OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

A NEWSPAPER writer asks the question, "What would happen if all newspapers should suddenly stop." This is a rather difficult nut to crack. It would perhaps be easier to imagine the feelings of the public if such a catastrophe should happen, for it would probably feel a good deal like the man who suddenly had his eyes punched out. In free America the newspaper is recognized as being perhaps as great a necessity in the family as any article in the household. Whether it comes as a daily or weekly, it is always welcome, for if it is the right kind of a paper it not only brings a large buget of local happenings of interest in the family, but a vast amount of general information as well, the regular persual of which not only keep the reader posted on current events in the world's history, but tends to educate him to a great extent for the practical duties of life. It was once the prevailing idea that a young man without a college education had little or no chance to make what was called a big success in life. Perhaps this was once true, but it is no longer so. There are, in fact, many thousands of men in this country who have been eminently successful in their different vocations who have had the benefit of nothing more than a newspaper education, builded perhaps, in the majority of cases, on a foundation laid by the common schools. It is not meant by this to decry or undervalue the great benefits to be derived by a collegiate training, for to a capable mind such a training is indeed one of the greatest boons that the world has to offer. But, unfortunately, the tendency among college graduates is to overcrowd the professions, and as a result the world loses much in creative energy. Thus the material out of which good farmers, merchants or mechanics might be made is often spoiled in making incompetent lawyers, unsuccessful physicians and we might also add poor preachers. The newspaper, as an institution is undoubtedly the greatest educator of our day, and if the great light it sheds upon the world should suddenly cease, or even become dimmed, it is probably only a question of time when this old ear h of ours would again be enveloped in mental darkness. The profession of journalism is, therefore, naturally a most noble one and for this reason it is all the more disgusting to witness the use that some men make of it when they are forced by circumstances to cater either to the whims of small-minded, self-seeking politicians or to the demands of organized wealth.

THE Boer war still seems to go on, regardless of Gen. Kitchener's proclamation that it is all over. England is apparently as badly stirred up as at any period of the hostilities. A late dispatch from London summarizes: Extremes meet in criticism of the war office's methods. The pro-Boer journals magnify the importance of petty reverses in Cape Colony and reproach the government for distorting and suppressing essential facts in the military situation and misleading the country through silly optimism. Military critics consider that the blunders committed in sending out reinforcements to the imperial yeomanry without adequate medical examination is utterly inexcusable during the closing period of the campaign and a staunch imperialist journal like the St. James Gazette is unable to understand why the government refused the offer of the Canadian government to raise a regiment of mounted men for hunting down the guerrillas, nor why preliminaries were not arranged between the war office and Ottawa and an unpleasant impasse avoided. The press censorship is not a new grievance and it does not explain the prevailing ignorance respecting the military operations in Cape Colony districts, where small bands of Boers have been hiding and looting. These sections are so far removed from the railway that it is impossible for press agents to collect accurate information.

IT seems possible that Pennsylvania, a state that gave McKinley about 300,000 majority, may go democratic this year. In case it does there can, of course, be no national significance attached to such a result, save for the good influence it may have on politicians of the machine class. Under the domination of the odious Boss Quay, the republican organization of the Keystone state has become honeycombed with corruption to such an extent and so exasperatingly impudent that all good citizens feel it incumbent upon themselves to aid in the movement to turn it down. It is somewhat refreshing to observe that the people of that bossridden, monopoly-cursed state turn instinctively in such a crisis to the democratic party for comfort and relief.

EXISTING conditions certainly favor the Yakima farmer this year. Irrigation and his own industry has assured him bounteous crops and the prevailing drouth in other sections of the country guarantees him good prices for his product. But our good luck will not stop with merely this advantage. Irrigation has again proved itself to be King and thousands of people in the drought stricken east, wearied and sorely tried by the varying and uncertain moods of nature, will longingly turn their faces hither and will come by hundreds, perhaps thousands, to share with us the great advantages in this land of sunshine and never failing crops.

THE notorious "Swiftwater" Bill, of Klondyke fame, seems at least to be a success in the gentle art of love-making. His latest escapade is to elope with his fourteen-year-old niece from Tacoma, though according to reports, he was already a much married man. Bill's sister, who is at the same time the girl's mother, is in hot pursuit and declares if she catches him she will place him behind the bars to meditate on the sinfulness of his course.

LIEUT. HAZARD of this state, who aided materially in the capture of Aguinaldo, has gathered in fresh laurels by bagging one Howard, a deserter who had joined the ranks of the Filipinos and took a fiendish delight in potting his former comrades. Howard, whatever his motive may have been, deserved and probably received no mercy. A traitor is justly held in contempt all the world over.

THE steel workers, having observed that a trust is a pretty good thing, concluded to form one themselves. With that object in view they started in to unionize all the plants controlled by the great steel trust. They probably labored under the delusion that the steel magnates wouldn't kick because they couldn't do so without being inconsistent. But they know more about trusts now.

THERE is no valid excuse for men or women either for being out of employment here if they desire work. The handling of the great hay and fruit crops produced in this valley offers opportunities for all here now, while the harvesting of the hop crop, to begin next week, will give remunerative employment to the thousands who come.

THE Portland Oregonian, cranky and unjust as it often is, takes a most enlightened view of the situation as it relates to the steel workers. It clearly sees and intelligently explains the justice of their cause and shows conclusively how not only the working class but the country as a whole will suffer in the event that the trust carries its point, which now seems probable.

THE Republic this week enlivens its otherwise vapid and uninteresting editorial page with some untimely comments on local politics. It doesn't take long for the editor to tell what he does know, but what he doesn't know requires much of his valuable space. The colonel's pipe dreams, however, are always very interesting.

TACOMA had quite a serious experience with foot pads during the carnival, and two citizens lost their lives at the hands of the masked robbers. It is to be hoped that the murderers may yet be apprehended and brought to justice, which in these cases ought to mean the gallows.

ACCORDING to the Tacoma News, the total admissions at the Elks' Carnival footed up to 84,122. The affair was a big success financially and otherwise and will probably net the association about $10,000.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

J. A. Cook is removing his goods in the Boston store to the new Miller building.

The six-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Graham died Monday from cholera infantum.

A suit for divorce was filed in the office of the county clerk last Monday by Isabell McCoy against W. T. McCoy.

Wyman & Frazer this week received a life-size, artistically designed wooden horse as a sign for their business house.

There will be a meeting of the Socialists of this vicinity held in Switzer's hall, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. All persons interested are invited to attend.

Wiedemann's company has been entertaining Yakima theatre goers all the week at Larson's. The repertoire closes tonight after a very successful engagement.

