Dear Hu:

Your letter awaited me upon my return from vacation.

I assume the reference to Drummers and Dreamers was that contained in the Historical Society's bulletin.

No date has been set for publication, although Caxton lists D and D in its Trade List (issued for dealers) that contains a page and one half of books for which publication date is soon to be set. And there are other references therein, such as title index, area, type etc. for the advance guidance of book dealers.

There will be considerable Moses material and some references to the Kawachkin (Moses "and) etc. in the book. And it will be of general Eastern and Central Washington background. I shall make every attempt to see you receive a review copy, which will be allowed me by the publisher. I believe they will send out all I request. In the event they do not, I will have a few copies and will see you get one.

Moreover, although I could expect no "large" sale, I plan to see that the book is placed in some Wenatchee book store and that some small advertising is also placed in Wenatchee. I believe the publisher has arranged a schedule such as San Francisco, various trade magazines, Seattle, Portland, perhaps Spokane and some Eastern publications. But when I get into something I intend doing a thorough job and am going to "blanket" the Yakima Valley and our area. I'll get "refunds" on advertising so placed but it will be fairly restricted. So, if you could suggest the name and address of some dealer I could communicate with later, and in due course of time, I will be appreciative.

Kind regards
