ELBERT HUBBARD'S LECTURE

East Aurora Sage Talked to a Small Crowd on "Roycroft Ideals."

Elbert Hubbard, a smooth-shaven, long-haired man from East Aurora, N. Y., who calls himself "Fra Elbertus," and who advertises himself extensively and enthusiastically as an orator, writer and philosopher, one who does things and who understands, appeared in this village last Friday night at Wisconsin hall before about 75 people, and spoke for an hour and a half on "Roycroft Ideals." Roycroft ideals are the business methods of the Roycrofts, who are the hired hands of the "Fra," and who make books and things for him, which he sells, and which are said to yield him large profits.

The "Fra" was accompanied on this trip by Sanford, his well beloved son, who is somewhat known to fame by reason of the fact that he poses in the nude on the backs of the popular magazine as a living example of the virtues of a well known health food. Sanford took the tickets at the door, and manfully kept his post during the entire lecture.

At 8:30 the "Fra" appeared, and immediately explained to the people, who had paid six-bits apiece to get in on the ground floor that his business is making books—good books, not cheap books, but better books than anybody else. During the evening he added that he also made other things, all of them better than you can buy in the stores at home, and all for sale to anybody that has the price. He went into details concerning the class of workmen he employs, and the way he manages to get the results.

Sandwiched in with the strictly business part of the lecture were a few jibes at men and things, some excellent precepts borrowed from various sources and handled without quotation marks, and a few diverting remarks on the subject of how to be happy even if you are not very good. The lecture lasted until 10 o'clock, when it came to an abrupt end, the speaker having apparently run down.

To Grow Beets.

A large bag full of beet seeds was received at the express office last week consigned to E. D. Comings, the beet sugar factory promoter. The seeds were shipped from Michigan and are intended to test the growing qualities of some of the soil in this vicinity. It is the intention of Mr. Comings, it is said, to put in a test field this year in this vicinity to demonstrate to the farmers how easy it is to grow beets. It is also understood that Mr. Comings is still in the notion of building the beet sugar factory notwithstanding the veto of the bounty bill by the governor.

May Go to Spokane.

Royal Shaw, who it was announced last week, had gone to Spokane to play with the league team of that city, gave up the idea later after due consideration, and will not play with that aggregation this season. He has been offered another situation on a ball team that he may accept. Prof. H. C. Blair of Blair's business college, Spokane, has offered to take him as a student, tuition free, if he will play with the college team this year. He has been anxious to enter college, especially a business college, but he is not certain whether he will take advantage of this opportunity.

New Cases.

The following new cases were filed last week: William Stevens vs. Louisa Stevens, divorce; Jim Baker vs. Taylor Piles, transcript from justice docket; Thomas B. Nelson vs. Daisy Nelson, divorce; Thomas Carstens and Ernest Carstens, brothers, vs. William Schmidt and N. P. Railroad company, garnishment; John Michels vs. E. G. Tennant and M. B. Miles, ejectment.

James R. Coe and John G. Boyle vs. Frances G. Drew, injunction; Mamie Simpson vs. Charles Simpson, action to have defendant declared habitual drunkard.

The Water, Light & Power company has been spending about $3,000 a week for some time past on improvements. At present the canal is being moved higher up to do away with the flumes above the power house, and is being widened and deepened along its entire length. This work will be finished by the first of the coming week and the water turned in. The company is making a number of other costly improvements on the plant, all with a view to take care of increasing business which comes from the growth of the city.

The wonderful success that has followed the new treatment of throat and lung troubles, venereal diseases, loss of manhood, rheumatism, and nervous diseases by Dr. R. Claude Corey, Room 10 Clogg Building, justifies him in guaranteeing cures. Ap 17-11

STATE AT THE ST. LOUIS FAIR

Farm Exhibit Must Be Specially Grown, Says Commissioner Johnson.