The boxing contest advertised to occur at the armory last Saturday evening was not "pulled off", owing to the stand taken by Mayor Fechter in opposition to the exhibition.

John L. Richards died last Sunday, after a lingering illness, from consumption. The deceased was a son-in-law of Jet Armstrong, of the Ahtanum, and a widow and several children survive him.

The Moxee company started hop picking on Thursday. While the Moxee valley usually begins picking earlier than any section of the county, this sets a new pattern for starting the fall crop.

Louis Clement, a well-known figure on the streets of North Yakima, aged about 42 years, died at the hospital last Saturday, from stomach trouble. He was buried from the Catholic church Sunday afternoon.

Ralph Clark, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Clark, of the Natchez, arrived Tuesday evening after a six years' absence in Maine. His wife accompanied him, and they will probably stop in Yakima for several months.

There will be a meeting at the Christian church in this city Tuesday Sept. 3rd, at 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of completing the organization of the Florence Crittenton mission circle. All are cordially invited.

The "Quaker doctors" have come and gone, but they didn't take any Yakima money with them. Mayor Fechter vetoed the ordinance reducing the licence to $100 per month, and the "doctors" concluded to seek new and more favorable pastures.

The directors of Selah school district No. 39 have found it necessary to provide more room, owing to the increasing attendance. An ell 28x38 feet is therefore being added. The teachers engaged for the ensuing year are Peof. McIntosh and Miss Blood.

E. E. James had his right arm broken below the elbow last Saturday, while leading a horse behind his buggy, on the way up the Cowychee for an outing. The accident compelled Mr. James to return for surgical treatment, and the trip to the mountains is necessarily postponed.

W. H. Taylor, who has been prospecting in the Swauk country for several years, informed L. L. Thorpe by mail this week that he had struck what he believed to be the main lead in the tunnel which he has been drifting. The ore tapped assays highly in gold and copper.

Mrs. Emily Strubin died at St. Elizabeth's hospital last Saturday from the effects of an operation for gall stone. She was buried from the Christian church Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Strubin was 32 years of age, and leaves several small children. She was the daughter of John W. Morrison, of the Ahtanum valley.

The spirited team owned by John Sawbridge suddenly took fright on the avenue Monday evening and started to run on a gallop. Mrs. Sawbridge and two of the children were in the vehicle and though the little boy held pluckily to the lines the team was not stopped until the fairgrounds was reached. Fortunately none of the family were hurt, although one of the children was thrown out.

W. T. Clark was exhibiting on Wednesday a photograph of the C. A. Davis ranch in the Moxee. The picture shows a comfortable house and out buildings and the bountiful crops growing in the adjacent field. Since it is only four months ago that Mr. Davis begun operations in the sage brush the picture serves as a useful object lesson in illustrating to the stranger how quickly a paying farm can be created in the Yakima valley.

E. E. James, secretary of the local lodge of the Fraternal Aid society, received on the 21st inst a draft from the head office at Lawrence, Kansas, of $2000, which was made payable to the order of Mrs. Emily Strubin. This draft represents the death benefit held by the late A. H. Strubin. Mrs. Strubin, the beneficiary in this case, died in this city Saturday, three days after the receipt of the money. Her life was also insured for $2000 in the same society.

Died, at North Yakima, Wednesday, August 28, 1901, Sanford M. Harris, aged 18 years and 3 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Harris. The funeral services were held in the Methodist church, Thursday afternoon. Death resulted from indigestion. The young man was only sick a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Harris have been peculiarly unfortunate, four deaths having occurred in their family during the past year. The sorrowing parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their affliction.

To Save Her Child

From frightful disfigurement, Mrs. Nannie Galleger, of La Grange, Ga., applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve to great sores on her head and face, and writes its quick cure exceeded all her hopes. It works wonders in Sores, Bruises, Skin Eruptions, Cuts, Burns, Scalds and Piles. 25c. Cure guaranteed by Quiett & Ayres druggists.

For table board apply next door to Dr. Rosser, South Sixth street. 43-tf

Henry Creason came up from Prosser Monday to have alterations made in the plans for the new school house to be built there, in order to reduce the cost of construction within the $5000 limit. C. H. Bruenn was the lowest bidder, the sum bid being $5498. Mr. Creason, who is one of the school directors, says that when the building is fully completed and furnished it will cost in the neighborhood of $8000. It is to be up to date in all its accessories, with fine furnace heaters, water and other modern conveniences.

Mrs. John Michels and son Leo returned Sunday from their visit to the Sound.

Mrs. Virginia Bartholet returned home Sunday after a 10 days visit with her sister, Mrs. Huntington, of Portland.

Fred Brooker and D. M. Shanks will today ship their string of racehorses to Everett to participate in the race meeting there next week.

A marriage license was issued by the county auditor last Wednesday to Chas. O. Akin and Miss Elsie Guyett. Both parties reside near Toppenish.

Judge Rudkin is reviewing the testimony taken in the Richmond trial, to ascertain whether the evidence will warrant a new hearing of the case.

A large plate glass was accidentally broken while being placed in the new Ditter building last Wednesday, and the loss of $400, besides the freight, falls quite heavily upon the contractor, A. E. Howard.

County Assessor Robert Scott and wife will leave tomorrow for an extended tour of the eastern states, the Pan American exposition and other points of interest. They will probably visit various points in Canada before returning.

E. F. Benson was in town for a few hours Tuesday to confer with his associates on the State Fair commission. Mr. Benson is arranging to get up excursions from the Sound cities and feels sanguine of getting a large attendance.

The attention of our readers is called to the new announcements in this issue of the Golden Rule the well known department store, D. R. Barton the First street hardware man, L. Blumenthal the new clothier, and S. H. Mason the fish dealer.

Half a dozen new "billies" were received by the city this week to equip a number of new members to be placed on the force. The hop-picking season and usual fall activity attracts so many tough characters that the police force has to be largely increased.

A. B. Weed at the meeting of the school board Monday night tendered his resignation as a member of the board, much to the regret of his associates and the public generally. Mr. Weed's reason for resigning was the fact that he lacked the time to devote to the position. County Supt. Dickey will have the appointment of his successor.

Organizers are now at work in this city and surrounding country in organizing subordinate lodges of the American Fraternal Club, the headquarters of which will be in this city. The organizers report that they are meeting with much encouragement and that the outlook is most promising for securing a large membership for the initial lodge at this point.

A delayed westbound passenger train on the N. P. Wednesday morning ran into the east bound overland near Palmer on the west side of the mountain, completely wrecking the two engines and telescoping a couple of baggage cars. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt, one of the engineers receiving a slight injury to one of his ankles. The east bound passenger was delayed several hours, arriving at North Yakima shortly after 7 p. m.

