THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT,

BY J. D. MEDILL.

Published every Saturday morning, at The Democrat Printing House on First Street, North Yakima.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

THIS is from Chicago and happened last week: John P. Kent, a printer, was not happy with one wife and one home, so he provided himself with two wives and two homes. Even then he was not happy. Then he got two jobs. Even with two positions and two salaries to draw Kent found he had not solved the financial problem. He earned $25 a week working days, and that satisfied his first wife, who lived at No. 108 Mohawk street. But the $10 a week that he earned working evenings and took to his second wife at No. 1130 School street, did not satisfy her demands. She thought her husband ought to earn more. It was her investigation of the matter that brought the true situation to light. He had so much work to do that he had little time to spend with either wife. He had to excuse himself for being away from home all day and part of the night. Then he had to excuse himself in each of his homes for spending some of these much-shortened nights elsewhere. He pleaded guilty of bigamy. The wives were Mary Pannoch and Olga Salstrum. Sentence indeterminate.

THE republican state convention in session at Columbus is the preliminary to one of the six state elections to be held on the 5th of November next, the other states voting being Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia. In addition to a governor and a full set of state officers Ohio will elect a legislature which will choose a successor to Senator Foraker and will apportion the state under the last census for congressional and legislative districts. The main contest will be over the legislature, inasmuch as the democrats have no hope of defeating Gov. Nash, who is renominated, but do hope to secure the legislature, which will name a U. S. senator.

SENATOR FORAKER declares in strident tones of the "brave, heroic, gallant" negroes, that "as they have shared our labors and perils so must they share our rewards," and until these are secured "there must not be any restoration of the democratic party to power." Very good; the republicans have controlled the state of Ohio absolutely for the last ten years: how many negroes have they rewarded with office? President McKinley has the appointing power. How many of the "brave, heroic, gallant" colored men of the south has he admitted to the rewards of victory since he was elected for a second term?—N. Y. World.

IN quoting the opinions of the rural press, among them this journal, concerning the late Seattle tragedy, the Post-Intelligencer pays a just tribute to country editors in general. Under the caption, "They see clearly," the P.-I. says, "The country editors see the facts clearly and state them with calmness and perspicacity." The looker on sees the best of the game. In the moil and turmoil of Seattle politics it is impossible to speak or write without bias. The judicial minds of those who are not mixed in the affair form opinions that make up the final judgment of the people at large.

THE Post-Intelligencer of Monday last printed a fine half tone portrait of Randolph Perry Scudder, Congressman Jones' Yakima appointee to the Naval academy. He is a great grandson of Commodore Perry, who in the war 1812 reported his victory on Lake Erie in the immortal words, "We have met the enemy and they are ours." Randolph may be relied upon to never reverse the phrase and say, "We've met the enemy and we are their'n."

TOM JOHNSON has been interviewed on the evils of patent monopolies. Tom is a multimillionaire through the operation of a "robber tariff," as he calls it, and Edison is a millionaire through the operation of an inventive brain that has blessed mankind in countless ways. One is enriched by the government through tariff and the other through patent laws. Of the two evils it is easy to guess which is the least.

THOMAS COOPER, land agent of the Northern Pacific Railway company, has been promoted to the position of assistant president. A deserved promotion. The cruel joker, however, stabbed Tacoma in the back, by wiring to the country that he intended to move his headquarters to Seattle. The News hastens to editorially correct the error, and Tacoma breathes easier again.

OUR Zillah friends are much exercised by the recent killing of a wild animal there of the "What is it?" species. It is a sort of a cross between a grizzly bear and a jaguar. The skin is to be mounted and shipped to California to determine its pedigree. Had the animal been trapped alive the coming circus manager would have, no doubt, paid a fabulous sum for the curiosity.

THUNDER and lightning, storms and floods and the deadly summer solstice are felt in the eastern states just now. Comparisons are odious, but the Yakima climate is glorious. Warm days and cool nights make this a favored spot, with none like it on the face of the earth. Come, ye disconsolate, and partake of the climate freely for of such is the kingdom of Yakima.

REV. MINOT SAVAGE gives out in an interview some sensible reflections anent the Sunday question. He would devote the day to rest from work and dissipation—the mornings to religious worship for the devout and the remainder of the day to innocent recreation by old and young. The Continental Sunday has apparently come to stay, when the pulpit endorses it.

SENATOR BUTLER is enroute for the Sound and being interviewed as to the policy of the populist party he states that the populists will go it alone in the next presidential election. The senator evidently believes in the plan of first finding out what the enemy wants and then go and do it.

SOUND newspapers are boasting that the people of the metropolis are wearing overcoats and mittens, while the denizens of the torrid east are dying from the heat. They wear overcoats and mittens further up on the north coast, but the peaches, hops and melons don't ripen there to any great extent.

THE national president of the W. C. T. U. in concert with the local organization here, claims to be "fully satisfied with the results of the abolition of the canteen" at the various army headquarters. Saloon men doing business neighboring the army posts express a similar satisfaction.

EX-GOVERNOR HOGG, of Texas, has become a millionaire by virtue of an oil gusher at Beaumont, Texas. The governor can now get his feet and nose in the trough and feel as though he were a bigger man than old Rockefeller.

A Seattle judge has decided that nickle-in-the-slot machines, where the wager is for cigars and other articles of merchandise, do not come within the purview of the new law. Everything in Seattle is wide open—even the judges.

A great Seattle daily, with a blaze of trumpets, duly accentuated with punctuation marks, is charging John L. Wilson with the responsibility of Meredith's killing. It will be in order to hang John to a sour apple tree.

THE fattest girl in the country, living at Baraboo, Wis., has succumbed to the heat and carried 650 pounds weight into the grave. Could not this mountain of flesh hold a little life? It is so different in Yakima.

WEARY WILLIE walks no more. It is the careless man who owns a bike that walks. The bicycle is a great invention for the tramps. They are so easy to steal and so easy to ride away.

JOSEPH LADUE the founder of Dawson City, has just died at Schuyler Falls, N. Y. He was the original Klondiker.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

John Michaels has purchased the Hotel Bartholet bar and the license is now in his name.

The Rainier forest reserve was opened up Tuesday, and sheep went in to the number of 200,000 head.

Billy Splawn started Thursday to drive 30 head of horses over the Cascades for Sound markets.

