Tom Lea

A Portfolio of Six Paintings
Introduction by J. Frank Dobie

Trail Herd

"The illimitable space, the mystery, the humanity, the stark reality of the land and the men who look for the never-to-be-found gold in the land are all expressed in [Tom Lea's] pictures—expressed with drama and fidelity." So said J. Frank Dobie of these paintings in 1953.

Lea's sweep of the Southwest is fully depicted in this popular portfolio, originally published in 1953 but out of print for years. It is again available, with its six exciting full-color prints (average size, 11 x 14"): Fighting Bull, The Pacing White Mustang, The Hills of Mexico, The Shining Plain, Trail Herd, and Lonely Town. Four of the prints are reproduced here. With each copy of the portfolio will be included, free, a full-color print of Mr. Lea's painting, "Ranger Escort West of the Pecos," which hangs in the Governor's office in Austin. £ 5.0.0, $12.50.
