Umatilla Rapids, in the Columbia river off the south central portion of Benton county, were called Muscleshell Rapid by Lewis and Clark in 1805. Umatilla is much used in Oregon geography. It is the name of a tribe of Indians.

Umtanum, a tributary of Yaki a River, in the southeastern part of Kittitas county and a railroad station 12 miles south of Ellensburg, was named from an Indian word. It was first mapped by the railroad surveyor in 1853 as Em-te-num (Pacific Railroad Reports Vol XI, Part II, chart 3 (Meany))

Unfried, a postoffice on Alpowa creek in the east central part of Garfield county was named for the first postmaster in January, 1911. A former postoffice at Alpowa had been discontinued six months before that. (Fred W. Unfried in Names MSS Letter 322) Meany

USk, a town in the south central part of Pend Oreille county, was named about 1890 by George H. Jones in honor of the USk river in Wales.
