OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

GOV. Rogers, through the columns of the Post-Intelligencer, has announced his candidacy for a second term. This announcement, which was made a day subsequent to an interview in the same paper with W. H. White, democratic national committeeman for this state; is significant, inasmuch as it indicates that an understanding exists between Mr. White and the Governor. No one can understand, however, why the governor chose to first make his candidacy known through the columns of the P. I., except for the reason that he counts confidently upon the support of that journal in his canvass. The antipathy of both the P. I. and of Committeeman White to Col. Lewis is so pronounced that it is easy to account for their willingness to give his excellency's boom a lift. We have frequently heard it said in praise of Gov. Rogers that he was not a practical politician and we are inclined to believe it, judging from the character of the alliance he now seems to be forming. Unquestionably he overestimates Mr. White's influence in his party, for while that slippery gentleman's good faith as a reformer is not to be questioned, his method of working politics is decidedly objectionable to many who have been associated with him in the past. His excellency declined to state, when pressed by his interviewer, what party he was looking to for a nomination, further than to say that he sought a nomination at the hands of the forces opposed to the republican party. The chances are, however, that if he is to be his own successor he will have to be more explicit than that. Another thing, too, that the governor might well bear in mind and that is the fact that his views on imperialism or colonialism are in conflict with those of the great majority who warmly supported him in 1896. An imperialist candidate on an anti-imperialist platform would be incongruous, to say the least. There is yet time for him to square himself on this question, however. It is undeniably a fact—even admitted by many republicans that the present executive has made a splendid record in his high office and while he has made some enemies in his own party, the public think that in the main he was generally right in his contentions with subordinates. The people of this state will remember that this man with an iron will, has protected them from being plundered at the hands of two unscrupulous legislatures and the prestige thus gained, will go far towards rein-stating him if he be nominated, over any man that the republicans can find to pit against him.

OUR contemporary, the Republic, does not by any means reflect the views or opinions of a majority of the taxpayers of this county when it advocates a scaling down of Northern Pacific Railway taxes and advises the county commissioners to compromise with the company in the payment of its right-of-way taxes for the years 1897 and 1898. The assessment made for those years by Mr. Lasswell on the track and right-of-way was $10,000 per mile. This assessment was subsequently upheld by the then board of equalization as a fair and reasonable assessment. The public generally at the time, with the exception of a few lackeys of the company, commended the acts of the officials. It is true that some people were skeptical about collecting that amount, on account of the numerous bad precedents that had been established by former republican boards in the way of compromises. One case in particular was so compromised while the case was pending in the supreme court, when disinterested attorneys were practically unanimous in the opinion that the county would have won its case had the same been allowed to come to trial. The railroad annually makes enormous profits out of the people of Yakima county, and the average citizen insists that it shall stand its just share of the public burden. Tax adjuster and tax evader Sedgwick is well paid for making his annual kick, but the Republic man ought not to be misled by such sophistry. If the republican county administration follows his bad advice, it will hear in no uncertain tones from the people.

THE proposition advocated by Councilman Hough of building a tunnel, or passage way, under the railroad tracks of this city, in order that the lives of the school children and for that matter the general public, shall not longer be placed in jeopardy, is not such a wild and visionary scheme as some people are inclined to regard it at first thought. Many other cities have constructed just such tunnels for that identical purpose. If the risk that little children run in crossing the tracks is as great as represented, why should we not have the tunnel? The tracks are there for all time and our population is steadily increasing so that the risks of travel will increase rather than diminish in the years to come. The tunnel a reality would relieve the minds of anxious parents and take this vexed question out of local school politics. If the scheme could be carried out at a cost of $500, it certainly would be money well invested and public sentiment ought to uphold the city administration in constructing the same. The railroad company, in view of the present situation, could well afford to assist in the work. The money required should not be raised by popular subscription, as in that case the burden invariably falls upon the few. The municipality is able to do it and should—if it is done. The expense would then be more equally divided.

