GREAT BATTLE EXPECTED

Mukden will be the Scene of Another Bloody Contest—Japs Receive Reinforcements.

ST. PETERSBURG, Monday, Nov. 14.—The latest indications from the front point to an early resumption of the military operations upon a large scale.

Field Marshal Oyama has received heavy reinforcements from Newchwang, and evidently is about to wage battle for the possession of Mukden. The Japanese are showing particular activity on their right flank, as if they were contemplating a turning movement from that direction.

Gen. Kuropatkin has formed his positions along the Shukhe river, and as he seemingly is prepared to accept a battle, he doubtless has made dispositions to block the flanking operation. According to the opinion of the military authorities here, his left flank is secure.

The official announcement that the emperor has approved the plan for double tracking the Siberian Railroad and that $5,000,000 has been assigned for the beginning of the project, is greeted with the heartiest approval by the press of this city. The theory is expressed that the work will be begun immediately and pushed to a rapid conclusion as one of the surest means of ending the war.

The Novoe today editorially argues that it is impossible for Russia to participate in a second peace conference at the Hague during the continuation of the war.

The rumors of a postponement of the Zemstvo meeting are denied today by The Law Journal.

JAP AND RUSSIAN MIX.

SITKA, Alaska, Tuesday, Nov. 8.—The first reproduction of the Russo-Japanese war in this place took place Thursday night, and as in Manchuria, the Jap was the whole thing. He is in jail now and his adversary in the hospital. Local authorities do not recognize the belligerents, and the Jap is up against a charge of murderous assault.

The relative merits of the Manchurian argument had nothing to do with the case. Instead, it seems that Alec Sheekin, the Russian refused to maintain the open door policy on a can of Seattle beer. Matt, which is the only name the Jap boasts, gave repeated warnings that such a policy would not be stood for, Russia paid no heed to the warnings and hostilities opened with a Jap bayonet charge.

Without offering arbitration mediation or anything of the sort, Marshal Campbell interfered in the combat, declared the Jap a hostage and the Russian hors de combat, marched the one to jail, sent the other to the hospital and is watching the sick report to find out just what will be the final disposition of the Jap.

GREAT LABOR CONVENTION

Assembles at San Francisco—Representatives of all the Trades in Session.

SAN FRANCISCO, Monday, Nov. 14.—Four hundred and eighty delegates, representing 3,400,000 members of labor unions, met this morning at Lyric Hall in the twenty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Present at the beginning of the proceedings were Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America; John R. O'Brien, president of the Retail Clerks' International Association; Max Morris, general secretary and treasurer; W. D. Mahan, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees; T. M. Guerin, first vice-president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; J. O. Walsh, president of the San Francisco Labor Council; Harry Knox, president of the State Federation of Labor; P. H. McCarthy, president of the State and Local Building Trades Councils and Mrs. Emma Lamphere, general organizer of the Retail Clerks' International Union.

Convention Called to Order.

The convention was called to order by J. O. Walsh, president of the San Francisco Labor Council, and addresses of welcome were delivered by him and by Harry A. Knox, president of the State Federation of Labor, and P. H. McCarthy, president of the state and local Building Trades Councils. A reply to these was delivered by President Samuel Gompers.

The questions that seemed to interest the delegates most before the calling of the convention to order were those of Socialism and labor and trade autonomy.

Debates Will Be Keen.

These will be thoroughly threshed out on the floor and it is anticipated that the debates will be keen and much oratory listened to before conclusions are reached.

The underecurrent of interest relative to Socialism seems to be very keen and two factions hold widely divergent views as to the advisability of allowing politics in any form to enter into the labor question. It is expected that the session will continue for two weeks.

After the routine of the appointing of working committees had been gone through with the report of the committee on credentials was read and accepted with certain reservations relative to protests, which will be entered later.

Sheriff R. A. Grant and George Hunter returned from a jaunt to the Sound Monday night. They would not disclose the object of their mission.

SWEENEY GETS BUSY

The Spokane Millionaire Aspirant for the Senate Meets Legislators and Campaign Managers.

PORTLAND, Or., Monday, Nov. 14.—Charles Sweeney, the Spokane millionaire and candidate for the United States Senate to succeed Addison G. Foster of Washington, is in the city, and last night held a conference with fifteen campaign managers and members of the Washington Legislature. All of these men are from western Washington.

Though the conference was held to outline the plan of campaign for the Spokane aspirant, Mr. Sweeney declines to give any hint of what these plans may be.

JAPANESE TROOPS ACCUSED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Monday, Nov. 14.—Gen. Sakharoff reports that the night of November 13-14 passed quietly.

Gen. Linevitch has assumed command of the first Manchurian army. Gen. Kuropatkin, in a telegram to the minister of war, denies the Japanese charges to the effect that Russian troops disguised themselves in Chinese clothing, and makes counter charges against the Japanese of wearing Russian uniforms in the attack on Shukhe, October 14, whereby they were enabled to approach close to the Russian batteries and capture several guns of the Thirty-seventh Brigade.

LETTER FROM PORT ARTHUR.

ST. PETERSBURG, Monday, Nov. 14.—M. Perloff, the millionaire merchant of Moscow, has received a pathetic letter from Mhe, Stoessel, wife of Gen. Stoessel, dated Port Arthur, October 24, appealing to the rich Muscovites for money to assist the helpless wounded defenders of the fortress, some of whom have lost both arms, others an arm or a leg, some of them being blind and others suffering from wounds in the spine and who will be crippled for life. There are, she adds, very many such unfortunates.

