CITY OF WHITE BLUFFS

A New Town Being Laid Out on Columbia River, at Historic White Bluffs. Syndicate Composed of Tacoma and Spokane Men Will Put In Irrigation System.

The DEMOCRAT received exclusive information this week to the effect that W. R. Todd of Tacoma and associates contemplate making a number of extensive improvements on their large holdings in this county situated along the west bank of the Columbia river. The work it is expected will start at once or as soon as definite arrangements can be made by the projectors of the enterprise who live in Tacoma and Spokane.

The plan of the promoters is to construct an irrigating canal from Priest Rapids to White Bluffs, a distance of about 20 miles. The proposed ditch, it is said, will cover about 5000 acres of as choice land as can be found anywhere in Central Washington. Owing to the fact that the land is higher than the river, a gravity system is, of course, out of the question, and the water will have to be pumped from the river, a distance of perhaps 30 feet. The new company, however, have a plan whereby the great water power of the Columbia will be utilized and the necessary power thus be secured to elevate the water to the canal.

Mr. Todd of Tacoma, who individually owns 6,000 acres of land in the vicinity of White Bluffs, has resumed operations in the sinking of the artesian well started a year ago by H. B. Waring, a Seattle man, whose interests in that section Mr. Todd has purchased. The latter feels confident that he will succeed in securing a flow of water and means to keep going after it until he secures it. The well when abandoned by Mr. Waring was down to a depth of about 400 feet. Mr. Todd and his associates have concluded to lay out a town at White Bluffs. The Marble Bros., civil engineers of this city, have been employed to lay out the new town as well as to run the lines for the proposed canal. The town site will be laid out in blocks and lots and later placed upon the market. Oscar James, formerly of this city, but now of Cle Elum, will have entire charge of the town site.

Mr. James is quite enthusiastic over the scheme and says that White Bluffs, which will be the name of the new town, will become a city of importance in due time. He asserts that it will have 200,000 acres of fine agricultural land tributary to it when ultimately brought under irrigation. The promoters have agreed to place a boat on the river early next spring to ply between White Bluffs and Kennewick which will furnish the new town transportation until a better system is devised.

Mourning Husband in the Toils.
Sheriff Grant took Ross Chapin, the Seattle boy convicted at the last jury term of horsestealing on the reservation, to the penitentiary Monday to serve a term of two years.

The sheriff then went on to Spokane and brought back with him the man Miller, arrested there last week on an order from the sheriff's office here. Miller or Elliston, as he calls himself, is the man who borrowed $5 two week's ago from Undertaker E. L. Sessions, after purchasing a coffin and burial robe for his alleged wife. Miller was arrested at Spokane while engaged in the effort to work an undertaker there the same way. He was identified easily on account of having three fingers missing on one hand. Miller is in jail here awaiting examination.

Stay Away From Washington.

W. H. Lay of Osceola is in receipt of a rather gloomy letter from his brother, who is in Wapato, Wash. Mr. Lay had some notion of going west, but the letter has caused him to change his mind. His brother states that they have all been sick, that the country is full of malaria, and while wages are better than in the east, it takes all a man can make to pay the doctor's bill. Further he states that they never know when Sunday comes out there except by the unusual excitement, as churches are practically unknown. The day is generally given over to horse racing and base ball, gambling and drinking beer.

Thousands of bushels of potatoes and onions rotted last year, he says, because there was no market for them, and none of the farmers came out even on their crops. Mr. Lay closes with the statement that "there are lots of Missourians here who broke up house keeping to come out, and they have steadily lost money and health and wish themselves back in 'poor old Missouri' again. I tell you, if you are getting along and making a living you had better stay where you are." Mr. Lay will return to Missouri this fall.

The above is from the Osceola, Mo., Democrat. This paper has no acquaintance with Mr. Lay of Wapato but would take the liberty of advising him to get next to the real situation before he writes again. It may be, however, that Mr. Lay has reference only to the conditions as they exist on the Yakima Indian reservation where he lives.

AN UNPLEASANT EXPERIENCE

Geo. Fulkerson Thrust Off a Moving Train, While His Partner is Killed.

George Fulkerson, a son of John T. Fulkerson of this city and a brother of Louis Fulkerson, according to Monday's Spokesman-Review, had an experience near Spokane last Saturday night that he will probably never forget.

