OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

THE attempt made to assassinate President McKinley has caused deep sorrow and indignation in the minds of law abiding people throughout the civilized world. The indignation increased when the later reports developed the fact that the assassin was discovered to be an anarchist and a member in all probability of an organized band of that murder breeding society. It is needless of course to record the fact that the whole American people deplore and condemn this dastardly attempt on the life of the president and extend to him and his family their heartfelt sympathy in their great affliction, and they sincerely pray that his wounds may heal and that he be spared to finish his great work as the elected ruler of this great and free nation. But whether the president shall live or die the people have learned a good lesson from the unhappy event which will doubtless have the effect of producing a healthier public sentiment in this country in the future. Now that the public eye is riveted on this class of criminals, and mostly foreign criminals at that, who style themselves anarchists and preach the doctrine that murder of men in high places is not only a virtuous but a glorious act, doubtless some effectual remedy will be found to purify the atmosphere. Laws will be enacted calculated to reach this sore spot in our political anatomy and tear out this noxious foreign growth, which if left unchecked threatens to poison and destroy the whole body in our system of government. It is of course the damnable teachings of these loud-mouthed agitators that inspired the poor weak-minded fool Czolgosz to commit the horrible crime. They may have been ignorant of his intentions in this instance, but morally they are more guilty than he. These men who have been driven out of their own countries, ought not to longer be allowed a refuge here with the privilege of preaching their obnoxious doctrines of murder and destruction.

THE attempt made by the anarchist Czolgosz on the life of the president has brought to light through the daily press the opinions of a good many extremists. Many of these are ministers of the gospel, who in commenting on the attempted assassination from their several pulpits, have given utterance to views that are in themselves but little short of anarchistic. Some have advocated the necessity of calling lynch law into use for such occasions, while others demand that the crime of shooting a president should be labeled treason and dealt with accordingly. Still others propose police regulations for the stamping out of anarchy that would seriously cripple if it did not destroy the right of free speech in this country. It is not to be wondered at, of course, that on such an occasion as this that some editors in their hastily written comment on the deplorable event should have slopped over and offered bad advice to the public, but it is somewhat surprising to see such suggestions of violence emanate from the pulpit. The American people are going to make this country a mighty uncomfortable place for anarchists in the future or anybody who sympathizes with such cattle. But no one cares to cut off his own nose to spite his face. The right of free speech is a sacred birth-right of American citizenship and while there should be a well defined line of demarkation between liberty and license, will submit to no infringement on their nature and constitutional rights. The half baked critics and dangerous agitators referred to need watching. They are either guilty of slobbering or are fit subjects only for a monarchic form of government.

WHEN two such mental giants as U. S. Senator Turner and Editor Scott of the Oregonian cross swords the scene becomes interesting. In the present newspaper war between the two men the latter is clearly the aggressor. The venerable and venomous editor took occasion to criticize in his usual sarcastic vein an interview lately given to the press by the senator in which he reviewed the money question at some length from a democratic standpoint. Mr. Scott, who can rightfully claim the questionable distinction of being the original gold standard man in this neck o' the woods, took exception to some of the statements made by Turner, and concluded by intimating broadly that the senator is not only mistaken in his opinions on finance, but is guilty of moral dishonesty, as he knew better from the start, and that he is in fact a demagogue. This insinuation couched in Scott's insulting language speedily moved the Washington statesman to reply, in which he reviewed at length not only his own attitude on the silver question, but that of the republican party for many years previous to Hanna's leadership, and in winding up refers to the Portland editor as an "ignoramus, a charlatan and a bigot." With this broadside the senator will probably dismiss the bucolic Oregon editor from his thoughts, but it is safe to assume that the latter will keep pounding away at him for the next six months.

HON. WM. J. BRYAN has made the following patriotic and sensible observations anent the dastardly attempt to assassinate the president: "Free governments may be overthrown, but they cannot be reformed by those who violate the commandment, 'Thou shalt not kill.' Under a government like ours every wrong can be remedied by laws, and the laws are in the hands of the people themselves. Anarchy can be neither excused or tolerated here. The man who proposes to right a public wrong by taking the life of a human being makes himself an outlaw and cannot consistently appeal to the protection of the government which he repudiates. He invites a return to a state of barbarism in which one must, at his own risk, defend his own rights and avenge his own wrongs. The punishment administered to the would-be assassin and to his co-conspirators, if he have any, should be such as to warn all inclined to anarchy that while this is an asylum for those who love liberty, it is an inhospitable place for those who raise their hands against all forms of government."

THE indications are now most favorable for the president's recovery and all good people sincerely hope that his life will be spared. While many of us abhor many things that he stands for in government and believe that his elevation to the presidency was a serious mistake, yet we cannot but express much admiration for him as a man. Indeed he is possessed of so many lovable traits of character that one cannot help liking him. Without doubt he is possessed of a great big heart and if nature had been but equally generous with him in the matter of what the world calls backbone he might make an almost ideal chief magistrate. His inability to say no when he should often have said no, has without doubt led to many grave abuses during his incumbency. Still even with this handicap the most of us prefer him infinitely to the man who would succeed to the presidency in the event of his death. Roosevelt is too spectacular a character and too uncertain a quantity for the people generally to repose much confidence in him. They therefore in this have an additional reason for desiring the speedy recovery of their stricken president.

CONGRESSMAN HULL of Iowa, who is chairman of the house committee on military affairs and also president of the Philippine Lumber and Development Co., has just returned from a trip to "our new possessions." On being interviewed as to the present situation in the islands, the congressman says that the work of pacification is going on grandly but is frank enough to admit that in his opinion an army of at least 40,000 men will be required in the Philippines for many years to come in order to have a civilizing effect upon the natives and teach them to have a proper respect for the rights and property of American citizens. And speaking of property, it is well to remember that the Honorable Mr. Hull has embarked in the sawmill business in that country.