POINTS TO ANOTHER FIGHT.

MUKDEN, Monday, Nov. 14.—Since yesterday signs of a serious engagement taking place within the next few days have been increasing. The Japanese are displaying great activity eastward. Fears are beginning to be expressed that the railroad will not be able to bring up sufficient supplies.

DISORDERS IN BRAZIL.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Monday, Nov. 14.—Business is suspended here in consequence of the rioting yesterday as a result of the opposition to compulsory vaccination law. Military and naval detachments have been called upon to restore order.

Thus far seven persons have been killed and thirty others have been wounded. It is believed that the opposition to vaccination is only a pretext for disorder, and that the disturbances are really instigated by discontented politicians.

Editor Expelled from Venezuela.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Monday, Nov. 14.—A. F. Jaurett, editor of the Venezuelan Herald has been ordered expelled from Venezuela by President Castro. The news came to the state department in a cablegram from its legation at Caracas. No details are given but it is said that Mr. Jaurett has always defended American interests in his paper and has taken the side of the asphalt company in its recent trouble. It is thought here that he is an American citizen.

More Lands Withdrawn.

The commissioner of lands of the interior department has notified the North Yakima land office of the withdrawal of all lands not filed on in the Priest Rapids district as follows:

Sections 23, 24, 25, 26, 35 and 36 in township 15 north, range 23 east; sections 19 to 36 inclusive in township 15 north, range 24 east; sections 19 to 36 inclusive in township 15 north, range 25 east; sections 13 to 36 inclusive in township 15 north, range 26 east; and sections 13 to 36 inclusive in township 15 north, range 27 east.

A. S. Paul came down from Cle Elum Monday night. He is engaged in contract work in that place.

HENRY MCBRIDE, Governor.

Attest SAM H. NICHOLS.

Storm Swept New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—New York is entirely cut off from the south and west tonight by a fierce hurricane, accompanied by rain and snow, which is sweeping the Atlantic coast.

Starting from Florida last night, the storm of wind and rain has come up the coast with almost cyclonic speed. Early this morning it was central off Cape Hatteras, although its ever gathering force was felt far to the northward.

Rain began falling in New York at 5 a. m., and early in the morning changed to wet snow. The wind, which had been blowing moderately, veered to the south-east and shortly assumed hurricane proportions. At 6 o'clock tonight the local weather bureau noted a velocity of 42 miles an hour, which increased to 48 miles an hour at 8:30 o'clock. That speed kept up for several hours. At 10 o'clock the storm center was at Block Island, where the barometer showed a pressure of 28.62 inches, with the wind blowing 76 miles an hour. At Nantucket the barometer was a trifle higher and the wind 60 miles.

Was Lost in the Pine Woods.

DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 14.—John Murphy became lost in the woods 30 miles north of Duluth and was discovered yesterday by a party of hunters, nearly dead from hunger and with his hands and feet so badly frostbitten that they may all have to be amputated. He was brought to a Duluth hospital and it is now certain he will survive.

Murphy was without a gun or matches in the woods. His mind had become deranged through terror and hardships, though this may be temporary. Murphy evidently was pursued by wolves, for his mind runs to that subject and he still fears he will be killed by these animals.

A Topsy Turvy World.

This is a topsy turvy world. One man struggling for justice and another fleeing from it. One man is saving to build a house and another is trying to sell his "for less than it cost." One man is spending all the money he can make in taking a girl to an entertainment and sending her flowers in the hope, eventually, of making her his wife, while his neighbor is spending the gold he has got to get a divorce. One man escapes all the diseases man is heir to and gets killed on the railway. Another goes everywhere without being hurt and dies with the whooping cough. Such is life.—Ex.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Millard Boyd is in Jail Accused of Killing His Own Unnamed Illegitimate Baby.

Millard Boyd, a young man of this city, who formerly resided in the Natches is now under arrest and in the county jail with the charge of murder registered against him. He was arrested by Sheriff Grant Monday morning.

Peter McCallum of the Natches valley charges him with killing the illegitimate child of his daughter, Blanche McCallum, on the 25th day of May, 1903. The following charge was made and sworn to before Justice J. A. Taggard Sunday afternoon. "That on the 25th day of May, 1903, one Millard Boyd, then and there being, did unlawfully, feloniously, and with deliberate and premeditated malice, strangle, smother, kill and murder a certain male child born to one Blanche McCallum, on the said 25th day of May, 1903, said child being there and then unnamed."

Blanche McCallum is a young girl only 19 years of age and she is the mother of two children according to her own testimony at a recent hearing before Justice Taggard. Millard Boyd is charged with being the father of these children, one of whom is now living and the other alleged to have been killed by him the day it was born. In the recent hearing referred to Boyd was charged with seduction. He was charged with having lived with the girl on many different occasions and having seduced her before she arrived at the age of 18 years, the age of consent. He had also promised to marry her at different times, but the girl's father alleges, failed to keep his promise.

