Mark Twain's offer to run for the presidency is treated by everybody as a joke. Perhaps he intended it should be.

Yet the idea of a humorist in the presidential chair is neither impossible nor unpleasant. One of the very greatest and best of our presidents, Abraham Lincoln, was a first-class humorist himself and a promoter of first-class humor in others. He did much to encourage our always strong national sense of humor. During the time he occupied the white house, though the nation was engaged in a struggle for its very life, our literature teemed with fun. That was the golden age of American humor. It gave us Artemus Ward, Petroleum V. Nasby and Orpheus C. Kerr, and a number of less famous writers of comic and sarcastic power.

Perhaps the strongest reason for regretting Thomas B. Reed's withdrawal from the presidential cinder-path is that, being a humorist of the front rank, his election to the presidency might have stimulated an outbreak of humorous literature like that which distinguished the Lincoln era. McKinley is as solemn as an owl, and Bryan is too dreadfully in earnest to be susceptible to humor.

It will certainly be a happy day for the American people when another man of the Lincoln brand appears—a glorious compound of humorist, philosopher, statesman and patriot—and finds his way into the presidential chair.—N. Y. World.

The Colonel's Romance.

"Colonel," said the romantic girl, "tell me how you got that scar upon your left cheek. Oh, I just know it must be a thrilling story. Was it made by a bullet or a saber thrust? I prefer a saber thrust. It seems so much like the knighthood of old. You can't see a bullet coming, and there is no way to escape it or combat it. But when your enemy rushes at you with his uplifted saber there is the possibility of parrying his blow and cutting him down. That seems much more manly, even if the victor in the fray does receive a wound or two, than to just be laid low or to lay the enemy low, but there is something knightly in meeting another face to face with a sword. Your scar looks like one that was left by a gleaming blade, and I knew that your enemy must at least have been rendered hors de combat. Tell me all about it, Colonel—when it happened, and how, I am so interested in war stories!"

"Yes," he replied, "I agree with you, about the sword and saber business. There isn't much bravery in shooting a fellow, and there is something knightly about standing up and thrusting and parrying with a blade. But I got this wound while acting as an innocent bystander at a Chicago strike riot. It was a brick."

State Fairs to Co-operate.

Secretary Gunn has returned from Portland where he met with the secretaries of California, Oregon, Idaho and British Columbia. He reports that the several organizations have decided to co-operate and work on beneficial lines. They secured the promise of satisfactory rates for exhibitors to visit the circuits of California, Oregon, Washington and British Columbia. It is the purpose of the secretaries to unite, in securing attractions for the entire circuit, and to have the same special features at each exhibition.

The horsemen are decidedly in favor of co-operation, as it enables the managers to have only those entitled to the track at the meetings and forces all to pay up and act squarely with each other and the associations. As none of the fairs permit gambling devices this feature will be eliminated, and if anything not desirable is noticed at the fairs held before our state fair, the secretaries will notify Secretary Gunn, so that it may be kept out here.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 27, 1900.

The troubles of the administration are rapidly increasing. The deeper the Cuban stealing is probed, the worse it gets, and it is now believed that a conspiracy existed to loot the Cuban revenues and that it included officials in Washington as well as in Cuba. In addition to that worry, the enthusiastic reception of the Boer peace envoys in New York and Washington, indicating deep public sympathy for the two little republics which are fighting so bravely for existence, has caused Mr. McKinley to lose sleep trying to think up some way to jolly the envoys without offending his silent partner—the British premier.

How the Cuban scandal stands may be judged by the following extract from a speech made by Senator Bacon, in favor of his resolution for a congressional investigation of all receipts and expenditures in Cuba since it passed under American control: "Within the past week the fact has been disclosed—a fact that brings the blush of shame to the cheek of every American citizen—that trusted officials in Cuba have misappropriated large amounts belonging to the people of Cuba. Nobody knows how large these amounts are. At first it was stated they were $30,000; next it was said they would amount to $75,000, and now it is estimated the amounts may aggregate $400,000. At first only one man was involved in the difficulty. Now there are many—so many that it is estimated it may amount to a conspiracy."

Mr. Clark, of Montana, stirred up the senatorial menagerie by his clever scheme of resigning his seat in the senate and being immediately appointed to the vacancy by the lieutenant-governor, who was acting governor, and the roaring is still going on. It is doubtful whether Mr. Clark will be seated.

The senate interoceanic canal committee declined to assume the responsibility of holding up the Nicaragua canal bill, and favorably reported it to the senate. Boss Hanna makes no secret of his intention to prevent its being passed, if possible.

Senator Hale is not an admirer of imperialism, although he has not said much in public against the McKinley imperial policy. This week he made the following remarks in the senate. "The history of colonial possessions, from the days of the Romans to the present time, is a history of robbery, speculation, extravagance, wrong-doing in high quarters, and corruption broad and large. I do not think the examples of today are going to show that the American people are to be exempt from the monstrous evils which always have attended a colonial policy. The jaunty way in which the American people have embarked in the enterprise of the colonial possessions has certainly received a rebuke in what has been seen to happen during the last few months."

Senator Butler, of North Carolina, denies that he has resigned or has any intention of resigning as chairman of the populist national committee. He said he was elected chairman contrary to his wishes and with the knowledge that he would for the present be unable to give his entire time to the duties of the position, and that it was at his request that Mr. J. H. Edmiston, of Nebraska, has been made vice chairman of the committee.