The school board Monday evening elected Arthur J. Wise as janitor of the High school building and J. E. Schwartz as janitor of Columbia school, at salaries of $45 and $40 per month, respectively. The janitor of Central school has not yet been elected, although a large number of applications have been filed for the position. The board authorized the levy of a 5 mill special tax to pay teachers' salaries and general expenses of the term.

The potato market is, again in a scale of ascending prices. In fact, the outlook for the highest price ever received here is of such a roseate hue that growers do not spend much time talking to buyers, unless conditions are such the producer is forced to sell in order to meet pressing obligations. Eastern buyers are offering $20 per ton for potatoes here now ready for market, and offers to contract for the later crop at $18 are freely made. The general tendency of growers is to hold on as long as the market is rising.

An extra session of commissioners' court was held Tuesday for the purpose of ordering an election to give the residents in the old Del Haven Irrigation district, from Kiona to Kennewick, an opportunity to vote on the question of disorganizing the district, which was formed under the state law about ten years ago. The election was ordered for September 14 next, and if the proposition of disorganizing carries, of which there is little doubt, the Y. I. & I. Co. will take the matter up and complete the canal as soon as possible. A long line of the ditch was constructed several years ago, but the character of the soil through which it passes will necessitate considerable fluming. In the neighborhood of 15,000 acres of fine land will be reclaimed by the building of the ditch.

ROBT. E. SMITH.

CHILD CADGERING.

A Brutish Effort to Abandon to Death a New-Born Babe.

The northeastern part of town was all agog with excitement early last Tuesday morning by the discovery of a newly born babe on Natcheez avenue. The child was found just inside the high board fence of the school grounds of St. Joseph's academy, where it had been laid under a tree by a heartless midwife or some more heartless interested party.

The people at the campmeeting, being conducted by the Church of God folk, on Natcheez avenue, at intervals during the previous night, heard wailing sounds from the location where afterwards the babe was found, but attributed the noise to a cat or some other animal. About 7.30 on Tuesday morning a young son of one of the campers, hearing a noise over the fence about 40 feet distant from the campground, went to investigate and saw an absolutely naked infant, lying with its head over a dry limb, and gave the alarm. The older people, upon investigation, immediately sent for a doctor and the officers, who, upon examination found a small but well developed male child, lying upon the bare ground, directly over a red ants' nest. The creatures were crawling over the infant, and he was crying as lustily as one of his youth and inexperience could be expected to. The child was taken up and tenderly cared for, it being found that not only had no knot been tied in the umbilical cord, but that it had received absolutely no attention since birth.

The good people of the camp ground still have the waif in their keeping, and with the religious idea that it was sent them for some good purpose, will probably retain it in their keeping. At last accounts the little fellow was in good physical condition and will doubtless survive the cruel treatment inflicted by its heartless progenitors; but it is miraculous how it could outlive the cold air of the night and morning, the roughness of its hard bed, and the savage onslaughts of a bed of red ants, which is almost equal to quick-lime.

Though it be the child of shame nothing can excuse the heartless cruelty leading to the inhuman manner of its disposal, and great indignation was aroused at the brutal abandonment of the innocent victim.

A Daring Hold-up.

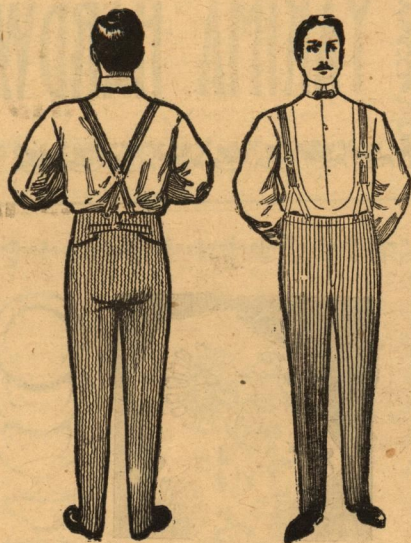

One of the boldest hold-ups yet perpetrated in Yakima occurred Thursday morning on a vacant lot near Schietl's machine shop. Cash Fairchild, a sheepman residing at The Dalles, has with his wife, been boarding at the Lillie house on Front street for several weeks. He was here for the benefit of his health, and being considerably improved had just received money with which to return home. He was just returning from a stable in the southern part of the city, where he had a rig, and was cutting across lots when a white man stepped up to him and holding a gun to Mr. Fairchild's head, ordered him to throw up his hands. At this moment a negro came up from the rear and thrusting his hands into the victim's pockets abstracted $125 in bill and then the pair decamped. The hold-up took place about six o'clock, and Mr. Fairchild lost no time in notifying the officers. He says he will have no difficulty in identifying the white man, but the negro kept at his back and will be harder to recognize.

Several arrests have been made, but no one has yet been identified as connected with the robbery.

The officers, later in the week, after due investigation, say the story sounds like a romance of the old "knights of the road", and the facts developed force upon them the conviction that the hero of the story "dreams dreams and sees visions"; in fact, that the main reason they doubt the authenticity of the tale, is that its very plausibility throws a glamour of doubt upon it, and forces them to regard it as a masterly effort at romancing.

P. J. Flint, an extensive fruit grower of Yakima, passed through here on his way to Fortune creek mining district this week accompanied by E. O. Newhall and L. R. Poundstone, capitalists of California.—Roslyn Miner.

THE DEAD INDIAN FOUND.

Decomposed Body of Charlie Honewassie Located South of Town.

Last Monday morning ex-City Marshal Grant, while going with an assistant to care for some hogs on the Schanno ditch, in the southwestern part of the city, was brought to a standstill by a paralyzing stench which, upon investigation, he found proceeded from the body of a dead Indian. While he and his companion were debating as to what they would do, a number of Indians came up on horseback, and at once identified the Indian as Honewassie, whose disappearance under suspicious circumstances was commented upon by last week's DEMOCRAT.

The coroner was immediately notified, but found the body so badly decomposed as to make close investigation as to the cause of his death impracticable.

Friends of the dead man boxed the body and conveyed it to the reservation, where Indian Agent Lynch conducted an investigation through the instrumentality of his Indian police and an Indian doctor. According to Mr. Lynch, there is no possible doubt that the man was murdered. It was found that his head was half severed from the trunk by a knife, his skull was crushed and a number of minor knife and other wounds were found on various parts of the body.

Mr. Lynch was in the city Wednesday, and while here swore to a complaint charging three Indians known to have been in company of Honewassie with the murder. Mr. Lynch says he proposes to see the matter prosecuted to the end.

On Thursday Sheriff Tucker apprehended two of the Indians charged with the killing, one Tenana and Columbus, but the third and probably the most culpable, has not yet been arrested.

