Arrangements

Publishers, editors, poets, playwrights and professional writers from Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, British Columbia and Alaska will mingle at the Pacific Northwest International Writers' Conference which convenes in Seattle on July 27.

Among the headliners present will be William O. Douglas, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court and author of four best-selling books. Other talent will be present from New York, Hollywood and writing centers throughout the country.

The Conference will continue thru July 28 and 29, featured by a scenic field trip, writers work shops and dinners on the 27th and 28th. Attendance is estimated at about four hundred.

A fee of ten dollars covers all Conference events except lunch and dinner charges. Registrations may be made by mail, addressed to Mrs. Betty Dimmitt, 318 Administration Building, University of Washington, Seattle 5, Washington.

General information is available from Ralph B. Potts, President of the Conference, 1702 Hoge Building, Seattle 4, Washington.