GROVER CLEVELAND was last week arrested and fined the sum of $2 for violating a state law of Massachusetts in relation to fishing. The particular offense of the ex-president was in catching small fish. The official who made the arrest claimed that he did not know the identity of his distinguished prisoner until he came to pay his fine in court. Catching small fish had become such a fixed habit with Mr. Cleveland that he no doubt felt quite indignant at being interfered with while thus engaged.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Thomas Williams died at Prosser Sunday night from typhoid fever. He leaves a wife and young child.

David Longmire on Monday went to Tacoma to purchase two carloads of milch cows to be added to his dairy stock.

The Wenas public schools started last Monday. Other schools outside the hop belt also opened in various parts of the county.

The Kitchen brothers of Roslyn arrived last week with three race horses to take part in the State Fair. Their stock is now being trained on the track at the fair grounds.

Josephine V. Gould was granted a divorce from George M. Gould by Judge Rudkin last Tuesday. The cause for the separation was given as non-support and abandonment.

It is stated that about half the number of Yakima horses at the Fverett races are in such bad condition from fever that they have been unable to participate in any of the events.

In the superior court last Saturday H. A. Marble was granted a divorce from Edith Marble, on the ground of incompatibility. The parties were married at Goodland, Kas., August 21, 1898.

F. H. Plumb started last Tuesday morning for Appleton, Wis., in response to a telegram announcing a change for the worse in the condition of his wife, who has been sick for some time with typhoid fever.

The Prosser Electric Light Co. put into operation their new plant Wednesday evening. Everything was perfectly satisfactory. The street lights will be put in at once, and then Prosser will be able to put on metropolitan airs.—Record.

A. O. Fowler, who left with his family some two months ago to locate at Chelan, was in the city this week settling some old business. Mr. Fowler states that he is well pleased with his new home, and orders the DEMOCRAT to follow him.

Freddy, the 11 year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. F. Bailly, formerly of this place, was smothered to death at his Seattle home last Saturday, by the cave-in of a tunnel on a vacant lot where a number of children had a "playhouse". A youthful companion of the child had a narrow escape from death at the same time.

The Humane society met at the Episcopal rectory Saturday, September 7, at 8 p. m. The state organizer did not reach Yakima, but sent a telegram. The society partially organized by electing Rev. Bartlett chairman for term, Mrs. C. M. Bartlett secretary. Then after dainty refreshments adjourned to meet at Dr. Gunn's Saturday, September 14, 8 p. m.

N. J. Beckner and Mrs. Gertrude Beckner, of Bickleton, were reunited in marriage Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leffier, by Judge Gantenbein. The happy couple were married once before but after a few years of single blessedness are glad to get back. The best wishes of this office abide with them. Especially so since they have decided to make their future home in Pasco.—News Recorder.

A. B. Sweeney this week received a very complimentary letter from the superintendent of the W. U. T. Co. at Minneapolis for his efficient service at the down-town office pending the arrival of a new telegraph operator. H. B. Spencer, one of the oldest operators in the service, arrived and took charge on Tuesday. Mr. Spencer says that within a few weeks, J. Levin, assistant superintendent of the company will be here, when initiative steps will be taken toward establishing the A. D. T. service.

Burglars broke into D. R. Barton's hardware store last Saturday night and after ransacking the premises, departed with about $70 worth of guns and cutlery. Several of the knives were found on Monday in the rear of the O. K. stable on South Second street, evidently having been dropped as the burglars hurriedly decamped. Mr. Barton is considerably worked up over the matter, as this is the second time his store has been burglarized within the past two months. No trace of the marauders has yet been discovered.

It is stated that William Collier, who is to present Augustus Thomas's successful comedy "On the Quiet" the coming season under the management of Jacob Litt, will cover more territory than any other stellar theatrical attraction. His season will open on the 2nd of September in Brooklyn and he produces a new play in New York City early in February. During the interim, Mr. Collier will visit the cities on the Pacific Coast via St. Paul and San Antonio. The trip will be close to twenty thousand miles.

William Collier is resting this summer at his beautiful home at St. James, Long Island, and getting in readiness for his coming tour under the management of Jacob Litt, during which he will visit all of the principal cities of the country returning to New York early in February for an extended run at the Madison Square theater. For six months, extending far into the heated term, the past season, Mr. Collier played to the capacity of this theatre in his comedy "On the Quiet," and it is this delightful amusing play which he will present on his coming tour.

Dr. W. D. Hall, a veterinary surgeon, from St. Paul, Minn., arrived in the city this week and will make his residence here in the future. Anyone desiring his services will find him at 203 West Yakima avenue, or at the Central hotel. 51-3t

President William McKinley Dead! Great Excitement at the White House Clothing Store.

Bulletins received here early Friday morning as to the change for the worse in the condition of the president came as another shock to the community, as every one had been led by the bulletins issued by his physicians to the belief that the crisis had been passed and danger of fatal results reduced to a minimum.

J. E. O'Connell, assistant superintendent of the registry system of the post-office department, was in the city Thursday inspecting the local office.

The family of B. Wilkinson will leave today for Seattle where Bernard, Jr., will enter the State University. Mr. Wilkinson will probably remain in Yakima.

Thos. Lund returned Thursday from Seattle, in company with his daughter Lena, who has for some time been visiting the family of State Senator Hemrich.

Doc Hare and W. P. Guthrie left for Spokane Thursday night. The former will assist in dedicating the Elks' temple in that city today, while the latter will be an interested spectator.

Lee B. Hart, accompanied by his brother-in-law, Mr. Prigmore, arrived Monday from Seattle, having made the trip on horseback through the Snoqualmie pass. They will probably conclude to make their permanent residence somewhere in this valley.

Residents of Nob Hill living close to the limits of school district No. 7 have a largely signed petition to the school superintendent asking annexation to the district. It is only a matter of time when they will be asking admission into the corporate limits of the city.

A. E. Howard yesterday morning received a telegram from F. H. Plumb at Appleton, Wis., announcing the death of Mrs. Plumb, and requesting that the news be broken to the children. There is a particular sadness in this fatal termination of the visit of Mrs. Plumb, who went several weeks ago with her babe to be present at what promised to be the deathbed of her aged mother. The elder lady recovered, but Mrs. Plumb was stricken with typhoid fever, which resulted fatally. Five daughters and one son survive her, all except the youngest being at their home here. The body will be interred at her old eastern home.