Elmer E. Johnson of Everett, executive commissioner of the Washington commission of the St. Louis Purchase exposition, arrived in North Yakima Tuesday night and remained till Thursday. He was accompanied by State Horticultural Inspector Van Holderbeke of Tacoma. Together they are making a tour of the agricultural districts of the state in the interests of the exhibit the state will make at the fair and also to further the work of the state inspector in fighting the fruit pests. The work of the executive commissioner is now well under way. He has conferred with a great many of those interested in other industries of the state, outside of agriculture and horticulture, and is now familiarizing himself with this branch of the exhibit to be made.

"I wish to say at the beginning that we do not expect to expend any money for an exhibit. A creditable exhibit is not a purchasable quantity. It has no specific value in money. We want a type of the products of all the agricultural and horticultural districts of the state that will stand the competition from other states. To get this we must take special pains to produce it. The orchardist must work with nature and bring forth the best product that the best scientific methods and the judgment of man combined can produce.

"Our appropriation is small. It is necessary to make it answer for the St. Louis fair and the fair at Portland in 1905. While there is great enthusiasm toward taking full advantage of the opportunities to make a creditable showing at the fair there is no desire to spend the fund in a reckless manner. The fund will be used for maintaining the exhibits and for other necessary expenses. The lumber and mining interests have all donated the exhibits to be made in those departments, and I hope that horticulturists will realize that their exhibit will be placed right in the midst of their markets so it is to their own interests to assist in getting up a creditable display. It is only possible to make a collection through the efforts of the growers, to make the growers realize that it is to their interests to grow a good exhibit and to gather it. It is no use to go to St. Louis with an ordinary exhibit. We will have competition to meet and if we are going to profit by competition we must go there prepared to meet it.

"Now, it is necessary to begin at once and grow an exhibit. I will make arrangements here for several farmers to do this work and have it ready for next fall when the commission will take it in charge and put it in shape for the exhibit. Your county agent, inspector, Orlando Beck, is in a position to render valuable assistance to all those who enter into the competitive growing. It is not the purpose to come in here next fall and buy the stock produce. If you depend on this to represent your county you will get left. Other districts are going enthusiastically into the work and Yakima cannot afford to take a back seat, which she never has done and I do not believe she will at this late day.

"Yakima county should make a demonstration on the occasion of the two fairs to impress indelibly on the minds of the people that it is a wonderful agricultural and horticultural district. There is a natural wealth here that is surprising and the millions living in the east must be brought to an understanding of the possibilities in this favored spot of the great state of Washington.

"It is the purpose of the commission to erect the building this season. Good progress has already been made in this line. The plans for the structure will be completed shortly by Heide & DeNeuf of Seattle. The building will be octagonal in shape and will be a curiosity. Eight pieces of Washington timber 24 inches square and 100 feet long will constitute the eight corners of the building. These 'ricks' will stand on end and the building hang between. The structure will be a practical exhibit of the lumber of the state, which will be contributed by the lumber interests. It is designed to exhibit any article of finished product of the mills and will demonstrate the quality and character of the various products of the state.

"The building will be exceedingly attractive, and is unique in architectural features. Space for it has already been allotted on a main thoroughfare on the grounds. The interior will be provided with all modern conveniences for those visiting it. There will be collected into this building a composite exhibit of the resources of our state. We will undertake not only to attract home-seekers and capital to our unparalleled advantages and opportunities, but we also hope that our exhibit on a whole will reveal plainly to the world's millions assembled there during 1904 that the civilization of Washington is no longer typified by rough characters and the 'wild and woolly' spirits some of the eastern people think it is. I wish to say that our state is made up of the best blood of the east; the ambitions, the energetic, the courageous and the intellectual, people who were not afraid to leave their homes to seek a better land, free from customs and traditions of an ancient day, are among those who constitute the state's population and make it what it is today."

Mr. Johnson left here Thursday morning with Inspector Van Holderbeke for Zillah and other points in the lower part of the valley. He will go from there to Walla Walla and other districts of eastern Washington.

ABOUT THE HIGH LINE DITCH. BOY DRAGGED TO DEATH

Preliminary Survey Completed and 500,000 Acres May be Watered.