O. Beck on Wednesday shipped a sample box of Royal Ann cherries to Buffalo for the exposition.

H. L. Osborn has received the official appointment as poundmaster and dog catcher, with police powers.

E. W. Dooley this week purchased the teams and drays of B. C. Allen, formerly a part of the Fashion stables.

John B. Waddington, aged 65 years, died at his home on the Moxee last Saturday, after a prolonged illness.

A petition has been sent to Washington requesting the appointment of W. L. Lemon as postmaster of North Yakima.

It is reported that Dr. D. M. Angus, of Prosser, and Miss Brune, of The Dalles, were married in that city last week.

Dr. T. B. Gunn returned Tuesday from Everett, whither he had been to induce some horsemen to enter one of the special races.

The foundation having been completed for the new Sherwood building on North Second street, work is now progressing on the super-structure.

Frank M. Colhoun and Mrs. M. E. Meyers; and Herbert B. Pratt and Miss Amelia Sylvester have been licensed to wed by the county auditor.

An alarm of fire was turned in last Friday evening, calling out the department to check an incipient blaze in a wood yard on the west side.

C. W. Badger is in charge of Nagler's cigar and confectionery store on the south side of the avenue, and A. B. Flint now handles his daily papers from that point.

The state fair premium list has been issued, with larger and more diversified premiums than ever before offered. The book can be had by calling on or writing to the secretary.

Guy Stacy returned Saturday from the prize shoot at Walla Walla, having made a splendid score. He states that the contest was the most interesting ever held in the northwest.

A. L. Aikens, having been appointed by the county commissioners superintendent of construction of the new bridge at Alfalfa, went down on Tuesday to see that the work was properly started.

A runaway team tied at Coffin's store Wednesday morning, became frightened by a falling barrel and made a wild dash for the fair grounds. They were subsequently captured after an exciting chase, not much worse for wear.

The sale of the Gable horses at the stock yards Tuesday, for delinquent taxes, attracted a large crowd. The animals brought prices far in excess of anticipations, most of the sixty-seven head being very scrubby stock.

About fifty Woodmen of the World participated in a banquet at Ditter &

Mechtel's Wednesday night, the result of the wager between teams of the order as to who would get the larger number of recruits within a given time.

Teams started last Tuesday hauling crushed rock for the Yakima avenue improvement. E. C. Burlingame went to Seattle Wednesday to secure some needed accessories to the machinery, and work is now progressing rapidly.

E. F. Benson has been appointed assistant manager of the Washington feature to the Buffalo exposition. Mr. Benson is now hard at work to improve the exhibit and requests the assistance of all who can in any way add to its attractions.

Elzy E. Hawkins and Miss Ella Wilson were married at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ada Wilson, on Nob Hill last Tuesday. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for the home of the groom at Everett, where they will reside.

Poundmaster Osborn impounded Mr. Allenbaugh's dog on Wednesday. The dog did some grand and lofty tumbling and vaulting over the ten foot fence and took leg bail for security. The poundmaster is making some necessary repairs to prevent a repetition of the incident.

Judge W. R. Bell, of Seattle, held court here on Friday last, when motions for new trial were overruled in the cases of Toppenish Trading Co. vs. Lee Millicar and George Gervais vs. Alex McAllister. A new trial was granted in the case of Geo. Weikel vs. H. Schmidt, replevin of a horse.

Evangelist Reed, at the Methodist church Thursday evening, during his discourse, remarked that "the devil is just across the street." This statement was occasioned by the fact that a dance was in progress at the armory; but it gives rise to hope that we may always be able to keep his satanic majesty "just across the street."

The horse round-up, completed a few days ago is regarded as the most successful ever conducted in Yakima county. From a financial standpoint, particularly, the participants in the round-up congratulate themselves, for besides building two fine new corrals at Selah and the Hog ranch, and rebuilding the old one at Coal Creek, the treasurer has over $100 in cash on hand.

Joel Shomaker returned Tuesday from a visit to the several Kittitas towns where he went to interest the people in the Log-Rolling event to come off here July 26. Mr. Shomaker expects good results from his trip, and says that the Roslyn excursionists, to the number of 1000, who have been planning to come to Yakima in August, will probably advance the date to conform with the log-rollers.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

The Day as It Was Celebrated in North Yakima.

The ideal weather on the Fourth brought out an enormous crowd of celebrants, the city streets being lined with a gay crowd on pleasure bent during the early morning hours.

Business houses and residences were resplendently decorated with bunting along the line of march of the parade, which was made up of the Yakima band, the militia company, the Woodmen of the World, at least one hundred strong, a burlesque band and an unusual number of small boys.

At 10 o'clock a game of ball was played between the Shamrocks of North Yakima, and the Blue Clouds of Yakima city and Ahtanum at the ground on Capitol hill resulting in 16 scores for the last named team, to 9 for their city opponents.

At noon the crowd repaired to the state fair grounds, and it is estimated that not less than five thousand people were in attendance, the sports giving entire satisfaction.

The celebration at the fair grounds was started with an oration by Hon. E. B. Preble.

The day's celebration was closed with the ball given at the armory by the Woodmen of the World. There were nearly two hundred tickets sold for this entertainment, and the enormous hall was taxed to its fullest capacity. The ball is pronounced one of the biggest and most successful events of the kind ever given in North Yakima.

No accident worthy of mention occurred during the day, and only two or three arrests of parties who commenced to "celebrate" too early in the day, are reported.

County Commissioners.

All members of the board of commissioners were present at the beginning of the session last Monday.

Nearly the whole session was taken up with road matters and in auditing claims against the county accruing during the past quarter.

It was announced by the board that the first four road districts to buy road grading machines would receive from the general road fund a sum equal to one third of the cost, of the same provided the machine did not cost over $300. If two districts combine to purchase a machine they will receive one fourth of the cost. Road district number 12 being the first, was given $100.

Harvey Young, clerk with W. J. Roaf, was awarded the scholarship to the Pullman agricultural college.

The board wound up its business Friday and adjourned till the first Monday in August, when they will sit as a board of equalization.

A party of little folks were entertained by Fay and Ernest Wyman at their home on North Second street Wednesday afternoon. Among those present were: Urban Barthelet, Harry Schott, Hazel and Alice Hayden, Allie and Leslie Shaw, Forest Clark, Lucille and Gladys Bartlett, Harriet Parker, Virginia and Patsy Richards, Lionel and Clyde Diteman, Marion and Kenneth Coonse, Dorothy and Margaret Coffin, Herminia Rand, Stanley Stewart, Cecil Cook, Philip Englehart, Irene Street, Eva Hale, Ruth and Neal Leslie, John Perry, Helen Gordon, Pearly Spinning, Audrey Pearson.