Carrie Nation's Lament.

(Albany Journal.)

Mrs. Carrie Nation, languishing in jail in Topeka because of her inability to pay a fine of $148, and forsaken by those who encouraged her and urged her on when she was on her saloon-smashing rampage, has been pouring her woes into the ear of a newspaper correspondent.

"I haven't seen a person who is interested in the cause of temperance for a week," she said. "I have not seen Dr. McFarland or the Rev. Mr. Emerson since I got in jail. Not a minister has visited me. . . . It seems as if I am forsaken. When I was smashing there were hundreds who said, 'Good, keep it up!' and assured me that they would stand by me; but now, in the hour of need, I have not heard from one of them and they have not contributed a 10-cent piece toward securing my release.

Mrs. Nation's experience is simply that of all persons who undertake acts of spectacular folly. While nothing happens to hinder them in the pursuit of their erratic course they receive applause and encouragement from many who either merely enjoy the spectacle or for the time actually approve of the acts they witness, but in which they are careful to take no active part. When a check comes to their mad career, the interest of spectators and the encouragement of emotional sympathizers vanish, and they are left to bear the consequences of their folly, friendless and alone. If Mrs. Nation had had better knowledge of human nature she could have foreseen her present condition. However, she is likely now to gain the sympathy of rational persons, who feel sorry for her because she is a woman in trouble, and will give her their aid provided she will promise hereafter to refrain from lawless acts.

Under Water to the Pole.

Not deterred by the fruitless and disastrous scheme of Andree's to reach the North Pole by means of a balloon, it is now seriously proposed by a certain Austrian scientist, Herr Kamke by name, to attain the same object by means of a submarine boat. The boat is in progress of construction and the proposed route has been marked out, so that the world will doubtless be called upon to agonize again in the near future over another missing party of polar adventurers. The boat in which this under water voyage is to be made will be ellipsoid in form, with a major axis of seventy feet, a breadth of twenty-six feet, and a displacement of 800 tons. The boat will hold sufficient air to last five persons fifteen hours, the carbonic-acid gas being removed by a combination with caustic soda. The motive power will be petroleum, of which 150 tons is carried. This amount is calculated to be more than five times what is necessary for a trip from Spitzbergen to the pole and back. In the fifteen hours during which the boat will be able to stay under water it can cover fifty miles. It will be submerged at the edge of the land of ice surrounding Spitzbergen and will be steered toward the nearest open water to the north. Herr Kamke is apparently proceeding upon the old theory that there is a large space of open sea around the pole. But this theory is now generally discarded by geographers and polar investigators. It seems sometimes as if a society for the prevention of polar cruelties might have a good reason for being. As no such organization exists, Herr Kamke and his associates must be permitted to go ahead and sacrifice themselves in their own way.—Leslie's Weekly.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, August 23, 1901.

"Make way for the new Caesar!" That is the sort of a shout some rubber-lunged understrapper will be putting up in front of Acting Secretary Hackett, if he is left in sole charge of the navy department much longer. His head gets bigger every day and he comes nearer thinking himself the whole thing. He has made it quite plain that he is anti-Schley. In this he has only followed the example of Secretary Long, the difference being that Long has more tact and courtesy than to assume autocratic airs. It is understood that so many complaints about Hackett have been made to Mr. McKinley that he has given Secretary Long a hint by wire that it would be advisable for him to cut his vacation short and return to Washington sometime before the assembling of the Schley court of inquiry, and that Mr. Long will resume charge of the navy department next week.

The most important happenings of the week in the preparations for the Schley inquiry are all connected with Rear Admiral Howison, whose sitting as a member of the court is now anything but certain. Rear Admiral Schley, through his counsel, requested the navy department to forward a copy of an alleged interview with Howison in which Schley was sneered at and Sampson lauded to that officer and request him to say whether he was correctly reported or not. Caesar Hackett has made public his letter to Schley denying the request and defending Howison and giving reasons why he should not be asked about that interview, which is anything but convincing. That is tomfoolery, of course. Schley has the right to absolutely challenge Howison, if he wishes to exercise it. Capt. Parker, who is assisting Schley's counsel in preparing the case, has an affidavit from the reporter who interviewed Rear Admiral Howison, declaring that the interview was absolutely correct as published and expressing his willingness to testify before the court of inquiry if his evidence was considered necessary. Should Howison acknowledge the accuracy of the interview he would thereby disqualify himself for sitting on the court, no matter how anxious Caesar Hackett and the anti-Schley naval clique might be to keep him on the court. Should he deny the correctness of the published interview, he will be confronted by the reporter. Admiral Schley will not believe that Howison used the language in that interview until he either acknowledges it or refuses to deny it. Being open and above board in his own likes and dislikes, he cannot understand how a brother officer can be otherwise. Schley spends a good portion of every day working and consulting with his lawyers in the preparation of his case. He smilingly declines all invitations to talk about it for publication, and says, "Wait for the court."

The joint committee representing the American Anti-Trust League and the Knights of Labor came out ahead in its first round with Attorney General Knox. The committee asked Mr. Knox to furnish any information in his possession concerning the formation of the steel trust. He replied denying that he had any information about the trust or that he had anything to do with its formation; admitting that he was legal counsel for the Carnegie Steel Co. for some time previous to the formation of the trust, and asserting that the duty and object of the department of justice was to enforce the federal statutes. The committee replied to his letter with a public statement in which it pointed out the evasive nature of his denial, and issued the following challenge to him: "Will Attorney General Knox offer a reward for the production of the incriminating evidence against the trusts for which we asked, and which he says he does not possess? Will he announce that the department of justice will pay a substantial reward to any person or persons who will produce evidence that will lead to the arrest and conviction of any person or corporation guilty of violating the federal statute against trusts? Let him do this, and institute vigorous proceedings against trust law-breakers, and the people will no longer have doubts as to his faithfulness to his oath of office, and he will no longer be the target for criticism, innuendo, and invective on the part of the press because of the fact that while the trusts ride roughshod over the people, the attorney general, who is the sole officer under the federal law who is vested with authority to prosecute them, refuses to take any action."

A well known Texan, Mr. John T. Cammine, of Austin—has been telling tales in Washington about the ambitious young legislators of his state. He said: "The legislature is seeking to redistrict the state for members of congress. The ambitious young men in the legislature, who think they are qualified to come to congress, are seeking to fix up the reapportionment so that as many as possible of the present representatives shall not be able to receive reelection. Half the Texas delegation in congress are hovering around the state capitol to protect their personal interests, but it looks as though the legislature would be unable to do anything."

HE COWED THE LION.

THE DARKY BELTED ALL THE FIGHT OUT OF MONARCH.