M. N. Knudsenburg, secretary of the Yakima Land & Live Stock company, was asked by a REPUBLIC reporter this week if he had anything to give out on the proposition of building the high line ditch into the Moxee country. He replied as follows:

"The company has finished a preliminary survey for a high line ditch that is practical enough to reclaim 500,000 acres of arid lands. We find that by proper care in improving natural reservoirs and in constructing new ones in the vicinity of the lands to be watered there is plenty of water, and some to spare, to bring it all under the highest state of cultivation possible. These lands are favorable, and those tracts can be cultivated under a large system for less than one-half the estimated expenses made by men who claim to have been practical irrigators. With these facts in view, in connection with the promise of another transcontinental railroad, via Spokane, Yakima and Cowitz pass to the coast, a different phase is put on the future of North Yakima."

Water Appropriation.

Robert Mahaffy has filed papers with the county auditor appropriating 12 cubic feet of water out of the Naches river to be used in irrigating 300 acres of land four miles west of the Nile bridge.

James Fleming of Prosser Victim of a Runaway Horse.

Word was received here the first of the week that James Fleming, the ten year old son of R. G. Fleming of Prosser, died Sunday morning from the effects of wounds received by being dragged at the end of a rope by a horse. The lad had been riding the horse and was thrown off and in some manner he became entangled in a long rope tied to the horse's neck and was dragged some distance, and badly bruised and internally injured.

Fear-Davis.

A very pretty and quiet wedding took place Wednesday April 14, 1903, at the home of the bride's parents Isaac Davis. Where Miss Cora B. Davis and Frederick Curtis Fear were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. J. H. Wood of the M. E. Church. The bride is a well respected young lady and a dressmaker of North Yakima, while the groom is a young stockman of the Ahtanum. The happy couple will take a short tour of the Sound cities before taking up the duties of married life. They will reside at his ranch on the Ahtanum.

OPINIONS ON COURT HOUSE

What Prominent Business Men Have to Say on Erection of New Building.

As the matter of building a new court house has been generally discussed the opinions of some of the leading business men of the city are herewith given:

Mayor A. J. Shaw—I wouldn't do anything or say anything to prevent the people of this county getting a new court house, but I do not want to agitate the question at the present time. Taxes are high enough.

Ex-Mayor O. A. Fechter—I am not in favor of a new court house at the present time. I want to see the taxes reduced. They are too high. I would rather see the county bonded to build better roads than to build a new court house.

Edward Whitson—The county ought not to undertake to build a new court house because it would increase taxation. Taxes are already so high that many people are prevented from making investments here. It is said that a new building will not increase the taxes, but I cannot see how to make that out. It wouldn't be considered good business policy for an individual to build a $100,000 residence when he had a big debt standing against him.

Ira Englehart—I am in favor of a court house for the reason that the present building is a fire trap and is entirely inadequate for present purposes. Taxes will be as high any way and so we might as well have respectable buildings.

W. P. Guthrie—I am in favor of the proposition. One reason is that the records are unsafe, and another is that the old building is not large enough. It is a disgrace. I think we should be conservative and build within our means.

W. L. Jones—We ought to have a better court house; that is certain, but I am not in favor of going in debt.

Dr. P. Frank—We should have a court house immediately. The old building is unsanitary and the jail unit for human beings to live in. The court house is the only barnacle we have and we should scrape it off. There are one hundred other reasons why we should have a new building.

E. B. Moore—We ought to have a new court house, but I am not in favor of building to increase taxation.

Frank Horsley, ex-county commissioner—While I think we need a new court house, I am in favor of paying our debts first. Even by the scheme suggested by Chairman Lince of the present board of commissioners we would eventually have to borrow money. Get out of debt first.

H. H. Lombard—We ought to have a new building, and I am in favor of going in debt if necessary. We have grown to such proportions that we need better facilities for taking care of the county business.

A. E. Larson—We need a new building and we ought to have one. We cannot afford to put it off any longer. I am in favor of paying my share of the extra cost.