Mr. J. A. Strouthers, of Toledo, Ohio, who is now in Washington, acknowledges being somewhat puzzled by republican logic. He said: "I was in Michigan last week and the republicans there told me that Pingree had lost his influence because he had appointed officials who had stolen public money and were under arrest; that Pingree's opposition to Senator McMillan's re-election would not influence a single legislator, because he was totally discredited by appointing friends to office, who had proved unworthy of the honor and trust. But here in Washington I am told that McKinley will not suffer to any extent because he appointed a lot of men in Cuba, who have, apparently, stolen everything but the soil of the island. Of course the republicans are trying to say that McKinley had nothing to do with the Cuban appointments—that they were made by subordinates. The people do not know much about such fine distinctions. The president is the government, and as such, made the appointments and must stand for them."

The trick of the republican members of the house judiciary committee, in making the proposed anti-trust amendment to the constitution infringe so heavily upon the rights of the states that it would be opposed by every democratic member of the committee, was so transparent that it is surprising that such astute politicians as the republican members of that committee are, should have resorted to it. But the case is desperate. They knew that the people as a whole regard the democratic party as the enemy and the republican party as the friend of trusts, and their object in fixing up this amendment so as to be certain that it would be opposed by the democrats was to try to fool the people into the belief that the democrats were opposed to anti-trust legislation. It is becoming more difficult all the time to fool the people, and such tricks as this will not do it.

Settled Over the Wine Cup.

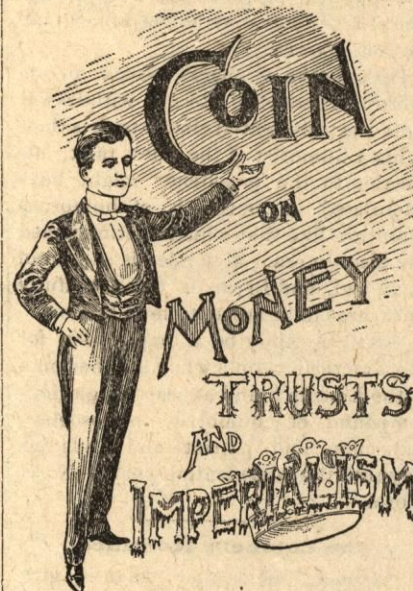

Mark Hanna gave a "political dinner" in Washington last night, realizing probably the truth of the saying that the most direct way to a man's heart is through his stomach. At any rate the great leader recognizes the comfort and good feeling which follows a generous dinner, especially if the solids are properly seasoned with those liquid refreshments which conduce to exhilaration of spirit, and it was announced in advance that the object of the banquet was to harmonize the party on some issues which threatened an open rupture. There was no prospect that Mr. Hanna would in any degree modify his own views, under such surroundings, and it is plain that the sole object was to disarm opposition and pave the way for securing an unanimity is the national convention. In other words, the Great Mogul's object was to administer a soothing potion which will make the republicans of Ohio and Indiana, and possibly other states endorse the administration's Porto Rican policy on other than general terms. A specific endorsement of the administration in all matters is desired at Philadelphia, and that, be it noted, is just what will please its opponents as well. Honest sportsmen want to see the game on wing and the hare come out from his covert.—N. Y. Journal.

A Text Book for the Campaign of 1900

BY W. H. HARVEY,

Author of "Coin's Financial School."

This Book is Now Having a Wonderful Circulation.

The retail price is 25 cents. In size it is 35 pages larger than "Coin's Financial School," profusely illustrated, with best paper, enameled cover in two colors. Its treatment of the subjects of Money, Trusts and Imperialism is exhaustive and yet simple and plain as A B C's. It will educate and arouse the American people to a common defense of their homes and the heritage of free institutions. It teaches organization and points out the remedy. It is educational and practical. It should be in the hands of every man, woman, boy and girl in the United States.

The book is a school, and the little boy COIN is the teacher. His school in May, 1894, "Coin's Financial School," electrified a nation and moulded the political sentiment of a National Political Party.

COIN ON MONEY, TRUSTS AND IMPERIALISM may be expected to rally anew the forces of human liberty.

Just Quote This.

When your republican neighbors insist that democratic opposition to the imperialistic policy of the Hannacrat administration is simply partisan opposition you don't need to argue with him; there is plenty of good republican argument along that line, the records of the present congress are filled with them. Here is one that will supply considerable food for thought to thoughtful republicans, by that old stalwart republican of Maryland, Senator Wellington: "My ideas of the principles upon which our government is founded; my desire to preserve from blot or stain the national escutcheon; my remembrance of the solemn and oft-repeated promise of the American authorities to the inhabitants of Porto Rico; my devotion to the constitution as I understand it; my purpose to act justly, benevolently, and, if need be, charitably toward my new fellowcitizens, each and all rebel and rise up in outraged indignation at the attempted injustice of this bill. I cannot support. I refuse to give my adherence to it. No influence shall persuade, no authority shall control me or cause me to favor it. I oppose it with all the vehemence of a positive nature. I have been a republican ever since I can remember. The years of my youth and manhood have been dedicated to the service of the republican party. In company with a determined band of fighters of my political faith I labored unceasingly until my beloved state was redeemed from democratic domination. I gave the best years of my life to this endeavor, which was crowned with superb success. I have loved and served the republican party because I believed in the warp and woof of its victory were bound up the advancement and progress of my country, the elevation of men, and the perpetuity of self-government. But, sir, I am not charmed by a name when the principle be lost. The republican party by its name cannot lead me against my conviction to do that which I believe to be unrighteous and unjust. I will not follow upon the new adventure which would compel me to discard at the first step the noble sentiment which I have ever held to be the strongest reason for the existence of the republican party. Sir, I oppose this bill for the reason that it seeks to impose a tax upon citizens of the United States in Porto Rico in defiance of the principles upon which our government is founded."—Aberdeen Herald.

