T'WAS A FROSTY NIGHT.

Candidates Englehart and Humphrey Open the Campaign in Yakima County--Former Gentleman Attempts to Explain his Legislative Record--Humphrey Makes a Venomous and Slanderous Speech--Small Crowd Present and no Enthusiasm.

The republican campaign committee fired the opening gun of the campaign at Larson's theater Tuesday evening to a comparatively small audience considering that the meeting had been advertised far and wide and every effort made to rustle a crowd.

The seating capacity of the house was probably not over half filled, notwithstanding the fact that the band was employed to discourse sweet music, and Chairman Frank and his numerous lieutenants were busy most of the afternoon and evening inviting people to "come out" and help swell the crowd. A desperate attempt, in fact, was made by members of the regency and the party workers generally to work up enthusiasm and make a good showing, but it was up hill work. Even the elements seem to be in league against the plans of the bosses, for the night was raw and chilly, and with the same feeling pervading the audience it seemed a difficult matter to warm up, especially while Mr. Englehart was busy explaining, which operation occupied a good share of the evening, rather to the discomfiture and annoyance of Candidate Humphrey, who was wound up for a set speech of an hour and a half and had left only an hour in which to rattle it off, as it was necessary for him, as he announced, to catch the 9:50 train.

Dr. Frank opened the meeting in his usual polite manner and announced that Col. Miles Cannon would be master of ceremonies. The colonel responded with alacrity and tried to wake up the audience with a few felicitous remarks and by telling a joke on himself. He then introduced Mr. Englehart. "The next senator from Yakima."

The senatorial candidate then occupied the floor for nearly an hour. It was plain that the gentleman was not entirely at his ease, as he spent a good deal of time in preliminary sparring with the subject in hand, which requiring as it did, a long personal explanation, must have been rather distasteful to the speaker himself, as well as to many in the audience. The candidate held a copy of last week's DEMOCRAT in his hand from which he made editorial quotations from time to time, assuring his audience as he went along that the opinions of this paper are the opinions of the party in this county, in which assumption he was probably right. He finally quoted that part of the democratic county platform which reads as follows:

"And we condemn the course of a former representative in the legislature from this county and the present republican candidate for state senator for voting against a reduction of railroad rates, in pursuance of a bargain between him and the railroad lobbyists and point to the present discrimination of the railway company in favor of the farmers of Walla Walla county and against Yakima county as the natural result of legislators bartering away to corporate interests their powers of legislation."

"As I am the republican candidate for state senator," continued the speaker, "that plank must have been intended for my benefit." He then entered into a long explanation of why he had violated his specific pledge by voting against a railroad bill to reduce freight rates, in the legislature of 1899. The main point in Mr. Englehart's line of defense was that the members from the wheat counties were reluctant or unwilling to make provision in the bill for a reduction of rates on Yakima products, notwithstanding his, Englehart's, frantic efforts in behalf of his constituents. At this there was a slight attempt at applause among some of the faithful in the audience, which fact emboldened the speaker to say that if he went back to Olympia again as a legislator he would do the same thing under the same circumstances. The candidate then took up the present issue of a railroad commission bill, intimating broadly that he was the original commission bill advocate in this county and had proved his faith by his works in voting "aye" on the Mount bill. The speaker, however, failed to state that the Mount bill was merely put forward as a mischief maker, to divide and confuse the friends of rate reduction. Mr. Englehart also called attention to the fact that he voted for a bill to reduce passenger fares to three cents a mile, although everybody knew at the time that such a measure could not become a law.

Mr. Englehart in the course of his remarks, said that the democratic state convention, at Tacoma, came nearly passing, and would have passed had it not been for Senator Turner, a plank in its platform condemning the railroad commission policy of Gov. McBride, and ridiculed the statement of Senator Turner in a recent speech when he said it would be necessary to send democrats to the legislature to carry out the policy of the republican governor.

During most of Mr. Englehart's address a death-like stillness pervaded the theatre; everyone in the audience, apparently, being anxious to catch every word that fell from the lips of the local statesman. When the orator dramatically wound up his rather lengthy explanation by saying: "I have no apology to make for my legislative record, and the greatest kindness that my friends can show me in this campaign is to attempt to offer none." This parting shot called forth some faint applause from the party workers and also smiles from many in the audience who appreciated the grim humor of the situation.

The next speaker introduced was W. C. Humphrey, a congressional candidate who lives in Seattle, and who is said to be a corporation lawyer of that city. This young man's speech was fired off at a great velocity, as his time had evidently been encroached upon. He seemed to think, however, that his life depended upon his ability to get it all off, and he doubtless worked himself into a sweat in doing so. His speech was made up principally of misinformation, sarcasm and a venomous prejudice that never appeals to fair-minded men. By injecting so much uncalled for and malicious bitterness into his speech it is pretty safe to assume that Mr. Humphrey lost any chance that he might have had of winning any votes here from the opposition party.

SHEEP GRAZING ON RESERVE

Is Destroying the Watershed, Says U. S. Engineer George Otis Smith.

George Otis Smith, head of the United States geological survey party which made a survey of a district 800 miles square adjoining the Yakima country, is in the city. The survey included parts of King and Pierce counties on the west side and Yakima and Kittitas counties on the east side. It was for the purpose of locating mineral belts in that section. Much of his time for the past six years has been spent in the Yakima valley country, and Mr. Smith has been given every opportunity to study the country and learn of its resources and its needs.