The father of the girl says that when the first child was born, Boyd took it from the mother's possession and strangled it by wrapping it up in the bed clothes. He then put the dead body of the child in a gunny sack and hid it in a room of the "Kangaroo" house (it was in this house that the mother was delivered of the child) and when the opportunity came it was carried below town and thrown in a ditch at a railway crossing. This story of the father leads to the story of the finding of a child's dead body tied up in a gunny sack below town under a culvert in the railway track. When found the body gave evidence of having been in the water for some time. After an investigation by Acting Coroner Taggard it was decided to hold no inquest as no evidence could be found that would lead to the perpetrators of the crime. The officers now believe that the child found in the gunny sack under the railroad culvert was the child alleged to have been killed by Millard Boyd, the defendant in this case.

Boyd was bound over by Justice Taggard on a charge of seduction, but allowed to give a $1,500 bond for his appearance at court for trial. Since the last complaint of the father he has been placed in jail and this hearing will come up before Justice Nichols next Thursday morning at 11 o'clock.

Cattle Drown in Tacoma Harbor.

TACOMA, Monday, Nov. 14.—A wharf belonging to the Carstens Packing company collapsed last night, precipitating seventy cattle into the Sound at a place where the water was twelve feet deep. Only eight of the animals were lifted out alive.

Immediately following the drop into the water an indescribable scene ensued. The cattle fought one another in a wild confusion of hoofs and horns, each to keep above the water.

The first that was known of the accident was a noise of crashing timber, which immediately brought everybody in the neighborhood to the spot. As the wharf went down it careened sidewise and cattle slid off the wharf into practically one small area. Those underneath fought and pawed in their extremity of terror. Big range steers on the surface bellowed and tried to hold their position.

The portion of the Sound into which the cattle slid was a small hole isolated from the main body of the arm of the Sound upon which the plant is built. This almost immediately filled with the bodies.

Early Morning Blaze.

The barn and contents of Mrs. Owens Adair, north of the city, was burned to the ground early Monday morning. The fire was discovered about four o'clock, but before anything could be done the fire got beyond control.

G. W. Hay who lives on the place lost 20 tons of wheat hay valued at about $200. The building was valued at about $100, with no insurance. The origin of the fire is believed to have been from ashes piled against the barn.

MISUSING U. S. MAILS

The Carpenter at Fort Simcoe Arrested for Fraudulently Using U. S. Mails.

C. M. Nickerson, the government carpenter at Fort Simcoe has been arrested for fraudulently using the United States mails. He was brought to this city Sunday evening and placed in the county jail. Col. Howlett the U. S. commissioner at this point fixed the mail of Nickerson at $1500. He will endeavor to give bail, but until satisfactory arrangements are made he will be left in jail. The U. S. statutes covering improper use of the mails has been violated it is alleged, and Nickerson was arrested on a bench warrant from the United States court. He will appear before the district court in Seattle on December 1st.

Collides With An Auto.

Doc Myers reported yesterday that he had a narrow escape while coming to the city Sunday. On the narrow roadway in the Selah gap, he says, he met an aristocratic city man with a "tooting" automobile. The effect of the sudden encounter scared the Meyers team and the horses sprang wildly down the embankment and with difficulty were prevented from drowning themselves in the river. Mr. Meyers says that instead of stopping and offering to help him out of his predicament the driver of the auto went right along on his way as though nothing had happened. Mr. Meyers is rather incensed as the result of his experience and thinks that the law ought to protect a citizen under such circumstances.

Appears to Be a Fake.

The Sound papers contained an article in their Sunday issues telling of a big hop deal being made in this city in which Isaac Pincus & Son of Tacoma, and Herman Klaber & Co. of Portland, had purchased a lot of 1100 bales of hops from the Moxee company giving 30 cents per pound and paying down $50,000 in cash on the transaction. Representatives of the hop firms named in the deal were seen by a reporter for The Democrat who endeavored to get the facts in the case. It was impossible to induce the gentlemen to talk. They had nothing to say at present, said Mr. Pincus.

On Monday afternoon D. E. Lesh, manager of the Moxee company told a representative of this paper that no deal had been made at all and that these hop firms had not paid down $50,000 or any part of it on 1100 bales of the company's hops.

Will Try the Saloon Cases.

There will be a hearing this afternoon at two o'clock before Judge Nichols of the Mabton saloon cases in which Frank Martin and Al Beilstein are charged with selling liquor to minors. Some of the Sunnyside and Mabton people are pressing these investigations vigorously.

To Canvas Election Returns.

Under the law, as construed by Prosecuting Attorney Parker, the election returns of Yakima county for the general election held Nov. 8 will not be formally canvassed until next Saturday, Nov. 19. The canvassing board is composed of the prosecuting attorney, auditor and chairman of the board of county commissioners.

Died Peacefully of Old Age.

Humphry Sawyer, aged 80 years and nine months, died Saturday morning at the residence of his son, C. H. Sawyer, who resides on the "California" ranch near Zillah, with whom he had resided for a number of years. Deceased had been a hard working man all his life and enjoyed normal health up to the time of his death, caused by old age and a general breakdown of the system.

Humphrey Sawyer was born in the state of New Hampshire in 1824. With his family he migrated in 1856 to northern Wisconsin, where he carved out for himself a home in the wilderness. Some years later he left Wisconsin and made his home at Stillwater, Minn., where he remained until coming to Yakima county in 1889. In this city he lost his wife, who died in 1893, since which time deceased had made his home alternately with his two sons, C. H. and W. P. Sawyer, both of Parker.