THE local campaign committee of the G. O. P., has recommended Col. Howlett over G. S. Vance for the position of state census enumerator. Mr. Vance is an estimable and popular young man, but he is only a novice in politics, as was shown by the fact that he did not actively seek the position until after his more experienced opponent had secured a "lead pipe cinch" on the job. The defeated aspirant has swallowed his "medicine," however, as though he liked it and will doubtless hoop it up for the machine in the next campaign with the same enthusiasm that has characterized his efforts in the past.

HON. Levi Ankeny, of Walla Walla, through the influence of E. F. Benson, his agent in this county, has been induced to offer $50 in premiums for the best samples of sugar beets exhibited at the state fair this fall that are raised in Yakima county. It is to be hoped that this will encourage our farmers to experiment with the beets this year and to get the best results, in order to convince sugar manufacturers who are looking this way that this valley is an ideal location for a factory, Mr. Ankeny's liberty will be appreciated by our people.

WHAT are the people of Yakima going to do about a proper observance of the fourth of July? Although the great natal day is yet about six weeks in the future, fully that length of time will be required in order to get up a creditable celebration. By all means let us celebrate.

SOME of Judge Boyle's victims deny alleged interviews in his "side talks for blind people," while there are others in constant dread of being interviewed. Yellow journalism seems to be going to seed in Yakima.

Governor Rogers' New Book.

A REVIEW OF THE WORK.

The Post-Intelligencer of recent date published the following review of Governor Rogers' new book "Looking Forward:"

Gov. Rogers' long expected book, "Looking Forward," is out. It deals with the struggles of a Kansas farmer against adversity, his entrance into political life as the state lecturer for the Farmer's Alliance, and the final adoption by the legislature of his plan for the relief of the debt ridden people of his state. Gov. Rogers' opinion's and convictions on matters of political economy play an important part and occupy considerable space in the book.

It is a story of life in "bleeding Kansas," told by one who has spent many years in that state and whose position was such as to enable him to make a very close study of its people and the problems that harassed them.

Woven in the woof of economical dissertations is a very entertaining love story which should alone make the work widely read. The hero of the story is George Grafton, a farmer, who, reduced to financial extremity by the low prices of farm products and high interest rates is forced to sell his homestead and turn lecturer for the Farmer's Alliance. In a village meeting a disturber of the gathering, who wears the star of a detective, kills him. The legislature which had been elected by the party of which Grafton was the leader, is reconvened and after a long fight passes the "remedial" laws for which Grafton contended.

His daughter, Mary Grafton, after a romantic courtship, marries George Maitland, himself the son of a wealthy New England manufacturer, who has become converted to the theories of sociology and political economy of the girl's father.

George Grafton's purpose in life, when at the death of his wife he was made state lecturer for the Farmer's Alliance, was to organize the farmers of the state, capture the state government through the polls and pass laws, putting a stop for two years to the process of debt collection and providing for the issuance of state warrants, non interest bearing, which should be legal tender for all debts and for taxes. His argument was that the people in the Western states could rule if they got together, and, "by the passage of laws, stop the machine that is dragging us to death." He advocated putting a stay of two years to the foreclosure of mortgages and sale of farms, asserting that in time the debt-ridden farmers could get even.

Grafton travels throughout the state, his daughter, Mary, for whom he stinted and toiled on the farm, becoming a school-teacher. The death of the mother is told with much simple pathos. The election is carried by the farmers, but not until Grafton, their leader, is slain while making a public speech.

The legislature adjourns after two months' wrangling, the house willing, but the senate refusing to pass the needed laws. After the tragic death of Grafton, which greatly stirs the people, the governor calls a special session of the legislature and the new laws, after a long struggle, during which senators receive threatening letters from home, are formally enacted.

Speaking of the bill the author says: "According to the terms of the bill, all laws for the collection of debts contracted subsequent to the fourth day of July were abrogated and annulled. Henceforth, he who by the power of money secured an advantage over his fellow men could not claim the power of the courts as an aid to his designs. Debt, said the agitators—that foe to liberty and chief arm of tyranny—will now be eliminated and destroyed."