Mr. Smith declares emphatically that sheep grazing on the foothills must be stopped or the watershed of the Yakima country will be greatly injured. It is very necessary, he says, that the shrubbery of the foothills be permitted to grow and the forests made free from danger from fires, which are started by the sheepherders after they have grazed their flocks in the foothills. He says the first attention should be to protecting the natural water supply, then it will be time to talk of irrigation and building great reservoirs. Mr. Smith says the sheep pull up the grass and shrubbery by the roots, then walk over it and practically destroy the sod for miles.

He knows the herders are responsible for many of the fires that destroyed parts of the forest reserves. He says that they are careless and do not seem to mind what happens after their sheep have eaten up everything in sight on the foothills. Mr. Smith objects seriously to the practice of giving permits for sheep grazing in the forest reserves. He thinks it would be a wise thing to do away with that custom forever.—Seattle Times.

Retiring From Business.

Perhaps, not for years, has a greater surprise been given to the people of Yakima county and eastern Washington than the announcement that the well known house of Henry H. Schott Co. have decided to retire from business, and will close out their One Hundred and Twenty-five Thousand Dollar stock of dry goods, carpets, cloaks, clothing, shoes, groceries, crockery, etc., as speedily as possible.

It is with sincere regret that this announcement is made, as the house of Henry H. Schott Co. has become a household word throughout central and eastern Washington and recognized as one of the most reliable and enterprising in this locality.

Mr. George H. Stone, president of the Stone, Fisher & Lane Co., of Seattle, Tacoma and Everett, has been retained by them to conduct the closing out sale. Mr. Stone informs us that the stock of the Schott Co. will be sold out as speedily as possible, and every facility offered to the public for convenient shopping during the rush of the sale.

The class of goods that have been handled were always of sterling quality and none have been more public spirited and courteous to the trading public.

The reasons given for retiring is that several of the largest stockholders desire to withdraw their interests and engage in other lines of business.

EVEN the president of the United States, with all his power and prestige, found himself powerless to do anything towards settling the anthracite coal strike. Still, it is admitted on every hand that J. Pierpont Morgan could, if he would, settle the grave difficulty by a wave of his hand, but he won't, for the reason that he is being benefitted by its continuance. Since the strike began the price of hard coal has been doubled to the consumer, the reason being given that the trust on account of the strike has been put to greater expense in operating its mines, although it is admitted that none but "scab" workmen are employed at a wage rate the same as before the strike, the average of which is said to have been but $1.07 per day among the 130,000 hands employed.

This munificent wage, the strikers assert, is hardly sufficient to keep body and soul together, therefore their union ordered them to strike.

The operators, all of whom are in the trust, say that if they can hire labor to work at the figures they offer they have the right to do so and insist upon exercising that privilege, although in the sale of their products they deny the public the same right of competition.

The moral conveyed in the incident of President Roosevelt's attempted interference is plain. It shows, if it shows anything, that for all practical purposes Morgan is a man of greater power than the president of the United States. If Roosevelt were as great a man as Andrew Jackson, as his admirers are fond of asserting, he would say to Morgan what "Old Hickory" said to Nicholas Biddle, the autocratic president of the U. S. Bank. Biddle, it will be remembered, tried to coax and cajole Jackson into doing something that "Old Hickory's" conscience would not permit him to do. Failing in that course, Biddle then resorted to threats, plainly hinting that he, the official head of the U. S. Bank, could make or unmake presidents at will. The reply that Jackson gave him forms one of the brightest spots in American history, as the grand old fighter said: "If you can do that, Nicholas Biddle, you have a d—n sight more power than any one man ought to have, and I propose to see that it is taken from you." And he did.

IRA P. ENGLEHART, who, in his capacity as chairman of the house committee on appropriations four years ago, claimed the credit for having defeated the bill to construct a state road over the Cascades, via Gold Hill, is now said to be very much in favor of completing that road, which was begun a few years ago by the state. As proof of his sincerity, Mr. Englehart, it is said, justifies his change of front on the proposition by assuring the Gold Hill miners that he now has interests in that district himself, which he did not have when he was in the legislature before. If this be the case, self-interest must be a very important factor with Mr. Englehart in determining his vote on questions in which his constituents are vitally interested.

A modest Missouri editor tells of seeing a sign in a window which read: "B 4 U buy pants come in and see ours." Being almost pantsless he went in and found only lady clerks present. He blushed, bought a fan and went out.

ABDUL HAMID of Turkey seems to be the possessor of a keen sense of humor. When he received Secretary Hay's protest against Turkish treatment of Jews, the sultan called attention to American treatment of Filipinos. It is doubtful if Mr. Hay enjoys the Roland he received for his Oliver.

The east end, which for years has steadily furnished the majorities that have served to keep the republican party in power here, has been repeatedly slapped in the face, spat upon, sat upon and denied representation upon the ticket by the North Yakima regency, which dominates the affairs of this county. When the east-end brethren get tired of being milked and maltreated and cut off the supply of "pap" from the favorites up here, perhaps we can all come to an agreeable understanding after awhile as to who is who and what is what.

The republican spell-binders who are now stumping the state are complaining about the general apathy that they find among the people this year. The apathy that they complain of might more properly be interpreted as indifference. During the past two years voters of independent proclivities have had time to do some good hard thinking. The conclusion which very many of them have reached is that continued republican success would be inimical to the public welfare. They, therefore, feel disposed to begin putting on the brake. And the independent voters, mark you, determine the result of elections in this country.