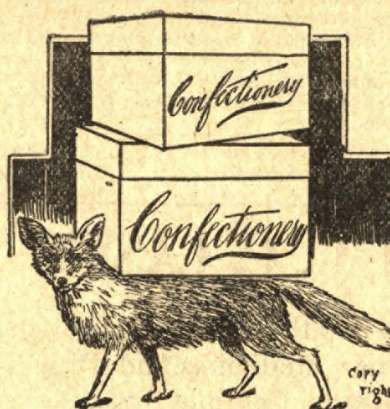

E. B. Preble—I do not think we should build. We had better pay our debts before contracting for things we can get along without.

W. L. Steinweg—Let us wait till our financial conditions are better than now. When we build we should build for the future and not alone for the present.

R. S. Morgan—I am going to work against the proposition till my taxes are cut down from $3 an acre.

L. O. Jarack—I am in favor of the scheme. I believe we can afford it and should not wait too long. I am in favor of keeping the court house on its present site.

C. J. Taft—The county is now in debt, and I wouldn't be in favor of a new building till we can build a good one. It should cost not less than $150,000.

THE VARKER HOUSE

Opposite Court House,

Is not the most stylish place nor the most imposing structure in town, but it is a place where a large number of very nice people board, who are constantly served with good, wholesome, well cooked meals, where the service throughout is constantly watched and looked after, not occasionally, but all the time, by the proprietor, who attends personally to every purchase and whose motto is, "Only the best is good enough for us."

A Very Good Place to Get Your Sunday Dinner,

Come and hear the Birds Sing.

I. B. Turnell,

and we are not able to build at those figures now.

E. O. Keck—I have got the money for a court house build it; if not let it alone. This is all I have to say about the matter.

J. M. Brown—We should have a new court house by all means, and the county should arrange to build it at once. I believe we can afford it.

J. D. Cornett—I am in favor of a new court house because the one we have is not large enough.

Miles Cannon—My opinion is that we should build a court house in keeping with the wealth producing capabilities of the county. The one now in use is a fire trap.

I. H. Dills—The scheme is not a bad one. I think we should begin now and in three years would be ready for the building. We need a court house.

James Fraser—I do not believe in procrastination. Now is the time to build a court house. It is essential to have one to preserve the records.

D. N. Keene—Build a court house. The employees should be properly housed. The present building is an eye sore to the community.

George Rankin—I am willing to pay my share toward building a new court house. I am in favor of one large enough to meet the growing demands of the county. I want to see one of the latest design and up-to-date.

E. J. Wyman—I am in favor of a new court house. What is the use of waiting a hundred years? Now is the time to build it. I am not kicking on taxes being raised. Some people will kick, because there is a class who kicks at every public improvement made.

H. H. Schott—Business has grown to such an extent in this county that it is a shame to have the court house employees work in such a building as we have today. It is a disgrace to the city and valley, and is the poorest one in the state. Build a new one by all means and build it at once. I am in favor of one that will cost $40,000 or $50,000.

H. B. Rigg—If the financial condition of the county will justify build a court house at once.

G. L. Allen—I am unqualifiedly in favor of the scheme. Fifty thousand dollars expended for a new court house would be of inestimable benefit to the county. I talked to a number of people in the southern end of the county, around Sunnyside, and they expressed a desire to have a new court house.

A. F. Switzer—Yes, we ought to have had a new court house long ago. The old building is unhealthy, unsanitary and a disgrace. If no other way float bonds to raise the funds. Redeem the old bonds and borrow money at a lower rate of interest than we are now paying. This would be one of the means of raising the money; save interest.

J. M. Perry—There never was a better time to build a court house than now. The old one is a disgrace. Do away with it, and if necessary borrow the money.

W. M. Watt—I am in favor of a new court house, but I do not believe in rushing things. Perhaps it would be better to wait till we can build a good one to last a few years.

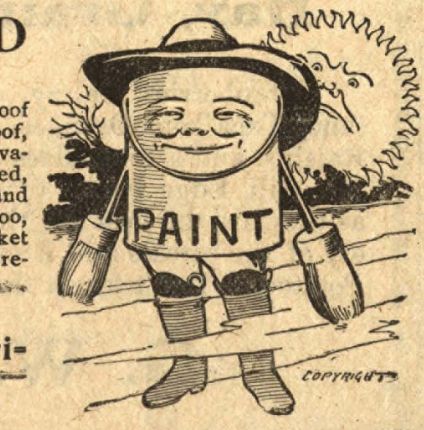

A. L. Aikin—I am in favor of building at an early date for the security of the records. It should be built of native stone, and some steps should be taken at once about the matter.