Fulkerson who had been working as a harvest hand in the Palouse country, according to his story, started for Spokane in company with Elmer Petrie by name, also a harvester. They boarded a coal car loaded with lumber on the N. P. They had not traveled far when they were approached from the rear by two men who appeared to be hoboes. They were asked for smoking tobacco but had none. Fulkerson says that one of the ruffians suddenly whipped out a revolver and fired over his shoulder shot Petrie dead. One of the men then held him up while the other went through his pockets. They took his purse with a small amount of money but did not secure $50 which he had securely cached away in his clothes. The murderers then told him to jump off the train which was moving swiftly at the time. He hated to jump but knowing that refusal meant death did so with the result that he was not hurt.

Fulkerson then walked to Spokane and told his story to the police. The officers then went to the freight yards and found the body of the murdered man on the coal car. On the body they found $5 20 in money and a gold watch. Pending an investigation of the matter Fulkerson was held at police headquarters. The police, however, are inclined to believe his story about the murder and it is assumed that he will soon be turned loose.

Fulkerson is 31 years of age and has lived in this county the most of his life having been raised on the Cowiche.

Dr. Wells Married.

Dr. H. R. Wells and his charming bride, formerly Miss Amelia A. Webb of Seattle, returned to this city from their wedding trip down the Sound last Tuesday. The happy couple will make their home at No. 19 North Third street. The wedding occurred at the First M. E. church, Seattle, at high noon, Wednesday, Oct. 7, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Edwin M. Randall, D. D., president of Puget Sound University in the presence of a few personal friends. Mrs. Wells is a daughter of Rev. Thos. E. Webb, D. D., of Warsaw, Ind. She is a graduate of the training school of the Asbury Methodist hospital, with which Dr. Wells was formerly connected in his capacity as physician.

Found Skull of Rathbone.

Word reached this city the first of the week from Tampico that J. P. Herke and Joe Sandmeyer had found what is believed to be the skull of C. W. Rathbone, the trapper who was lost during a storm in the mountains nearly two years ago. The human skull is said to have been found near the Klickitat river where the boys were riding after cattle.

Rathbone was well known by old timers in this valley and while his friends were morally certain that he lost his life there has been no conclusive evidence to prove it.

A New Lemon Crop.

Word has been received here that a daughter was born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lemon, formerly of this city but now of Elk Creek, Cal. This information naturally made Grandpa Lesh and Uncle Will Lemon very happy and they as well as other relatives accordingly sent the little miss some very handsome and costly presents, as well as their best wishes for her health and future happiness.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA.

The rank and file of the republican party of this state are undoubtedly as honest and as desirous of good and wholesome government as is the rank and file of any party. The trouble with that party is that it is cursed with an imbecile, selfish and corrupt leadership which sooner or later is bound to drag the party down to defeat.

The republican party of Washington is long on politicians but mighty short on statesmen. There may be statesmen within the body of the party, but if so they are never given an opportunity to assert themselves and rise to the top. Mediocrity reigns supreme. If by chance a young man appears in the political arena without the customary corporation collar about his neck or if he bears the hall mark of genius he is speedily set upon by the whole pack of alleged leaders and King makers and destroyed politically.

There is the Wilson clique, the Foster clique, the Ankeny clique, the Hamilton clique and the Lord only knows what all. There is but little difference, if any, in the whole lot except that Ankeny has the most money and therefore the largest crowd of paid retainers. In the matter of allegiance to the railway corporations they are all the same. It's a case of tweedle or tweedledum. These and other senatorial aspirants fight and snarl among themselves yet vie with each other to do the bidding of the railroad bosses. "No man in the republican party of this state," says Hamilton, "can be elected to the U. S. Senate without the support of the railroads."

Hamilton has himself been a capper for the railroad lobby ever since he first succeeded in breaking into the legislature and he glories in the service that he has rendered and banks upon it as his political capital. This man is now going about the state peddling the republican nomination for governor, offering to trade off this high and honorable position to the politician who will agree to furnish him the most votes for the senatorship. Could impudence and gall go further?