GOOD NEWS FOR YAKIMA.

The Long-Hoped-for Railroad to Portland is Assured.

The Portland Oregonian of July 4 brings this cheering news to Yakima, relative to the completion of a railroad enterprise started at least ten years ago. About thirty miles of the road has been in operation for several years:

"News that it has been definitely decided to extend the Portland, Vancouver & Yakima railroad this year has revived speculation as to the power behind that concern and the ulterior purpose of the extension. It is generally believed that the Vancouver road is edging toward North Yakima, where it will make connection with the Northern Pacific and turn out to be a full fledged Northern Pacific enterprise. This would give the Northern Pacific a cut-off to Portland, which it much desires."

Cold Blooded.

"What cold-blooded people the Americans are!" exclaimed the Filipino in the coffee-sack trousers.

"Have they committed a new outrage?" inquired the Filipino in the calico suit.

"No," responded the simple Filipino in the coffee-sack trousers; "but an American lady subscriber to this newspaper writes to the editor asking him to tell her what is 'the best way in which to remove 'blackheads'!"—Brooklyn Eagle.

HOW THE MATTER STANDS

W. J. Bryan Gives An Interesting Interview.

The New York World folks had an interview with Bryan last week and the result follows:

"I am not only not a candidate for any office, but I have no candidate in mind for any office. My interest centers in principles, and men are important only as they aid in carrying out these principles."

"The democratic party stands for definite, positive principles, and unless I mistake the sentiments of the masses the voters will insist upon adhering to these principles in spite of the threats of reorganizers."

"Those who argue from the standpoint of expediency will not have influence with the voters, because no one can say what is expedient."

"We may deserve to win and yet lose, but it still remains that to deserve to win is the surest road to success."

A reporter of The World asked Mr. Bryan:

"Why do you call Senator Hanna, of Ohio, the logical candidate of the republican party in 1904?"

"I do not desire Mr. Hanna's nomination," Mr. Bryan replied, "because I do not think that one should desire a bad thing, however hopeful he may be that good will come out of it. Mr. Hanna is the logical candidate of the republican party because he represents the dominant force in that party, which is commercialism. He thinks in his pocket-book and talks with his money, and is a fitting representative of the greed which dictates the policy for which the republican party now stands."

"Mr. Roosevelt better represents imperialism and the warlike spirit which was developed by the war of conquest; but the republican party does not support imperialism because of any special love of war, but because it regards the holding of the Philippines as profitable to the exploiters who control the republican policy. For that reason I think Mr. Hanna is more likely to be nominated than Mr. Roosevelt."

Mr. Bryan was shown the following sentence from the speech of Senator Foraker at Columbus, before the Ohio republican state convention: "There is only one intelligent man in America who does not now see that the defeat of Bryan in 1896 saved us from irretrievable disaster and the coroner."

"When Senator Foraker said that," Mr. Bryan said, "he made an unjust reflection upon the intelligence of more than 6,000,000 of people, for there are that many who do not believe that a democratic victory in 1896 would have brought disaster to the nation, and they are all sufficiently intelligent to deserve the respect of Senator Foraker."

"Do you intend to continue your leadership of the democratic party?"

"I intend to state the principles which I think best for our nation. If I have any influence it will be because the things which I advocate are acceptable to a large number, and that is a question which neither I nor the republican newspapers can decide."

"Have you any views to express as to the decision of the supreme court in the Porto Rico case?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Bryan, "I have two questions to suggest. They go to the root of the matter, and no republican paper, so far as I have seen, has undertaken to answer them."

"First—Is a written constitution a good thing for the people of the United States? If a man answers it by saying 'no,' he attacks the whole theory of constitutional government. If he answers it by saying 'yes,' he is confronted by the second question, which is:

"Why, then, is a written constitution not good for the people of Porto Rico?"

"In order to defend the supreme court decisions the republican party is compelled to assert the principle which, if carried out, will destroy the constitution in this country; for, if the Porto Ricans do not need a constitution to protect them from a congress which they do not elect and cannot remove, no one can argue that we need a constitution to protect us from a congress which we do elect and can remove."

Public School Matters.

At a special meeting of the school board last Friday evening, the principal part of the time was spent in discussing the course of study for next session.

At the board meeting of Tuesday evening, C. H. Armstrong, of Pullman, was appointed to the vacancy of second assistant principal of the High school; Mrs. Alice M. Suydam, of Spokane, assistant principal eighth grade Central school, and Mrs. Henrietta Enyart, of Ballard, teacher of the sixth grade in High school.

The board will meet in next regular session Tuesday, July 9, when a new city superintendent will probably be selected. Applications for the position have been received from F. H. Plumb, North Yakima; Edgar A. Milner, Portland; S. T. May, Clarion, Iowa; A. F. Beckdolt, Seattle; H. J. Hockenberry, Carbondale, Pa.; W. J. McCoy, Salt Lake; Wm. B. Mandeville, Seattle; J. F. Haney, Wenatchee; David C. Reed, Redlands, Cal.; J. A. Joseph, Seattle; H. A. Snyder, Kirkland, Wash.; H. T. Englehorn, Helena, Mont.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

THE YAKIMA DEMOCRAT

NORTH YAKIMA, JULY 6, 1901.

A New Casibianca.

A fly astride a toper's nose,
Whence all but he had fled—
The flames that lit that human wreck
Shone round him ghastly red.

Yet beautiful and bright he stood
As born to rule the storm—
A creature fond of human blood
In almost any form.

The sojer "shooed"—he wouldn't go;
He whet his proboscis anew
And took another bite.

The biped shrieked, "Arrah, ye snide!
Bejabers, git ye gone!"
When but another bite replied,
And fast the flames rolled on.

Now anger knit his irate brow
And raised on end his hair;
With upturned under lip he blew
A blast of brave despair.

He shouted but once more aloud,
"Ye varmint, scat, I say!"
But the ire-raising insect clung,
And gaily sucked away.

Then came a thwack of thunder sound!
That fly, O, where was he?
Go ask the stars that all around
That sojer he did see.

Go ask that bleeding, broken nose,
Go ask that bunged eye;
For the noblest thing that perished there
Was not that wily fly!

The Wise Dutch.

While all the great nations of the world are acting like greedy children that blindly grab because they see other children grabbing, Holland is perfecting a plan for expending $38,000,000 in creating a province.