Edward Remy—The county needs a new court house. Commissioner Lince's plan is a good one, but if something better can be found all well and good.

H. J. Snively—What we need now is a good substantial, fire proof court house to protect the records from fire. A jail is also necessary. Commissioner Lince's scheme is a good one.

MUST FIGHT NOXIOUS WEEDS.

Chinese Lettuce and Thistles Apt to Get Beyond Control.

A suggestion has been made by a party who is interested in the Moxee country that it would be a good plan for the people over there to get together on some kind of a scheme to fight the noxious weeds that infest the highways during the summer season. He calls attention to the rapid spreading of the Chinese lettuce and Canadian and Russian thistles. It has only been a short time since they were introduced into this country by some unknown means. They have spread so rapidly that it is the opinion that if they are not kept down they will get beyond the control of the tillers of the soil and ruin their crops.

These weeds are prolific growers and thrive in almost any kind of soil without water. They have great seed bearing qualities and in the fall of the year the seeds are carried all over the surrounding districts by the wind. A law is among the statutes of the state against permitting these weeds to thrive either on the public highway or on private property. Any one found guilty of such an offense is liable to a fine. By permitting the weeds on the highways the farm land becomes infested with the seed of the plant and in time they grow so thick among the alfalfa that a part of the crop is ruined.

Question of Water Right.

The city council has been deluged lately with complaints from people living on Wenau avenue in regard to the water supply for irrigation purposes. In grading that thoroughfare the ditches were lowered and the water was cut off the lots on the east side of it. In consequence those who have been relying on the ditch water for irrigating their gardens are now without it and there is no city water in that part to help them out.

The question now is: Is the city compelled to furnish these people with water for irrigation purposes, or in other words, is the city compelled to maintain ditches at a grade to permit the lot owners to tap them for irrigation purposes? There are various opinions on the question. It is held by the authorities that the city is not required to maintain ditches for irrigation purposes except to supply the shade trees.

There are other people of the opinion that, everybody who pays taxes in the city for maintaining the ditches, has a right in the water and that the city must maintain ditches so as to make such water procurable. Those familiar with the law on the question say the city is not compelled to provide ditches to make water procurable to the property holders.

Mrs. Elliott Dead.

Mrs. Henrietta B. Elliott died at her late home on Nob Hill, Saturday, April 11, 1903, aged 64 years. She had been sick for about a year with cancer of the liver, but her death was not expected so soon by her friends. She was born at Lagrange, O., in 1839, and in 1863 was married to J. B. Elliott. In 1865 they moved to Illinois in which state they resided till they came to Yakima in 1901. Four children and a husband survive her. The children are J. Grant and Judd M. Elliott, both business men of Seattle, and Linn and Minnie who reside at home. The funeral took place from the residence Monday afternoon; interment in Tahoma cemetery.

A REPUBLICAN man owes J. H. Fraser a vote of thanks for a drive through the upper Moxee Tuesday behind one of Wyman & Fraser's high stepping teams.

The Moxee farmers are all getting their land in shape for the season's crops. The entire valley presents a fine appearance, and will produce an enormous amount of stuff this year.

Most of the land, being new, was but into potatoes last year, and on account of the almost unprecedented low prices of this product, the farmers who settled in the Moxee two years ago as a rule made no money. They are somewhat discouraged by this circumstance, but generally speaking they are satisfied that the country is all right and they believe that from now on they can make farming pay. The potato crop will be cut in two this year and much alfalfa is being put in. The older farms in the artemis belt paid well last season. The upper Moxee in two or three years will be the garden spot of the country.

A Steam Heating Plant.
C. H. Wright of Seattle was in the city Monday and Tuesday, interesting Yakima business men in a new heating scheme, which may be adopted here.