HON. W. C. HUMPHREY is telling the people that the Wilson tariff bill that went into effect in 1894 was the cause of the hard times that began in 1892 and came with full force in May, 1893. Orators on the stump are allowed a good deal of latitude in making guesses, but when they begin discussing public events that occurred ten years ago, they are treating of subjects on which the people are pretty well informed. The panic of 1893 was precipitated by the conspiracy of the bank presidents that was formed in April and May of that year—immediately after Grover Cleveland was inaugurated president and John G. Carlisle became secretary of the treasury. The Wilson tariff bill was not in force until a year after the panic began, and went into operation on July 1, 1894.—Seattle Times.

J. P. MARKS, who has been selected to fill the vacancy on the democratic legislative ticket caused by the declination of H. M. Gilbert, is a pioneer of this county who is well known and thoroughly respected, especially by the older residents of Yakima. Mr. Marks is a man well informed on public questions, whether national, state or local, and would as a legislator vote for the interests of his constituents. He is a strictly honest man, who has made a success in life by hard work and good management. He has been a resident of the Abnathum for over thirty years. Having grown up with the country, he knows its needs in the matter of legislation probably as well as any man in the county. The people of Yakima will make no mistake by electing Mr. Marks to the legislature.

ONE might think from reading the editorial page of the Yakima Republic that Henry J. Snively was a candidate for office and a deep-dyed villain as well.

The DEMOCRAT does not propose to enter into any defense of Mr. Snively, for he needs none at our hands. Besides, that gentleman is always able to defend himself. We merely pause long enough to express our regret that Editor Robertson has so lowered the standard of journalism by making an indecent, uncalled for attack upon a private citizen. The editor prefaces his two columns of criticism by naively remarking that he speaks not in his own defense, but in that of his party. The DEMOCRAT is prepared to believe that the republican party of this county is in a very bad way, but we had not supposed the case to be as bad as the colonel represents it.

MR. ENGLEHART's explanation of his legislative record at Tuesday night's meeting strikes those familiar with the facts as being rather lame. Part of it sounds quite familiar, as many of us have heard it before. The candidate forcibly impressed upon his audience the fact that he had, in the legislature of 1899, voted for a railway commission bill. That statement is unquestionably true. Mr. Englehart did vote for the Mount commission bill, but he did not explain what was doubtful as his motive in doing so.

The facts in the case are that at that time the people of eastern Washington almost unitedly demanded the passage of a maximum freight bill. The necessity for the passage of such a measure was fully explained to the people of this county in the campaign of that year by Mr. Englehart, himself. There was no demand from the people for the passage of a commission bill at that time. They prayed in petitions a mile long, sent to the legislature, that they be given relief by the passage of a bill reducing the then onerous freight tariffs. For the purpose of defeating the passage of the Anderson bill the Mount commission bill was sprung.

The Mount bill was conceived in iniquity and brought forth in sin. It was voted for enthusiastically by the friends of the railroads and also by Mr. Englehart, probably as a balm to his wounded conscience. It was a piece of buncombe that never was designed to become a law, as the thing was a fake, pure and simple. Now, for the first time, Mr. Englehart claims credit for voting for that miserable subterfuge and proclaims himself as the only original railroad commission man in this county. Perhaps he is, but is there any honor attached to such a claim?

THE Seattle Times is authority for the statement that the republican state headquarters is seriously embarrassed because of the refusal of railroad managers to furnish the desired free transportation for campaign speakers. Persistent demands are said to have been made by the campaign managers for the free passes that have been so lavishly furnished the party in former years, but each demand has been met with a tart refusal, presumably on the ground that railroads are not interested in boosting a campaign that has for its object the passage of a railroad commission bill. The only exception that was made was in the case of W. C. Humphrey, republican candidate for congress. The reason assigned for issuing Mr. Humphrey a pass was that the railroad people deemed it no more than fair, inasmuch as Mr. Jones and Mr. Cushman, the other two republican candidates for congress, had for some time been provided with free passes; besides, Mr. Humphrey was regarded as "friendly."

When the refusal to issue a big bunch of passes was made known at headquarters, there was great wailing and gnashing of teeth among the faithful. This was a situation they had not counted upon and were not prepared for. The republican campaign managers certainly enter the campaign under a very heavy handicap.

W. C. HUMPHREY, one of the republican candidates for congress, who spoke in this city Tuesday night, is said to be an orator. Perhaps he is, if sound and fury, bombast and gross misrepresentation of facts constitute oratory. A man who stands up before an audience and proclaims, as did Humphrey, that his political party has always been right and that the opposition party has always been wrong, simply offers an insult to intelligence.

The candidate's speech is made up largely of copious excerpts from the republican campaign book, intermingled with a mass of other misinformation and venom, doubtless borrowed from other sources. In fact, there was nothing in this ranting speech that was calculated to convince an unprejudiced mind that republican policies ought to be continued or that the interests of the state would be best subserved by sending a man of Mr. Humphrey's mental calibre to congress. The introduction of so much bitterness and vituperation into the campaign, as this would-be congressman is guilty of, is to be deplored and is not conducive to good feeling. Nor is such a method likely to win votes for any party.

HON. IRA P. ENGLEHART, republican candidate for the state senate, will probably furnish most of the gaiety of the local campaign in laborious explanations as to why he voted 'nay' so very many times on bills to reduce freight rates, while a member of the lower house four years ago.