W. A. Bell, manager of the Yakima Hardware company, in the city of North Yakima came to Tacoma yesterday to attend the convention of the state hardware dealers, which is to be held in Tacoma Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Bell reports business conditions in North Yakima as being eminently satisfactory. He went to Steilacoom last night to spend the night with his father, who resides at that place. The Yakima Hardware company is one of the largest in the state.—Tacoma Ledger.

do not believe in this nickel trimming, they spend their money on improving the inside of their range. Don't you think it worth considering such matters? : : : : : : : : : :

REGARDING BEET SUGAR FACTORY.
North Yakima and the Yakima valley should not miss the present opportunity to secure a beet sugar factory. If we do miss it the factory will go elsewhere and the people of this city will lose the best opportunity they have ever had to advance the growth of the town and the development of the surrounding country.

Apparently the solicitors who have been out to secure the needful acreage have not been securing the best results. They complain that many of the farmers show a lack of interest in the new enterprise and express doubts as to whether it would pay them to grow the beets or not. The tendency seems to be to procrastinate and wait to see what somebody else is going to do.

The great Horace Greely once said, when asked his opinion as to the resumption of specie payments, "The way to resume is to resume." And this is the way it is with a beet sugar factory, the way to get one and the only way is to sign up contracts for 4000 acres of beets. This may seem rather binding to the intending grower of beets but it is the only system on which the sugar making industry can be initiated in this valley. No set of men are going to be fools enough to invest the vast sum of $700,000 in a sugar making plant without the assurance of securing the necessary raw material with which to operate the factory.

The business men of this city are now beginning to take the matter up. A step that ought to have been taken on the start. It is proposed to organize a joint stock company, the main purpose of which organization will be to grow a 1000 acres of beets on leased land. The local men who are taking stock in the company have satisfied themselves that the proposition will pay. There is without doubt some chance to take on a beet crop just as there is a chance to take on any other crop. There is this advantage about a beet crop, however, and that is that the grower knows just what price he will get for his product. The farmer has no such assurance regarding any other crop that he raises, except it be hops under contract.

The farmers of the valley will do well to pull together with the business men of this city in the effort to secure the sugar factory. In some respects the factory would be a greater benefit to the farmers than to the city people. It would add permanent and lasting value to their lands; it would give them a most profitable crop with which to rotate and beet growing instead of impoverishing their soil will enrich it.

Let us get together and pull for the sugar factory. By a united effort we can easily secure it. By a policy of indifference we will surely lose it.

THE COMING SENATORIAL FIGHT.
The westside candidates for senator, namely Foster, Piles and Wilson, are now in the market for votes. The edict having gone forth from railroad headquarters that it may be regarded as good policy to pass a toothless commission law this winter there is accordingly much commotion in the different senatorial camps. The candidates are all willing to trade their own delegations off for the votes of legislators who favor a railway commission. Piles of Seattle who was in no position to make such a trade at the Tacoma convention last spring, is now, according to reports, ready to do business, his trading stock being the 24 votes of the King county delegation. Foster is also ready to trade the 15 votes of Pierce county off the same way. John L. Wilson, apparently hasn't much show to get into the fight until Sam Piles is first knocked out and it may be taken for granted that Wilson will employ every device at hand—and he is a past master in politics—to kill off the Piles boom.

The fight for the senatorial succession before the legislature this winter promises to be as bitter as were any of the bitter senatorial fights of past years that disgraced this state. The entrance of two millionaire candidates into the race means that there will be plenty of grease ready with which to oil up the legislative machinery. All the conditions seem to be at hand for a first class family row within the ranks of the g. o. p.

THE SENATORIAL CAMPAIGN

West Side Senatorial Candidates Preparing to Each Out Bid the Other in Return for East Side Votes—Railroads Will Not Object Seriously to a Toothless Commission Law.

TACOMA, Nov. 14.—All of the western Washington senatorial candidates are actively bidding for the votes of eastern Washington members of the legislature in promises of support for a railroad commission bill, now that such has been practically conceded by the railroads, since the railroads are well fortified in their choice of governor. Immediately after election John L. Wilson's Seattle newspaper (which on the day after the state convention at Tacoma proclaimed its gratification that "the whole irrelevant commission plank had been relegated to the woodpile") announced itself as favoring an appointive, regulatory commission bill, and Samuel H. Piles, not to be outdone by Wilson's change of front, is announcing his willingness to deliver the votes of the King county delegation for a commission in return for his election. This offer, it is understood, is subject to the condition that the commission measure agreed upon shall not be seriously objected to by the James J. Hill interests.

Senator Foster's followers also proclaim their willingness to enter into any kind of a commission combination to secure eastern Washington votes for their candidate. But all of this willingness on the part of candidates seems to arouse no serious response on the part of those whose votes are sincerely desired. The announcement of the action of the Spokane delegation in pledging support to Charles Sweeney came as a surprise to many "wise ones" on this side of the state, being accepted as an indication that commission members have a senatorial candidate of their own and have no desire to enter into a deal for the delivery of their votes to any of the candidates who opposed them in the last state convention.

Now that the excitement attendant upon the election has begun to subside all the senatorial candidates and their chief supporters have begun to count noses in order to calculate their relative standing at the outset of the contest. In these calculations it is apparent that Senator Foster has a little the best of the count. He has a solid and united delegation from his own county, pledged delegations from Jefferson, Thurston, Skagit and one member from Douglas county. At least three hold-over senators outside Pierce county are for him; he has the prestige of being the incumbent, and has the moral support of the lumber interest.