Whatever may be his faults there sits in the executive chair at Olympia a man who is battling almost single handed and alone for the rights of the people as against the corrupt and corrupting oligarchy which rules this state. Gov. McBride, although bigoted and a rank partisan, is a giant as compared with any of these pigmies who grovel at the feet of corporation hirelings. Yet, go among republican politicians anywhere in the state and one can scarcely hear a good word for this man who has made and is making such a courageous fight for the people's rights. Politicians sneer at the mention of his name and party papers openly deride and insult him and speculate on who the gang will bring forward as his successor.

A legislature, four-fifths republican, was chosen a year ago pledged to give the people relief. Under the whip and spur of the railroad lobby this sacred pledge was utterly repudiated and with a millionaire senatorial candidate in the field to bleed, the meeting of the legislative body degenerated into a roaring farce and a carnival of corruption. It was a sickening sight and the God fearing people of the state prayed for the end.

How long the suffering people will permit these evil conditions to continue no man can tell. That the republican party of this state will purify itself from within there is not at present the slightest reason for believing. History must first repeat itself and send along another cataclysm in the way of a political deluge which will sweep away all the yarmies that now infest the old ship and give it a chance to right itself. This is the history of popular government for it is only once in a while that the people awake to destroy their tormentors but when they do they are apt to make a pretty thorough job of it.

EDITOR BOOMER, of the Prosser Record, in a recent issue congratulated the people of that town on the possibility of securing the beet sugar factory and the branch railroad and then suggested the propriety of every man in that thriving burg rolling up his sleeves and going after the county seat of the proposed new county. This kind of talk seems to make the Sunnyside Sun man rather hot under the collar and leads him to say:

"Prosser and her Boomer should bear in mind that they are not yet out of the woods on this beet sugar factory proposition. Sunnyside might yet kick over the traces. Better put a check on your exultation and keep that county seat matter up your sleeve until you get the thing cinched."

That county seat question is still a tender spot. But the brethren ought not to get excited. Mama Yakima still has a corner on the county seat.

THE meeting of the State Good Roads Association at Spokane this week was fairly well attended and the discussions for the most part were good and along the right lines. It is to be regretted, however, that the convention made the serious blunder of endorsing the foolish demand being made upon the National government for appropriations to build county roads. The convention not only went on record as endorsing this crazy proposition but appointed a committee to attend the coming session of congress to lobby for it. Congress is used to being worked but it is likely that Mr. Sam Hill will only succeed in getting a laugh when he goes after the solons with such a request.

Ye gods, what an impertinent demand to make upon the federal government! It is enough to make even Alexander Hamilton, half royalist that he was, to turn over in his grave and wonder what the country is coming to. Nothing could better illustrate the tendencies of the times than this. The government of the United States has no more right to go into the road building business than it has to undertake to say what church a man shall attend.

The people of this state will get good roads when they make up their mind to build and pay for them themselves and not before. This cry that the government ought to build them is all poppycock. It might very properly do so under a Socialistic regime but under its present form it will do nothing of the kind.

SENATOR FOSTER, being a lumberman, cannot see the good of having a forest reserve. Ever since the merry ha ha statesman entered the Senate he has been busy devising ways and means or acting in the role of messenger to those who did the planning with the object of crippling the Secretary of the Interior, in the efforts that that official has been making to protect the forest reserves.

A few days ago Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry, was in Tacoma, where he met a lot of west side lumbermen at the head of whom was Senator Foster. The guest was wine and dined as a matter of course and given the glad hand. "The meeting was not without mutual benefit to all concerned," says a Sound newspaper, "and resulted in Mr. Pinchot's agreement to give a favorable consideration of the demands made by Senator Foster who acted as spokesman for all the interests represented." The demands made by Senator Foster are then enumerated at length and are to long to be given space here. It is sufficient to say that if they were all granted there would, in our opinion, be no reasonable excuse for the government to continue in the forest reserve business.

MARK HANNA is badly scared regarding the outcome of the present campaign in Ohio and is calling loudly for help from the outside. Johnson and Clarke, the democratic candidates for Governor and Senator respectively, are putting up a hard fight and are flaying the dollar marked statesman on the stump unmercifully.

President Roosevelt has evidently forgotten the classic essays written during the first year of his administration in which he warned federal officials against interfering in politics, reminding them that a violation of this order would be deemed ample grounds for their removal. Now the strenuous chief has violated his own orders, by sending his secretary of the treasury and other high officials to a strange state to advise the people to vote for Mark Hanna and his "stand pat" policy. It must strike fair-minded people that there is a vast difference between Mr. Roosevelt's professions and Mr. Roosevelt's practice in this matter.