Farmers' Prosperity.

There is not a single occupation, business or profession to which is not attached by the republican organs the label "Prosperity." Every individual man knows better than the statisticians whether he is prosperous or not, and it is useless to expect an aggregation of individuals to loudly express thanks for prosperity when they do not come up to the label. The notion has been going about that the farmers are afflicted with "astounding prosperity," simply because prices of farm produce have, in the last two or three years, partly recovered from the low level they reached in some previous years. Now the farmer ought to know, and the records or mortgages in the various county clerks' and recorders' offices demonstrate the fact, that all these increased receipts, if anybody can show a bank account demonstrating any increase, are more than absorbed by the increased price he must pay for everything for which the farmer exchanges his produce. He must pay tribute to the trust, and no better illustration of the truth of this can be made than in the case of the American steel company. Six thousand men were thrown out of employment because of their high price. If there was so much prosperity, why could not the farmer afford to purchase the necessary implements? The fact is that a heavy impost is laid upon nearly everything the farmer needs in his household and in his business, while the prices of his own products are at the mercy of speculators, combines, corners, etc., etc. The farmer has to meet the world's price in disposing of his product, but he encounters a different state of things when he comes to purchase for himself. The range of price set up by the speculators is artificial, and when they gain in the speculative market they pocket—what they lose they mercilessly force the farmer to pay by an increase of prices in manufactures. This seeming prosperity will be discovered the more you look behind it to be a myth, and although the misfortunes of the rest of the earth have enabled the farmer to dispose of more of his products than formerly, still there are combinations to be broken down, trusts to be abolished and the financial system eliminated before the farmer can really say that a period of prosperity has been inaugurated.

How much of the enormous balance of trade in our favor has reached the farmer? Has he been enabled to reduce his mortgages by payment of the principal, or even to pay the interest in full without securing an extension of time? Are his wife and children better dressed, is his farm in a more flourishing condition, has he purchased any new carpets, curtains, furniture for his household? Is he enabled to employ more help to relieve his aching bones and those of his wife and children from the arduous labor they continually undergo to save their homes from the maw of the mortgage?

We throw not and the proof of it is that beyond the mere means of existence, whatever he makes or earns must go into the ever expanding tax mill which is grinding him into poverty when he is not paying into the trusts and combines.—Press bulletin.

STATE PRESS OPINION

We observe the republican press of the state is kicking against endorsing a political renegade of the Bartlett Tripp stripe for the vice presidency. Tripp is a perpetual office seeker and would do anything for office. His political record is still fresh in the minds of Dakotans.—Seattle Review.

The Pierce county democratic convention last Saturday acted with exceeding good judgment and wisdom in recommending Mr. O. G. Ellis by acclamation to the state convention as our choice for delegate to Kansas City. Mr. Ellis is one of our most faithful and stalwart democrats, one the most worthy of men. The honor could not have been better placed.—Sumner Herald.

Hon. Charles A. Towne, of Duluth, Minn., who has been suggested as a possible candidate for vice president on the democratic ticket and who has already been endorsed by the populists and silver republicans, has the reputation of being the second ablest expounder of bimetalism in the world. His oratory is also in quality next to that of William Jennings Bryan.—Seattle Mail and Herald.

Very truthfully says the Tacoma Sun: "Senator Turner is ever on the alert for the rights of the poor. His recent speech in favor of allowing the returned and returning soldier's transportation home was an equitable presentation of the matter and shows him to be not only an able orator but a careful student. His description of the sights he has seen is enough to convince everyone of the condition of the private soldier."—Cheney Free Press.

Michigan gold democrats rally to the support of Bryan. One of the bolsters of 1896, named Stern, after greeting the great commoner and wishing him success, was challenged by a companion with "I thought you couldn't stand the Chicago platform." I'll take him on any platform," was Stern's energetic reply. The same conditions exist in Ohio. The democrats are back in their old home on constitutional grounds. Mr. Bryan's assertion that "The constitution must follow the flag," was followed by ten thousand people rising to their feet, throwing hats in the air and yelling a babel of shouts in approval.—Washington Standard.

The Oregonian denounced the Porto Rico tariff outrage as "rank imperialism," and it reprinted columns of extracts from the leading daily newspapers in the country in opposition to this monstrous crime committed in the name of liberty at the dictation of the sugar and tobacco trusts. Now the Portland organ of goldbugism and industrial slavery argues in favor of re-electing Tongue and Moody, who both voted in favor of this great iniquity. Nothing but fraud at the ballot box can accomplish that.—Register Democrat.