The new province now lies at the bottom of the stormy, dangerous, useless Zyder Zee. A dike is to be built, the great salt-water lake is to be pumped dry and 500,000 acres of fertile land will be annexed to Holland.

This new province is ideal. It meets all the conditions which sane nations insist upon before annexing—it is contiguous to the national domain; it is capable of sustaining a population like that of the nation; it offers opportunities for settlement; it calls for no violation of the great race laws which nations are to severely punished for disobeying.

While the great powers are squandering their resources, Holland is adding to hers. While they are providing distant graves for their soldiers, Holland is providing adjacent homes for her peaceful citizens. While they are contracting, Holland is expanding.

The Dutch are a little people, yet are exceeding wise. Can the same be said of a great nation which leaves the land of boundless potentialities within its own borders sparsely settled and goes on a debauch of Oriental opium-smoking? —N. Y. World.

It Dazzles the World.

No Discovery in medicine has ever created one quarter of the excitement that has been caused by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Its severest tests have been on hopeless victims of Consumption, Pneumonia, Hemorrhage, Pleurisy and Bronchitis, thousands of whom it has restored to perfect health. For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, Hay Fever, Hoarseness, and Whooping Cough it is the quickest, surest cure in the world. It is sold by Quinett and Ayres who guarantee satisfaction or refund money. Large bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

CAUGHT AT HIS OWN GAME.

Confidence Man Was Too Confiding With the "Sky Pilot."

Waiting at the Union depot was a round-faced man with an attractive countenance, eyes that invited confidence, and rather long hair, that waved from a fine forehead. He was dressed in clericals and looked the part. When the old farmer took a seat after buying a ticket for Ypsilanti the two fell into conversation.

The minister brought the talk around to pickpockets, and men who fool you out of your money, and expressed a great deal of dread of them. He clung to this topic until the noise of a row was heard from the outside, and he expressed a desire to see what was the matter.

"Come on," he shouted, as he started.

"No, my friend," replied the farmer, "not if you have any money about you. It is sure to be taken from you in a rough crowd like that."

"Here, you hold it and my watch until I run out a few minutes and then I'll hold your valuables while you go."

"All right, don't be long," and the farmer accepted the trust.

When the minister returned the farmer was gone. Never did a clerical masquerade come to a quicker end. He rushed around muttering things profane, kept his hand to his hip pocket, and told everybody but the policeman that he could lick any farmer that ever wore shoe leather. Half an hour later he was in a saloon making things blue. "I'll know him if I ever see him again. I don't care how he's dressed, and I'll cut him into square inches. I don't 'low any man to make a sucker of me and live to blow about it."

"Some guy cross counter on the con game, Dick?"

"None of your blanked business; but if that mug didn't do the farmer as well as I did the sky pilot I'll jump off the dock. He had a bunch with him as thick as your arm, too. But he's got all my stuff and some lamb's got to make good."

It had simply been a case of diamond cut diamond.—Detroit Free Press.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, June 28, 1901.

Secretary Gage is chafing under the muzzle that has been put upon him by the administration, and some predict that it may result in his resignation. Since turning the matter over to the diplomatic branch of the government with the hope of reaching a satisfactory settlement of the tariff war with Russia, into which Secretary Gage's blundering construction of law plunged this country, Mr. McKinley informed Secretary Gage that he must cease talking for publication about the acts which led to the tariff war. This Mr. Gage is inclined to regard as a double reflection on his judgment, but whether he will take it seriously enough to resign is not yet apparent. Those best informed express the opinion that the interests which placed Mr. Gage in charge of the financial branch of the government will intervene, if necessary, to prevent his resigning, as they do not wish to take any chances with a new man.

THE DEMOCRAT

Job Office

First St. N. Yakima.

The republican fight over the control of the pension bureau is growing sensational. Commissioner Evans this week made a statement—his first public resistance to the demand for his removal—that breathes defiance between the lines and may be considered a dare to Mr. McKinley to redeem the written promise of the republican national committee to Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, during the campaign last year, that Evans would not be continued at the head of the pension bureau during this administration, if Mr. McKinley were re-elected. Mr. Evans intimates that in addition to the desire of the pension sharks to control the work of the pension bureau there are republican politicians who wish a change because they have not been allowed to dictate in defiance of law appointments and promotions in the bureau. Taken all in all this statement of Mr. Evans would be "hot stuff" in much colder weather than that which Washington is now passing through, and his friends say he has unlimited ammunition for more of the same sort and that having become tired of being abused for doing his duty and standing between the government and a ring of pension looters, he will use it without regard to who is hit if the fight against him is kept up. Democrats are playing the role of interested spectators in this fight. Gen. Sickles, who used to be a democrat, and who is a leader on the anti-Evans side, was a McKinley stumper both in 1896 and 1900, and "Corporal" Tanner, who seems to be second in command, is a republican who was summarily kicked out of the office of pension commission by the late Benjamin Harrison for doing the very thing that Evans is being fought for not doing.

The opinion is increasing among democrats that the republican talk about revising the tariff so as to hit trust-controlled articles is nothing more than a vote-making bluff. In many congressional districts in the west and middle-west there is a strong sentiment among the republican voters against trusts. It is to keep this vote from being lost to the party that the tariff revision talk was started, and it is expected that a considerable number of republican representatives from that section will make speeches during the coming session of congress in favor of taking the duty off trust controlled articles, not because they expect or really desire any legislation along that line, but because the speeches will make good campaign documents in next year's congressional fight.

It seems that Secretary Gage's order imposing a countervailing duty on Italian sugar, on the suspicion that Italy was paying an export bounty on sugar, was as big a blunder as that he made about Russian sugar. The Italian government has officially informed this government that it does not pay a bounty on sugar exported, just as Russia did. Matters of this sort are too important and far-reaching in their effect to be determined upon without absolute knowledge of the facts.

Within a few days—probably next week—the advisory headquarters of the Ohio republicans will be established in the Canton home of Mr. McKinley, and the adviser-in-chief will be no less a personage than Mr. McKinley himself. Although there is no national issue involved in the Ohio campaign this year, unless the election of a legislature that will name Senator Foraker's successor can be considered such, Mr. McKinley is very anxious that the republicans shall win, not that he would grieve to see Foraker lose his seat in the senate, but because of its moral effect on the congressional campaign of next year. As a shrewd politician he recognizes that unless the republicans can retain control of congress many of his plans concerning the Philippines will be upset, as he has no idea that all these plans can be put into effect through legislation by the present congress.

Her Sole Asset.