THE committee representing the union labor interests which called upon President Roosevelt recently and asked him to reconsider the decision previously announced regarding the Miller case put a poser to Teddy that never, of course, appeared in the published report of the interview as given out from the White House.

Mr. Roosevelt, it seems, informed the committee, of which Samuel Gompers and John Mitchell were members, that under no circumstances would he discriminate between citizens in the matter of holding public positions. "It makes no difference," said the president, "whether a man is a union or a non-union man, a Presbyterian, a Catholic, a Gentile or a Jew, all citizens look alike to me." "If that is the case then Mr. President," said Gompers, "I wonder why it is that you bar democrats."

THE DUKE OF VERAGUA, direct descendant of Christopher Columbus, has been offered the command of the Spanish navy. The Duke is subject to seasickness and is, consequently, not in love with a seafaring life. Of course, as commander of the Spanish navy, he would at present have difficulty in going to sea, for the simple reason that there is nothing to go to sea in or on. In accepting the proffered honor he stipulates that, in case Spain should decide to build a new navy, he would not be required to go on board a man of war. The Duke is wise in his generation. To command a Spanish navy from the shore would be far preferable to commanding it from the bridge or conning tower of a man of war more or less actively engaged.—Centralia Examiners.

THE Yakima Daily Republic made its first appearance promptly on time last Monday afternoon. The new paper is a four column folio and is a very creditable production, giving on its first page a very fair synopsis of telegraph news. The local news service, the department so ably conducted by the talented though diminutive Private Farquhar, is very good, although a considerable amount of matter injected into the local columns as news would hardly pass for such an article in this office.

The editorial page of our valued new contemporary is presided over, of course, by the genial Col. Robberson and not by any imported talent as reported. As an editorial writer the colonel is always interesting and often amusing if seldom instructive. The advertising columns are hardly as well patronized as we had presumed they would be since the over confident publisher had been assuring us that local business men had been fairly falling over each other in order to get in on the ground floor. In short the new daily is rather wee in appearance but it is mighty interesting reading.

Irrigation companies are going to build dams for the purpose of storing water at the head of the Yakima they had better make sure that their dams are put in to stay. One day recently a break started in the 12 foot dam put in this summer across the outlet to Lake Kaches, by an Ellensburg company and had it not been for the fact that plenty of workmen were close at hand to remedy matters serious damage might have resulted as well as loss of life in the valley below. The people of this section don't want any repetition of the Johnstown business in theirs.

ALREADY the cry is heard in the land that Senator Foster's sawmill employs nonunion labor, that Ed. Hamilton once imported nonunion stevedores to Tacoma to take the place of striking union men, and that Sam Piles is attorney for a grinding corporation that brought colored miners into the King county coal towns to supplant striking white miners. Men and brethren, this thing is going to be strenuous—Spokesman Review.

GOVERNOR MCBRIDE in his tirade at Colville, said there were bad men in all parties. He should have made an exception to the Democratic representatives at Olympia last winter. As the governor's exposures are all in his own party, the democrats should give him plenty of rope as it is history repeating itself of republican misrule in Washington.—Davenport Tribune.

THE special session of Congress will soon convene for the purpose, as Representative Jones said before leaving home of considering the Cuban reciprocity treaty. The President will doubtless strongly urge the ratification of the treaty and Mr. Jones and his colleague, Abe Lincoln Cushman, in order to be consistent will have to vote against it.

JOEL CHROMAKER of this city contributed a splendid article to last Sunday's Seattle P.-I. on the profits of growing broom corn in the Yakima valley. There is no doubt but that broom corn could be made a very profitable crop in this section and our farmers would do well to investigate the proposition.

SAMUEL PILES will never win the U. S. senatorial toga. He is a name not to conjure with. It brings up unpleasant recollections.—Prosser Record.

Above the shrill whirr of the crickets rose the hum of feminine voices. Under the green apple boughs the ham-mock convention was in full swing. Miss Maybrick called it a hornets' nest and preferred the doubtful coolness of the piazza. But, then, she was a college professor, too superior to appreciate the joys of the younger set.