The Quaker doctors appeared yesterday afternoon before Justice MacCrimmon to answer to two charges of having given theatrical performances in the city without license. Having been arrested and taken before City Justice Lince on Thursday, they secured a change of venue and were liberated on a cash bond of $20 each, by Judge MacCrimmon, who on Friday, after hearing argument in the case, allowed a continuance until the matter is passed upon by the federal court at Spokane next Monday. Mr. Snively, who is counsel for the defendant, states that he has applied for a writ arresting the mayor for contempt of the U. S. court, as it is claimed the show is part of the matter for which the restraining order was granted.

At about 3 a. m. Friday morning an alarming condition of heart action lead the surgeons to issue notice to the country that while there was no instant danger, the worst fears might be realized.

A telegram received at 3:15 last afternoon brought the melancholly news that death ensued at Buffalo at 5:45 p. m., eastern time.

THE HOP OUTLOOK.

The Chances for Fair Prices Not So Discouraging As Reported.

Hop picking is now on in this county in dead earnest, the work having commenced this week in nearly all of the yards in this vicinity. The picking has been somewhat retarded thus far on account of a scarcity of help but as more pickers are coming in daily both of whites and Indians the work of gathering will proceed more rapidly.

The outlook for a satisfactory price from the growers' standpoint, has up to this time not been good, scarcely any offers having been made above ten cents by the buyers, and they seem little disposed even to pay that.

The Tacoma Ledger of the 10th inst., in an article taken from the Mark Lane Express gives some good reasons why prices should advance. The writer says that later advices regarding the English crop show that there will be a material reduction in the yield of that country compared with first estimates. This authority says that while the English crop in all probability will exceed that of 1900 it will fall far short of that of 1899. The American crop according to the same authority has likewise been considerably overestimated. The hot dry weather, he thinks, is given as the cause of this. This writer concludes that the situation is such that it calls for the exercise of good judgment and watchfulness on the part of growers in order to realize a fair or satisfactory price.

The Ledger says that the estimate of the American crop has been reduced by later calculations from 232,000 to 205,000 bales, made up as follows: New York 60,000, Oregon 70,000, California 45,000 and Washington 30,000.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave-digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters, and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disease germs and purifies the blood; aids digestion, regulates liver, kidneys, and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Talifario Winear, an Indian, was arrested last Monday through the sheriff's office, charged with stabbing in the back a blood relative known as Teio, between North Yakima and Old Town last Sunday night. The culprit acknowledged his guilt and was fined $50 and costs. The wound was inflicted during a drunken frolic, and the shortness of the knife-blade alone prevented a fatal wound.

About 150 hop-pickers arrived from the Sound on Tuesday, and on Thursday probably as many more took advantage of the reduced rates. Big bands of Indians from the Colville reservation and a large number of Yakimas, who have been in the mountains digging camas and picking huckleberries, got in on the same day. These, coupled with the arrival of numerous white families from adjoining counties, mitigated in a great measure the fear of growers that a scarcity of pickers would shorten the out-put.

Fred E. Alter, who has for several years been connected with Horst & Lachmund, hop dealers of Portland, Ore., has severed his connection with that firm and embarked in the hop business. He has opened offices in the Lewis-Engle building and will buy Yakima hops for a number of eastern and English firms. Mr. Alter is well known to the hop growers of Yakima county and enjoys the reputation of being fair and square in all his dealings, as well as a good judge of the various grades of hops. We bespeak for him success in his new undertaking.

Mr. Lee Hazel of North Yakima and Miss Maud Davenport of this city, were united in marriage Wednesday evening. The ceremony took place at 6 o'clock at the parsonage of the Presbyterian church, Rev. A. T. McLean officiating. Miss Marie Casner attended the bride and Mr. Lon Casner acted as best man. A wedding supper was enjoyed at the Grand Pacific. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. G. D. Motsinger and is one of our most popular young ladies. The young couple left today for North Yakima where the groom is engaged in the painting and decorating business. Our best wishes attend them.—Localizer.

Last Sunday morning, in obedience to a writ of habeas corpus, City Marshal Boyle conveyed Fred S. Walton to Seattle for a hearing before U. S. Judge Hanford. Walton, the Quaker doctor, having refused to pay the fine assessed against him for violating the ordinance relating to hawking medicines in the city, had been placed under arrest. Attorneys Whitson and Snyder represented the city in the court, and H. J. Snively had charge of the defendant's case. Judge Hanford granted a temporary injunction restraining the city from interfering with the Quakers, but required the defendant to give a bond of $500 pending the final hearing of the case, which will be in the U. S. court at Spokane next Monday.

Valuable Information.

The publican, organizing the "droughty soul" who had just entered his bar as a man whose thirst was longer than his purse, demanded cash for delivery.

As the thirsty one reluctantly turned to go, he remarked in a plaintive tone. "Well, ye might hae let me get that tankard; it wudn't hae cost ye anything, as I was going to tell ye something to yer advantage."

This was too much for Mr. Bung's curiosity, and the drink was handed over.

As the droughty one licked his lips and gazed dreamily at the bottom of the tankard, he said:

"Well, I wanted to tell ye that if iver ye are in Downpatrick Gaol—as I hope and trust ye will be—be sure and take the treadmill to the right as it is easiest worked."—London Answers.

The Tavern at the End.

Down Life's road a tavern
Marks the End,
Where are sometimes quartered
Foe and friend
Weary of the journey;
Faint of breath—
Friend and foe must greet him—
Landlord Death.

Landlord Death is quiet
In his way;
Yet he has his pleasures
Day by day;
Pleasures that he greets with Smile so grim—
Yes, and they who travel
Smile on him.

You may take no luggage
To his inn,
Joy nor tears nor fortune,
Nay, nor sin.
When you come, you leave it
All behind.
Many vow sincerely
Death is kind.

