Dear Pete:

Just a note and a small enclosure to show you my heart is in the right place. More of the latter [the enclosure, not the heart] anon.

I'd expected to have ~~xx~~ photo of the cover by now. It is finished but Quig is to do a separate of the title, the lettering and then he'll either send it or I'll pick it up at Maryhill about July 10 when there's a reception for Percy Manser.

Hope things have been going well with you and that you'll get a break shortly to nibble away at something. Would be fine if it could be turned in another month, but that's up to you. Forget the exact deadline, which I noted in original letter, but I have a suspicion that by jumping the gun, it will prod the publisher into action.

I'm getting all kind of nice connections for tie-ins.

Don't let getting the work out worry you, because I know how it is. You'll get a chance one of these days.

I know how it is to get time to write, too, so don't bother about that. I'll understand

Kind regards