Jane Carew, however, sometimes agreed with her. This afternoon she hid her face behind a book, while girlish fancies carried her far above the swaying leaves up into the perfect blue of the July sky. How lovely nature was this summer, how full life of new delights!

Miss Maybrick's name brought her back to earth again: Miss Maybrick, the one cloud in her sky.

"Oh, yes, she approves of him," said Jane. "She can put up with his sunburned face, roughened hands and the general boorishness of a farmer. But I suppose at her age any man is acceptable. To tell the truth, I have almost reached that condition myself in this man forsaken spot." And she shook her head in mock despair.

"Jane agrees with her," some one added a little maliciously. "She never seems to mind sharing his attentions with her."

A book went down with a crash and angry spots of scarlet glowed in Jane's cheeks as she said defiantly: "John Staunton is not a boor; he is a gentleman. Just because he seems to talk the twaddle that men usually think good enough for us girls you vote him a boor. He often makes me ashamed of the little I know, and the books he lends me have opened up a new world, a world bigger and better than all the dirt and shams and heartaches that go to make up society. No wonder he likes to talk to Miss Maybrick. She's worth the whole lot of us when it comes to knowing the things that are worth while!"

The girl stopped short with a gasp as she realized the horrified hush which had fallen on the circle. "Oh, what have I said?" she cried and buried her face in her cushions.

But Madge's gay voice was tender as she stroked the brown head. "You've read us a lecture, Jane, dear," she said gently, "but I fancy we needed it a bit. It's horrid to talk about one of your friends the way we talk about Staunton, and we ought to ask your pardon. As for Miss Maybrick, she's a stuck up old thing, and you're ever so much nicer than she in spite of all she knows. Just wait till Cousin Alex comes next week, and see the new world that he opens to you. He is really literary and writes things for other people to read."

Jane's face was still hidden. She was battling to overcome her tears and even harder to drive out of her heart the unreasonable jealousy of the older woman that somehow had crept into it. The time had been when she would have scorned her as a rival, but love had made her humble. Youth and beauty seemed of small weight to cast into the scales against years of scholastic training and study.

Cousin Alex came. He was a slim, dapper young man, with an important manner rather at variance with his size. But he had a way of retelling old jokes that made them seem new and a stock of compliments suited to every age and was therefore greatly in favor among the guests at the sleepy old farmhouse. As befitting his pretensions as a journalist he rattled on unceasingly about books and literature. He knew this man and that book, and, above all, he was one whose name should some day stand foremost in the world of letters. The date was not yet set, but he spoke of "his novel" mysteriously, even reverently, and his feminine audience was accordingly impressed.

More or less unwillingly Jane was compelled to listen to many of these predictions, for "Cousin Alex" at one developed a fondness for her society. Perhaps certain glances that Staunton cast in his direction added zest to the chase. Perhaps it was the elusive fashion in which the girl received his advances. Certain it is that a week's time had earned him the very fitting name of "Jane's shadow."

Yet to Jane herself each day seemed to bring more unhappiness. Staunton came as often as ever, but at sight of Alex by her side he left the laughing group to chat with Miss Maybrick in intimate aloofness. And as the girl saw the door to the beautiful new world closing because the hand of him who held it open was withdrawn the pain and weariness of her old frivolous life seemed almost past bearing.

Her eyes were more wistful than she knew one evening as she saw a tall, muscular figure swing up the walk with the easy, confident stride of the man who was master of his fate. Staunton's face softened as he met them, and, though Cousin Alex Hamblin was on hand, as usual, he settled himself on the top step with the air of a man who had come to stay. The brown eyes were downcast now, but a shy blush of pleasure still flushed her cheeks.

There was always a visible air of constraint between the two men, but Hamblin rose manfully to the occasion. Here was a most longed for opportunity to prove to Miss Jane that Staunton was but a boor of a farmer, after all, and no match for a man of the world like himself.

If the older man detected his half veiled tone of patronage, he only smiled quizzically. Indeed his position soon grew more untenable than that of his adversary. As the conversation ranged from books to men and back to books again Jane saw, with a thrill of pride, that Staunton more than held his own. What is more, he held his temper, a precaution neglected by the other.