The Post-Intelligencer printed a cut of a pen of sheep and then spoiled the picture by claiming the present value of sheep was brought about by the republican administration. Such rot is perfectly silly and is enough to sicken the most rabid partisan republican who has a thinker. It would be just as sensible for the populists to claim that the populist state administration was responsible for the advance in sheep values, especially as the above mentioned cut was from a photograph of Washington sheep but populists have more sense than to make such foolish claims and the rank and file of the party know that the present rise in sheep values has been caused by the demand exceeding the supply and the fact that the foreign wool market quotations have advanced. If the P.-I. is correct that the republicans have put value into sheep by a tariff, why did it fail to put value into hops which are selling from three to four cents a pound. The man who thinks and investigates can find the truth in these matters and not swallow partisan slop.—Olympia Capital.

The Real "World Power."

We are shipping coal to Odessa. We are shipping coal to Hamburg. We are "sending coal to Newcastle." We have agreed to deliver 2,000,000 tons of coal at New Orleans to be shipped to any port designated by the purchaser. The coal supply both on the continent of Europe and in Great Britain is inadequate to the demands of modern conditions of industry, and it cannot be increased from their coal beds. They must take our coal or get none.

Thus do we become more than ever a "world power." Our cotton clothes the world, our grain and provisions feed the world, and our coal keeps the world's engine fires alight and drives American locomotives in every foreign land. And these sources of our strength and guarantees of peace have nothing whatever to do with naval armaments, or San Juan charges, or Philippine slaughters, or any other incidents of militarism and imperialism.—N. "THE EVIL EYE"

Larson's Theatre, Monday Evening June 11.

The scenery is of an especially elaborate character, and was painted by the famous artist, H. Logan Reid. It comprises a Holland village; the Cafe Eccentrique St. Petersburg, and the Castle Drachenfels on the Rhine.

When it comes to mechanical effects they are so many and so varied that they cannot all be named. Among them is a wonderful human windmill about which no idea can be given in mere words, a revolving stage, showing many rooms through which Nid and Nod, suspected of being nihilists, are furiously and funnily pursued by Russian police; a catapeltic drawbridge of marvelous construction.

Electricity is used profusely, not only in securing mechanical effects and in brilliant illuminations, but also in the most beautiful and intricate electric dance so far executed.

Of music there is as much as in any comic opera and includes "The Clang of the Wooden Shoe," a Holland conceit "The Song of the Evil Eye," "Oh, that Waltz," "Then and Now," "The Legion of the Rhine," song, story and minuet; the exquisite love song, "By Your Side," and many others, including instrumental solos.

With such multifarious features, "The Evil Eye" promises an extraordinary ensemble, and the appearance of this novelty at Larson's theatre on Monday evening, June 11th ought to test the capacity of the house at every performance.

Official Notice to Fruitgrowers.

Those who expect to sell their fruit this summer without spraying for the codling moth will be disappointed. No one can expect to neglect his orchard and then place on sale his infected fruit as was the case last summer. The following two formulas are recommended by the state horticulturist, J. E. Baker:

Paris Greek, pure, one pound; water, 100 gallons; well slacked lime, six pounds; keep well agitated while spraying.

White arsenic, one pound; water, two gallons; sal soda, two pounds; boil 15 minutes. Take 1½ pints to 25 gallons water; then slake six pounds good lime, add to 25 gallons of water; add the two together, making 50 gallons of prepared spray.

The State Fair.

The people of North Yakima are made of the right kind of stuff. It was left to their liberality whether they would hold their annual fair or not, and like good citizens they responded without much trouble; so the fair will be held, and a good one it will be, for the reason that local pride is at stake. When we were in Salem a few years ago the state fair had a "Salem Day," and the people of that city determined to make it a day to be remembered, so each merchant looked over the list of his country customers and wrote to each a personal letter, asking him, or her, to attend the fair on that day. Promptly at noon, on the day mentioned, every place of business was closed, the proprietors took their families and attended the fair, and people from the country came in wagon loads from every section. The gate receipts showed 20,000 visitors that day. North Yakima could do the same thing. Her merchants are quite as enterprising as any others in the northwest, and a pull of this kind, all working together, ought to give an attendance for the week of at least 20,000 visitors. Yakima people can do this, so let them get in and try.—Pacific Poultryman (Tacoma.)

Best Age for Marriage.

Edward Bok, writing in the May Ladies' Home Journal, on "A boy for a husband," contends that "no young man under twenty-five years of age is in any sense competent to take unto himself a wife. Before that age he is simply a boy who has absolutely nothing which he can offer to a girl as a safe foundation for life happiness. He is unformed in his character, unsettled in his ideas, absolutely ignorant of the first essentials of what consideration or love for a woman means. He doesn't know himself, let alone knowing a woman. He is full of fancies, and it is his boyish nature to flit from one fancy to another. He is incapable of the affection upon which love is based, because he has not lived long enough to know what the feeling or even the word means. He is full of theories, each one of which, when he comes to put it into practice, will fail. He is a boy, pure and simple passing through that trying period through which every boy must pass before he becomes a man. But that period is not the marrying time. For as his opinions of life are to change, so are his fancies of the girl he esteems as the only girl in the world to make him happy. The man of thirty rarely weds the girl whom he fancied when he was twenty."

Loss in Haymaking.