"Great was the rejoicing among those who had from the first seen the causes of inequality and injustice."

"Grafton, 'the agitator,' was avenged. His plans had been mainly adopted, largely, perhaps, because his tragic death had impressed upon the minds of an otherwise heedless people the truths he taught. Fortunate man! the struggles and sorrows of his life and the seeming failure of his death had permitted him to be of service in the long and toilsome upward march of the race."

One of the characters in the book, familiar in the small towns of Nebraska and Kansas, is James, the village money loaner and lawyer, who exacts the ultimate farthing from his clients. He is made to say, speaking of public opinion, the churches and their connection with the money power:

"Oh, well, you see there is a power behind the throne greater than the throne itself. Mammon is the god that is really worshipped. Not by all; some of the old-maid members of the church are pure gold; they live right up to preaching, but the most of them keep the Jesus that they really worship right down in their breeches pocket, or they wish they had him there."

Old Busted is another character in the book who has plenty of counterparts in real life. He is a money loaner and a deacon in the principal church of the village. He is thus described:

"Mr. Busted was a church member for much the same reason as that which induced him to insure his property. Having paid the premium and placed the policies in his safe, the matter was dismissed from his mind. Somebody else was carrying his risks and he did not propose to trouble himself further in relation to the matter. In religion, 'Jesus paid it all' came very near expressing his creed. To be sure, a man ought not to be guilty of 'outbreaching sin', but men, in his opinion, are very fallible creatures. In total depravity he firmly believed—man was bad by nature; entirely so, and as he couldn't make himself better, he 'let the job,' as he expressed it."

Probably the most interesting feature of the work, at least to the casual reader, is the very evident fact that in the stirring political events in Kansas of a decade or more ago Gov. Rogers was a participant, and that the character of George Grafton is in fact a reproduction, in a limited way, of the author himself. This appears from the half tone picture of Grafton, on page 261 of the book. One cannot but recognize the features of the governor himself in this portrait, which is that of a man of probably forty years.

"Looking Forward" is said by the author to be substantially true story of an American farm. Farmer Grafton's lot was that of hundreds and thousands of Kansas farmers, beset on one hand by the exacting loan agent and on the other by the tax gatherer, and made the victim, also, of low prices on farm products. However, "love lightened the load," to quote from the book. "A little love, a little hope, with a confidence in the rectitude of intent, can sweeten the life of the veriest slave. With these life is a pleasure and each day a new found opportunity."

One might be justified, perhaps, in believing that some of the utterances of the characters in "Looking Forward" are born of the convictions of the author himself. As this: "It is the old, old struggle for larger liberty and greater freedom. Once this aspiration of men took the shape of a demand for religious freedom. * * * Now there is another step just ahead, as important—indeed, it seems to be more so—and that is, economic liberty, the freedom of the toiler from the exactions of those who live in the sweat of his face. We want free men and free women, freedom from the domination and control of our specially and legally favored brothers and sisters."

Two interesting chapters in the book are Rev. and Mrs. Ellery, the village preacher and his wife, whose portraits in half tone appear in the book, and who are evidently taken from real life. This is true also of Mary Grafton, whose portrait is that of Gov. Rogers' daughter, Mrs. William Blackman, nee Caroline Rogers. Mary Grafton made her home at the Ellerys, where she was betrothed. Despite the author's belief that happy endings are not always true to the life, he has finished his effort in this mood, for the last chapter deals with the happy ending of the love story that runs through the book.

State Fair Notes.

The state Fair commission has about completed the premium list for exhibits at the fair, the last week in September. The regular prizes have been more than doubled and a fine list of special premiums has been collected. Every industry in the Northwest should be represented at the fair, and the commission has offered suitable inducements in the shape of premiums, low transportation rates, attractive entertainments and other comforts to insure a large attendance. Arrangements are being made for a specialty troupe to furnish amusement for visitors, during the entire week, and the hotel accommodations will be made to meet the demands.