At last the talk fell upon one of the recent novels, a book of unusual strength and breadth of view. Jane had read it several times, for it had seemed to point her to the new life she longed to live. Staunton was silent, as though in unspoken condemnation. Thereupon Hamblin became an enthusiastic defender and openly scoffed at his lack of appreciation.

A shadow crossed the moonlit porch, but the three did not see Miss Maybrick till her voice broke in on the controversy.

"You would not expect Mr. Staunton to criticize his own book, would you?" she said calmly. Then, as her ear caught Jane's low exclamation of wonder, she added in a tone of surprise: "Had you not guessed that he was an author, Miss Carew? I heard that you defended him very eloquently one afternoon in the orchard and said a good word for me too. For that I want to thank you."

Staunton's face was turned toward the blushing girl, and in full moonlight Miss Maybrick could read his secret. If it sounded the death knell to some hope of her own heart, gratitude to her champion made her lead the bewildered Alex for a walk down the lane and a gradual restoration of his self confidence.

"And I have to thank you, too, Jane," Staunton said tenderly. But he took her down to the orchard and told her in his own way.

"How did you guess that I was not the farmer I pretended to be?" with a hint of wonder under his gladness.

Jane raised a face radiant with the realization that the new world was opened forevermore. "Just because you are you," she said joyously. "Love is not always blind."

Lectured by Carlyle.

There are some amusing memories at Kyleakin, in Skye, of a visit once made there by Carlyle traveling in the train of Lady Ashburton. The Kyleakinners felt a lively curiosity concerning the distinguished author, and whenever he appeared in public he was surrounded by a crowd of admiring men, women and children who had heard sensational reports concerning his "cleverness as a scholar." Carlyle seemed to like this hero worship until these admirers clustered round him while he was in the midst of his sea bath one day. Then he assailed them in language much more emphatic than elegant, which soon made them take to their heels and scamper off with all speed out of his sight. Lady Ashburton had prayers with her daughter and servants morning and evening, but the sage was never present. During these periods Neil MacInnes, the innkeeper, used to relate, "he would lead me to the coffee room, and there, laying hold of me by the coat buttonhole, he would lecture to me for half an hour on end on all sorts of subjects, and he would be so intent on it that he wouldn't allow me to put in a word. Fancy," said Neil, "that I should be lectured to in such a way by Tommy Carlyle!"

Great Men and Their Opinions.

Dr. Johnson in all his greatness defied the world of fashion and opinion, living the life of a sloven. Our own Dr. Franklin was like the Englishman in some respects, and he appeared to be fond of imitating him in others, for he persisted in wearing a shaggy, shabby old cap even among the savants and crowned heads of the old world when he was the United States minister at the court of France.

Every schoolboy has heard how Nero defied public opinion, living in riot and revelry when the souls of his countrymen were in woe and blood. Napoleon rubbed his hands over burning Moscow, saying, "This is comfortable." Half a million soldiers were at the same time reading the doom of death in the lurid flames.

It was the conflict of opinion which gave birth to the maxim that "Where ignorance is bliss it is folly to be wise." Correctness and taste, even these frequently depend upon the mental standpoint of the individual sitting in the judgment seat.

SPEED OF SHIPS.

The Way Sailors Ascertain How Many Knots They Are Going.

"How do you ascertain the speed of a ship?" is a question frequently addressed to naval men, and an explanation will therefore probably be of interest to many readers. There are several methods, says Army and Navy Illustrated, the commonest and most ancient being by the use of the log. This instrument consists of three parts, the logship, the line and the marks. The logship is a piece of wood about half an inch thick and shaped like a quadrant, with a piece of lead line in round the circular edge to make it float perpendicularly in the water. It is hung by lines at each angle, the three lines being joined together about two feet from the logship. Two of the lines are securely fixed to the ship, and the other has a bone peg at the end, which, being pushed into a hole in the ship, temporarily fastens it there.

From the point of juncture of the tree lines a sufficient length is measured, generally about 100 feet, to take the logship well clear of the ship's wash. This is called the "stray line" and is marked with a piece of bunting. From the bunting is measured 47 feet 3 inches and the line marked here with a piece of leather. Then another 47 feet 3 inches is measured off and marked with two knots, then another space the same length and marked with three knots. Half way between each batch of knots one single knot is made. The log line is then ready for use.

