

Boring Stampede tunnel through the Cascade range in Washington State in 1887 and 1888 gave the Northern Pacific a direct main line between Lake Superior and Puget Sound, as provided in its charter.