"I met Judge Stevens of North Carolina while I was in Asheville a few weeks ago," a Baltimorean said the other day to a writer in the New York Commercial Advertiser, "and the judge entertained me by telling some of his experiences. One day, he said, an old colored woman was brought before him, charged with a trifling misdemeanor. The offense was so small that the judge decided that the payment of a small fine would be sufficient punishment. He knew that the old woman would hardly be likely to have any money, so he questioned her about any other possessions she might have.

"Have you a cow, auntie?" he began.

"Deed, yeh honor. I ain't got no cow."

"Have you any ducks?"

"No, yer honor, I ain't got none."

"Any geese or chickens?"

"Before de Lawd, Jedge, I ain't got nothin' but jes dis yere rheumatiz."

"The judge said he dismissed the case."

Base Ingratitude.

Moran Bros. of Seattle have put to work a force on non-union men, and to protect this force have hired a guard to patrol the works. This evidently is a privilege they have, but as no demonstration was made to molest the men or shops it would seem that it were an insult to the workingmen of Seattle. When the Morans were granted a battle-ship to build by the U. S. government, Seattle citizens made up a deficiency of $100,000, and the subscription list will show, no doubt, that laboring men contributed to the fund. When the machinists asks for an increase in pay and a shorter work day (there being great prosperity in the country caused by the McKinley administration, which the Morans are supporters of) they are told that it will be impossible to stand the raise. The men quit, other men are hired and guards hired to protect them. (Of course the money spent to pay these twenty men must come out of the profits of the concern, unless the Seattle spirit again comes forward and reimburses the Morans.) The machinist is a man who has devoted many years to his trade and is entitled to be considered as more than a despoiler of property and an injurer of persons.—Whatcom Blade.

Did You Ever Drown a Fly?

Whatever other fate might befall it, naturalists agree that the common house fly cannot be drowned and many experiments have been made in relation thereto.

Included in such tests was the immersion of a fly in a tumbler of clear cold water, with a piece of cardboard to fit the glass and floated so as to keep the insect beneath the surface.

So little did the fly trouble about such an obstacle that it kept near the bottom of the glass, and there for a quarter of an hour ran about as freely as in the fresh air, while it at times crawled across the underside of the pasteboard as on the ceiling of a room.

After being immersed for 20 minutes the fly's movements were less active, and at 25 minutes it turned over on its side, apparently dead. It hung suspended in the water just under the pasteboard, which kept it from rising to the surface, and there it remained for another 25 minutes.

It was then taken out and placed on a sheet of paper, looking to all appearance dead. Its next fate was to be buried by being covered with about half a teaspoonful of fine salt.

At the end of 15 minutes the saline was shaken off, the fly having thus been completely covered either by water or by salt for 65 minutes.

Immediately upon its release the insect trimmed its wings and legs actively for awhile and then flew away.—Pearson's Weekly.

GREAT FUTURE FOR CHINA.

European Powers May Regret Having Aroused the Chinese Empire.

LONDON, June 27.—"China will be a mighty world power within a generation and the powers have themselves to thank for the prospect," said Jean de Bloch, actual councillor of state of Russia and member of the comite de savants of the ministry of finance. M. de Bloch has come to London to lecture on the lessons of the Boer war and their application to European conditions. He continued:

"The allied invasion of the Chinese empire has accomplished but one tangible and abiding thing. It has federated that great and patriotic people as indissolubly as Bismarck united the states of

Fainting Spells

Are peculiar to women. Men rarely faint. Many women are liable to what they term "fainting spells," and this liability is always most marked at the monthly period. This alone is sufficient to connect the "fainting spell" with a deranged or diseased condition of the womanly organs. The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures irregularity, heals inflammation and ulceration, and stops the drains which weaken the body. It builds up the nervous system, increases the vital powers, and so removes the common causes of faintness in women. There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription," neither does it contain opium, cocaine, nor any other narcotic.

Let no dealer, for the sake of making an excessive profit out of your trade, delude you into buying a substitute for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Thousands of women who had been treated in vain by doctors, and had squandered large sums uselessly in other medicines, will testify that there is nothing "just as good" as "Favorite Prescription," because there is nothing else which helps so promptly and heals so permanently.

the German empire.

"It has awakened in them a sentiment of aggressive nationalism that bodes ill for the civilizations that have held them in contempt.

"Perhaps the new China will never menace the political peace of the world, but it will certainly revolutionize international commercial conditions. I expect to see the day when the Chinese traders will drive out of the Oriental markets all the nations now assuming exclusive rights there. When these have been retaken, who can tell where the ambitions awakened in the empire will stop?

"China has simply been rudely aroused from centuries of slumber. When her eyes are wide open to her potentialities, the powers may rue the day they sounded the alarm."

A Common Friend.

When P. T. Barnum was in the museum business in New York, one of his most jovial friends was Gaylord Clark, a famous litterateur in the days of our fathers. They were a well matched pair of practical jokers. One day when Mr. Clark dropped in at the museum, as was his custom, Mr. Barnum, apparently much excited, hurried his friend into the private office and said: "Gaylord, I was about to send for you. I want your advice. I have a chance to purchase the most wonderful of all zoological freaks. It's at first a perfect fish, then it changes to a four legged land animal, then it climbs trees and"—

"Bah! You're joking," interjected Mr. Clark.

"On my honor I am not," impressively replied the showman. "But the expense."

"Oh, hang the expense," interrupted Mr. Clark, brimful of enthusiasm over the business project of his friend. "If you can get any such freak as that, your fortune's made. But what's the thing called?"

"Well," replied Mr. Barnum, with just the faintest suggestion of a twinkle in his left eye, "it belongs to the batrachian family of animals and in the vernacular is called the—the-tad-pole!"

Superstitious Great Men.

Superstition has not only prevented mankind from attaining a superior eminence of happiness, but what is more deplorable, it has added in a great degree to an already extensive catalogue of earthly miseries. It is not by the ignorant alone that superstitious beliefs are entertained, but by many eminent men of the past and present. Dr. Samuel Johnson was a firm believer in ghosts and second sight. Josephus, the great Jewish historian, relates that he saw the extraordinary sight of an evil spirit being induced to leave the body of an afflicted mortal upon the application of Solomon's seal to the patient's nostril. James VI, who was noted for his intellectual attainments and theological learning, was a firm believer in witchcraft. So deep a hold did this absurd notion have on him that he published a work upholding this doctrine and actually punished all who opposed the belief.—Exchange.