Hon. Levi Ankeny has notified the commission that he would give a special premium of $50.00, for the best results from sugar beets, grown in Yakima Valley. This liberal offer it is expected will stimulate the interest in beet growing so that capitalists may be induced to build a factory for making beet sugar. Balfour, Guthrie & Co., of Tacoma, have offered one ton of Nitrate of Soda, worth $70.00, as special premiums on farm products. This magnificent donation of a great fertilizer, is made to introduce the soda among the hop raisers, fruit growers and gardeners of the Northwest.

Coffin Bros., of North Yakima, have placed $60.00, in merchandise at the disposal of the commission to be offered as special premiums on various products of the farm and orchard. Guy McL. Richards' the well known stock breeder, gives two thoroughbred Chester White pigs, value $25.00 for special premiums on dairy products. The Farmer and Dairyman silver cup trophy has been on exhibition for some months, and will be given on dairy tests. Hoard's Dairyman gives eleven annual subscriptions for various dairy premiums.

Many outside parties are arranging with local agents for exhibits and the giving of special prizes. The Spokane Drug Co. gives $10 in merchandise; The Seattle Hardware Co., gives a fine double barrel shotgun, Marshall Wells Hardware Co., Duluth, Minn., donates a nice Colt's revolver; A Shillings & Co., San Francisco, offer a choice collection of Schillings Best products; and James Pyle & Sons, of New York City, give several hundred boxes of Pearline. These are a few of the many who will assist in making the State Fair a grand success.

A musicale will be given at the Baptist church next Wednesday evening, May 24th, for which the following interesting program has been arranged.

City Council Meeting.

The regular meeting of the city dads took place on Monday evening, Mayor Fechter and Councilmen Keck, Hough, Schindeler and Dudley being present.

The clerk read the minutes of the proceeding meeting which the council approved.

Building permits after some discussion were granted to the following parties: P. Y. Heckman for one story stone building on S. First street also to J. T. Kingsbury for a brick and iron addition to the rear of his building on Yakima Avenue.

A communication was read from the volunteer fire department to the effect that at an election recently held, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. M. Hauser, chief; Volney Taft, asst. chief; F. T. Liggett, secretary and A. Sinclair, treasurer. On motion of Schindeler the council ratified the election.

Keck, chairman of the street and ditch committee made a report recommending that the city abandon the idea of irrigating the trees in the Capital addition, carried.

Councilman Hough then addressed the meeting at some length in favor of the city building a tunnel or passageway for the benefit of the school children and pedestrians under the railroad tracks. He made a motion that a committee of three be appointed to investigate the feasibility and cost of the scheme, carried. The mayor appointed Hough, Dudley and Schindeler as such committee.

Dudley moved that the city attorney be instructed to draw up an ordinance that would give a committee power to purchase all supplies for the city, carried.

A resolution was then passed for the establishment of an improvement district for the purpose of building a sidewalk on East C. Street from Naches Avenue to block 128, carried.

The council then on motion of Keck voted in favor of renewing the insurance policies now about to expire, on the city hall for a period of three years in the sum of $2,500.

The mayor then stated that the next order of business was the election of a councilman from the Third Ward to succeed C. A. Anderson, resigned.

Hough nominated Alex Sinclair, there being no other nomination, Mr. Sinclair was elected by acclamation. On motion of Keck the council then adjourned.

The entertainment given by the literary society of the high school on Saturday evening was well attended. The exhibition given was very creditable not only to the scholars but to their teachers who coached them so thoroughly for appearance on the stage. The audience was well pleased.

A young man whose name is said to be Malloy, who lives near Prosser, attempted to get aboard of the rear end of the east bound passenger on Tuesday as it pulled out, but missing the connection he was dragged for a considerable distance between the train and platform. A large number of people watching held their breath, expecting to see the man killed. He only received a bad shaking up, however.

Richard Smith, of the Wenas, paid a fine in Judge Taggard's court on Monday as the result of a little fistie encounter that he had with W. J. Purdin a neighbor on the day previous. The trouble arose over that old and fruitful subject—the distribution of water out of the community ditch. Purdin swore out the warrant for Smith charging him with assault and battery. The penalty $10 and costs were paid.

