

1212 N. 32nd Ave.

XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX

July 6, 1955

Mrs. Randall V. Mills,
1055 Bellevue St.,
Salem, Oregon.

Dear Mrs. Mills:

Enclosed you will find your check you sent in payment for a copy of the Treaty Centennial booklet.

I fully intended to send you and others I had discussed the publication with, a copy, and the slip (I see now where it left room for doubt) was ~~xxx~~ for the convenience of the library accessions.

My principal regret is that the booklet was such a rush job, since I had only 12 evenings to write two and a part of another section, do the editing etc. Things like that just can't be rushed, but perhaps it will serve a small purpose.

Concerning Drummers and Dreamers, I am enclosing a few of the advance circulars. (you know how tis with publishers, they're anxious to get as many advance orders as possible)

So if you could pass them on to the proper persons there it would be appreciated. The usual library discount (25 per cent) is given, and if the library is accustomed to make such purchases through a concern like Gills, it could be indicated on the margin and they'll receive the "credit." I would appreciate receiving any of the order blanks back so they may be sent in with my material, thereby giving me a checking point on "advance" sampling. Caxtons say they are gearing for a spring publication date. (And you might salt away one of the forms pending the time you report to your new position which sounds like a good advancement. Congratulations and regards

Click Relander