A Cheese Roast.

Those who insist upon eating cheese should take the precaution to cook it thoroughly before eating. It is for this reason that some people who are unable to eat raw cheese find themselves able to eat toasted cheese without difficulty. Toasting the cheese does not, however, increase its digestibility, but rather the reverse. Its beneficial effect, if any, is from the destruction of the virulent microbes which are present and which are capable of giving rise to symptoms even more distressing than those of ordinary indigestion. The best method of dealing with cheese is to give it to the pigs, as it is nothing more or less than decayed milk, fit only for a scavenger diet.—Sanitary and Municipal Engineering.

A lovely trait of Mr. Daly's character was his tenderness and thought for children. I never knew him to pass a little newsboy on the street without buying a paper, and he always took the paper with a look in his eyes as much as to say, "We must help the boys to get a living." It was a beautiful trait—not giving as charity, but buying what the boy had to sell.—Mrs. Gilbert in Scribner's Magazine.

The Coffee He Wanted.

"Lady," said the beggar, "won't yer gimme a nickel to git some coffee?" The woman did so, and he started into the neighboring saloon.

"Here," she cried, "you don't get coffee."

Saved Each Other.

A short time ago a guard on one of the Northern expresses while at a big station in the midlands had been talking to the engine driver. Presently he stepped aside and gave his "Right away!" when a gentleman who was late sprang on to the footboard while the train was in motion and tried to obtain admission to one of the compartments.

As the carriage came along the guard seized him by the coat and pulled him off, remarking that he must think himself lucky, for he had practically saved his life.

As this conversation was going on the guard's van came by, and the guard, with that gracefulness acquired by constant practice, sailed majestically on to his van.

The gentleman, who had taken in the situation, thereupon seized him by the coat and pulled him off, saying as the train sped away:

"One good turn deserves another. You saved my life; I have saved yours. Now we are quits."—London Telegraph.

He Got Off.

The wife of a German farmhand in Ohio was taken sick and finally died, the husband, of course, leaving his work for several days in consequence. Two weeks later he appeared at the house of his employer and asked to be relieved from work for a couple of days, when the following conversation took place:

"I would like to get off for about two days."

"I can't spare you unless it is absolutely necessary. You know you lost several days two weeks ago, and we are behind in the work. What is the necessity for your getting off?" inquired the farmer.

"Well, I vas to be married."

"Why, Fritz, your wife died only two weeks ago, and now you are about to get married again? I do not understand that."

"Well," replied the German, "I don't hold spite long."

The farmer dismissed the case without prejudice.

Pretty Far Off.

A summer resident in a New Hampshire village, a lady who, in Horace Walpole's phrase, "sits at the top of the world," was making her first friendly call of the season upon the family of an old widower.

Only the father was at home, one of the girls being absent on a visit to the other sister, who had been married during the past winter. Naturally the talk turned on the daughters.

"Yes," said the father; "Mary made out real well. But I don't know's I'll ever work Elizabeth off. There's a young man been comin here steady now for two year, an he's no further on yet, ma'am, than me an you."—Youth's Companion.

Tommy's Ditto Letter.

(N. Y. Evening Sun.)

Tommy was much interested in hearing for the first time in his language lesson the other day about a pair of little dots that the teacher said meant "ditto." How his soul—a curious mixture of laziness and thrift—thrilled at learning that if he were to write "a cat" or "five boys" or "$10," on one line and wanted to repeat the same words or figures on the next line, all he had to do was to put the ditto marks, and everybody would know it was "a cat" or "five boys" or "$10" (as the case might be) that was meant. Some time after this Tommy, while on a visit, had occasion to write home. He simplified the hated task by turning his latest knowledge to account. The letter looked like a literary polka dot.

"Dear Father," it began:

"I hope you are well.

" " mother is "

" " sister " "

" " grandma " "

" wish you were here.

White Man Turned Yellow.

Great consternation was felt by the friends of M. A. Hogarty of Lexington, Ky., when they saw he was turning yellow. His skin slowly changed color, also his eyes, and he suffered terribly.—His malady was Yellow Jaundice. He was treated by the best doctors, but without benefit. Then he was advised to try Electric Bitters, the wonderful Stomach and Liver remedy, and he writes: "After taking two bottles I was wholly cured." A trial proves its matchless merit for all Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles. Only 50c. Sold by Quigg & Ayres, Druggists.

A UNIQUE SENTENCE.

THE NOVEL PENALTY A JUDGE IMPOSED UPON TWO MEN.

Both Prisoners Were Condemned to Jail Until One of Them, a College Graduate, Taught the Other How to Read and Write.

Along in the seventies the late Judge Arnold Krekel was holding court at Jefferson City, relates an old timer, when there appeared before him two men charged and indicted for a violation of the United States laws, one of whom will be called Brown. He was charged with cutting timber on the public domain. Brown was about 40 years old and had been reared on the border in Arkansas and never had any opportunities for schooling, hence was unable to read or write. In his endeavors to get a living he had cut timber suitable for making ax handles on United States lands, which led to his arrest and imprisonment. The other man will be called Jones, for the real name of both men are not known in the memory of any one who witnessed the incident.

Jones was charged with and indicted for having sold liquor to the Indians. Mr. Jones was a native of New York, a graduate of Union college and was educated for a lawyer. He possessed a highly cultured mind, a good Latinist and thoroughly scholarly in all sorts of books. Not succeeding in his profession in his native state, more from lack of application than otherwise, he left that country and plunged into the great west and located nobody knew where, but he drifted into the lower strata of society, and to obtain the necessities of life he resorted to "bootlegging" among the red men of the Indian Territory border. His arrest and imprisonment followed.

The two men were arraigned before Judge Krekel and the indictments read. They both pleaded guilty and threw themselves upon the mercy of the court. The court questioned both prisoners at length and drew from each his history. He recounted the wrongs they had been guilty of against society. He did this in a kindly tone and manner, suggesting in a mild form that both might have been useful members of some community had they sought honorable means and methods to secure a livelihood.

The court seemed puzzled how to assess a punishment that would meet the ends of justice and protect the government, its lands, its wards and society. Finally, sitting upright in his chair, looking over his glasses as both men stood before him, in a voice little louder and more positive than usual he said:

"Mr. Brown, it is the sentence of the court that you be confined in the Cole county jail until you are educated to read and write." The judge then turned his eyes upon the other prisoner at the bar and, possibly in a louder voice, said, "Mr. Jones, it is the sentence of the court that you be confined in the Cole county jail until you have taught Mr. Brown to read and write, and I enjoin upon the keeper of the jail to afford you every facility possible with the safe keeping of his prisoners."