Guests there are who tremble
At the gate;
Guests there are who enter
All sedate;
Other guests would parley
For a while;
Others, too, who hasten,
With a smile.

Down Life's road a tavern
Marks the End.
Further on the highways
Dimly blend.
Death will make no answer,
Yes or No,
If we on that highway
Stay or go.

Progress of the Fraternal Club

The Yakima branch of the American Fraternal Club will be instituted in a few days. Indications are that the first club will have over two hundred charter members. Organizers report very few opponents to the new society. The plan of operation is new, unique and safe and appeals to the sentiments of every person on whom there are any dependent ones. Every loyal Yakima citizen enters heart and soul into the proposition, as it will be worth many thousands of dollars to the commerce of this city and prove the best advertisement ever invented for placing Yakima before the world.

The organizers at work in other fields are demanding that the first club be started here with a large membership. This will give the people on the outside confidence in the city and the men who have incorporated the American Fraternal Club. Many of the best fraternal organizers in the northwest are making applications for territory in which to work and every state with British Columbia will soon be entered by representatives of the club. Those who have supposed the society was only a local institution will be surprised to see delegates attending the superior club meetings from every point in the United States and Canada within a few years.

A monthly paper to be known as the American Fraternal Club, is to be published before the close of the month. This like all other printed matter, will be on goldenrod paper. It will be circulated among the members of this city and other towns and sent out to fraternal editors and organizers throughout the country. The editorial notices of this paper will give Yakima advertising worth thousands of dollars. The pathway to success is bright for the club and its success means much for Yakima.

TO NORTH YAKIMA.

G. N. Briggs, of Hendrix, Briggs & Co., Must Stand Trial.

The Seattle Times of last Tuesday has this to say of the Yakima cases against a Seattle firm of commission men. The facts are as stated, with the exception as to the man being brought over by Sheriff Tucker, he having given bonds in $100 for his appearance in court here next Monday.

G. M. Briggs, of the local commission firm of Hendrix, Briggs & Co., was last night taken to North Yakima by the sheriff of Yakima county to stand trial on the charge of conducting a commission business in the state of Washington without a state license. The offense as alleged, was committed in Yakima county during the recent presence there of the defendant who was there buying potatoes for his firm.

The offense as charged against the defendant is a common one, none of the local commission men, it appears, having considered the law mandatory or having obeyed its provisions. Nevertheless there is a provision in the law for a fine of not more than $500 or a jail sentence of not more than six months in case of conviction.

The outcome of the trial of the defendant on this particular charge will be watched with considerable interest by all the local commission men, for if the defendant be convicted and the law held to be valid and constitutional it will then be necessary for all the commission men to take out state licenses for their own protection in dealing with persons in different portions of the state. The fee for a state license to conduct a commission business is $300.

However, in this specific case it seems that the prosecution of the accused on the charge of conducting a commission business without a license is but a subterfuge to get the defendant into Yakima county in order to prosecute him for other offenses. In the stories told by the accusers of the defendant it is claimed that he was in Yakima recently buying potatoes and that he bought from a number of farmers and others. The potatoes were shipped to this city and upon their arrival here were found by the purchasing firm not to be up to their requirements in the matter of quality so the purchasers refused to pay the full contracted price for them. It seems that there are several of these complaints and that charges of this nature will be filed against the defendant as soon as he is in the custody of the Yakima court.

A least one of the complaining potato sellers has taken additional means of enforcing his contract with the local house by filing yesterday in the King county superior court a suit for the recovery of $149.40 alleged to be due from the local firm for goods purchased for which the purchasers refuse to pay. The plaintiffs in this suit are Miller Bros.

Mr. Briggs, the accused, made an attempt to prevent the sheriff from taking him to North Yakima for trial by means of habeas corpus proceedings sued out yesterday in Judge Emory's court. But after an examination into the case Judge Emory dismissed the proceedings and remanded the defendant back into the hands of the sheriff.

Doubtful.

"Now Will You Be Good."

A good joke on Harry Beresford is now going the rounds. Before starting rehearsals for his forthcoming western tour as a star in Broadhurst's "The Wrong Mr. Wright," the comedian has been alternating between the seashore and the mountains, with occasional trips to the managerial office on Broadway, New York. On one of these trips, "Berry" (as his intimates call him), ran across the joke burr that is likely to stick to him for all time. "Children and dogs all love Berry", his admirers say, and 'twas this that proved his undoing. Thinking out "good biz" for the piece, maybe, or perhaps scheming to avert possible "bad biz", he was seated one morning in the cars on a flying visit to the metropolis. Suddenly his reverie was rudely disturbed by the unearthly yelling of a young gentleman about the age when "they all love Berry". "The youngster", the comedian says, "had a splendid pair of lungs, and gave promise of a grand (opera) future, Grau should keep an eye on him. Like all amateurs though, he rehearsed—'Just as he'd do it at night.' Evidently the young hopeful was a little too much for his mother to handle for sotto voce remarks were plentiful—if not printable—through the car. At last Berry couldn't stand the pressure, he got up and made his way to an empty seat near the mother and child and commenced the "goo goo" hypnotics and "baby talk" that is supposed to go with the training of unruly children. The whole car watched with breathless interest. Suddenly, as if by magic, the youngster stopped—there was silence—then with a sigh of relief the mother's voice arose—"There, now will you be good. I told you the big ugly man would come." You mustn't say B—U M to Beresford yet. He knows he's no Adonis, but well—even truth isn't always a "joy forever", and this came sudden. He's still fond of dogs.

In a back number of Answers appeared a storyette about two brothers who lived among the Rocky Mountains. They had two rifles, one bullet, and one keg of powder. With these they killed on an average of twenty-seven head of buffalo a day. They managed it thus: One of them stood on one side of a buffalo, and one on the other. No. 1 fired. The bullet passed through the animal and into the barrel of the other man's rifle. Then No. 2 fired the bullet through another buffalo. and back into No. 1's rifle, and so on.