Professor Headden, of the Colorado experiment station, found that "a very leafy, small stemmed alfalfa plant may have more than sixty per cent of leaves, and, consequently, less than forty per cent of stems, but the stems of an average plant will amount to between forty and sixty per cent. * * * Inasmuch as many of the smaller stems may go with the leaves, the loss in hay-making can and in some cases does amount to from fifty to sixty and even more per cent. * * * We have been led by our experience and observation to the conclusion that the minimum loss from the falling off of leaves and stems in successful haymaking amounts to from fifteen to twenty per cent, and in cases where the conditions have been unfavorable to as much as sixty or even sixty-five per cent of the dry crop, or for each 1700 pounds of hay taken off the field at least 300 pounds of leaves and small stems are left, and in very bad cases as much as 1200 pounds may be left for each 800 pounds taken. Of course the latter is extreme, but it does occasionally happen, even in this land of perpetual sunshine.—Horticulturist.

Of Interest to Horsemen.

The state fair commission authorize THE DEMOCRAT to announce that they are offering an unusual purse to horsemen in the shape of two stake races to come off during the fair—a 2:18 pace for a purse of $500 and a 2:20 trot, purse, $500, entries to close July 1. The time and conditions will be published in this paper next week.

CHARLES A. TOWNE

A Great Help and an Element of Strength to the Ticket.

The nomination by the people's party of Charles A. Towne for the vice presidency, has caused much discussion that has been wholly tolerant and fair. It was well known before the Sioux Falls convention assembled that Mr. Bryan would be its nominee for the presidency, and interest centered upon the vice presidential nomination. Beyond any question the representatives of the ruling influence in the democratic affairs strove to persuade the convention not to make a nomination for second place, but rather to turn the whole question over to the conference committee which will meet with the representatives of the democratic party at Kansas City, July 4. But the convention, actuated somewhat by a not unjustifiable pride in the standing of the populist party, felt that a nomination was essential to maintain the integrity of that organization. From the day that the first delegate arrived at Sioux Falls until the time that all departed, there was not one word heard on the streets of the little city unfriendly to Mr. Bryan. The convention was gathered with a sincere and earnest purpose to advance Mr. Bryan's candidacy in every wise way. It is true that the way the convention thought was wisest was not the method which democrats would have chosen. But it is the duty of all men who are enlisted in the cause of progressive reform politics this year to accept the action of the Sioux Falls convention as taken in good faith. No one can tell how the democratic convention at Kansas City will receive the nomination of Mr. Bryan. That is a matter which the delegates there must determine for themselves. But on the other hand, no one can fairly and honorably raise any question as to the entire good faith of the men who have put Mr. Towne in nomination. As for Charles A. Towne himself, he is, as all who know him recognize, a democrat in everything except name. Among the young men in our party there are none who go beyond him in devotion to the democratic cause as it is today defined. If his party affiliations are other than democratic, it is only because it has seemed wise for him to stand with his old associates, and his devotion to the cause of progressive democracy in such that no democrat will have the slightest apprehension that his nomination, whatever may be the action taken at Kansas City, will result in any repetition of the unhappy and disastrous Tom Watson incident.—Chicago Bulletin.

Yellow Attractive to Insects.

If we watch the beautiful golden marsh marigold, we shall find it rarely receives a visit from the bumblebee. It is said that those bright, golden bodied flies of the family Syrphidae are the chief disseminators of its pollen. However this may be, one thing is perfectly plain, the marsh marigold is a striking and showy yellow flower, which cannot escape the notice of a multitude of spring insects. It is consequently visited by bees, flies, butterflies and beetles. Yellow is a most common color among flowers, and one which is peculiarly conspicuous and flashy in sunlight, when it is varnished with a gloss like that which we see on the buttercup and the marsh marigold.—Chautauquan.

Social Mistakes.

Perhaps the greatest of all social mistakes is to be continually talking about oneself. There is no word in all the vocabulary of conversation so tedious to others as that personal pronoun "I." Though one of the smallest words in use, there is none that takes up more room in the everyday world. "I" is a bore. It is better not to mention his name oftener than can be avoided. Another social folly is "gush." There is an insincere ring about it. True, there are people who gush from sheer good nature in wishing to give pleasure, yet they should remember that even amiable exaggeration is like a coarse sugar plum, agreeable at first, but leaving a doubtful taste in the mouth afterward.

On the other hand, there is a certain class of people in society who are equally foolish in going to the other extreme. They feign indifference about everybody and everything, seldom expressing either interest or admiration. They think it "bad form" to show any pleasure in life, and a sign of superiority to be incapable of enthusiasm. A social folly is to imagine that people are always looking at or thinking of you. Such ideas are often the offsprings of conceit. As a matter of fact, the people very often look at you without seeing or thinking of you. They have other things to think of. If we could only convince ourselves that we are not always the pivot of our friends' and acquaintances' thoughts, there would be fewer hurt feelings and imaginary grievances.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Identified by a Blind Man.

A blind man picked out his dead wife in the New York morgue a few days ago by his delicate sense of touch, says an exchange. Two women, both of the same name and both of whom died in Bellevue, were taken to the deadhouse at about the same time. When the morgue keeper caught the blind man's right hand and guided it to an upturned face, he said, "No, no; that's not my Mary!" The drawer was closed, and the next one was pulled out. The sightless man laid down his stick this time and used both hands. His face was transfigured as the tips of his fingers rested on the sharp set, cold features. "Mary," he whispered, "I have found you, dear! How thin your face has grown! How cold you are, Mary—how cold!" The blind man had made no mistake. The dead woman had been his wife.

A Story of Patti.