General regret is expressed over the inability of Willie Prosser, of this city, being unable to stand the rigid physical test required by the government for entrance to the West Point Military Academy. The loss of two teeth it is said destroyed the young man's chance for the appointment.

At the meeting of the school board on Monday, all the present force of teachers were re-engaged for the ensuing year with the exception of Prof. Plumb, Mrs. St. John and Miss Crosno who were not applicants. The salaries of all the teachers were advanced $5 to $10 per month. It is understood that the present board intend to resign in a body in order that their successors can be selected at the regular June election.

A prize fight for the gate receipts was held within a short distance of this city on Friday night between two local bruisers, a negro and a white man. The fight was determined in the seventh round by the white man throwing up the sponge. Those present state that no science was exhibited by either of the pugs and that the fight was only a poor quality of slugging. The gate receipts amounting to $35 was turned over to the negro.

A wedding took place in the parlors of the Hotel Bartholet on the 12th, the contracting parties being Ernest Southern, of Thorp, Wash., and Miss Ivy Raymond, of Fruitvale, near this city. Receiver Englehart's sale of the balance of the property of the Prosser Falls Irrigation Co. took place at Prosser last Saturday. A large part of the townsite together with the Riverside hotel and a number of other buildings was sold to George Hesselman, of Germany, who was represented at the sale by his attorney, W. P. Guthrie, the amount of his bid being $45000. The hotel's furniture was sold to E. F. Benson for $450. N. Rich purchased five lots for $35.

The special election in school district no 7 which was held last Saturday, resulted in a victory for the element opposed to the construction of a new brick building in the north end. The total number of votes cast was 557, an even 300 being in favor of the proposition, while 257 ballots were against it. It being necessary in order to carry the boards proposal, that a three-fifths vote be cast in the affirmative, it will thus be seen that it was lost by 34 votes. The inclemency of the weather on that day prevented a good many ladies from coming out to vote.

Death of Jack Ker.

The death of Louis Ker, or Jack Ker, as he was more familiarly known, at his home in Yakima City on Monday, was a surprise to most of his old friends in this city, as few were aware that he was seriously ill. His death was caused by dropsy. The funeral took place on Wednesday, interment being made at the old town cemetery. Mr. Ker has been a permanent resident of this county since the early 70's and was well known, particularly among the old settlers, who all liked and respected the rugged old man for his many good qualities. He was a typical frontiersman honest and fearless and engaged with great energy in most of the Indian wars that occurred as a natural sequence to the white mans occupation of the Inland Empire. Mr. Ker was for a time in the regular service of the United States, being stationed at Fort Simcoe. In politics he was a very staunch and active democrat and sat in many conventions of his party. He was elected coroner of this county on the fusion ticket in 1896 and served two years. He was not known to have ever been married and had lived alone for a number of years. He was 72 years of age at the time of his death. Mr. Ker will be missed by his numerous friends and old neighbors.

McSorley's Twins.

The event of the season will assuredly be Bobby Gaylor and his company of artists who appear at Mason's opera house Tuesday evening, May 23rd, in the latest comedy success entitled, McSorley's Twins, which has been re-written and arranged to suit his own peculiar style. Those who have never seen him in Sport McAllister or the Irish Arab should take this opportunity of witnessing one of the most clever and original exponents of Irish character the world has ever known. Never has there been a delineator of character comedy who has had so many followers and would-be imitators as Bobby Gaylor. But his style is something that cannot be successfully copied, from the fact that his greatest charm lies in his "genuine naturalism." His whole heart and soul are wrapped up in his work, and believing so thoroughly in the reality of everything, he inspires the audience with a feeling of enjoyment which can find vent only in the hearty laughs inspired by the many funny incidents in the play. Those who have seen him before know just how much different he is from many so called Irish comedians whose idea of being funny is always connected with breaking furniture and bone breaking tumbles.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, MAY 12TH, 1899.