The space between the knots is found from the simple little rule of three sum-as 3,600 seconds (number of seconds in an hour) is to twenty-eight seconds (length of sandglass), so are 6,080 feet (number of feet in a nautical mile) to the length of line required, which works out to 47 feet 3 inches.

To use the log four persons are required-two men to hold the reel on which the line is wound, the quartermaster to hold the glass and the midshipman of the watch to heave the log. The last named puts the peg firmly in the logship and then gathers three or four coils of line in his hand, sufficient to admit of the logship being thrown well clear of the ship. He asks, "Clear glass, quartermaster?" "Clear glass, sir," comes the reply, and overboard go the logship and line, the reel rapidly revolving. Presently the midshipman feels the piece of bunting passing through his hand, and he gives the order, "Turn." The quartermaster turns the glass and watches the sand, while one "reeler" holds well over his head, so as to give the line fair play. When the sand has run out, "Stop!" cries the quartermaster. The midshipman grasps the line, assisted by the other "reeler," and looks for the nearest knot, finding a single one close to his hand. Then the line is hauled in, and four knots appear, which signify that the ship is going four and one-half knots through the water. The jerk of the line draws the peg from the logship, which now floats on its flat side and is easily hauled in. When a ship is going over four knots, a fourteen second glass is used, the speed being double that shown by the knots on the line.—Home Journal and News.

A Hearty Eater.

There is a story in the French army of a captain who made a wager one day that a drummer of his company could eat a whole calf. The drummer, proud of his distinction, promised to do honor to the captain's compliment. Accordingly, a calf was prepared in various appetizing ways and was being promptly disposed of by the drummer. When he had finally consumed about three-quarters of the repast, he paused for another draft of wine and, placing his knife and fork on his plate, said to his superior officer, "You had better have the calf brought on, had you not, for all these little kickshaws will end in taking up room."

Saved His Life.
J. W. Davenport, Wingo, Ky., writes, June 14, 1902: "I want to tell you I believe Ballard's Snow Liniment saved my life. I was under the treatment of two doctors, and they told me one of my lungs was entirely gone, and the other badly affected. I also had a bump on my side. I don't think that I could have lived over two months longer. I was induced by a friend to try Ballard's Snow Liniment. The first application gave me great relief; two fifty-cent bottles cured me sound and well. It is a wonderful medicine and I recommend it to suffering humanity." 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold at F. L. Habit a Hard Taskmaster.

Habit is a relentless taskmaster and almost every man on earth is its slave. We have a way of getting into ruts and losing our individuality. We are slaves to ambition, and in reaching for our goal we forget the world about us and its countless beauties. We dig and delve and strive for our prime object, forgetful of the environment that lies just beyond our every day surrounding. In that environment is rest and joy and new life. In office and street and home we welcome mechanically; we go and come over the same routes, do the same things and naturally think the same thoughts day after day. We are the slaves of habit. We owe ourselves, our families and our business interest a debt which we are ignoring. Let us forget that recreation and relief from the routine of business is a good paying investment as it would be wise to set a date, take a rest, enjoy the broad fields, and the fresh air and snap our fingers in the face of the taskmaster who has made us an abject drudge.—Four Track News.

Cold Storage for Apples.

The relation of the cold storage industry to the apple business is of growing importance. The apple crop of 1901 was comparatively small, yet 1,771,000 barrels were placed in cold storage and 138,000 in common storage. The fruit kept well and sold at unusually high prices. In 1902, 3,128,000 barrels were placed in cold storage and 1,236,700 in common storage. The producers and cold storage men are alike taking much interest in the investigations being made by the Department of Agriculture to determine the influence of cultural conditions, the most practical methods of handling and of storage, and to demonstrate the keeping qualities and value of our orchard produce.

From a summary of results already accomplished by these experiments the following interesting facts have been gleaned.