Patti once went on an excursion with a party of Americans, among whom was a young chap who could play on a banjo and sing "coon" and "rag time" songs like a professional. He did not intend that the great singer should judge of the quality of his art, but by accident she had a chance, and to the young man's joy she fell hilariously in love with every "rag time" melody he sang. This was a secret between the two until one evening Patti consented to sing for the company. Several listeners went mildly insane when the great artist, after a little preparatory "patting," sang "Mamie, Come Kiss Your Honey Boy."

The Pope and Rome.

The Osservatore Romano thus explains why the pope does not appear on the streets of Rome: "If the pope went about in Rome, he would inevitably be made the object of demonstrations of respectful enthusiasm on the part of the faithful, and by a natural reaction these demonstrations would be followed by others of a hostile character. The pope would be simultaneously applauded and hissed and surrounded by tumults and faction fights. The government would render military honors to him, but it could not long tolerate in the streets of Rome demonstrations in favor of the pope, who, after all, is a dispossessed sovereign."

Feeding Whey.

Whey is a valuable feed for hogs. There are about 7 pounds of solids in 100 pounds, and that quantity of whey fed properly in combination with other feeds should produce two pounds of increase in live weight. Whey is a poor diet when fed alone, although hogs will live on it and gain in weight. Whey may be turned to lard, but it does not give good results when fed alone. To young, growing pigs it may be fed with profit on clover pasture. The use of a field in that way puts it in a capital condition for the growth of a crop of Indian corn for fodder purposes the following year. Whey should be fed in a sweet and clean condition. A clean and comparatively sweet whey is wholesome, whereas a very sour whey is dangerous. Often its use is injurious to the swine. The whey tank at a cheese factory should be above ground, and for the sake of the value of the whey for the production of pork the tank should be cleaned thoroughly at least once a week.

Indian corn, ground or unground, should not be fed alone with whey. It is unprofitable in that combination, and results in the production of very fat bacon. A good mixture would be (a) one-third shorts, or bran, (b) one-third ground oats, peas, barley, wheat, mixed or single, and (c) one-third ground Indian corn. The best results from Indian corn are obtained when it is fed in combination with skim milk or buttermilk, which supplies the flesh forming materials in which the corn is deficient.—Report of Commissioner of Agriculture and Dairying of Canada

If Job were to rise from the dead and look upon the heavens, says Professor T. J. J. See in The Atlantic, he would see the constellations related to one another as of old, but he would find that the pole had shifted its position among the stars, and if an immortal could witness the grand phenomenon which the precession of the equinoxes produces in about 12,900 years he would find the heavens so altered that the former aspect could be recognized only by an understanding of the changes which had intervened.

As Humboldt justly remarks, the beautiful and celebrated constellation of the Southern Cross, never seen by the present inhabitants of Europe and visible in the United States only on our southern coast, formerly shone on the shores of the Baltic, and can again be seen in that latitude in about 18,000 years. The cross will then be visible on the shores of Hudson bay, but at present it is going rapidly southward, and in a few thousand years will be invisible even at the extreme point of Florida.

In like manner the brilliant star Canopus in the constellation Argo, situated some 37 degrees south of Sirius, is now visible in the southern portion of the United States. In about 12,000 years it will cease to rise even in Central America. From the same cause, if Ptolemy were to again look upon the heavens at Alexandria, he would be unable to recognize Alpha and Beta Centauri, which he easily saw and catalogued in the time of Hadrian. At present these magnificent stars are just visible at the pyramids, near Cairo, and in a few more thousand years they can be seen by dwellers on the Nile only in upper Egypt.

The Hindoo Dead.

The Hindoos consider their dead as sacred and do not allow them to be handled by alien hands, the nearest male relative—son, father or brother—preparing the body for burial, and if there be none of these relatives a son is adopted by the family for the purpose.

Originally clocks had only the hour hand, but the minute was added later, as it became fashionable to make the dials as decorative as possible.

KISSED HER ON A BET.

He Was a Salvation Lassie; He, Her Husband—Traveling Men Didn't Know That.

A clever trick was worked by Walter Redmond and his wife at Union station by which several traveling men were lured out of their money. At the end of a long seat in the waiting room was a pretty and modest looking young woman attired in a Salvation Army uniform. She was very intent upon a paper which she was reading and paid little attention to the crowd of traveling men standing near her.

Aside from the crowd was a well dressed young man, who was walking back and forth by the newsstand puffing away at a fragrant cigar. Finally a member of the crowd of traveling men remarked upon the beauty of the little Salvation Army worker. All eyes were fixed on the little woman, and she received many compliments. The prosperous looking young man who had been walking near the group of drummers drew near to the crowd. He, too, was struck with the appearance of the woman.

"I'll give any one of you fellows $15 if you kiss that girl," said he.

Those in the crowd took the dare. One spoke up, however, and said to the stranger who had offered the money, "I'll bet you $20 that you can't kiss her."

The stranger hesitated for several seconds and then said:

"I'll just take that bet."

The money was put up, and the stranger, who had given his name as Walter Redmond, walked over toward the little woman, in uniform, and, after bowing profoundly, took a seat by her side.

At first the woman seemed to be very indignant, and the traveling man thought he had the $20 won. A minute later, however, Redmond's arm stole around the woman's waist. The spectators then began to open their eyes wide. One of them said: "That fellow has a whole lot of influence over that girl. It may be that he is a hypnotist." Redmond talked for probably two minutes and then kissed the woman.