He held conferences with a number of the leading business men and large property owners in the city and laid plans before them that may be accepted.

The scheme is a co-operative heating plant for the purpose of furnishing heat to the larger buildings in the city from a central station. The plan is to establish a modern heating plant of considerable capacity and conduct the accumulated heat, which will be steam, through pipes to the various buildings. It is claimed that the expense for heating will be greatly reduced by this method.

Fuel will be saved and considerable expense done away with in operating an individual heating system as in use in some of the larger buildings of the city.

A committee of citizens has taken the matter in charge and will canvass the business men and large property owners to ascertain their views and secure endorsement of the scheme. If the plan meets with favor another meeting will take place in about ten days between Mr. Wright and the interested parties.

COMPANY E TO GIVE A PLAY

"Twixt Love and Duty," a War Drama, to be Presented at Larson's.

The members of Company E of this place are making preparations to give a war drama, "Twixt Love and Duty," in the opera house at an early date. The fund to be raised is for the benefit of the company in making improvements.

Luke L. Liun will have charge of the event. The best local talent has been secured to take part in the performance and rehearsing has been going on for some time.

The play is based on the old theme of a union officer and a rebel sweetheart and is full of stirring scenes of those great days of the republic. The comedy is carried by Sockey Schneiderbecker, a drafted Dutchman, who does not want to fight. Special scenery is now being prepared for the show and some brilliant electrical effects will be introduced. No expense will be spared to make it a finished and artistic production. The company will give a street parade on the day of the event.

The company made a record during the past year that is the pride of the community. It carried off every prize offered for marksmanship and sharp shooting by the state of Washington, besides receiving high praise from every inspecting officer who has been here. A number of improvements are needed, among which is the refitting of the company rooms. It is for this purpose the show will be given.

"When Knighthood Was in Flower."
After the sorrow and tragedy of some of Effie Ellsler's former roles, her Mary Tudor, who is a creature of smiles and pretty contradictions, comes as a relief to the player. Not only does the play built from Charles Major's novel "When Knighthood Was in Flower" have a happy ending, but, in the words of the fairy tale, "the princess and her lover lived happily ever after." It is a historical fact that Mary Tudor's marriage to the humble Suffolk squire, Charles Brandon, proved an ideal match in a day when marriage was not the exalted institution that it is now. This romantic drama will be seen for the first time here at Larson's theatre, Thursday evening, April 23.

SOIL EXPERTS SELECT LAND

Peter Gervais Place Will Be Used to Give Practical Demonstrations.

T. N. Means and W. H. Heilman, representing the bureau of soils, who came here a short time ago to make demonstrations on reclaiming land taken by alkali, have selected the P. Gervais place south of the city. This is in section 1-12-18 and is considered a good piece of land for the purpose.

Work will be commenced shortly and some practical ideas will be given to the people of the valley on draining land of this kind. Messrs Means and Heilman will have charge of the work and will begin operations as soon as their selection is approved.

Their plan is to lay a main tiling drain through the land and tap it with laterals at intervals. Mr. Means is in Spokane purchasing the pipe.

YAKIMA BEATS ELLENSBURG

A Good Game Was Played, the Score being 7 to 3.

The Hoppicks went to Ellensburg last Sunday and defeated the team of the windy city in a score of 7 to 3. This was the first game of the season between the two cities of the Yakima valley and the result was a glorious victory for the visiting team, considering the Ellensburgs had boasted so long about what they would do to Yakima.

Notwithstanding the great rivalry existing between the base ball enthusiasts the Hoppicks were treated royally by the windy city boys. When they returned home in the night Sunday the first thing they told their friends here was the manner in which the Ellensburg boys treated them. After playing the game the members of the local lodge of Eagles entertained them in fine style in their lodge quarters.