A contributor informs us that he has a friend—a cousin, he thinks, of these young men—who is a dead-shot and a prize-runner. This friend also was living in the Rocky Mountains, and was placed in a position similar to the one described, only worse. He was alone, had only one rifle, one bullet, and one keg of powder. With these he killed thirty head of buffalo a day. This is how he managed it:

He fired at a buffalo, ran around the other side of it and caught the bullet in the barrel of his rifle; fired at the next buffalo, and ran round and caught the bullet again, and so on until he had exhausted all his powder. He still keeps the rifle and bullet as a memento.—London Answers.

State Fair Notes.

The State Fair commission has decided to reduce the price of admission to the grounds to twenty-five cents and make other corresponding reductions in the expense of attending the fair. It is expected that several thousands of people will come on the excursions from the larger cities and that the citizens of Yakima will attend as a whole and make the fair the greatest success ever known in its history. The price of admission has been fifty cents in the past, but will be only twenty-five this year. This is tried as an experiment. If the people take the interest they should the prices will probably never be raised again.

The price for conveying people to and from the grounds has been reduced to 15 cents going and 10 cents returning. Enough hackmen have agreed to this rate to insure the carrying of all who want to visit the fair. The commission will furnish banners to every hackman. These will carry the banners and charge the prescribed rate. The license will be only two dollars for each hack for the entire week and this amount will be refunded to those hauling passengers to and from the grounds every day.

Arrangements are being perfected for a Masonic and Woodmen day during the fair. The local Masons propose having work in the Royal Arch degree during the week and will have prominent members from every section of the state in attendance at the fair. Hon. Sam H. Nichols, secretary of the state, will be the presiding official at the Masonic meetings. The Woodmen of the World is arranging for a parade and other performances during the week of fair. Headquarters will be established on the fair ground and the visiting Woodmen entertained.

Hon. E. F. Benson is in Portland completing the details of an excursion from Sound cities. The special will carry passengers from Seattle and Tacoma for $3.50 for the round trip. The tickets will contain two coupons of attendance at the fair and entitle the holder to visit the grounds during the two days. This will bring an immense crowd of people to this city and arrangements must be made to properly care for them. This matter will be handled by E. F. Benson and assistants. The commission will have an agent on every train coming into the city and passengers will be fully instructed so that when received by the entertainment committee they will get proper places for lodgings.

Special excursions are to be arranged from all sections of the state. Advertisements are being placed in the newspapers, and lithographs posted in conspicuous places everywhere announcing the special rates and reductions of prices at the fair. Everything points to the largest and most successful fair ever held and the people of Yakima must rise to the emergency and assist in properly caring for the throngs of people who will come here for the first time this year.

It's Worse for a Woman

To suffer with skin disease than it is for a man, for a smooth skin and a clear complexion are essential elements of female beauty. So-called skin diseases are in general blood diseases, because they are commonly the result of an impure condition of the blood. What light is to the landscape the blood is to the cheek. Light is the great landscape painter, and the hues of his palette transform a dull world into a fairyland. So pure blood touches the lips with cherry and the cheek with rose, gives the ears a tint like the sea shell's, brightens the eyes and whitens the hands, until it transforms homeliness into actual beauty. Often a fair face will be marred by eruptions, pimples or some disfiguring rash, resulting from a scrofulous taint of the blood. When the taint of scrofula is in the blood it will be sure to show itself soon or late; and its manifestations may be as repulsive as they are painful. Many people have been cured of scrofula in its most malignant forms by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This remedy is remarkable for its power to purify the blood. It absolutely eliminates the corrupting elements. It makes the blood clean and rich. It increases the action of the blood-making glands, and so increases the quantity of pure blood supplied to the body. It is a true beautifier, giving a hue to the complexion and a sparkle to the eye, which can only come when there is a bountiful supply of pure, rich blood.

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," neither does it contain opium, cocaine or any other narcotic.

There is nothing "just as good" for blood diseases as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, therefore do not be imposed upon by a substitute medicine, sold only for the sake of making an excessive profit out of you. It you want the "Discovery" insist on getting it.

Chronic Scrofula Cured.

"I will forever thank you for advising me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mrs. Jas. Murphy, of Fondra, Pocahontas Co., Iowa. "It has cured me of chronic scrofula, of twelve years' standing. I had doctored for the trouble until I was completely discouraged. I also had chronic diarrhea for twelve years. I am in good health now—better than I ever was in my life, owing to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took several bottles of the 'Discovery' before I stopped."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, is a work for every woman. It is sent FREE, on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps (to pay cost of mailing ONLY), for paper edition. Cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Pussy and Fly Paper.

A large and handsome Angora cat, which is the pride and pet of a family in the south end of the city, and which relying on this, makes himself very familiar, got into great trouble yesterday. Several sheets of sticky fly paper had been laid on a table near a sunny window to entrap wandering flies. The cat, desiring to look out of the window, leaped on the table and landed with all four feet on a sheet of the fly paper. At first he kept cool and endeavored to release one foot after another, but the paper clung closer than a brother. Then he put his nose down to push the paper from his feet, and a loose end seized him by the whiskers and fastened to his forehead, blinding him. Then he was scared, and the trouble commenced, and a sort of furry, long-tailed thunderbolt went rolling over the carpet, emitting the most horrible yells and caterwaulings and turning everything upside down. The family hastened to the relief of their favorite, and more than one of them felt his teeth and claws before he was put in a condition to see and walk.—Portland Oregonian.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5, 1901.

When General Arthur MacArthur, formerly commander-in-chief of the military forces in the Philippines, came to town the other day, he had a great deal to say about the situation in the archipelago. The general, however, framed his comment with hopefulness rather than emphasis. Between the lines of his interviews there was food for thought. He stated, among other things, that the army of forty thousand men in the Philippines would probably be none too many for some time to come. This is a bald admission that the civil government established with such an ostentatious flourish of trumpets is far from able to stand on its own legs. Largely by inference, General MacArthur attributes the armed uneasiness of the Filipinos to the sudden transition from Spanish to American institutions. It is difficult to comprehend how the substitution of the good for the bad can engender such opposition, especially among those who have been groaning under the burdens and injustices of the latter for centuries.