Senator Foster entertained the Pierce county delegation at a dinner last night and a caucus is called for Wednesday, at which organization will be effected for promoting his candidacy. While the Foster leaders express most fear of Charles Sweeney's millions, their most dangerous antagonist now is Samuel H. Piles. Mr. Piles' action during the campaign in devoting himself exclusively to the King county fight in rolling up a good majority for Mead, and saving Lou Smith the shrewdly at great personal sacrifice has his friends claim, unified the King county delegation in his behalf as nothing else he could have done. While four of the King county hold-overs are not for his candidacy, two of them are practically opposed to John L. Wilson, and fear to attempt to trick Piles lest they open the way for Wilson. The house members Mr. Piles selected himself, and their loyalty can be depended on. As the delegation is to decide for itself whether it will ever leave Piles, and is to act as a unit, King county appears more unified now than at any other time since the fight began.

Through his management of the state campaign John L. Wilson has secured the election of several followers to the legislature in outside counties, the number being variously estimated at from 8 to 12. Without the King county delegation voting for him as a unit, however, he will never become a serious factor. On this side of the state Mr. Sweeney's supporters are claiming 38 members, but the most liberal the local politicians concede him is but 25. A group of members in the southeast, 10 in number, elected by the Ankeny forces, may play an important part in the contest. Since election the report has been circulated that Levi Ankeny is a candidate for reelection when his term expires four years hence, and this fact dictates that he combine with a west side candidate. Eugene Lorton, the senator's secretary, is now on the sound sizing up the situation.

THE SOCIALIST VOTE.
If the socialist party cast 500,000 votes at the recent election, as claimed by the party leaders, it is an increase of more than 500 per cent over the vote of four years ago. In 1900 the social democratic party, which has since become the socialist party, polled 87,814 votes with Debs a sits candidate. The increase is, therefore a notable one.

In 1900 Debs received 2,008 votes in Washington; this year the state is placed among those that gave him from 10,000 to 15,000 votes each. In Oregon in 1900 Debs received 1,446 votes; this year Oregon is placed in among the states that gave the socialist candidate from 5,000 to 10,000 each. Similar increases are to be noticed in other states.

A decrease is reported in the socialist vote in Massachusetts and Colorado, but in the former state the democratic candidate for governor made a strong campaign on a labor issue, and in Colorado, in which the miners' federation is avowedly socialistic, the party was determined to defeat Peabody, and therefore supported Adams, the democratic candidate for governor. This unusual interest in the election of candidates for local office may have been responsible for the decrease in the socialistic presidential vote.

But the result shows a notable gain by the socialists, and the party will probably continue to add to its aggregate strength. As judged by the immense vote of the older parties, however, it will be a long time before the socialists cast a vote that approaches anything like a popular indorsement of their doctrine.—Spokesman-Review.

A Boxer Proclamation.
Boxerism is not dying out, says the Overland Mail, and now that the busiest part of the harvest season is over, it is beginning to show itself by the usual method of placards. The following is a translation of one posted in an adjacent "hslen," says the N. C. Daily News correspondent at Taikanghsien, Honan:

"The unavoidable calamity is at hand. Blood and water will flow in floods. Foreigners come in shoals and settle everywhere. The movement of soldiers will begin at Hsiaoyang (10th moon) and the night man will appear. When the five tigers come on the scene the foreigners' life will be a thing of the past. The middle continent will with difficulty be kept intact. Her hills and citadels are worth striving for. On both sides of the railway great disorder is evident. The lotus flower is in full bloom. The sufferings of the people is full.

"Those who grasp the meaning of this should avert the calamity and flee for their lives, thus saving their whole family to the third generation."

It is not easy to get at the exact meaning of the above, but doubtless the initiated know what is meant. Since writing the above I hear that further west in the province Boxers are very numerous and I have seen a proclamation which has been issued with an official, (Boxer of course), stamp ordering all foreigners to be killed on the 15th of the 8th moon; immediately afterward all followers of the foreigners are to be dispatched and an advance is to be made on Peking. The officials are very loth to take steps to suppress these secret societies, of which the country is full.

Japanese Find Big Gold Field.
The Yaredzu Chuo says: It really looks as if Providence is on the side of our country in the present war with Russia. For, not only our arms have continued to win victory both on land and sea, but the crop of rice in Japan has also been unusually fruitful this year. In fact, such a rich crop has never been obtained within recent years. It scarcely needs be said that this unusual good luck has relieved in a great degree the financial difficulty which our country has to deal with in consequence of the war. Thanks to this, the state of our finances is not so bad as that of Russia, where the crop was unusually bad this year, and there is grave fear that famine will visit the country. Japan's good luck, however, is not confined to the rice yield. A very rich and extensive gold field has recently been discovered in the prefecture of Iwate at Kesen.

The government sent some mining experts to the auriferous district for the purpose of having it investigated. They have just finished the survey of one-quarter of the gold field and submitted to their superiors a report of their work. According to it, the field contains the precious metal in great abundance, so much so that it is estimated that gold worth 1,000,000,000 yen can be taken on from the one-quarter of the field already investigated. The other parts are also considered to be equally rich, so that 4,000,000,000 yen can be raised from that gold field alone. Provided with the funds thus obtainable, Japan can continue the war for years with absolute confidence.

When Cramp Met the Czar.
Charles S. Cramp, the shipbuilder, tells an interesting story of the czar's tact and good nature.