Score by innings:
North Yakima. . . 3 0 0 2 0 1 1 0 0 7
Ellensburg. . . 0 0 3 0 0 0 0 0 0 3

The Ellensburg team will be down next Sunday to contest with the Hoppicks in the second game between the two clubs. Ellensburg has an excellent team and they are confident of winning one from Yakima. The game will be called at ball park at 3 p. m. Don't miss this event. The visitors will bring a lot of rooters with them. The Hoppicks will go to Walla Walla Friday to play the club at that place. This is the return game between the two clubs. Walla Walla lost to Yakima in the last contest.

and can now be found in the Clogg Building, room 10.

Dr. Corey, recognizing that the general practice of medicine was too broad and deep for one to thoroughly master all the different branches connected therewith, he decided to devote his studies to the above named diseases, and for the past 15 years has made deep researches into them and has spared neither time nor money whereby knowledge could be gained. He is a graduate of two of the leading medical colleges of the U. S.; also of the McGill University of Canada, and is licensed to practice in New York, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, California, Oregon and Washington. He has taken special courses upon these different diseases. His mode of treatment is entirely new and differs from the old way, and the phenomenal success he has had with these diseases justifies him in

Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe spent last week with Mrs. Munroe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Blair.

The preliminary work towards building a church in Selah has been accomplished by the committee to devise ways and means.

The Bachelors are holding secret meetings lately. They have taken in several new members and are preparing for a social event.

We would suggest to those in haste to require the services of a justice of the peace, not to chase to the office on Sunday, as that official is not looking for business on that day.

Jubilee Minstrels.

The Jubilee minstrel show at Larson's theatre last night was accorded one of the largest audiences of the season. The house was filled with the good citizens of North Yakima who have taken an interest in the purpose for which the event was held, and Miss Daisy Boyle, the beneficiary, may be proud of her host of friends who desire to see her acquire a musical education. The show itself was good throughout. The first part was equal to any aggregation that has been in Yakima for a long time and the special features deserve to be seen the second time. The show will be given again this evening.

piece of cable called a "choker," and having a strong hook on each end. He makes his way to the log and throws a running noose over the end of the log that is to go ahead, using one of the hooks to fasten the cable. The hook tender, who is the boss of the crew, has previously placed the cable leading to the donkey engine through blocks fastened to trees so that the log may be guided over the easiest course, and he now hooks the main cable to the choker and gives the signal to start. The fussy, but powerful little donkey puffs and snorts, the cable strains, but generally in the end, the log gives way and goes grinding and rushing down the hill, knocking down small trees and gouging great holes in the earth as it rushes along, until it is finally coaxed, pulled and forced to its first stopping place alongside the donkey.

As soon as the choker has been cast off and the line horse driver has hitched that and the hauling line to his animal and started off up the hill for another log, the dogger, an important personage in the crew, takes hold. His axe bites deep notches near the end of the log and into these notches heavy iron hooks—called dogs—are driven. These hooks connect with others at the end of a short, stout piece of cable, and when another log is hauled in these are driven into another pair of notches, thus binding the two logs together. This process is repeated until the hook tender figures there are enough dogged together to make a "turn" and then the road donkey is signaled to haul out the bunch. The road donkey is stationed beside the railroad and hauls the logs out so that the locomotive can reach them with its cable.

The railroads of the St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber Company are planked between the rails with heavy material and the locomotives simply yank the turn of seven or ten logs on to the track and sail off down the mountain road with the great sticks of timber traveling behind as though they were no more than hop poles. On sharp curves timbers are fastened inside the rails to guide the logs, but as a general thing the rail is sufficient to keep the log in the "run" and at twenty miles an hour they go writhing and twisting over the planks, that the engine sprinkles as she goes, until they finally wind up at the landing and are loaded on to the flat cars that carry them to the mill.

Arriving at the landing, the logging locomotive's work is done and she snorts back up the hill, while the landing crew takes charge of the turn. The log cars run in on a track sunk below the level of the landing so that their broad floors are on a level with the landing and the logs are simply rolled over on to the cars and blocked there. Then the regular locomotive takes hold and hauls the train to the mills.

But let us follow the logs to their final destination. Arriving at the mills the stakes that hold the logs in place are cut and the train runs out on an inclined track beside the pond, where the logs, as their center of gravity is displaced, roll off into the mill pond.