In the opinion of many of the leading men of his party the record of Mr. Englehart rendered that gentleman ineligible for renomination two years later, when the doubtful honor was palmed off upon the unfortunate Mr. Rich, of Prosser. But what a change has come over the spirit of men's dreams since two short years ago. The man who was openly spurned then is now the conquering hero of the hour. He, it was, who organized a campaign in the late primaries that brought forth victory from the jaws of defeat and left a number of the enemy dead behind the breastworks.

But raiding the primaries, after all, is not nearly so dangerous an enterprise as storming the polls. Before the candidate can hope to accomplish the latter feat successfully he must first be able to convince a doubting electorate of the justice of his cause. To do this entails explanation, long and wearisome and full of humiliation. A philosopher has written, "Thrice armed is he who hath his quarrel just." And he might have added, "especially so, if his past record be clean."

THE Republic's slur upon A. J. Splawn, candidate for the senate, will doubtless make that gentleman a goodly number of votes. Most of the people of this county know Mr. Splawn better than they know Mr. Englehart or Mr. Robertson. They know that they can trust Jack Splawn, and they don't know that they can trust Ira P. Englehart. If Editor Robertson were being paid for his editorial screeds by the democratic committee, he could not render better service than he is now doing.

RETIRING FROM BUSINESS.

The Henry H. Schott Co.

Captain Robert Dunn informed the DEMOCRAT this week that he had changed his mind about a Chinaman being able to render better service to this county in the legislature than had Ira P. Englehart. Captain Dunn assured us also that had he himself been in the legislature at that time that he would have done the same as did Mr. Englehart. Of course, under the circumstances, the captain is not to be condemned for having changed his mind. Still, it need not surprise the Parker Bottom statesman if he discovers that he has established for himself a reputation as a humorist.

At the meeting of the city council Monday night Mayor Fechter, himself a republican, took occasion to congratulate the city council on the splendid record made by Marshal Grant in the conduct of the city police department. During the hopping and Fair season, said the mayor, when the town was overrun with vicious characters, not a single person, that I am aware of, was robbed or held up, and I attribute this happy condition to the efficient management of Mr. Grant. This is a testimonial of some value, as the mayor of North Yakima is not a man who is given to the habit of paying idle compliments.

It is with no pleasure that the DEMOCRAT places the Hon. Ira P. Englehart on the rack this week. The republican candidate for state senator is personally a good fellow, with some most lovable traits of character, though he doubtless has others not quite so lovely.

As we started out to say Mr. Englehart is personally a good fellow. But experience has taught us all in the past that it is a rather profitless and dangerous practice to send a "good fellow" to the legislature. As a rule the "good fellow" is generally led astray in some way or other when he gets to Olympia and succeeds only in displeasing his friends and disgusting his constituents.

Mr. Englehart says that he has no apology to offer for his legislative record. The DEMOCRAT is sorry that the candidate takes this position, for it believes that an open confession is always good for the soul. If our old friend were to confess now, the public would be more apt to take him into its confidence again.

For Justice of the Peace,

G. H. Moulton

Democratic Nominee.

THE accusation of would-be Congress man Humphrey that the democratic party and democrats generally make war upon the American soldier, is a brazen, bare-faced lie, and it is safe to assert that the speaker knew that it was a lie when he uttered it, for he is assumed to be a man of a high grade of intelligence, otherwise he would hardly be running for congress.

For nearly forty years the democratic party in congress has been voting generous pensions for old soldiers ungrudgingly. Even representatives from the southern states doing so cheerfully, although many of them served in the confederate army.

Every democrat in both houses of congress voted for the declaration of war against Spain, and every democrat in the country applauded them for it. Every one of them voted for everything that was asked for by the executive department to carry on that war, although the lavish waste of men and money in that short struggle was, at the time, a matter of common knowledge.

While the democratic party and all its representatives in congress have from the first been consistently opposed from principle to the unwarranted seizure of Philippine islands, the party in congress with the possible exception of a few irreconcilables, have consistently voted appropriations to maintain the soldiers in the field. The party in congress has done much more than that. It has demanded and secured reforms in the army that the soldiers sadly needed. If it had not been for the investigations demanded and secured by democrats, the soldier in the Philippines would probably still have to be content with his diet of rotten embalmed beef and maggoty pork sent out to them by Alger and Corbin.

It ought not to seem otherwise than amusing to hear a hair brained young upstart, who thinks that he is a fit man to go to congress, stand up and virtually make the assertion that probably one-half of our people in the United States are the enemies of the American soldier boy and thereby traitors to their country. It is an infamous, damnable lie, and a lie that every patriotic, intelligent citizen ought to resent, regardless of his politics.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Large Grist of Business Disposed of, With Bare Quorum in Attendance.

The city council met in regular session Monday evening, Mayor Fechter presiding, and Councilmen Reed, Aikins, Wyman and Keck responded to roll call. The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

Petitions were read for grading and sewerage. Fourth Street from I street to Race street. The petition for grading was allowed, but that for sewerage was turned down.

In conformance with a request from John Michaels and P. Y. Heckman, the city attorney was instructed to draw an ordinance for laying a sewer in the alley between South Third and Fourth. A petition was also read from property owners on the east side of Second street between B and E for a concrete sidewalk.

A request from Postmaster Lemon to rent the city's big safe for use in the postoffice was referred.