Redmond walked over to the stakeholder and received his money. He then started from the depot. The little woman quickly arose from her seat, and, taking his arm, walked to Ninth and Broadway, where the couple took an East Broadway car. Redmond is tall and handsome. His wife is a blond and is exceptionally pretty.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Chickens For Hotels.

Watching a hotel steward selecting chickens for his large family at a Boston counter the other day, we asked why he was so particular about size, and his reply covered the whole question for growers to consider: "We charge so much for half a broiled chicken and must make a profit off the bird. For that reason it cannot weigh over 2½ pounds, else it costs more than it comes to. Half a chicken is ample for a meat order, and more than this weight would be wasted. The fact is, we figure this question of quantity pretty fine, seeking to give enough to satisfy, but being careful about any excess. 'Tis business with us where we handle so many daily, and the change in style of serving has fixed the weights so that all live growers know when they ship into what class their birds are going."—Maine Farmer.

Ostriches, which are supposed to flourish only in very warm climates, have been raised successfully in southern Russia, the feathers being of good quality and the birds healthy.

To be perfectly proportioned a man should weigh 28 pounds for every foot of his height.

Chamberlain and the "Puritan Maid."

A Baltimore woman, in The Sun of that city, tells this story of Joseph Chamberlain when he was in Washington in 1887:

"He was a big, burly man, caring so little for his appearance that at one of the most fashionable dinners of the season his cravat got turned to almost under his ear and his shirt stud became unfastened, and he sat calmly oblivious to either incident. His brains and charm in conversation won him friends wherever he went. One day he called on a lady who happened to be giving a girls' luncheon. She went out at once to see him, and laughingly said if he did not mind being the only man present she would be delighted if he would come in the dining room and take the vacant place of one of her young friends who had not come.

"He was not afraid to face a lot of 'American beauties,' so he accepted gayly, and the vacant place happened to be next that of Miss Endicott, daughter of Secretary of War William C. Endicott of Massachusetts, a dove-like, slender girl, one of the greatest belles of the day. The outcome of this was the marriage of the English statesman and the 'Puritan maid,' as she was often called, his neighbor at an entertainment to which he had only been bidden by that 'fate which shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will.'"

The following interesting facts are given in a bulletin issued by the Agricultural college at Logan, Utah, as a comparison between old hens and pullets for egg production. The profit from the young hens or pullets is about five times greater than that of the old hens. Not only did the old hens lay considerably fewer eggs, but the eggs were with less per dozen. Those of the old hens averaged less than a cent apiece, while those from the pullets, with the exception of pen 2, averaged more than a cent apiece. This is accounted for by the fact that the pullets laid a large proportion of their eggs in early winter, when the price was good. The old hens were 3 to 4 years old. In the experiment there were no 2-year-olds.

The effect of exercise on food consumption is also illustrated. The three pens having no exercise averaged 120 eggs, while those from the exercised pens averaged 146 eggs. The average food cost per dozen of eggs was for the nonexercised pens 6.5 cents and 5.3 cents for the exercised pens, over 22 per cent in favor of exercise. The fact, when studied in connection with the other fact that there was no appreciable difference in the relative weights of the fowls during the year, would seem to indicate that exercise such as was given is an aid to digestion, or, in other words, the exercised hen made a better use of the food. It took 22 per cent more food to make a dozen of eggs without the exercise than with it—in other words, 22 per cent of the food wasted by the unexercised hen. It was not used in the growth of flesh, for the weights show that the exercised hen was as heavy as the nonexercised. It seems to be a mere question of digestion. The exercise aids digestion and assimilation and prevents waste of food. It is also worthy of note that fowls without exercise laid heavier eggs than those with it.

The Parrot Turned Brown.

Long had the wife of a poor Washington clerk been yearning for the possession of a green parrot.

At last a fine specimen was obtained for $10. It was delivered in the morning, and it came to pass that a new servant from the depths of the country opened the door to the delivery boy. Her mistress was out; there was not a soul to instruct her in the code of ethics as applied to parrots.

"Is it for the table?" she asked. "Without doubt," was the wicked re-

Resolution.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL of the city of North Yakima that said city intends and hereby declares its intention to improve Second street in said city by the construction of a sidewalk along the west side of said Second street between the northeast corner of block No. 24 and the southeast corner of lot No. 7 in block No. 25 in said city according to the plat thereof on file in the office of the county auditor of Yakima county, Washington; said sidewalk to be eight feet in width and to be laid with planks two inches thick, eight inches wide and eight feet long, surfaced on one side and resting on stringers, four inches by six inches; said sidewalk to be laid on the grade marked out and established in front of the lots and lands herein-after described as the same appears from the grade stakes; all material used to be good, common No. 1 fir lumber.

That the estimated cost of said improvement is $150; that the cost of the same is to be assessed against the property abutting on said sidewalk and included in the following assessment district, to-wit: Lots Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in block No. 24 and lots Nos. 7 and 8 in block No. 25. All of said lots and lands being according to said plat of said city of North Yakima.

That protests against said proposed improvement may be filed in the office of the city clerk of said city of North Yakima at any time before 2 o'clock p. m. on the 4th day of June, 1900; that the city clerk give due and legal notice of said proposed improvement.

Passed the Council the 7th day of May, 1900; approved the 7th day of May, 1900.