Laughable Manner In Which the Big and Ugly Circus Animal Was Returned to the Showman After a Railroad Smash Up.

"It's queer how animals will act in a railroad wreck," said the boss canvasman. "Now there was th' Saberlee wreck. Six cars was in th' ditch an half o' th' show's dens was under 'em. There was one cage o' monkeys mashed flat that we knowed of, an a lot o' th' other animals had took t' th' woods; little animals, zebras an wolves an deer an such like. Nothin' t' do any harm exceptin th' big Lon, Monarch. His den was bottom up in a little puddle o' ditch water, with a hole stove in it big enough t' let out a cow, an Monarch himself was gone with the little animals.

"Well, it was all off with makin th' stand that day, so we put up th' runs, got th' cookhouse outfit down on th' ground, had breakfast an started in t' dig th' stuff out o' th' ditch. Th' railroad company's wreckin crew come along t' help us, an we'd got purty well under way when a tall, black buck darky come out o' th' woods an stood round rubberin.

"Nobody paid any attention t' him fer awhile, but by'n'by Mack, th' chandler man, spoke t' him, kind o' kidded him about bein han'some, or some such guff. It was Missouri, an he was a real black buck. Didn't have anything t' say back—didn't say anything at all, in fact, fer awhile. Jes' shuffled round in his cowhide boots from one foot t' th' other an grinned bashfullike. By'n'by when he saw we didn't roast him hard he kind o' took courage.

"Did any o' you gemmen losed a giraffe?" he says.

"Giraffe?" Mack says. "No; we never owned no such thing with this trick. Why?"

"Well, boss, Ah done foun' somethin up in mah 'tato patch this mawnin, an Ah 'lowed as maybe hit 'longed t' you all."

"Mack got interested. 'Wot does it look like?"

"Lawdy, boss, hit's mos' monstrous. Nevali did see no sech ole thing befoh, sah. Big cat vahmint, with yaller eyes, an hit done come a-snahlin an a-spittin at me soon as Ah got out o' baid."

"Where is it?" says Mack.

"Oh, Ah cawt hit all righty. Done put a rope roun' hits neck an tied hit t' mah cabin."

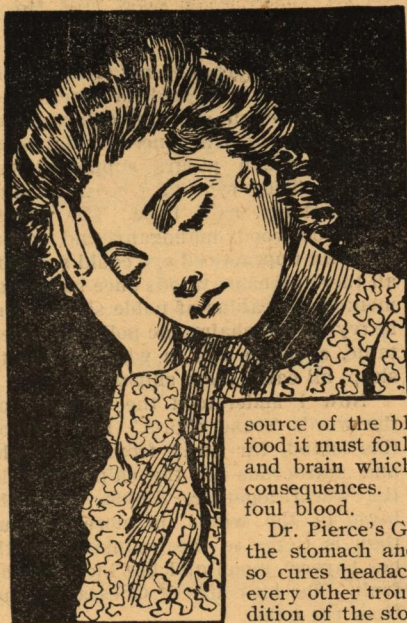

"Go an git it an fetch it down here," says Mack. Then th' wreckin crew got a tackle roun' another den, an we forgot all about th' darky.

"Maybe it was 20 minutes, an maybe it was half an hour when we heard a noise over on th' road amongst th' trees—a noise kinder like a nigger drivin a mule or like somethin bein driven. It come nearer an louder an louder an nearer. Everybody stopped work an listened, an th' ole man himself come out o' his car with his napkin hangin roun' his neck.

"What is that?" he pipes up in his snappy way. "Who is that out there? Go an see what that racket is, some o' you boys. Hurry up, now."

"Nobody paid any attention t' him, an th' noise got nearer an nearer. In a couple o' minutes a cloud o' dust sailed out from behind th' trees. When it got within a hundred yards o' th' track, it cleared up a bit, an there was that big, black nigger with a rope in one mit an a piece o' fence rail in th' other. On th' other end o' th' rope was Monarch.

"Of all th' mean, sneakin, under-handed cat animals that ever traveled

School Teacher's Headache.

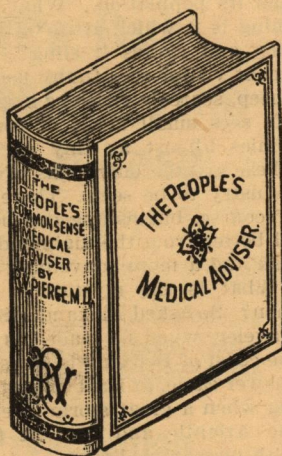

It's not a new variety of headache. It's the old pain consequent on conditions which result from study, confinement, and careless eating. It is, in fact, only one symptom of a derangement of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. Take care of the stomach and the health will take care of itself, is an axiom. More diseases originate from a diseased condition of the stomach and its allied organs than from any other cause. If the stomach is foul every particle of food which passes through it must be fouled. But the food is the source of the blood supply and if the stomach fouls the food it must foul the blood. Then nerve and muscle, bone and brain which are nourished by blood must suffer the consequences. Sound health cannot be produced from foul blood.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition, and so cures headache, heart "trouble," liver "trouble," and every other trouble which has its cause in a diseased condition of the stomach and the consequent impurity of the blood.

"I was troubled with very frequent headaches, often accompanied by severe vomiting," writes Miss Mary Belle Summerton, of San Diego, Duval Co., Texas. "Bowels were irregular, and my stomach and liver seemed continually out of order. Often I could eat almost nothing, and sometimes absolutely nothing for twenty-four hours at a time. I was entirely unfit for work, and my whole system seemed so run-down that I feared a severe sick spell and was very much discouraged. I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and did so with such satisfactory results that before finishing the third bottle I felt perfectly able to undertake the duties attending public school life, and contracted to do so. I most heartily advise those suffering with indigestion, and its attendant evils, to give this great medicine a fair trial."

There is no alcohol in "Golden Medical Discovery," and it contains no opium, cocaine or other narcotic.

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, 700 illustrations, is sent free, on receipt of stamps to cover expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

with a circus Monarch was th' worst an a powerful fighter when he had any sort o' show. Sometimes we'd put our hands on th' canvas cover o' his cage when he had t' run over th' train, an there never was a time, day or night, that he hadn't a slap ready fer you.

"Well, that darky was a-lammin him with his chunk o' fence an talkin mule talk t' him wuss than anything you ever saw in th' south.

"C'm on 'long heah, you yaller-eyed devil," he wus sayin. "Ah don't know what you is, but you ain't goin snahlin ner spit at me, nohow. C'm on 'long theh, you big sassy vahmint," an with that he'd lam him with his piece o' fence an let drive with his cowhide boots.