When their time comes they are hauled up into the mill, the band saw splits them up into sections the full width of the tree, the edger or gang saw tears and rends these pieces, the trimmers shape up the ends and divide the pieces into standard lengths, a busy gang of truckmen hustle them out into the yard; thence to the ships or cars to be transported to the utmost corners of the earth.

Of all this mammoth concern, there is nothing perhaps of more interest than the mill. No manufacturing plant in the world is handled with more skill than this one. One can better appreciate this when it is explained that there is a constant stream of logs pouring in from the forest at all times, each log scaling from 5,000 to 14,000 feet of lumber. These logs are cut up into thousands of different kinds, grades and sizes; into everything used in the construction of buildings, cars and ships. The vast army of men must be kept busy—no man must be in the way of another. Logs must come fast enough to keep the four monster band saws going day and night. The powerful gang saws must be able to handle the timbers as fast as they leave the band saws. Then the trimmers and edgers and planers must be careful that no blockade occurs in their departments. The system of saws must keep them all supplied with work; and the truckmen must have all they can handle, no more, no less. Then the dry kilns must always be busy; never cool; never rest. Then, too, the loading sheds and docks, covering nearly fifty acres of ground. There must be no accumulating there; no old stock; nothing unsaleable; no space overstocked; no dead investment. No street, alley, division or department must be congested, but all stock of easy access. Six hundred men are thus engaged. Every man must do his part and do it well. There can be no drones in this beehive of industry. Little by little this vast system has been perfected until it works to the mathematical precision of a watch.

The mammoth Corliss engines, the largest on the Pacific Coast; the complete machine and repair shops, fire proof boiler rooms, iron conveyors, Dutch ovens, water works, electric light plant, barns of draught horses, the five-story store, hotels and restaurants, all do their part in keeping this gigantic plant in motion, year in and year out. Naturally, the most experienced and skillful mill men are in charge of this vast plant, men who have made a life study of the manufacturing of lumber, who are familiar with all the details and who can only be satisfied when a perfect grade of lumber is the product of their labor.

This brief description of logging and milling by the St. Paul & Tacoma company is here reproduced for the purpose of showing the readers of the REPUBLIC how complete its system is. It can sell cheaply by reason of its unsurpassed facilities, which also enable it to handle its business without delay. And the enormous volume of business transacted enables it to profitably dispose of its product on a small margin; smaller concerns, doing one-tenth of the trade, would necessarily figure on larger profits. In other words, the consumer gets the benefit, in lower prices, of the perfect system operated by the St. Paul & Tacoma company for the production of lumber. Every facility that the genius of man can devise for cheapening the cost of production, every class of machinery that money can purchase, are utilized for this purpose. The company, in fact, has thus put itself beyond the reach of competitors; no other concern in this section of the country, at least, can cope with it in prices or the character of its product; it stands supreme in the lumber business in Washington; its field is a distinctive one because it has made it so through the application of the most improved methods in every branch of the great industry.

The people of North Yakima and eastern Washington do not realize, and perhaps fail to appreciate, that they are peculiarly fortunate in being supplied with lumber by this great St. Paul & Tacoma company. Not that it is being operated from philanthropic motives, because it is a strict business concern, but by reason of its immense business, large capital and the intelligent and economical administration of its affairs, it is in a better position to supply the wants of its customers than any other concern could possibly be. It is for this reason, chiefly—to impress this fact upon the people—that this newspaper gives space to this article. It feels, besides, that the St. Paul & Tacoma company, so long identified with the growth and development of this city and valley, deserves such recognition as the press can give it. Our people are all acquainted with it, it has dealt with them fairly and generously and is destined, we hope, to supply their wants for many years to come.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Berndt, and A. W. Hinkle went to North Yakima to visit Mrs. Hinkle who has been quite ill for some time past. . . . W. J. He expects to move his family to Prosser as soon as he can procure a house.—Prosser Record.

The weather was cool but pleasant enough for the new Easter hat display. Many people were disappointed because the air was too fresh to permit a display of light summer frocks prepared for the occasion, but many people were out in their new toggery notwithstanding.