When the autocrat of all the Russias made up his mind to have a warship built in the United States he sent word through the Russian ambassador at Washington that he would like to see Mr. Cramp. Within two weeks Mr. Cramp was in St. Petersburg. He was shown into the presence of the czar one morning when Nicholas was surrounded by various government ministers and grand dukes. Not wishing to "butt in" the moment he was announced, Mr. Cramp went to the other end of the council chamber and took a chair to await the czar's pleasure. He was not sufficiently versed in court etiquette to know that it was not the proper thing for him to be seated while the monarch remained standing. In fact, it never occurred to him that he was the only person in the room seated.

Attracted by the stares of his ministers, the czar noticed the incident. He promptly crossed the room and took a chair beside the American shipbuilder. Then everybody else who wanted to sit down did so.

"To what school do you belong, Mr. Cramp?" asked the czar, when the conversation drifted to naval architecture. "To the Cramp school, your highness. We founded our own school," was the reply.

The czar was pleased. Mr. Cramp returned to the United States with orders for two warships.—New York Press.

PAINTING THE WORLD.

Indian Legend of the Way Spring Came into Existence.
Once, long before there were men in the world, all the earth was covered with snow and ice.

White and frozen lay the rivers and the seas; white and frozen lay the plains. The mountains stood tall and dead, like ghosts in white gowns. There was no color except white in all the world except in the sky, and it was almost black. At night the stars looked through it like angry eyes.

Then God sent the spring down into the world—the spring with red lips and curling yellow hair.

In his arms he bore sprays of apple blossoms and the first flowers—crocuses, anemones and violets, red, pink, blue, purple, violet and yellow.

The first animal to greet the spring was the white rabbit. The spring dropped a red crocus on his head, and ever since then all white rabbits have red eyes.

Then the spring dropped a blue vic let on a white bird, the first bird to greet the spring, and that is the way the bluebird was made. Ever since then it is the first bird to arrive when the spring comes down from heaven.

So the spring went through the world. Wherever he tossed the leaves from his fragrant burden the earth became green. He tossed the blossoms on the frozen seas, and the ice melted, and the fish became painted with all the tint of his flowers. That is the way the trout and the minnows and the salmon became gaudy.

Only the high mountains would not bow to the spring. So their summits remain white and dead, for they would let the spring paint only the sides.

The snow owls and the white geese and the polar bears fled from the spring, so they, too, remain white to this day.

A Tiger Story.
There is a story current at Kuloang, central China, about a tiger which gave trouble in that quarter. A missionary and his wife had been worried by the tiger prowling nightly around their home. They determined to be rid of it and one night tied a cow up in the back yard and a dog at the front of the house. Then they armed themselves with guns and kept watch. The tiger appeared. The missionary fired and killed the cow. The wife rushed to see what had happened, and in her absence the tiger ate the dog.

In Many Places.
Mrs. McCall—I see you've got a new girl. Has she had much experience as a cook?
Mrs. Hiram Offen—Apparently not much, but many, and I propose to give her notice to hunt up another experience when her week's up.—Philadelphia Press.

Giving an Opinion.
Taddles—I used to think a good deal of Straddles, but—
Waddles—You don't say so? What has he done?
"The other day I asked him to call round and give me his opinion of an article of mine on 'The Impending Crisis.' Well, he came all right; but he brought a little thing of his own for me to hear, and, confound him, he wasted all the evening with his egotistical trash."

Under Viavi treatment obscure uterine diseases are easily handled; likewise inflammatory conditions are reduced and lacerations of the cervix are cured.

Under Viavi treatment nervousness, headaches, neuralgia and other disorders that are reflexes from diseases of the uterine organs are promptly cured.

Under Viavi treatment tumors of the womb, the ovaries and elsewhere, are removed without the knife. Photos of tumors dispelled on view at the Viavi offices. Call and see them if interested. Viavi assists nature by absorption and enables the body to eliminate all waste product.

Viavi feeds the nerves and tissues through the circulation, and is so popular because it cures.

Viavi is popular because it does not unsex women; because it makes women strong and healthy; because it makes women happy and useful.

Viavi is popular because it makes girls attractive by the magnetism of perfect health; because it makes husbands domestic and contented; because it brightens the home and the world.

EVILS OF "GET THERE."

The Dangers That Lurk In Our Modern Hustling Methods.

If we may judge by its effects on those who obey its command, our slang motto, "Get there," is not an elevating or ennobling one. On the contrary, it is brutalizing. It appeals to the lower and not the higher instincts in man.

Yet this motto is quoted all over our land. It is demoralizing the law, it is creeping into the pulpit, it speaks from our schools, it looks out of the eyes of the ambitious, it undermines health, and it frequently destroys all nobility of character.

The old fashioned slow and sure methods of attaining a competency are tabooed. The man who spends half a lifetime in making a fortune is regarded as "slow." Short cut processes, at any cost, are the demand of the hour. From the time a boy enters school he is goaded on by unnatural ambitions. He is not satisfied with steady, permanent growth. He must progress by leaps and bounds. Boys and girls are encouraged by their parents to get ahead in their classes, even if they must burn midnight oil and risk their health in order to do so.

It is pitiable to watch a typical American going to business in the morning. He is not content to sit quietly and relax until the train carries him to his destination in the city. Long before that he leans forward in his seat and makes ready to leap off while the train is moving. With every muscle tense, an anxious, worried expression in his face and a nervous twitching of the hands, clutching his cane, umbrella, parcel or the back of the seat in front of him, he wastes enough energy and strength before he reaches his office to execute the labor of half the day.