Unfortunately, the bill of particulars showing why the Americans and the Filipinos are not in accord at the present time is left largely to the imagination of the persons interested in knowing. While all must contemplate with a certain amount of satisfaction the growth of civilizing and reforming influences in the islands, it seems that there ought to be a way of settling differences of opinion on questions of public policy other than the continued extermination of the weaker disputants. A simple friendly argument will often do more to open the eyes of the benighted than a whole battalion bent on slaughter.

For some time the lethargy in political circles here has been pronounced. Senator Hanna's cavorting presidential boom, however, has almost managed to establish normal wakefulness in those quarters where curious structures are sometimes built from political straws.

The boom has become so obstreperous that several aspirants have felt obliged to dodge. Therefore, the shrewd Ohioan, without appearing on the scene, has succeeded in getting into print an explanation to the effect that he is perhaps more deeply amused by the antics of the boom than any other man, woman or child in the United States.

The story goes, and it appears as having leaked from a confidential source, that Mr. Hanna's sole object in permitting his name to be used, is to preserve from rust the marvelously successful machine hitherto established by himself for political purposes.

It is alleged that Senator Hanna intends to refrain from being the next president. There are those, even in his own party, however, who are not sure of the matter. It is known that he admires the White House, outside and inside. He has never been accused of not being ambitious. The buzz of the presidential bee is soothing and alluring. Even his opponents have admitted that he is the logical republican candidate. And there is no doubt that he intends to be the controlling factor in the next national convention of his party if he is alive when that body is called to order.

Notwithstanding the public sensation of weariness, the Sampson-Schley controversy continues to demand that it shall be noticed. Forecasts, denials, speculations, reports of progress and differences of opinion related to the dispute are forced into prominence with the regularity of weather predictions.

A day or two since it was announced that Sampson would remain in his New Hampshire retreat by his friends in Washington. It was declared that physical weakness would prevent his appearance before the naval court of inquiry. Now an anonymous naval official of high standing declares that the father of the controversy insists upon facing the tribunal in order to substantiate his charges against Admiral Schley. While Sampson may be physically unfit to stand the siege of the Washington tribunal, there is no doubt as to the construction the people would place upon his absence. They are already recalling the fact that he was somewhere else when Schley reduced the Spanish fleet to junk and citing as a prospective parallel his probable absence when the victor of Santiago battles for his reputation before his judges in the national capital.

If Sampson is able to come to Washington, he should, by all means do so, for even the champions of Schley would not be contented with a verdict in his favor unless the accusing officer has given by word of mouth all his testimony in support of the serious charges against one of the heroes of one of the greatest of American naval engagements. Sampson's absence, unless there is incontrovertible proof of his invalidism, would be universally interpreted as meaning that he was afraid to face the fire of cross-examiners who will do all in their power to vindicate Schley.

Secretary Hay's recent hurried trip to Canton proves to have been due to the continued aggressiveness of Venezuela, promising a general disturbance among the South American nations. The result of Mr. Hay's conference with the president was a warning to Castro, the Venezuelan executive, to the effect that an end of the imbroglio was highly desirable and would be appreciated by the United States, which is pledged to preserve the neutrality of the Isthmus of Panama. If Castro is as hot-headed as he has been pictured and sufficiently wrought up by the war fever, he may take an erratic notion to defy Mr. Hay. While such action would be ludicrous, it might develop a situation capable of complications. Several nations are more than interested in the Isthmian canal project for obvious reasons and Castro might secure support from quarters, where, under other circumstances, he would be merely laughed at.

While cotton may have abdicated as a sovereign, it continues as a first-rate power in the industrial world, and the report of the annual crop in the United States is particularly gratifying. Some of the statistics follow: Receipts at all United States ports during the year, 7,666,452, against 6,734,364 last year; overland to northern mills 1,140,237 against 1,161,189; southern consumption taken direct from the interior of the cotton belt 1,576,733 against 1,540,863 making the crop of the United States for 1900-1901 amount to 10,383,422 bales against 9,436,416 last year, and 11,274,840 the year before. There is a continued increase in the number of mills and in the spindles of plants already established. The value of the cotton crop this year has reached the remarkable total of $494,567,549, more than ever before obtained for the product of a season.

Launching a New Joke.

No policeman was in sight, of course. That was because he was wanted.

"Hit him Muggsy!"

"Soak him, Swipes!"

"Put it on ther smeller!"

These and many other edifying ejaculations were hurled at two small boot-blacks who were earnestly engaged in spoiling each other's face with their fists, while a big crowd stood in a circle about them, in front of the postoffice.

It was going badly for the larger of the two boys when a member of the Boston Peace society, or one of its branches, stepped in and separated the boys. For a wonder both seemed willing to stop. The peacemaker said:

"Well, what are you fighting about?"

Then an amusing explanation followed, and a new idiot joke was started on its journey through the town, for every man and boy in the crowd that heard the explanation started off to "spring" the joke on the first acquaintance he should meet, and possibly to be the participant in another fictitious engagement. The boy said:

"This bloke comes up ter me and sez, 'Say, what's the next to ther last letter in ther alphybet?'"

"Y," sez I.

"'Cos I wants to know,' sez he, and he laughs and swipes me on ther back, en ther others they all laughs, too. I don't see no joke in it, so I hits him on ther peeper. Do youse see—"

He stopped short; a grin spread all over his dirty and bruised face. He looked sheepish and then laughed outright.

"Hully gee, I see it now. You're all right, Muggsy. Shake! Why, Y, sure. It's a good one, and I'll spring it on me brudder."

They shook hands and went off together. The crowd laughed and each one hastened to spread the plague—a new joke.—Boston Journal.

Won Him a Bride.

A certain major told a good story of his experience in helping a friend to get the girl of his choice.

"He was a good fellow," said he, "but young and without capital. The girl was a beauty and loved the boy, but the father (the same old irate father) objected and demanded that the boy should show that he was capable of supporting a wife. This was about ten years ago, and the boy came to me with his troubles."