The temperature of a cold storage warehouse should be uniform throughout. Fruit should be placed in cold storage immediately after being taken from the tree. A delay of a few hours or a few days, especially in hot weather, will result in serious loss. Pears should be picked at early maturity, but apples keep best when well matured and colored on the tree, but still hard. Fruit keeps best and stands up longest after being brought out if the storage temperature is about 32 degrees. A higher temperature than this promotes ripening while in storage and early decay after being withdrawn. Small packages, say about 50 pounds, are better than larger ones. This is especially true of pears. The ventilation of barrels and large packages is very essential to the quick ripening of fruit. Wrapping prolongs the keeping of fruits, double wrappers being better than single ones. The inner wrapper may be made of porous paper, like unprinted newspaper, the outer one of paraffin paper. Perfect specimens only should be selected for storage; none other will pay.—Northwest Horticulturist.

Too Much Realism For the Manager.

"So you had to close the show?" "Yes," answered the manager with the placid vest. "What was the trouble?" "Too much craze for realism. There was a counterfeiting scene, and the actors said they couldn't go through with it unless they could see what money looked like once in awhile."—Washington Star.

Overworked. "She is suffering from overwork." "Mental or physical?" "Both. Her trouble was caused by composing articles on physical culture."—Brooklyn Life.

Washington Letter.

(From our special correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12, 1903.

A little more than four months ago Postmaster General Payne declared in an interview that reports of scandals in the postoffice were "hot air" and a "stump speech." Today 30 persons, including a former postmaster general, four heads of divisions, and two assistant attorneys of the postoffice, besides an ex-congressman, a New York state senator and a Pennsylvania mayor, indicted and awaiting trial for defrauding the government through the Post-office department. Against one official fourteen indictments were found, against another six and against several of them two or three. On Monday the Washington grand jury was dismissed and it's last act was to announce thirteen new indictments against ten men. The names on the list are James N. Tyner, Harrison J. Barret, George W. Beavers, W. Scott Towers, James T. Metcalf, August W. Machem, Norman R. Metcalf, Harry C. Hallenbeck, William D. Doremus and George E. Green. The trials of these men will begin during the present session of the court and they are expected to drag along through the winter and through next summer. The frauds may be divided into three classes; the taking of commissions on supplies purchased by the department, the accepting of considerations in return for allowing fraudulent concerns to use the mails and the incorrect charging of expense accounts to the department. Among the latest indictment the most interesting is that of Tyner. He is nearly eighty years old and has held high positions in the Postoffice Department for many years. At one time during the presidency of General Grant he was Postmaster General. Before his recent dismissal he was Assistant Attorney-General for the postoffice. As such he was the chief legal adviser to the department, yet he is the very one, who with his nephew-in-law Barret, allowed the misuse of the mails by "get-rich-quick" concerns. The report of Fourth Assistant Bristow will be ready about October 20. It is said to consist of 350 type-written pages. This will practically end the investigations, unless the republicans carry out their present intentions of calling for a congressional investigation, "to forestall the democrats."

A report has just been issued showing the Postoffice transactions for the fiscal year. The expenditures amounted to $138,784,487.97 and the receipts $134,224,443.24 thus leaving a deficit of $4,560,044.73. The total financial transactions for the year including the money order system, were $1,026,731,407.96, thus for the first time passing the billion dollar mark. Illustrating the magnitude of the postal operations, an official said: "If errors escape detection in the Auditors Office amounting to 1-100th of one percent of the business handled, the sums lost in six years would reach $500,000, or five times the amount involved in the postal frauds now under investigation."

The negroes of the District of Columbia continue to criticize the republican party. At a recent meeting at which many members of the Suffrage League were present, the president of the league declared that the colored people were going to create a stir if their liberties were taken away from them. Another speaker added, "Let us not be led astray by talk of industrial education, and holding of property. If they can steal the ballot they can steal our property."

William Calvin Chase said, "If the republican cannot prevent the repeal of the fifteenth amendment when it is in power, let us no longer support the party as we have done in the past. They tell us we owe the republican party a debt of gratitude. In the name of all the Gods haven't we already paid the debt? If Roosevelt and his party cannot come to our rescue I think that we should withdraw our support from them." This and other indications shows that the republican party can not retain the negro vote from mere gratitude for past favors.

While the republicans fail to come to an agreement on financial legislation Secretary Shaw continues to relieve an imaginary money stringency. Since September 1st he has placed $18,489,200 of the public money in circulation. He has accomplished this by depositing government money in the national banks to the credit of the Secretary of the Treasury and by redeeming United States bonds before they are due. It is now announced that the republicans will appoint a joint committee to examine in to the needs for currency legislation.