The life of the average American is feverish, unhealthy and unnatural. We are in too great haste with everything and consequently lack poise. In the perpetual rush to "get there" we are in very great danger of losing our equilibrium.—Orison Swett Marden in Success.

A car load of virgin North Dakota soil was recently shipped to Illinois for the purpose of making some comparative tests with the soils of Illinois.

The majority of men are followers not leaders. This is true on the farm if men would do more original thinking and less imitating, it would be better for them.

Five sheep of the large mutton breed can be kept on the food required by one cow and, taking one year with another, will bring in as much money as the cow, with less labor and with more benefit to the soil.

The value of a good name in business is underrated by too many men. It is worth, from a financial point alone, a good deal to be known as a thorough, honest and dependable man—one who always keeps his word, who puts good apples in the middle of the barrel, one who will always try to give value received and honest, liberal measure.

Parasitic insects are the bane of the poultry raiser, especially the red mites. These pests are the product of dirt and filth. No better preventive can be found than scrupulous cleanliness and the frequent dusting of floors, walls, perches and nests with a mixture of three parts of air slaked lime and one part of powdered sulphur. One of these dust spraying machines is the best tool to do it.

A MARKET REVIEW

Potatoes Show Tendency to Advance

—Hay is Steady—Winter Apples in Abundance Bringing Medium Price—Cars Some Better.

The car situation was improved somewhat Monday when all the dealers and shippers were supplied temporarily. This will enable a number of shippers to fill several orders that have been waiting on the Northern Pacific for some time.

The hay market is steady. The price does not show any signs of advancing and there are no indications of a probable decline in the market. Potatoes are firm and slowly advancing. The market price has gone up from 50c to $1 per ton in the last three days.

Hops are reported to be advancing everywhere except in the Yakima market. They are quoted at 41 cents in New York; 44 cents in England; 32 cents to 35c in Oregon and 31c on the Sound. The local market brings only 30c at this time and occasionally 30½c. No sales have been reported in the last few days. There are thousands of boxes of apples in the local warehouses. The eastern market is commanding the best quality and the local shippers have their hands full filling orders. The Spitz are bringing only about $1.10 f. o. b. North Yakima. Following is the current prices on other local produce:

LIFE'S GRAB BAG

By KEITH GORDON

Copyright, 1904, by Keith Gordon

"Life," meditated Cynthia as she tucked in the ends of her veil more neatly, "is nothing more than a grab bag on a huge scale. Day by day you put your hand in and grab something, but until you take it out and unfold it you never know whether it is a joy or a sorrow!"

With a droll smile at the idea, she picked up her gloves and card case, took a last comprehensive survey of herself in the cheval glass and then passed down the stairs and out into the street filled with the gentle exhilaration that her view of life induced.

One did not know, for instance, what charming adventure might befall, even in the pursuit of so banal a duty as a round of formal calls. Musing thus, she turned into Fifth avenue, her face alight with eager expectancy of the next thing and trying to imagine what it was going to be.

This might be the great day of her life—one couldn't tell. Perhaps before the afternoon was over she would meet the man—that godling of her dreams who moved in the time honored Olympian manner, enveloped in a mist that hid his face from view. Apparently the afternoon held nothing more than a pleasant stroll, broken by a half dozen calls, but the beauty of the thing lay in the fact that one couldn't be sure! Perhaps on that very afternoon—

These pleasant speculations suddenly came to an abrupt end. Her card case—where was it? She felt blindly in her muff, thrust her hand into one side of her coat and then the other, but in vain. It was gone—lost—just as numberless purses, opera glasses, coats, muffs and umbrellas had gone before it, until she was a byword among her friends and the gifts of her intimates were invariably accompanied by a beseeching: "Don't lose this, Cynthia. Do try to be a little bit careful!"

And now her new card case, a gift on her birthday a few weeks before, had gone in the usual way, just when she was expecting the very best of life too! Her optimism disappeared like the sun behind a cloud, and, with an aggrieved sense of misplaced trust, her steps slackened and she came to a standstill, wondering if it would be worth while to go back and try to find it.

"Scarcely," she decided, as the moving crowd of pedestrians slowly filed past her, and, with a sigh, she resumed her way northward once more, a little comforted by the reflection that, after all, some honest person would probably find it and return it to her.

Meanwhile a tall, athletic young man who was swinging up the avenue in the same direction a block or so behind her, unconsciously rejoicing in his mere physical vigor and not philosophizing at all, found his attention attracted by a small, dark object ornamented with a gleaming disk of silver that was lying near the edge of the sidewalk.

Picking it up, he glanced in this way and in that, but the handsomely gowned women who were making their way in both directions gave no indication of distress, so he examined the monogram on the clasp, with a grunt of masculine disdain for such devices.

Then he bethought him that it might be a good idea to open it, and, suiting the action to the impulse, he discovered in one compartment a latchkey and in the other a bunch of cards. "Miss Willard, No. 4 West—th street," he read, taking out one of the cards. And, having thus satisfactorily established the ownership of his find, he tucked it into his pocket and strode on toward the University club, idly wondering if this Miss Willard could be related to the little Cynthia Willard he had known in his boyhood. It was this wonder that impelled him to wait to see Miss Willard personally when, just before the dinner hour, he stopped at the address given on the card.