A representative of the directory firm of R. L. Polk & Co. appeared before the council and asked for patronage in the matter of a new directory to be issued of this city. The council ordered two copies of the book, one for the fire department and the other for the clerk.

An application was read from E. W. Dooley for a renewal of saloon license in the Hotel Yakima. On motion of Reed the application was laid over for two weeks; but subsequently Mr. Dooley's attorney appeared before the council and talked so effectively that the action was reconsidered and a motion passed unanimously to grant the license.

The council then proceeded to make an official count of the vote in the special election held Oct. 6 for the annexation of Eastern addition.

The reports of city officials for September were then read and placed on file. That of Marshal Grant made a showing very flattering to that officer, and Mayor Fechter, in commenting on the same, took occasion to warmly praise the splendid work effected by Mr. Grant in the police department. Marshal Grant was given a week's leave of absence on account of illness.

The mayor read a letter from Engineer McCulloch of Lewiston, Idaho, offering to come to this city and draw plans for a scientific drainage system, for a consideration of $15 per day, car fare and the sum of $50 for drawing the plans. The proposition was accepted by the council, and the mayor authorized to enter into a contract with Mr. McCulloch.

An ordinance was passed vacating that portion of Seventh street between the south line of Hudson's addition and the north line of Home addition.

The bids of C. H. Bruenn and G. H. Moulton for constructing a sidewalk on N. Fourth street both rejected on the ground of being excessive, and the clerk directed to re-advertise for bids.

The usual grist of bills for the month of September were read, and such as were O. K. by the finance committee were ordered paid.

A communication was read from the county auditor giving the necessary data from which to make the levy for the different funds, as follows:
Current expense fund.....8 1/2 mills
Bonded indebtedness fund.....2
General fund.....1 1/2
This is a reduction of one mill from the levy of last year.

Platform to Get In On.

Commenting on the retirement of Speaker Henderson, Secretary of the Treasury Shaw intimated that he could not see that the speaker's withdrawal was justified simply because he happened to differ with the language employed in the political platform. Mr. Shaw said: "Republicans generally stood on the platform last year. The tariff should occasion no dispute and each puts construction on the shelter for monopoly utterances as he pleases. The language does not say that the tariff does afford shelter, but demands any modification that may be required to prevent their affording shelter. I think most speakers took the old time republican view, that the tariff is not responsible for the trusts. If sentiment has changed I am not advised." In other words, and in the opinion of Mr. Shaw, the republican platform are not made to stand on; they are made to get in on. Although the tariff plank in the Iowa republican platform was very clear and explicit, according to Mr. Shaw, "each puts construction on the shelter for monopoly utterance as he pleases." Mr. Shaw thinks that "most speakers took the old time republican view that the tariff is not responsible for trusts." That is true, but the republican state platform for Iowa took the democratic view that the tariff is responsible for the trusts.—Commoner.

An Aid to Democracy.

Roosevelt's attitude on the trusts proposition is just that which will do the democratic cause the most good. He acknowledges the power for harm of the monied combines, and that he recognizes the disposition for evil which frequently actuates these organizations, is shown by his earnest appeals for authority to curb it. But the president is a partisan as well as a politician, with a very natural desire for a second term. While as a citizen, and as the chief magistrate, he may acknowledge an evil, he is too much of a partisan, to cut entirely loose from what used to be the cardinal line of demarcation between the two large parties, and recognize the tariff as the main prop and strongest support of trust possibilities. If he did so the opponents in his own party would possess the most powerful leverage to encompass his downfall.

While Mr. Roosevelt has saved his opponents much labor in literally beating it into the heads of republicans that the trust is directly responsible for much of the distress that prevails in the cottage of the laborer, he has afforded no hope of relief except what may be derived from vague promises that possess a faint hope of realization in the dim future, against the united opposition of the trusts whose present vigor he is steadily augmenting, by toleration under a quasi spirit of candor.

The president does not seem to realize, if he does care, for the probability that six years time must elapse before an amendment may be enacted upon our fundamental law, which will enable the president to deal with the combines in a way to insure good behavior. And then, it may happen, when authority is given, that we will not always have as conscientious and righteous a man in the executive chair to secure the fruition of our hopes, even though we concede the possibility of the trusts going to sleep long enough to enable the circumlocutionary programme to be evolved. The suggestion of an improbable means of relief is virtually leaving the matter in the hands of those who present an immediate and logical plan for weakening the power of the trusts. The country has outlived the need of protection much more palpably than of bimetalism, and it is time for the fossils of the party to realize it. All sentiment and principle that clings to the protective tariff is of the past, and the only real use for it now is that recognized by unscrupulous leaders to try the fat out of money-bags for campaign purposes.

It is the glaring inconsistency of the position of the president, that evils exist which he is unable to encounter with the law-making power and the people to nerve his arm, that has led to a very general belief that his later utterances are simply the sophistry of the demagogue to avail himself of present conditions for swaying an influence outside of his party and at the same time by aid of official patronage and professions of fealty to secure a renomination in 1904.

Mr. Roosevelt is acknowledged to be a splendid equestrian, but the task of riding two horses, going in opposite directions at the same time, it is thought, will be rather more than he has hitherto encountered.—Olympia Standard.

The Right Step.