"An you kin bet your life Monarch was a-comin. I never saw a critter so cowed as he wus. Why, when that nigger brought him right in amongst us there was nobody that took th' trouble t' open up a gangway, an I reckon any young one could 'a' took him by th' scruff o' th' neck an turned him over on his back. He wus jest a great, overgrown pet tomat, with all th' fight an meanness walloped out o' him.

"We'd yanked his den up on to th' road bed with th' hole in th' end butted against a wagon. Th' door was open, an when Monarch saw his happy little home waitin there fer him he jerked th' rope out o' th' darky's hand an' bolted inside it. He couldn't get fur enough inside, either—went away up in th' fur corner an tried t' hide. Saberlee shut th' door an spoke to him, but Monarch was th' worst whipped cat animal you ever saw."—New York Sun.

Down In Georgia.

Two of our prominent citizens who live within a thousand miles of where the writer is domiciled met in the public road the other day, when the following conversation occurred:

"What's the news?"
 "They've captured Aguinaldo."
 "Captured who?"
 "Aguinaldo."
 "What's he been doing?"
 "Killing folks."
 (Excitedly) "Who has he killed?"
 "Oh, lots of people."
 "Where is the scoundrel?"
 "He's in jail."
 (More excitedly) "Let's get a crowd and lynch him."
 "It would be too expensive."
 "Expensive! What's going to make it expensive?"
 "He's too far off."
 "Why ain't he in Moultrie jail?"
 "Not a bit of it."
 "Well, where is he than?"
 "He's in jail at Manila."
 "You mean Camilla, don't you?"
 "No, I mean what I say."
 "How far is it?"
 "About 8,000 miles."

"Get up, Jack!" As he moved off he was heard to ejaculate. "Got no time to talk with every fool I meet in the road. Eight thousand miles! Why, that's clean outside of Georgy. Aguinaldo! Don't believe there is such a man in the world. Never heard of such a place as Manhillier before. These fellows what do nothing but read newspapers are mighty smart. Get up, Jack; lost half an hour talking with that sloophead when I ought to have been home planting 'taters."—Moultrie Observer.

Grounds for Divorce.

"Judge, it's the actual truth; that man didn't take a bath once a month, and he never owned a tooth brush in his life." Mrs. Hanna Becker sobbed as she told the judge her sad story.

She wanted a divorce and she wanted it bad. The allegations she filed against her husband were these:

"He had an innate aversion to combing his hair."

"He chewed tobacco and spat in the hand-painted vase plaintiff's sister had given her for a wedding present."

"Was too lazy at nights to take off his clothes, and frequently went to bed with his muddy shoes on."

"Wore a red sweater and old overalls to a full dress party, causing great mortification and pain."

"He was afflicted with a life-long aversion to soap."

The judge of the circuit court at Le Roy, Ind., heard the case with a frown.

"But, surely," asked the court of the plaintiff, "he had a toothbrush before he married you? And he must have had a clean face now and then and wore decent clothes, or you wouldn't have married him?"

But Mrs. Becker said her husband had used his brother's toothbrush, and he used to call on her at night and sit out on the porch so that she couldn't see what sort of clothes he wore. "He is the dirtiest thing in the way of a husband I ever heard of," said the wife.

"Decree," said the judge.—Exchange.

AN OCEAN CEMETERY.

THE MOST DEADLY TRAP FOR SHIPS
IN ALL THE WORLD.

Bare, Bleak and Treeless Quessant, the Notorious Island of Terror, and the Awful Forests That Supply It With Wood In Plenty.

Far out in the Atlantic ocean, off the northern French coast, almost due west from Brest, lies a great rocky island that is one of the most deadly traps for ships in all the world. It is the island of Quessant, the notorious Ile de l'Epouvante, the island of terror. Bare, without a tree to break its monotony, it lies in the path of the ships seeking the English channel. If they steer too far north, the hundred shoals and reefs of the British coast open their jaws for them. If they sail too far south, Quessant reaches for their bones.

Bleak and far away from any other land as the island of terror is, it still has its population. What mysterious thing is it which attracts that population and makes it cling? The infrequent visitor sees funny flocks of little sheep, scarcely twice as large as hares. He sees small herds of rough coated ponies almost as tiny as the sheep. These are the only signs of productive industry to be seen. There is fishing, of course, but fishing can be prosecuted better from the mainland, with less risk and a more convenient market.

What is the mysterious attraction, then? So asked Alexander Shuette, the traveler, when he made his way from the coast of Brittany to Quessant. The answer came, at least in part, one evening when a great storm swept in from the Atlantic and beat at the shores with unexampled fury.

He says: "The daughter of my hostess led me up the narrow staircase to my room. As I ascended I noticed, without remarking the oddity of it at the time, that the staircase was of shining oak. I was ushered into my room, a large, low chamber, completely paneled from top to bottom. Putting the lamp on a huge oak table that shone like a mirror, she said:

"If you should need more firewood, monsieur, you will find it in the next room. Do not spare it. It is bitter cold, and there will be more than enough firewood in Quessant in two or three days. Good night."

"I sat down before the blazing fire and prepared for a cozy evening. The storm raged in the narrow streets of the little village. The surges thundered against the granite breast of the coast like endless artillery fire, and sometimes I imagined that the very island trembled under the onslaught of the hundreds of millions of tons of water.

"As I sat listening I gazed into the flames. The wood struck me as strange. And then I wondered. On the entire island there is not a single tree, and yet I had been told not to spare firewood. There will be more than enough in two or three days."

"I arose and opened the door into the next room. That room was possibly 20 feet high and was filled almost to the top with timber. First with wonder, then with growing awe, I gazed at the piles of wood. Truly she was right, the little maid, when she said that one need not be economical with firewood on the island of Quessant. There were timbers of every shape—splintered masts and spars, planks from decks and sides, remnants of a steering wheel, benches from the fore-castle, yellow, black, brown, white and red woods, even two figureheads, some bright, as if they were new, some crust-ed with shells and hung with seaweeds.

In the entire room there was not a piece of wood that did not come from some wrecked ship.

"When I returned to my room, I took the lamp and examined the place closely. I noticed a strange, delicate, yet very insistent fragrance—sandalwood. Thick wooden pillars supported the ceiling. They were of a beautiful dull black—ebony, as I lived. The panels were rosewood, mahogany and cedar. Even an unpracticed eye could see that all these precious woods once had ornamented the cabins of noble ships. The heavy carved chairs, the polished oaken table, even the bed in which I was to sleep, all came from shipwrecks.

"Now I understood the meaning of the words 'stand rights.' In favor of this island, far away from the world and murderous for the ships that tie the world together, Æolus, with his bride of the winds, is more fruitful than is Ceres to the mainlands, with her harvest moon and her blessings of fruit. The blessings of Quessant come from the gale.