Attest: W. H. REDMAN, Mayor. H. B. DOUST, City Clerk. 37-2t

"THE EVIL EYE."

Grand Opening of Larson's New Theatre June 11.

Feats of daring always command admiration. They are among the chiefest charms of the circus. They are especially applauded when seen in connection with the play. Before Mrs. Leslie Carter became justly styled "The American Bernhardt," her greatest success was in "The Heart of Maryland." While her acting foreshadowed the greatness she now displays in "Zara," it was her exhibition of daring that commanded greater attention. To prevent a signal from being given by the ringing of a huge church bell, she climbed the steep stairway and seizing the huge tongue of the bell, held it while she was swinging to and fro at a great height above the stage. A familiar melo-drama made a fortune for its owner because it contained a scene where the heroine was rescued from her prisoners by a bridge formed by three men who swung themselves across a chasm, holding on to each other by their hands and feet. Numerous other instances might be cited in which feats of daring have been the one great feature of a play. Most skillful and dangerous of all stage feats of daring is an incident in Charles H. Yale's pantomime, operatic, spectacular, dramatic and mechanical trick fantasy. "The Evil Eye, or the Many Merry Mishaps of Nid and the Weird Wonderful Wanderings of Nod." The first is in an old picturesque Holland village, of which a huge Dutch windmill is the commanding object. Nid and Nod, twin mutes, full of mischievous pranks, take refuge in the mill. Their pursuers are hot after them, when they climb out upon the wings of the mill. Their pursuers follow them, and while there one pursuer upon each wing, a hurricane comes up and the mill suddenly starts turning. Soon the huge wings, each twenty-two feet long, are revolving at a frightful velocity, while the four persons cling to them desperately. Of course, the mill finally stops turning and they all escape, much to the relief of the thoroughly thrilled spectators. This wonderful feat will be seen here on Monday evening, June 11th at Larson's Theatre.

THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Adopted by the State Convention at Spokane May 19.

"The democracy of the state of Washington, in convention assembled, reaffirm the Chicago platform in its entirety and pledge our unswerving loyalty and fidelity to its noble principles.

"We denounce the present republican national administration in its attitude toward the trusts, and we believe that trusts should be controlled by the national government so far as interstate in their operations, and favor rigid laws to this end.

"We are opposed to the republican policy of imperialism.

"We denounce the republican party for its previous attitude on bimetallism and point to the record of legislation in the last congress as indisputable proof of the party's former duplicity on the financial question.

"We condemn the vacillating attitude of the republican administration on the Porto Rico tariff, and condemn the republican congress in passing the Porto Rican tariff act as a measure towards the people of Porto Rico of like character to that against which our forefathers rebelled.

"We extend our sympathy to the heroic Boers now struggling for life, land and for liberty.

"We recognize William Jennings Bryan as the great commoner of the present day, who ranks with and will have a place in history with Jefferson, Jackson and Lincoln, and instruct our delegates to the national convention to assist in making his nomination unanimous.

"We are opposed to the unrestricted immigration of Japanese into this country, and demand such legislation as will prevent them from becoming competitors with American labor.

"The democracy of the state of Washington, recognizing the advantage to the cause and the benefits to be derived in the coming election of having a Pacific coast man nominated for vice president, and expressing our confidence in the ability and capacity of our esteemed citizen and democrat, the Hon. James Hamilton Lewis, indorse him as the choice of the democracy of the state of Washington for vice president of the United States.

"We commend and indorse the patriotic, just and economical administration of our present state officials, elected by the combined fusion forces.

"We point with pride to the record of our representative in the senate of the United States, Hon. George Turner."

The Twentieth Century Club.

The twentieth century club held their annual business meeting at the home of Mrs. Giddings Friday, May 18, nearly all members being present. The following officers were chosen: President, Mrs. Blaker; vice president, Mrs. Rigg; recording secretary, Mrs. Coleman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Bell; treasurer, Mrs. Stewart; librarian, Mrs. Miller; critics, Mrs. Larson and Mrs. Wiley. Reports of the various officers and committees showed the club to be in good working order and ready to take up a regular course of study next year, the subjects chosen being English history and English literature.

The club now has a full membership of twenty-five.

A reception for the members will be given at the home of Mrs. Alex Miller, Friday, June 8.

Proclamation.

Again the day approaches when the hearts of the people are specially turned to the sacred duty of commemorating the services and sacrifices of our heroic dead; when the loftiest sentiments of patriotism are revived in the minds of the older and taught to the younger, and when with solemn pleasure the resting places of those whose memories we celebrate are lovingly decked with richest flowers.

Therefore, I recommend that from one to four o'clock p. m. on Wednesday, May 30, all places of business in the city of North Yakima be closed, that all our citizens may join in the patriotic ceremonies.

W. H. REDMAN,
Mayor.

Experience a Dear School.

Tom Barry, a sheep man, was robbed on Thursday night of $69 in money and a gold watch and chain while asleep in the Lowe lodging house.

Barry was introduced a few hours previously to a man known here as Smith, who was regarded by the officers as a shady character. Smith suggested that they take a room together for the night to which the honest and trusting Barry readily assented. The next morning when he awakened he was horrified to find that his dear friend of short acquaintance had flown while he slumbered, taking with him the money and watch as before stated.

Barry immediately informed the officers of his misfortune and the sheriff wired to neighboring towns in the hope of heading off the thief, but so far without result.