A step toward reform in the right direction was taken in the last democratic state convention when a plank was adopted declaring for the election of United States senator by the direct vote of the people. To emphasize this plank and to assure the people that they mean every word said along that line, the convention unanimously endorsed and nominated Senator Turner to succeed himself. This means that with a democratic legislature Senator Turner will be re-elected on the first ballot and the disgraceful scenes which so often mark senatorial contests will be done away with. The people of this state who favor an election of senator by direct vote, should show their appreciation of the step taken by democracy by voting for democratic nominees for the legislature. A democratic legislature this winter means more to the people of this state than ever before. The bitter fight now on in the republican ranks for the senatorship will cause that question to be made the paramount one with the legislature in case the republicans have a majority, and needed legislation will be forgotten. Men will be "influenced" to vote for this man or that for senator, and trading in votes along that line will result in defeating every measure now demanded by the people. Three labor bills of the utmost importance are asked by the labor unions. With a republican senatorial contest on, whatever votes these bills may have, will be taken from them on a trade and the three measures will get no farther than the committee. The railroad commission bill will suffer the same fate. This year, if the people wish, they have a chance to vote directly for their choice for senator by voting for democratic candidates for the legislature, who are pledged to vote for Hon. George Turner.

Royal Italian Band Coming.

Lovers of music—and who is not a lover of music—in this city should congratulate themselves on the opportunity to be given them shortly of hearing the Royal Italian Band, which, if press reports be true, is the greatest concert band that has ever toured America. Special and unstinted praise is accorded the director, Sig. Emilio Rivalta, for his marvelous control of his musicians and his original interpretations of the great composers. The organization comprises 55 musicians and includes some of Italy's finest instrumentalists. A remarkable fact that is noticeable in the composition of the organization is the number of wood instruments and the absence of a cornet or slide trombone. Nearly one-half of the band is wood and the effect is said to be quite different from anything ever heard in this city. The program for the concert here has been arranged with a view of catering to the well known musical taste prevailing in our city.

The weather permitting, the great band will parade at noon Monday, Oct. 13, appearing for the first time in their new, magnificent uniforms.

The State Fair commission has been very busy this week paying premiums and settling up generally. It is not yet definitely known just what sort of financial showing will be made, although Secretary Gunn says positively that there will be a small surplus this year, instead of the usual deficiency.

Sheriff Tucker up to Friday had been unable to get out of the state of Oregon with the man Hanson, who, with two others, is wanted at Prosser on the charge of stealing horses from Mr. Oldenstadt. Hanson, through his attorney, is putting up a desperate fight against extradition.

A PRETTY GOOD FELLOW.

Hon. Levi Ankeny Visits Yakima and Makes a Good Impression.

The Hon. Levi Ankeny, the well-known millionaire banker and senatorial candidate of Walla Walla, came over Friday to attend the State Fair and perhaps incidentally to look after his political fences in Yakima county in the impending campaign.

Mr. Ankeny is certainly a most charming gentleman to meet socially, and it is said of him that without effort he always lives up to his reputation of being a good fellow. The Democrat man and some other Yakima citizens had the pleasure at the Commercial club Friday evening of entertaining Mr. Ankeny, or, rather, to state the fact, of being entertained by him. Mr. Ankeny whiled away an idle hour or two with personal reminiscences of frontier life in eastern Washington and Idaho. He began his life-work at the foot of the ladder, spending many years of his earlier life as a prospector, and afterwards embarking in the cattle-raising business, and finally becoming a banker, having organized the First National bank of Walla Walla in 1878. He is essentially a self-made man, and both from the social and material point of view, he impresses one with the fact that he is an entire success.

Mr. Ankeny is a man of simple habits and kindly disposition. He seems to have none of the arrogance of most men of great wealth, and without knowing him one would not think of him as a millionaire or as one of the most powerful politicians in the state, which he is. He is characteristically modest, and in conversation makes as little use as possible of the personal pronoun, "I."

Politics, of course, was eschewed on the occasion mentioned, the nearest reference made to that subject being a discussion of the proposed railroad commission. The Walla Walla statesman said enough under that head to convince his listeners that he was absolutely opposed to the commission idea. He asked what the sentiment is in this county on the commission issue, and was told that unquestionably a majority of the people here are in favor of giving the commission plan a fair trial, assuming that, in any event, a railroad commission would do no harm anyway.

The Reserved Section.

"The rights and interests of the laboring man will be protected and cared for, not by labor agitators, but the Christian men to whom God in his infinite wisdom has given control of the property interests of the country."—Mr. Baer.

In the prehistoric ages, when the world was a ball of mist—A seething swirl of something unknown in the planets' list; When the earth was vague with vapor, and formless, and dark and void—The sport of the wayward comet—the jibe of the asteroid—Then the singing stars of morning chanted soft: "Keep out of there! Keep off that spot which is sizzling hot—it is making coal for Baer."

When the pterodactyl ambled, or fluted, or swam, or jumped, And the plesiosaurs rambled, all careless of what he bumped, And the other old-time monsters that thrived on the land and sea, And didn't know what their names were any more than today do we—Wherever they went they heard it: "You fellows keep out of there—That place which shakes and quivers and quakes—it is making coal for Baer."

The carboniferous era consumed but a million years; It started when earth was shedding the last of her baby tears, When still she was swaddled softly in clumsily tied-on clouds. When stars from the shops of nature were being turned out in crowds; But high over the favored section this sign said to all: "Beware! Stay back of the ropes that surround these slopes—they are making coal for Baer!"

We ought to be glad and joyous, we ought to be filled with glee That aeons ago the placard was nailed to the ancient tree; That millions and millions of ages—back farther than Adam and Eve—The ichthyosaurs halted and speedily took his leave; And so it was all saved for us, the spot with the sign: "Beware! This plant is run by the earth and sun and is making coal for Baer!"