"The forests of Quessant! Are there such others in the entire world, so unique, so terrible? This forest, instead of trees, has the mighty masts of ships. In that tremendous forest are the oaks and pines of Canada and Maine, the cypress of Florida, the baobabs of Africa, the teak of Hindustan, the ebony and sandalwood of South America. The awful forests of Quessant form the visible apex of a vast cemetery that stretches from New York to Cape La Hague."

Before the Footlights.

"I understand that young man who calls on you," said old Mr. Straitlance, "wants to become an actor."

"Yes," replied his fair daughter, "he does think of appearing before the footlights."

"Humph! The next time he calls you'd better warn him to think of disappearing before the foot lights."—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Bird of Passage.

"And where, may I ask, do you generally reside?" the young man said after all other subjects had been exhausted.

"Oh, I have no fixed abode," Miss Mobile replied, "but I usually pass the greater part of the winter in Reading. In Lent I find myself attracted to St. Paul. After Easter I go down to West Virginia and spend the summer and part of the autumn in Wheeling."

"And then?"

"Then, Mr. Heavy, I find myself admirably prepared for a month or two of Aiken."—New York Herald.

A Good Cricketer.

Dr. W. G. Grace was once giving a brilliant batting display at the oval, and one of the spectators observed to his friend: "Did you ever see anything like it? Why, he puts 'em wherever he likes." "Well," said the other, "it's all practice—he's always at it—he doesn't waste any of his time over family prayers."—C. W. Alcock's "Cricket Stories."

THE OLD OAK TREE.

The sweetest thing of earth to me
Is the south wind in the old oak tree.

It moves the branches to and fro;
The shadows dance on the grass below.

The leaves move lightly in the air;
Their rustle seems a whispered prayer.

Deep in the tangled grass I lie,
Seeing but glimpses of the sky.

So thick the green leaves are above,
So light, so soft the breezes move.

I wonder not that men have stood
Before some giant of the wood

And made it of their prayers a shrine,
Deeming it held a soul divine.

The New Holland Boat.

Christened by Miss Grace Day, a charming southern debutante, the submarine boat Moccasin was launched last week at the Crescent shipyards in Elizabethport.

The launching of the Moccasin was accomplished without the slightest mishap, and the queer looking craft that is capable of sinking the mightiest warship took the water neatly. She made a bow to the launching party as she settled in the water, but promptly righted and looked fit for business. John P. Holland, the inventor, watched her as she slid down the ways, and could not conceal the satisfaction he felt at the accepted success of his life work.

The Moccasin, like her sister boat, the Adder, which was launched recently, is 63 feet 4 inches in length and 11 feet 9 inches abeam. She looked insignificant beside the other vessels in the yard, but she looked like a trouble maker, with her tail and fins shipped for action and her torpedo tube gaping. The Moccasin will have a 160 horse-power gasoline engine for running on the surface of the water and a 70 horse-power electric motor for driving her under water. She will be capable of making ten knots an hour on the surface and eight knots submerged.

Little time was lost in formalities. Miss Day, who is a petite Richmond girl with brown hair and big brown eyes, took her place on the decorated platform, with a great bunch of roses in one arm and a bottle of champagne in her right hand. At 12:13 o'clock Mr. Nixon gave the word and the boat started down the ways.

"I christen thee Moccasin," Miss Day said as she broke the bottle of champagne on the prow of the vessel.

Col. Flaviano Paliza, president of the Mexican Commission of Inspection; Mme. Paliza, Capt. Stehensnovitch, president of the Russian Inspection Commission, and several other officers of the Russian navy, witnessed the christening. They were keenly interested in the new craft.

The Moccasin is the second of five Holland boats which are being built at the Crescent yards. The government ordered seven of the vessels, and two are being built in San Francisco. The Holland company receives $175,000 each for the boats. The company also is having five of the boats built for the British government.

To Improve the Government.

Hans Jenson, a Dane, recently appeared before the magistrate of the district court held in Garnett, Kas., to be naturalized. At the close of the usual examination the judge asked the applicant: "Hans, are you satisfied with the general conditions in this country? Does this government suit you entirely?" "Yes, yas," answered Hans; "only I would like to see more rain." "You may be sworn," said the judge; "I perceive that you already have the Kansas idea."—[Kansas City Star.]

The Good Work.

It was morning in the Philippines.

The commander-in-chief of the American forces put his head through the flap of his tent and called to his orderly to have the major commanding the advance division summoned.

"Ah, major," he said, as that functionary approached, "have my instructions been carried out?"

"They have, sir," replied the major.

"Have you issued an order that every native village will be pillaged and neither men, women or children shall have shelter?"

"I have, sir."

"And did you burn down all those houses that you told me about?"

"Every one."

"And have you left nothing undone to impress upon these half civilized wretches that there will be no quarter of any sort as long as they try to protect their homes?"

"I have."

"Then," said the commander-in-chief turning to his secretary, "write out a dispatch to the home papers saying that it will only be a short time now before the honor of America will be completely vindicated"—With apologies to New York Life.

Meteorological Fickleness.

Two commercial travelers, one from Atherstone and one from New York, were discussing the weather in their respective countries. The Englishman said that English weather had one great fault—its sudden changes.

"A person may take a walk one day," he said, "attired in a light summer suit, and still feel quite warm. Next day he needs an overcoat."

"That's nothing," said the American, "My two friends, Johnson and Jones, were once having an argument. There were eight or nine inches of snow on the ground. The argument got heated, and Johnson picked up a snowball and threw it at Jones from a distance of not more than five yards. During the transit of that snowball, believe me or not, as you like, the weather suddenly changed and became hot and summerlike and Jones, instead of being hit with a snowball, was—er—scalded with hot water."—London Tit-Bits.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Fresh Milk On the Ocean.

It was on board a steamship that carried cattle to London. There were nearly 400 steers on her, going over to be made into the "Roast Beef of Old England."

On the second day out a lady from Boston, who sat at the captain's table, asked him, as she poured out some evaporated cream into her coffee:

"Captain is this fresh cream?"

"Yes, madam," replied the captain blandly.

"Why, of course," hastily said the Boston lady, "how stupid of me to ask such a question with all those cows on board."—[Exchange.]

KELLOGG & FORD

Superintendent Gilbert of the N. P. came in on his special car Tuesday and in company with I. P. Englehart went up to Wenas station with a view to improving the shipping facilities there so as to accommodate the rapidly increasing productions of the Selah and Wenas valleys. Arrangements have been completed by private parties for the construction of a large stone warehouse at the station next spring.