"'Never mind,' said I, 'I'll fix it up all right. By the way, how much will you take for your right leg?'"

"He looked at me as though I were crazy, but made no answer."

"'I'll give £5,000 for it,' I said. 'Will you take it?'"

"'No, I won't,' he said. 'What do you take me for?'"

"'Well, I knew the girl's father; he was a merchant, and I called to see him. We finally drifted around to talking about this young fellow, and the old man flared a little, stating that he wanted someone who could support a wife to have his daughter."

"'Support a wife?' said I, in surprise. 'Why, he certainly can do all that. Only a few days ago he refused £5,000 for a piece of property.'"

"'His own property?' asked the father."

"'Certainly,' said I."

"'Who offered him the money?' asked he."

"'I did; and he refused it,' I answered. 'He claimed it was worth more.'"

"Well, this made a hit, and no more questions were asked. The boy is doing well now and has a good family. I haven't spoken to the father since."—Tit Bits.

Nothing Common for Her.

Flashing with silk and satin and sparkling with diamonds she swept into a broker's office, a creature of fashion and society, patrician from the tip of her ostrich feather hat to the sole of her French heel.

"I'd like to buy some stock," she said sweetly as the broker came forward. "My husband, Mr. M.—is your customer—"

"Yes, to be sure," said the broker, "what stock do you wish?"

"Why, just stock," she answered vaguely.

"I know," he responded patiently, "but there are many stocks—"

"O, are there? Of course," she asked and answered in a breath. "Why, let me see," and she bit the end of her glove pensively. "I think it was some sort of metal."

"Steel?" he ventured.

"Yes, that's it," she exclaimed delightedly. "Get me some."

"Well, there is common and preferred; which do you wish? I should suggest the common."

"Mr. N—, the idea!" she burst forth angrily. "I have always been accustomed to the best and I still want it. I wish no common stock, and I am astonished that you should even hint at such an idea!"

"But—," he began helplessly.

"I want the best stock there is. I don't care what it costs, and if you care to insult me by offering to buy poor stock I shall go elsewhere. Common! ugh!" And in a fit of virtuous indignation she blazed out of the office.—New York Times.

A SKETCH.

A builder's yard, a ship upon the ways,
The groan of straining planks, the snap of stays,
The cheering of a crowd: "She moves! She's off!"

And with a sudden rush and splash the great ship
Leaves the wharf.

A storm swept, foam tossed sea, a howling gale,
A ship half lost in foam, a rag of sail,
The tolling of a bell, now lost, now clear—
"The shore! The shore!" She strikes in crashing
Waves to disappear.

A summer's eve, a calm and wailing tide,
A dismal stretch of sand that tries to hide
The bones of some great vessel, prow on high,
Outlined against the sunset's last faint glow
Athwart the sky.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S FAULTS

She Was Very Vain and Inordinately Fond of Fine Dress.

Yet Elizabeth was never really successful with her wardrobe as a more feminine woman might have been. Her dresses were never beautiful, only ludicrously and most inappropriately magnificent—laden with jewels, weighted down with cloth of gold, stiff with silver embroidery and so heavy that even her big, powerful frame must, without supporting vanity, have felt the fatigue of carrying them about. Elizabeth was certainly vain, but she cannot claim femininity merely on that account, for vanity is by no means an exclusively feminine characteristic. There are perhaps more vain women than vain men because women have more leisure and their costumes afford greater opportunities for vanity than the strangely hideous clothing which custom has arranged for men, but no thoughtful (feminine) observer can doubt that a vain man is vainer than a vain woman.

Elizabeth's hands were her especial pride, and, judging from her portraits, they were certainly beautiful. They were laden with jewels, and it was her habit in public to pull her rings off with absent artlessness and push them on again, moving those white hands about in the most obvious way. Once, during the grave consideration of a state paper, wherein her cold sagacity never took second place, she interrupted the discussion to ask whether the Duc d'Anjou, who was at one time one of her suitors, had been told what a pretty foot she had and how white and well rounded was her arm? This in the woman who financed the armada with hard headed economy, who dared the superstitious terrors of her own conscience in her high handed and impudent treatment of the bishops, whose interest in methods of torture for state prisoners was most mechanical and intelligent, entirely unhampered by any squeamish feminine hesitation as to blood or pain, is most curious.

In connection with this last characteristic of cruelty vanity is not at all unprecedented. Indeed, if one observe closely one will notice that excessively vain persons have almost always a strange inclination toward cruelty. The accounts of what Queen Elizabeth permitted and indeed commanded in this respect will hardly bear reading by us sensitive folk today.—Margaret Deland in Harper's Bazar.

Slavery Protected the Negro.

If the negro had been forced to compete for existence in America, he would have been crushed out by the civilized power, as the Indian has been, says Albert Phelps in The Atlantic, but the peculiar institution of slavery protected him not only from this competition, but also, by artificial means, from those great forces of nature which inevitably weed out the weaker organisms and which operate most unrestrainedly upon the ignorant savage. For the first time, perhaps, in the history of the world human beings had been bred and regulated like valuable stock, with as much care as is put upon the best horses and cattle. As a natural consequence the sanitary condition of the negro during slavery was remarkable, especially by contrast with his present condition, and his growth was the abnormal growth of a plant abnormally raised in a hothouse. When, therefore, this mass of helpless beings was thrown upon its own resources by the act of emancipation and when the protection of slavery had been withdrawn, the direst wretchedness and suffering followed.

FLOWER AND TREE.

A single leaf of the orange tree, carefully planted, will often take root and grow.

Seven-year-old tea plants yield four ounces of leaves apiece, or 700 pounds of tea to the acre.

New Zealand has in its edelweiss a plant differing but slightly from the famous Swiss variety.

An oak tree at 100 years averages 41 inches in diameter, a larch 40 inches, an elm 50 inches and a yew 9 inches.

A white pine tree 20 years old ought to be about 25 feet high, and at 30 or 40 years of age it ought to measure about 60 feet.