—Josh Wink, in Baltimore American.

His Present Fad.

"You don't seem to be buying many rare books nowadays," said Perkins to Jimpsonberry. "Got tired of collecting?"

"No," replied Jimpsonberry. "Changed my hobby, that's all. My boys have grown some in the past seven or eight years, and I've taken up the fad of collecting derby hats and trousers and shoes and other things of that kind. I have a splendid collection of school bills, too. I'd like to show you."—Harper's Bazar.

Guy Allen is reported to be seriously ill at his residence in this city.

Geo. E. Stacy is now the book-keeper for the Yakima Hardware company.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. John Curry, of this city, Tuesday, October 7th, a son.

Sam Bunce has succeeded Andy Lynch as driver of the fire engine at the city hall.

Dick Hauser and Ed Wilson this week purchased the Yakima meat market from J. Chambers.

The last of the fakers left town Saturday night and Sunday, and nobody, apparently, was very sorry to see them go.

Manie, the seven year old daughter of A. J. Smith, of Parker, died Monday of quick consumption. The funeral was held Wednesday.

Quite a number of Yakima county people took the train for Spokane Wednesday night, taking advantage of the reduced fare to attend the Spokane Fair.

A. T. Brown and Miss Ida Cox, Sam Hunt and Miss Myrtle Hamilton took out licenses to wed, Saturday. Monday, Benjamin Waller and Miss Zella Marie Nash were granted a license.

S. P. Stone has sold his Cascade saw mill, near the head of the north fork of the Cowlitz, to Claus Timm. Mr. Stone moved this week into town, having purchased property on Moxee avenue.

I. H. Dills now wears a broad and expansive smile every time he is addressed by his friends as "papa." It all happened Wednesday, and "Harry" number two is very well, thank you, and weighs 10 lbs.

Doc Current has sold that portion of his second street block occupied by the Natchez market, to a Mr. Reed, recently from Iowa. The consideration for the lot and twenty-five foot one story building was $3,200.

V. D. Ritter, democratic candidate for county commissioner in the first district, returned from LaGrande, Or., Thursday, bringing with him 150 head of young stock cattle which he will place on his Wenas ranch.

The Woodmen of the World in order to properly commemorate the removal of the camp to the new quarters in the I. O. O. F. hall, will give a banquet and smoker to members of the order, Wednesday evening, Oct. 15th.

F. B. Shallow opened up a liquor store in his handsome new block at the corner of Front and Yakima, last week. The new building is being very handsomely fitted. The carpenters are now at work on the second story.

The firm of Briggs & Dam dissolved this week, the business having been divided. Henceforth Mr. Briggs will take care of the music business, while Mr. Dam takes the stationery and repair shop. Both will remain in the present quarters in the Clogg block.

The tax adjuster of the Northern Pacific Ry. Co. has paid into the county treasury the sum of $15,000, which liquidates the amount of the delinquent tax that was due on the company's property in what is known as the disputed tract. Treasurer Dudley announces that he will next Monday morning at 9 o'clock, offer at public sale all other property in the same district on which the delinquent taxes remain unpaid.

The officials of the Yakima Valley Canal company have abandoned the idea of tunnelling the big hill back of the Painted Rocks. Instead they will blast a shelf along the top of the famous old rock on which to lay a flume. The tunnel scheme was regarded as quite feasible but right-of-way for the tunnel could not be secured without condemnation proceedings, and it was thought that too much time would be lost in that way. Engineer Bannister is in charge of the work and has about forty men engaged.

Deputy Sindall went to Spokane, Thursday night, to bring back Charles Hodge, the defaulting salesman of the Yakima Tea company. Hodge is charged with having collected at least $120 which he failed to turn in, having reported the accounts as uncollected. Hodge is also accused of having worked Mark Barkwell for $90, and several houses of this city for goods in various amounts. Hodge's home is in Spokane, whither he went Tuesday and was arrested Wednesday on a telegraphic order from here. At the time of his arrest, it is said, he was getting ready to skip to Montana.

Bertha, a seven-year-old girl who has been living in the home of Wm. Mohr, cabinet maker in this city, showed up at school Thursday morning in a pitiable condition. The little one was lame and was badly bruised about the head and face. On being questioned she explained she had been beaten by Mr. Mohr, Supt. Jolley's attention being called to the child's condition, that gentleman lost no time in swearing out a warrant for Mohr's arrest. On the case being called before Justice Taggard the same day the defendant agreed to give up possession of the child if another home could be provided for it, and the case was continued. There was much indignation expressed over the matter by citizens.

F. H. Plumb and Geo. Stephenson returned home from Douglas and Lincoln counties this week, where they have been selling school furniture.

A. J. Hood, the well known rancher of Fruitvale, was able to be in town this week, after a long and dangerous illness resulting from blood poisoning.

Mrs. Sam Kincaid, who has been sick since July 4th at the residence of her mother in this city, left for her home on the Upper Natches last Monday, much improved in health.

N. E. Stanton, district organizer of the Order of Washington, left Tuesday for Oregon in response to a telegram, to merge the Pioneer Pacifics into the order which he represents.

J. L. Smith, a well known former resident of this city, but now of Portland, has been here for several days renewing old acquaintances. He says the town has simply grown away from him since he left here three years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McCafferty, returned home Tuesday night from San Francisco. Mr. McCafferty was informed by leading Frisco physicians that he is afflicted with cancer of the stomach and that they could hold out no hope of a cure.

