

*Come share in the yearly miracle while His star shines tenderly bright
And beseech Him to bring the whole world peace as He did on that Christmas night!*

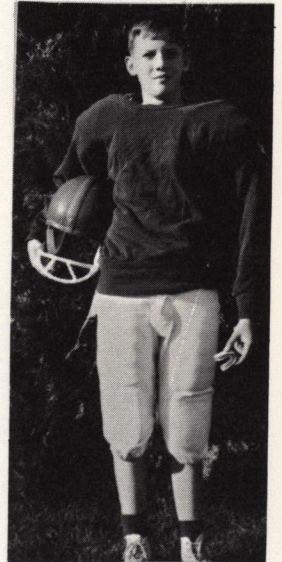

Three generations may be attending college this winter, Nancy a freshman at Oregon State University at Corvallis, Nana Glenn at Umpqua Community College in Roseburg, Oregon, and Pat taking a two night a week history class here from a circuit driving Yakima Valley College instructor.

Of course, at OSU Nancy has certain advantages: Being able to attend football games, to live in Poling Hall, a former men's dorm next to the athletic field, and to tutor in Italian.

Mel lived vicariously through the Grid Kid games between Grandview and other towns in the Lower Yakima Valley. Golf still pulled most of his attention. He combined hobby and vocation with helping figure out an automatic sprinkling system for the course.

Mike was happy to be in the United States again where a boy could play in jeans and have lots of room for bike riding and ball throwing. He practiced basketball in the winter, baseball and swim team in the summer, and football in the fall. A half spaniel-half laborador puppy named "Cini" claims his attention now. He's also a substitute newsboy and hopes to graduate from Webelos to Scouts in December following his 11th birthday.

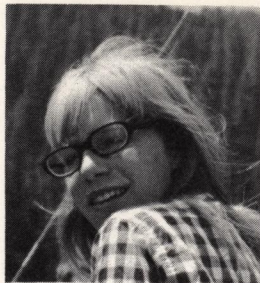

Diane completed a year as secretary to the Supt. of Schools in Seattle. With integration being accomplished in schools, her assignments have proved to be exciting as well as exacting. She lives in the Villa Roma Apartments just east of Northgate with two roommates from Montana.

Cathy emerged a new gal in contact lenses her junior year. She sang in the church choir and high school chorus. Her biggest challenge was learning to drive.

Pat concentrated mostly on writing for the Yakima Herald but did keep her toe in the door substitute teaching at Junior High.

HAPPINESS this year has been just appreciating HOME and the NORTHWEST.