The pest of British Columbia forests is a plant called the devil's club. It has spikes which, when they enter the flesh, break off and produce poisoned wounds, which fester.

Wore His Old Hat Home.

They were talking about getting bald. "Men wear their hats too much," the doctor was saying. "I have noticed that a great many business men wear them in their offices. The head should be kept bare as much as possible." "My partner always wear an old straw hat around the store," replied a Market street merchant. "He wears this in winter as well as in summer, or at least he did until last winter, when he had an experience that cured him of it."

"One very cold afternoon he left the office early, and as he walked briskly through the street he noticed in a rather absentminded way that he was attracting considerable attention. People turned and looked after him and laughed. It was not until he had walked five or six blocks that he realized what it all meant. He met a lady of his acquaintance, and when he went to raise his hat he found that he was still wearing the old straw one, having forgotten to change it when he left the office. Fortunately there was a hat store near by, and he went in and bought one more suitable to the season."—Philadelphia Record.

A TRUE FISH STORY.

The Peculiar Adventure of a Wedding Ring.

"About the queerest fish story I know of," said a highly truthful looking man—indeed, he was a clergyman—"happened to me at a little lake in Wisconsin, where I used to summer with my family. One day my wife was out in our boat with a party of friends. She was letting her hand trail in the water, without thinking about its shrinking effect, and when she finally took her hand in her wedding ring was gone. The lake was deep at that point, and although we made considerable effort to recover the ring it was not found.

"Naturally it worried her a good deal, and the next year she would not go back to the same place, nor did we go the following year, but the third year we went there again, and one day I was in the woods about a mile from the lake with my boy, trying to get a shot at some denizen of the forest or other. As we went peering around among the trees to get a squirrel we had seen I noticed something shining on a twig of a tree about 25 feet from the ground. I sent my boy up after it, and when he came back I was more than astonished to find that the shining thing was my wife's wedding ring.

"How it ever got there was a mystery at first, but I was not a believer in fables and that sort of thing, so I began to investigate for material causes. The top of the tree had deadened, and with a suspicion in my mind I sent my boy up to see what signs might be above the green boughs. He called down to me presently that there were remains of a fishhawk's nest in the forks of the tree, and, putting this and that together, I came to the conclusion that the hawk had caught the fish that had gobbled up my wife's ring in the lake and had taken it to the nest for the young hawks. They didn't care for jewelry and had left that part of the fish in the nest, from which, as the nest was blown to pieces by the wind and beaten by the storms, the ring had dropped out and by chance had caught on the twig where I found it. In any event, if that was not the way it got there, how did it? For it surely was there, and my wife is wearing it today."—Exchange.

A Strange Method of Salutation.

Of all the strange modes of salutation, the most extraordinary is the "dance of ceremony" current in the west African kingdom of Dahomey. Whenever any Dahoman chief or official of rank comes to pay you a visit he always opens the interview by dancing around you with various queer contortions (extremely suggestive of his having just upset a kettle of boiling water over his knees), which you are bound to imitate as closely as possible.

It is even reported—with what truth I cannot say—that one of the native ministers of the terrible King Gezu owed his rapid rise at the Dahoman court wholly to his superior skill in cutting these strange capers and that he thus literally as well as figuratively jumped to preferment.

"The American Type."

Those who direct the state, who administer the cities, control the legislatures, the financiers, merchants, professors, journalists, men of letters—those whom I met in society—are nearly all of American birth and of marked American type. I rarely heard a foreign accent or saw a foreign countenance. The American world is practically "run" by genuine Americans. Foreigners are more in evidence in London or Manchester, it seemed to me, than they are in New York, Philadelphia or Boston.—Frederic Harrison in Nineteenth Century.

Tuning Forks.

The tuning fork was the invention of John Stone, royal trumpeter, in 1811. Though the pitch of forks varies slightly with changes of the temperature or by rust, they are the most accurate means of determining pitch. Tuning forks are capable of being made of any pitch within certain limits, but those commonly used are the notes A and C, giving the sounds represented by the second and third spaces in the treble stave.

Hinting For More.

"Did you notice, Maria, how ill natured Jones got when he learned I had bought that diamond brooch for you? Now he'll have to get one for his wife."

"I don't like Mr. Jones, and I would not care how often you made him ill natured."—Exchange.

Thomas Pearne, one of the oldest, wealthiest and most advanced Indians on the Yakima reservation, died at his home last Tuesday from the effects of a fall from a fractious horse. Thomas Pearne was one of the best known Indians on the reservation, having been identified for years with the enlightened members of his tribe. His voice was always heard in council for peace with the whites, and "Father" Wilbur, who accomplished more than any other factor towards the settlement of difficulties between the white settlers and the Indians, while he was agent of the Yakima reserve, always regarded Mr. Pearne as one of his ablest adjutants. For many years Mr. Pearne has been a preacher of the Methodist church, and his influence has gone a long way toward accomplishing the present status of the Indians, with whom he had great influence. He leaves a wife and a large family, mostly daughters, who are highly cultivated and intelligent.

ROSLYN VS. YAKIMA.

A Gay Crowd From the Mine City Invade the Banana Belt.

Eleven cars containing a crowd variously estimated at from 250 to 500, came down from Roslyn last Saturday to while away a few hours at playing ball, eating fruit and becoming acquainted with the various interesting features of this section.

The excursion was under the auspices of the Roslyn band, and arrived at about 10 a. m., at once proceeding to make themselves at home and get what proportion of their money's worth they could find.

It is rather a delicate matter to speak of the base ball game, as both the visiting and home nines were supposed to do their level best. Suffice it to say that the Saturday game, won by our visitors, was equalized by the Sunday afternoon contest in which the home team came out victorious.

The main idea involved was to extend the glad hand of welcome to our visitors, and from their general demeanor and deportment throughout their entire stay, this whole community can heartily join in the hope that the Roslyn excursion may be made an annual feature of Yakima's fruit season.

A Night Of Terror.

Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. E. Ayre's drug store.