Deputy Sheriff Leach on Monday brought Jack Swindler up from Kennewick to answer to a charge of assault and battery on Chas. Conway on August 21st. The case was tried before Justice Taggard Tuesday, a jury being demanded by the defendant. The testimony showed the matter to have grown out of a neighborly row, Swindler having ordered Conway not to make a driveway across his ranch, abusive words finally leading to blows, in which the latter seems to have been badly worsted. The jury found the defendant guilty, fining him one dollar and costs, which ran up to about $135. Swindler gave an appeal bond and will take the matter before the superior court.

Curious Coincidence

Sitting on the veranda of an old country house at Burlington, Vt., and looking over Lake Champlain to the far Adirondacks, they were talking the other day, the two women and the two men who, with their host, composed a charming house party, of coincidences in their several lives. One of the men, a good-looking New York bachelor of some 40 years of age and 60 of experience, who had remained silent while his companions in turn detailed this or that individual happening, finally quietly said:

"I have experienced the most curious coincidence the past year imaginable. I was taking that always beautiful coaching trip from Cork to the Lakes of Killarney. Seated beside me on the top of the coach was a fine-looking Englishman of about 50 years of age. Learning that I was an American, he became much interested and asked numerous questions as to our politics, social life, etc., all most intelligent and some hard to answer. Suddenly he noticed coming along the road the queerest old countryman imaginable. His antiquated clothes and venerable hat drew from me unconsciously the expression: 'There's an old 'Yap' going to town, I suppose. In New York the hunko' steerers would soon get hold of him.'

"My companion looked at me very curiously and said: 'I beg your pardon, but what did you call that old chap?'

"I said he was a 'yap,'" I replied. "Will you kindly tell me what you mean by a yap?" said my neighbor.

"Oh, it's an American expression," I replied. "It means an innocent countryman—a—a—a greeny, in fact—a jay." The Englishman looked fixedly at me a moment, put his hand in his pocket, pulled out his card case, and gravely extracting his card, handed it to me. Imagine my feelings! The card was inscribed 'Mr. Richmond Yap.' "

To the shouts of incredulity that greeted this remarkable story the bachelor produced the card, which was handed round amid roars of laughter.—New York Times.

His First Effort.

(Denver Times.)

It happened that he had never been on board a boat, but he had an aching longing to ride the bounding billows.

He sailed on board a whaler, and was leaning over the stern rail, making a minute examination of the Atlantic ocean, when the captain shouted to the men:

"Heave up that anchor!"

The landlubber just then saw something interesting in the depths.

"Hey, there! Are you going to heave up that anchor?" angrily demanded the captain.

"I think I am, sir," replied the new one, clutching his vest convulsively; "I think it's coming up now, sir."

Pet Animals.

It has sometime been argued that the keeping of pet animals is one way to develop the humane instincts of people in general. Like other practices, however, this one is good only when it is not abused, as it frequently is. When one considers the number of miserable little beasts yearly trapped, captured and bred in cages for the amusement of mankind, it seems as if some better method of amusement might be devised.

Of course, there are people who make friends and companions of their pets, and although nobody can be absolutely certain about animal psychology, it may be that the dog, horse or bird derives an amount of pleasure from contact with the superior mind which more than repays the loss of freedom. In the case of a highly bred dog or saddle-horse it is almost certain that this is so. But these are in minority when the whole number of domesticated animals is considered.

In the first place, it is certainly cruelty to take a wild creature out of its natural environment and place it in a cage where it can have little exercise, no natural companionship, and often no suitable food. It is entirely possible for people living in a country town or small village to tame squirrels, birds and other wild creatures without in the least interfering with their freedom, if they choose to use a little patience. Most wild animals will come where they are not afraid of being hurt. The red squirrel can be coaxed to come from his hole and eat corn from the hand of a human being and birds of all kinds are easily tamed in the same way. One who has once enjoyed the delight of winning the confidence of the wood-tolk will never again wish to keep any of them in a cage.

The animal which is bred for the purpose of domestication, like the lap-dog, the Persian cat, the white mouse, or the canary, is usually inferior in intelligence to the wild animal, for the very good reason that it does not need as much brains to be fed, petted and put to sleep as to get one's living in the midst of a throng of enemies. There are two ways, however, in which the keeping of these animals can be made really beneficial to children and adults; one is by making companions of them, developing all the intelligence they have, and the other is by choosing pets of a sort whose intelligence is already considerable. Children should be encouraged to be kind to their pets and to make friends with them, and this cannot be done if there is not intelligence on the other side. If the comfort and well-being of the animal is studied it will be good for the master as well as the pet, for altruism generally works in that way, but candor will compel most people to admit that nothing of the kind is usually done.

"Daughter of the Diamond King"

The coming attraction, "Daughter of the Diamond King," is said to be one of the greatest hits known in years, both from an artistic and a monetary standpoint. Its popularity is due to its beautiful story, and the simple manner in which it is told, by a cast that must have been carefully picked out to fit each individual character. So perfectly do they conform to the creation of the author's brain that one forgets he is watching a play, that he is gazing upon a reflection of nature, and when the old school master says: "Come, children, take your seats, fold your hands," to the accompaniment of such detail as the rattle of slates and the closing of books, it needs no great flight of imagination to take one back to the time he sharpened slate pencils, or had to stay after school for eating apples behind the geography. Another loadstone the author has discovered upon which to anchor public favor is the sweetheart of school days; they are the leading characters in the play and their joys and sorrows are felt in every human heart that witnesses the development of their bliss and the bitterness of their sorrow when the unveiling of the plot casts obstacles across their path. "Daughter of the Diamond King" will be the attraction at Larson's theatre with a strong cast of 20 persons headed by La Belle Laurette for one night, Wednesday September, 4th.

Their Secret Is Out.

Composition on Love.

Love is a thing that makes people think each other pretty when nobody else does.

It causes two persons to be awful quiet when you're round and also quiet when you're not round—only in a different way.

It also causes people to sit together on one end of a bench when there's heaps of room on the other end.

Nurses has it and sometimes policemen. That's when they don't know where you are, and you have lots of fun playing on the grass.

Husbands and wives has it, but most generally only lovers.

Old people don't have much, 'cause it has to be about dimples and red cheeks and fluffy curls and lots of things which old people don't ever have.

When I grow up, I'll have to go and love some one, I suppose. Only she'll have to let me say what to do.

I've written all I know about it till I do grow up.—Eddy in New York Sun.

Not to Blame.

"Della, this is no way! The dirt in this room must have been here a month."

"Then blame the girl before me, ma'am. I've only been here three weeks."—Exchange.

It's a grand tonic, and its gentle laxative qualities are splendid for torpid liver." For indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Stomach and Liver troubles it's a positive, guaranteed cure.