He had not long to wait. A tall girl with a look in her eyes that said plainly that life was an interesting experience entered the room, and he found himself face to face with what seemed to him a larger, older and greatly glorified copy of the small, freckled girl upon whom in moments of rare generosity he had sometimes bestowed his boyish approval.

"Why, Jack Mayhew," she exclaimed with unfeigned gladness, extending her hand, "where have you dropped from?" while his hearty "Jupiter, Cynthia, if this isn't luck!" uttered with enthusiastic heartiness while he conscientiously wrung her hand as if it had been that of another man, placed them at once on the plane of good fellowship where they had parted ten years earlier.

In their delight and surprise at the meeting they talked volubly and sometimes both at once, asking about boy and girl friends and referring hilariously to the pranks of those dear old days. But if their tongues were busy their minds were doubly so.

"He's magnificent," Cynthia was saying over and over to herself, with a thrill of delight, though ostensibly she was listening with rapt attention to his account of himself since he left Elmwood and had grown up, while he filled with admiring wonder at this new Cynthia, suddenly lost the thread of his story and floundered helplessly after the manner of persons who try to think about one thing and talk about another.

"As I was saying," he observed impressively, making a frantic but ineffectual attempt to recall what he had been saying, "as I was saying—that is—oh, hang it all, Cynthia, I was so busy looking at you that I forgot what I was saying. Don't know where I'm at."

At this plain avowal they both laughed, and he went on with masculine frankness:

"I say, you've done yourself proud. You're ripping, you know!" And he gazed at her with so much of the old boyishness in his face that the reproof that rose to her lips was suppressed. Then a black thought suddenly clutched at her.

"You aren't married, are you?" she demanded so abruptly and intensely that she winced the moment the words were out, while his prompt negative was tempered with a certain shame as he recalled some events of the previous year. Cynthia was so direct that she inspired him with a desire to meet her on her own ground.

"No, I'm not married, but I am afraid that I should have been except for the firmness of the young lady's mother," he acknowledged honestly. "She had other views for her daughter. You see, I wasn't rich enough, and I'm mighty glad I wasn't—now," he added with a fervor that was beyond suspicion.

Still, Cynthia's manner seemed to take on a slight coating of ice. "So you're a bright being!" she said thoughtfully, her chin resting on the back of her hand and her eyes fixed upon his face speculatively.

They parted a few minutes later, reluctantly, it is true, yet with the feeling that the fine glow of the meeting had suddenly faded.

"He's mourning for that horrid little thing with the mercenary mother," reflected Cynthia scornfully and without any compunction whatever about the injustice of calling an unknown damsel "a horrid little thing," while Jack Mayhew, his eyes dazzled by the fine, open face of his old playmate, wondered how he could ever have fancied pretty little pink and white Dorothy.

As he remembered Cynthia's mouth, with the little curls at the corner that looked like baby smiles, his face grew gloomy.

"Depend upon it, old fellow, you'll find there is some man in the background," he confided to himself darkly on the way homeward. "Don't get the idea that there's any chance for you. A girl like that!" Here he gave up at loss for words to express his convictions on the subject.

But in spite of this mutual cynicism Miss Willard and Jack Mayhew were seen together very frequently during the next three months. They affected palm rooms and art galleries and such places where a certain soft splendor and quiet made for sentiment and low toned conversation.

It was upon one such occasion that a patron of art who had closed the book of romance before the young people in this story were born overheard the following extraordinary bit of conversation. He was sitting with one eye screwed up critically in the effort to form a judgment of a Claude Monet on the wall before him when he heard the young man murmur anxiously:

"You don't suppose your mother will say that I'm not rich enough, do you?"

"Indeed, no!" replied the girl at his side confidently. "My mother is not that kind. Besides, didn't our mothers know each other before we were born?"

The patron of art looked slightly puzzled. From the tall of his cool, estimating eye he sent furtive glances at the pair, vainly endeavoring to follow the young lady's reasoning.

There was an ecstatic silence for a second, during which the patron of art found the two decidedly interesting from an artistic standpoint. It was an eloquent moment—and paint able. It was really a pity. Then the girl's face dimpled and she began to speak.

"Oh, Jack," she said, and her tone was a caress, "isn't it lucky that I got you out of the grab bag after all?"

The patron of art moved away, shaking his head as if the times were getting beyond him. "Got him out of the grab bag," he murmured, just to see how it would sound—"got him out of the grab bag!"

A Bill That Never Passed.

Congressmen sometimes adopt queer expedients to gain the good will of their constituents. Years ago a member from a western state was very much afraid he would be knocked out in the approaching campaign. He had not managed to make himself a power in congress. In fact, his constituents had never heard of him doing any thing besides voting with his party when his name was called and drawing his salary. He was desperate. Something must be done to please his people at home or he would be buried out of sight. A bright young woman to whom he had described his troubles said to him:

"You live near the center of the United States, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Then why don't you introduce a bill to have the capitol moved to the principal town in your district?"

"The very thing."

And he introduced the bill. It worked to a charm. The people of his district at once concluded he was a great man and with much enthusiasm sent him back for another term, so that he might press his removal bill and secure its passage. In the next congress he reintroduced the same measure, and, though it was promptly pigeonholed in the committee room and of course he never got a chance to make a speech on it, his people stood by him and gave him a third term as a reward for his genius.