The lawyers and spectators in court looked with astonishment at each other as the sentence was concluded, and the marshal led the prisoners out of the courtroom.

It was the second term of the court after this incident when the marshal conducted Brown and Jones into court, and it was announced by the court that Brown had completed his education—ready to graduate—able to read and write. Judge Krekel looked over his glasses and asked the prisoner give him an evidence of his being able to read. Brown stood up and read a few paragraphs from a newspaper to the satisfaction of the court, when he said, "Mr. Clerk, will you let him sit at a table and write me a letter?"

Paper, pen, ink and a seat were furnished Brown, who went to work to write a letter to the court. For some time the poor fellow struggled with the task, and in the meantime Jones was very nervous, fearing he would be compelled to go back to jail and "take up school" again. Finally the clerk said, "May it please your honor, the prisoner can write, but cannot form sentences to make it intelligible."

"Mr. Clerk," said the court, not taking his eyes from the court docket he was looking at, "you will dictate a letter for him and see what headway he makes with that." The clerk dictated a letter that the prisoner wrote quite readily, which subsequently was passed up to the court, who read the same, and after giving the prisoners a short lecture both were discharged and walked from the courtroom free men.—Jefferson City Tribune.

Fish That Change Color.

It has been found that certain prawns, common along the coasts of England, change their color at least twice every 24 hours in order to harmonize with the stronger or weaker light prevailing near the surface or in the deeper water. As evening approaches these fish lose their distinctive day colors, and all assume a transparent azure hue. The change begins with a reddish glow, followed by a green tinge which gradually melts into blue. The day and night change has become so habitual that specimens kept in perpetual light or perpetual darkness nevertheless undergo the periodic alteration of color.

Dietary Repartee.

"I think," said A. Bronson Alcott in one of his conversations, "when a man lives on beef, he becomes something like an ox. If he eats mutton, he becomes sheepish, and if he feeds upon pork may he not become swinish?" "That may be," said Dr. Walker, "but when a man lives on nothing but vegetables I think he is apt to be pretty small potatoes."

Why Monarchs Were Insane.

Pathologists have often pointed out the fact that physical and mental enervation are apt to go hand in hand, and the intellectual degeneracy of etiquette monarchs may have a good deal to do with the Sybaritism of their palace life.

The plebeian functions which mediæval sovereigns were obliged to perform by proxy included the adjustment of their gala gloves. They had funkies to remove their cravats and warm their nightshirts, unplug their pigtailed and tuck up their bedclothes around their shoulders. In the morning courtiers competed for the honor of holding their washbasin. Peers of the realm waited on bended knees to buckle their shoes. If the inheritor of a legitimate throne lifted a spoon to break an egg, lynx eyed lackeys anticipated his needs with the agility of trained conjurers. Like his food, his information on current topics was served ready dressed and cooked, till he turned into a masticating machine and repeater of conventional twaddle.—Lippincott's.

A Girl's Good Recipe.

There was a modicum of sense in the response to a request made by a young lady as to what would keep her hands white and soft. "Soak your hands three times daily in dishwater while mother rests on the sofa"—Boston Transcript.

England never fails to stand up for the opium traffic, which is justly regarded as one of the most hurtful in the world. Her latest in that line was to inform the powers that she would not allow China to increase the import duty on opium, of which India is the world's chief producer. It will be remembered that England fought a war with China nearly seventy years ago in order to compel China to legalize the deadly opium traffic.—Washington Standard.

While the temperance people of Goldendale have the right to rejoice in their victory at the last city election, the facts are evident that their achievement is barren of results. So far as outward appearances go, no one who wishes to imbibe in this "dry" town of whiskey, wine or beer need suffer long with thirst. The drug stores are doing the business and the city is minus the revenue. There is no relief under the present state laws and under such conditions it will be no surprise if several more "drug stores" open for business. The future Goldendale saloon keeper will have to be a registered pharmacist, if prohibition that doesn't prohibit is to continue.—Goldendale Sentinel.

Mrs. Johnstone on Thursday morning took the train for Walla Walla and is expected home in a day or two with her husband, who is supposed to have left Yakima while laboring under the effects of temporary aberration.

The trial of Mr. Mosely, of Parker, for assault on Mrs. McCoy consumed the most of Wednesday before Justice Taggard. Acting Prosecuting Attorney Englehart appeared for the state and Attorney Krutz for the defendant. The testimony was conflicting. The prosecution swore that Mosely struck Mrs. McCoy with a pitchfork, and the defense swore it was just the other way. The judge imposed a fine of ten dollars and costs. The defendant will appeal to the superior court.

Last Saturday, E. B. Preble, sitting as judge pro tem, entered a decree of divorce in the case of John W. Meade, vs. Ellen Meade, on the ground of cruelty, admitted in the answer of the defendants and awarded the custody of the two minor children to plaintiff, the property interests having been settled out of court. The parties were married in Seattle in 1892, and have lived in Yakima county for three years, now residing near Topyenish.

J. C. MacCrimmon this week concluded the census of school district No. 7, comprising the city and environs. The guess of the Democrat that the census would show 1500 children in the scholastic age was not far from correct, the official figures being 1445. Mr. MacCrimmon says if the census could have been completed prior to the close of the city schools the showing would have been much larger, as a number of families are known to have gone out to take in the summer harvests.

O. Beck, fruit inspector, has received notice from the Seattle firm of commission men that they will contest before the state inspector his decision relative to the condemnation of California fruits shipped here by them on account of infection by the San Jose scale. Miss Grace I. Mitchell, aged 25 years, died in this city Thursday evening of consumption. Miss Mitchell, with her mother, came to North Yakima in April last, hoping to improve her health, but the inroads of the disease had been too pronounced for permanent improvement. ### Forever Dry.

There is a youngster in Girard college who combines the poetic instinct with a keen sense of humor. He is not a close student—in fact, he regards books as instruments of torture. One of the professors picked up a textbook belonging to him the other day and found on the fly leaf this bit of verse, which no doubt expressed the student's opinion of it:

Should there be another flood,
For refuge hither fly,
And should the whole world be submerged
This book would still be dry.

A Pound of Cure.

"My son," said the family man, "is anxious to become a pugilist. I'm doing my best to prevent him."
"Let him go ahead," said the friend of the family, "and have some one pound him. You'll find a pound of cure worth more than an ounce of prevention."—Philadelphia Record.