An extra session of congress will be called early in the fall, if public opinion does not object sufficiently to frighten Mr. McKinley out of issuing the call. That is the only reason it has not been officially announced. It has been decided upon, but Mr. McKinley wished to appear to follow a public demand, so the announcement was deferred until his friends, who are now talking extra session in every direction, could try to work up the public demand.

Ex-Senator Quay is using the speakership contest to make votes for his admission to the senate on the appointment of the Gov. of Pennsylvania. That is why the Pennsylvania delegation is unpledged, and why there is talk of putting up a dummy Pennsylvania candidate for speaker, who the delegation can pretend to support until Quay orders them to vote for one of the other candidates.

Senator Stewart was asked whether he favored an extra session of congress in September. "No, certainly not," he replied; "nothing would be gained by it that would be useful. It would simply mean three or four months of talk before they got down to business, instead of three or four weeks, which invariably follows the assembling of the first session of a new congress."

Great efforts are being made to have the Navy Department join in trying to persuade Admiral Dewey to come home by way of San Francisco, instead of by way of New York. A railway company has offered to furnish him with out cost, the finest special train that ever crossed the continent, to bring him from San Francisco to Washington. The republican politicians are not disposed to help along this idea at all. They are afraid of Dewey as it is, and they don't know what might happen if he was made the hero of a series of popular ovations in every town between San Francisco and Washington. They would much prefer his coming to New York, trusting the rest to his modesty.

Representative Payne, of N. Y., seems likely to fare badly in the speakership fight. Senator Platt has promised to force him to withdraw as a candidate for speaker, in favor of Sherman, and it is understood that Henderson and Hopkins, the two leading western candidates, have made a deal whereby their strength will be combined to nominate the strongest of the two, and the one who fails to get the speakership shall be made chairman of the Ways and Means committee and floor leader of the republicans, a position to which Payne was advanced after the death of Mr. Dingley and which he would like to keep, if he can't get the speakership. Should Sherman win, the chances are that he would have to promise the chairmanship of the committee on Ways and Means to some other state. So it looks as though Payne was bound to lose no matter who wins.

The Robert E. Lee Monument Association was organized in Washington this week for the purpose of erecting an equestrian statue of Gen. Lee upon a site overlooking Arlington, the old Lee homestead. The site has been donated to the association, and prominent Southern women will undertake the task of securing the money to pay for the statue.

It seems that one of the ways in which our new possessions are to be Americanized is to allow them to be overflown by Chinese coolies. The order issued several weeks ago, extending the laws and regulations governing immigration to the U. S. to all territory under military control, was taken to mean that Chinese coolies would be excluded from Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines. But that didn't suit those who are interested in filling those islands with Chinese and they had pull enough with the powers that be to get an official order issued by the war department saying that the extension order issued did not include the Chinese.

The gall of the beef contractors is second only to that of Secretary Alger. It might have been supposed that they would have been more than satisfied to be exonerated from all blame for the bad beef, which the report of the Court of Inquiry admits was furnished the soldiers—the report declaring that the beef was all good when it left the hands of the contractors agents—but they are not; they are actually demanding the punishment of Gen. Miles, because he dared, in the interest of the men in the army, to say that the beef was unfit to eat. They are citing the action of the committee of the German Reichstag which favored a bill discriminating against American meats as proof of the injury done their business by the charges of General Miles. Alger would gladly have Miles punished, but Mr. McKinley will hardly consent. He fears that congress will tackle the beef question anyway, but hopes that a congressional investigation may be escaped by allowing the matter to stand just where it was left by the report of the Court of Inquiry. If the talk of several indignant senators and representatives counts for anything, the matter will be heard from in congress.

State Press Opinion.

General Funston has earned his promotion. He is not so self-assertive as Teddy Roosevelt, but as a fighter he is in a superior class.—Tacoma News.

Democrats in the republican party are giving the g. o. p. no end of trouble. We have in mind the Hoars, Joneses, Masons and Pingrees. These men believe and act the democracy of Lincoln, but have no sympathy for the republicanism of the Hannaized party. Seattle Herald.