F. W. Beck, the photographer, accompanied by his family, returned last week from San Bernardino, Cal., where he has been for some time engaged in settling up his brother's estate. His brother, it will be remembered, was killed here July 4th by being thrown from a horse.

A. B. Ross and family returned to Yakima, Friday morning, from Shanghai, China. They expect to remain some three or four months on a visit to relatives here. It has been five years since Mr. Ross set foot on American soil. He is engaged in the conduct of a building association at Shanghai.

The Prohibition Ticket.

The prohibition party of Yakima county held a mass convention at the court house Tuesday, Oct. 1st.

Edgar Wilkinson was made chairman and Rev. A. S. Burrill secretary.

A ringing platform denouncing the liquor traffic was adopted, and the following nominations were made:

State Senator, James L. Courtwright, Yakima City; representatives, Rev. A. H. Lyons, Sunnyside, and Dr. I. N. Richardson, Prosser; auditor, M. L. Matterson, N. Yakima; sheriff, Wm. T. Huxtable, N. Yakima; treasurer, John Druce, Yakima City; clerk, J. A. Adams, N. Yakima; assessor, R. A. Wise, N. Yakima; school superintendent, Miss Jennie Sherwood, N. Yakima; coroner, Dr. James Harvey, Sunnyside; commissioner, first district, Levi V. Slausor; second district, Simon P. Westfield.

The leading prohibitionists of this county say that they intend to put up a red-hot campaign.

F. W. Beck, the well known photographer, has just returned from an extended trip through California, spending most of his time in San Francisco. It is needless to say that this gifted artist will endeavor to give the people of North Yakima something new in the photo line. Call and see our new outfits. The finest in the northwest. One thousand dollars expended in the very latest, up to date photographic paraphernalia. Ground floor. Studio, First street.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound and imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Tobias Beckner Dead.

The black horse whose rider is death has come; a landmark is gone and a pioneer of the seventies has succumbed to the grim harvester; a divine husbandman garnered his own. Tobias Beckner, aged 56 years, died in St. Mary's hospital, at Walla Walla, 12:30 a. m., Oct. 6, 1902. He was born in Rush county, Indiana, 56 years ago, emigrating to Yakima county, Washington, in the year 1879, which at that time was one expansive plain far removed from civilization and covered with sagebrush and brake, he began his eventful career. Gifted with great physical strength, indomitable will and stability of character he launched forth to meet the arduous task of providing a home and support for family and self. Upon a remote, unbroken land, he pitched his solitary tent. Neighbors were scarce. Broad-gauged, liberal minded, energetic, and ambitious, he applied himself diligently to the duties and obligations forced upon him.

Persistent and unrelenting, surmounting difficulties and defying dangers peculiar to the times, he pushed forward the work that eventually changed the vista of desolation to a scene of prosperity.

Life under conditions existing during the early days in Washington was to the settler a trying ordeal. With limited capital and deprived of ordinary conveniences it required more than ordinary courage and fortitude to withstand the trial. Mr. Beckner was among the few who undaunted, braved the trials, fought the battles faithfully and courageously. The country grew up with such men under their giant strokes and master minds. Year by year broad, green fields, comfortable homes and general prosperity displaced the sagebrush waste, and where once only the face of the wandering savage was occasionally seen and the howl of the coyote heard from an empty canyon, merry voices of sturdy husbandmen echo back and forth. We listen to the story of these heroic bread winners of the old days and our hearts are touched.

The life of Tobias Beckner was one of usefulness; a public benefactor, kind to his family, liberal to his friends, honest in his dealings with his fellowmen, and cheerful in disposition, he endeared himself to all who knew him. His death causes profound sorrow and is universally lamented. Successful in business enterprises his labors were bountifully rewarded. Afflicted with heart and liver trouble, he has been during the past few years a great sufferer. A kind, patient and loving wife has been his constant companion, and has administered to his every wish and it is due to her untiring efforts that the hand of the harvester has been withheld so long.

If every person who has received a favor from Mr. Beckner should come now and deposit one small token, a flower, upon his grave he would rest beneath a mountain of flowers.

He was married at the age of twenty to Miss Susie Small, who with two sons, N. J. and Barney, survive him.

Commissioners Meet.

The board of county commissioners convened Monday and remained in session until Thursday evening, all members of the board, Messrs. Horsley, Lince and Dimmick, being present. A large grist of bills against the county was presented and ordered paid. The tax levy for 1903 was made, the proportion of the tax set aside for the different funds being as follows:

Current expenses, 6 mills; indebtedness fund, 2 mills, of which 1 mill is for creation of a sinking fund to discharge the principal of bonded debt; bridge fund, 1.25 mills; road fund, .25 mills; road and bridge indebtedness, .60 mills. The total levy is 18 mills, which includes the levy for state and school purposes.

The board on Tuesday appointed election boards for the different precincts of the county, regarding which there is considerable dissatisfaction among local democrats. Chairman Horsley says that the original intention was to follow the custom generally observed heretofore of giving each party two out of the three election officers in alternate precincts. This is what the democratic committee contended for, but Chairman Frank and Secretary Houser of the republican committee, demanded that two republicans be named in each precinct. They made the demand it seems, with so much insistence that the board finally yielded and made the appointments, which the minority party managers regard as grossly unfair.