"Do you think I am capable of acting a part?" asked the stagestruck youth.

Why Spiders Are Not Insects.

The spider is not an insect, though probably nine people out of ten would class it under this term. With scorpions and mites spiders form a class in the animal kingdom known as Arachnida. This name is derived from a mythical personage called Arachne, the daughter of a purple dyer of Lydia, who was fabled to have challenged Minerva to a trial of skill in spinning. So indignant was the goddess at this act of boldness that she forthwith transformed the hapless challenger into a spider, presumably in order that she might have the best possible opportunity of practicing the art on which she prided herself so much.

Spiders differ from insects in five main particulars. Their eyes are simple instead of compound, they have eight legs in place of six, they do not pass through the metamorphoses which are characteristic of insects, they have no antennae and their breathing is accomplished by means of organs which combine the functions of lungs and gills, instead of by tubes pervading their bodies. These points of distinction are sufficient to determine the fact that it is impossible to class spiders as insects.

PRECIOUS STONES.

The Methods by Which They Are Tested by Experts.

In a lecture on precious stones recently delivered before the Industrial association of Berlin, Dr. Immanuel Friedlaender said that the testing of diamonds is comparatively simple. The common test for hardness suffices. If the stone resists strong attacks, it is certain to be genuine; if it does not, the damage is insignificant, as only an imitation has been destroyed. This test, however, is doubtful with rubies. If a ruby can be affected by a steel file or by quartz, it is surely not genuine, but such a test with a topaz is liable to injure a valuable stone.

The test for hardness is of no avail with emeralds, as this stone is not much harder than quartz and in addition possesses the quality of cracking easily.

For examining rubies and emeralds the optical test is best. A glass magnifying about 100 times suffices. Every expert knows that almost all precious stones have little flaws. Nearly every ruby and all emeralds have many defects, which are so characteristic that the genuineness of the stones is readily established. Such a test is very necessary with rubies, because the imitations are very deceiving. Their color is absolutely durable and often much finer than that of the genuine, although it may be stated that a somewhat yellowish tint is always suspicious.

The only reliable way in which genuine rubies can be told from imitations is by the minute air bubbles of the latter, which become clearly visible under the magnifying glass. These are not to be found in the natural gem. On the other hand, the imitations lack certain defects characteristic of genuine rubies—certain vacuums, whose outlines are much more indistinct than those of the air bubbles in imitations.

True emeralds have similar characteristic defects, such as inclosures of liquids and curious dendrites. Sapphires also show peculiar netlike formations.

SOUTHERN MOUNTAINEERS.

The Part They Played In the War Between the States.

It is odd to think that the southern mountaineer was not discovered until the outbreak of the civil war, although he was nearly a century old then, and it is really startling to realize that when one speaks of the southern mountaineers he speaks of nearly 3,000,000 people who live in eight southern states—Virginia and Alabama and the southern states between and occupy a region equal in area to the combined areas of Ohio and Pennsylvania, as big, say, as the German empire, and richer, perhaps, in timber and mineral deposits than any other region of similar extent in the world. This region was and is an unknown land. It has been aptly called Appalachian America, and the work of discovery is yet going on.

The American mountaineer was discovered, I say, at the beginning of the war, when the Confederate leaders were counting on the presumption that Mason and Dixon's line was the dividing line between the north and south and formed, therefore, the plan of marching an army from Wheeling to some point on the lakes and thus severing the north at one blow. The plan seemed so feasible that it is said to have materially aided the sale of Confederate bonds in England, but when Captain Garnett, a West Point graduate, started to carry it out he got no farther than Harpers Ferry. When he struck the mountains, he struck enemies who shot at his men from ambush, cut down bridges before him, carried the news of his march to the Federals, and Garnett himself fell with a bullet from a mountaineer's squirrel rifle at Harpers Ferry.—Scribner's Magazine.

The Honorable Board.

Sam Rawson occasionally said a good thing, and one of these occasions chanced to be the town meeting. The people of Sam's village could not understand how the money appropriated for the roads had vanished with such poor results.

A stretch of road running past Sam's house was in notoriously poor condition, although Sam declared that he had paid liberally to have it put in good order, and there was general interest when Sam rose to make his statement before the selectmen.

"I'd just like to say one thing," he drawled, heedless of the fact that he had interrupted an indignant neighbor. "I don't want to make any fuss, but I'd just like to ask the honorable board of highwaymen."

That was as far as he could get. A roar of laughter swept over the town meeting and showed its effects in the red faces of the "highwaymen."—Youth's Companion.

His Bumps.

They were newly married and were calling upon one of the friends of the bride who had been particularly pleasant upon the occasion of their wedding. The bridegroom, apropos of nothing, began to talk about phrenology and told how his wife had discovered two very prominent bumps on the back of his head. He was proud of them. So was she, and she passed him around that the host and hostess might feel the bumps and know of their existence. Then she explained:

"My book on phrenology says that they mean good memory and generosity."

It was evident that she was proud of the facts, and so was he. But the host, being of an inquiring turn of mind, wished to satisfy himself, so he got down a phrenological work from one of his library shelves and after much labor found the bumps on the chart. Turning to the notes, he read, seriously at first, then unsteadily. The bride became suspicious, but she was game and said:

"Read it out loud. Please do." And the host read:

"These bumps are most frequently found on cats and monkeys."

Other topics consumed the remainder of the visit, which was brief.—New York Sun.

Burr's Self Control.

Aaron Burr was by nature and training a man of extraordinary self control. He allowed no circumstances to throw him off his balance. An anecdote told by Rufus Choate to the late Richard H. Dana, recorded in Mr. Dana's "Diary," illustrates the callousness which aided Burr so greatly in controlling himself. Several years after the death of Hamilton, killed by Burr in a duel, Burr visited Boston, and Mr. Devereux of Salem paid him some attentions. The visitor was taken to the Boston atheneum, where, while the two men were walking through the gallery of sculpture, Mr. Devereux happened to catch sight of a bust of Hamilton.

The thought flashed across his mind that Burr might not care to be confronted with the sight of the features of the man he had slain. But no. Burr was undisturbed. He also espied the bust, and, although Mr. Devereux had instinctively turned away, he walked up to it and said in a loud tone: "Ah! Here is Hamilton!" Then, passing his fingers along certain lines of the face, he added, "There was the poetry!" Hamilton's contemporaries gave him credit for possessing a poetic mind.