The Chicago platform was made by the voters of the democratic party. It represents the interests of the masses of the people. This explains why Bryan received 946,007 more votes than Cleveland notwithstanding the opposition of Cleveland's followers and the money power.—Aberdeen Herald.

Every trust in the United States will vote the republican ticket in 1900, yet in that year we will hear the republican stump orators screeching themselves hoarse in denunciation of trusts in order to induce the people to vote the same ticket that the trusts are supporting. The trusts cannot be beaten in that way. The only way that the trust can be beaten is to elect the candidates that the trusts are opposing.—Aberdeen Herald.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D., "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God, I am saved and now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at Louis O. Janeck's drug store. Regular size 50cts and $1. Guaranteed or price refunded.

Concerning R. R. Taxes.

NORTH YAKIMA, May 13th., 1899.
EDITOR DEMOCRAT: Jay Sedgwick, tax adjuster and tax evader for the Northern Pacific railroad, was in town last week.

In its last issue the Republic, official county paper and republican organ, comes out in a strong editorial advocating a compromise of 1897 and 1898 taxes of the railroad on the basis of any terms that Mr. Sedgwick is willing to concede.

Strange things happen when Mr. Sedgwick comes to town.

When Aguinaldo took to the bush and defied American authority in the Philippines no evidence of a compromising spirit flowed from the pen of the Republic's editor.

When Jay Sedgwick makes his annual in-ursion into Yakima county, heading his annual rebellion against the right to tax his corporation by the same men and by the same methods as individuals are taxed, just as defiant of law, just as subversive of good government, just as bush whacking in his methods as his compatriot in Asia, and orders the county commissioners to throw up their hands and deliver, then the fighting spirit of the editor of the Republic has vanished and he has become the Edward Atkinson of the occasion, in favor of peace at any price.

The cogent reason why this compromise should be made as given by the editor is, that in all his long and bloody experience in fighting corporations, he has never yet known an instance where a corporation contested a tax that the county did not finally have to settle on the basis of the first offer of the company.

But brother Atkinson, don't you know that you are giving aid and comfort to the enemy by sending out these treasonable suggestions of surrender and withdrawing our forces almost before the battle has commenced.

Oh! but we haven't any precedent for resisting this Jay Aguinaldo Sedgwick says the fighting editor. I have waded knee deep in corporation blood and helped to take many a bloody pass, but we always had to surrender finally, whenever Jay Aguinaldo commenced his blockade.

Supposing brother Atkinson we were to stand together this time and try and form a precedent. Then next year when the Jay uprising came you would have a precedent.

And each year thereafter you could add a new precedent and in time you would have more precedents than you knew what to do with. Wouldn't that be more reasonable than to try and discourage resistance as you are now doing, and then we wouldn't have to submit to these annual compromises, which the ingenious and ingenious Republic editor acknowledges are bad in principle. Let us not wait for other people or other communities to furnish us the proper precedent before we are willing to do our duty, but let us go to work and form a few home made precedents that will not only be a blessing to this community and to your paper, but may help some other oppressed community and some other unprecedented republican editor to the precedent that he so long has sought but found it not.

Back From Cuba.

Dr. Elmer E. Heg and family returned home on Sunday from the east where they have been for the past 10 months, the doctor having been engaged during that time as a surgeon in the employ of the government. His first assignment for duty was in the general hospital at Washington, where he remained for two months, from there he was sent to Macon, Ga., where he spent three months in the medical department of the volunteer service. From that point he finally went with the regiment to which he was attached, to Cuba, where he remained until April 1st. He has not received his final discharge but expects to receive it at any time. He will not again begin the practice of his profession in this city, but will after taking a brief rest here, open an office in Seattle.

In speaking of the political situation in Cuba, the doctor stated that the situation there was pretty badly mixed. During his residence there he did not form much love for the average Cuban, whom he describes as underhanded and treacherous in his methods. He is inclined to think that the outcome of our connection with the islands will result in a protectorate being established. The natives he thinks will be permitted to establish their own government under certain restrictions, the U. S. reserving a naval station or two and a control over the customs. Any part of the island he says is unhealthy as a place of residence for Americans.
