TRUSTS, trusts, trusts and the end not yet. Surely this is an age of trusts. The mind of the ordinary man is dazed and bewildered in contemplation of these wonderful monsters which suddenly appear as if by occult means and quickly absorb the business of the country, each in its particular trade or industry. Only a few weeks ago it was announced that the acme of perfection had been reached in the trust-hatching business by the creation of the mammoth steel combine with an authorized capitalization, under the infamous New Jersey law, of one billion, one-hundred million dollars. But it is now evident that the climax had not yet been reached, for now we have the information, given out as it seems from headquarters, that a satisfactory basis of agreement has been reached for the centralization into one gigantic corporation of practically all of the vast railway interests of the country. This new combine will, it is said, consist of the united holdings of such giant magnates as Morgan, Vanderbilt, Rockefeller, Gould, Hill, Hariman and other interests. These six men now control, it is claimed, over one hundred thousand miles of railway trackage in the United States. At this writing the articles of incorporation had not yet been filed, so the capitalization of the new trust cannot be given, but it is evident that it can be most easily computed by billions, as like most other trusts it will doubtless water its stock up to the full limit. The announced purpose of the combine as given out by its promoters is to bring about economy in management and to stop rate cutting. It may readily be assumed, however, that among the first acts of the new corporation will come a material advance in rates, for such is the invariable policy of trust management. From the standpoint of the producer the transportation trust is easily the most dangerous, for in its grasp he is helpless and can find no way in which to circumvent it. In order to live he must necessarily market his product and pay the toll demanded. Besides he must also pay on what he consumes outside of his own production. Other trusts will also demand their pound of flesh but in many cases it is possible to avoid payment by exercising the virtue of self-denial. In the nature of things the burdens imposed by trust rule will bear most heavily on the farmer, as he is by long odds the greatest producer of raw products and at the same time the largest consumer of manufactured materials. It is impossible to foresee the ultimate outcome of this pernicious system. Some intelligent writers think they can already see, through the medium of the trust, the rising star of state socialism. Others take a more pessimistic view and assert that the logical sequence of trustism is reaction and national decadence, whereby the masses of the people will be reduced to a system akin to peonage, ruled by the iron hand of an oligarchy that will eventually control all wealth. Such are the views of extremists. The latter is especially repulsive for the reason that such prophecy implies absolute helplessness on the part of the people. Between the two extremes is a golden mean, the vantage ground occupied by the democratic party. The democratic theory is that the trust is not as is claimed, a natural or legitimate product of an evolutionary law of trade, but is instead the result mainly of rotten class legislation, and that the trust beast after being hatched out instead of being killed as it should have been, has been carefully nurtured and fed through the mistaken policy of the party in power until now it has reached its full maturity. However strong it may be the democratic party believes that the people's government is still stronger and that the proper way to deal with the monster is to take it by the throat and choke it to death. If Mr. Bryan were president he would doubtless find a way to wring the water out of the trust stocks and that done the majority of them would fall of their own weight. It is useless, however, to expect heroic treatment of the evil from the present occupant of the White House. A president who will have nobody for an attorney-general save a trust lawyer, has no disposition to fight the evil.

THE press bureau of "Yakima" Jones at Washington City would appear to be working over-time these days. Scarcely a day passes, according to the special dispatches in the P.-L., but what our genial congressman may be caught hobnobbing with the president. While not thus pleasantly engaged he is mighty apt to be up in some of the departments, jacking up some of the little fellers there in the interest of his constituents. "Yakima" is a good fellow himself and a good neighbor. He has so far progressed amazingly fast in the statesman-making business and it doesn't seem to have turned his head either. But he should profit by the experience of other people he knows of and not overwork the press bureau, for there is serious danger of killing that tender little senatorial boomlet by an overdose of publicity.

THE result of the municipal elections held this week in various states generally speaking is highly favorable to the democrats. In nearly all the large cities especially the democratic tickets, won out. Carter Harrison was again elected mayor of Chicago by a plurality of 30,000, carrying the entire ticket with him. The democrats were likewise successful in St. Louis which city they had not carried for fifteen years. Tom L. Johnson the millionaire reformer and single tax advocate was elected mayor on the democratic ticket in Cleveland by 3000 plurality. This puts Johnson in an advantageous position to contest the seat of Senator Foraker which he intends doing.

THE past month of March was a fatal and final one for many of the old pioneers of Washington. Secretary Fuller of the State Historical Society reports 350 as having joined the silent majority during that time, a much greater number than has ever been recorded before within a like period. Of the total number Yakima county contributed eight. In the rush and whirl of everyday affairs the average person perhaps thinks but little of how rapidly the old pioneers are passing away. Each carries to the grave a history, largely unwritten, of many splendid achievements in the grand work that they did in laying the foundation stones of a great state.

GENERALLY speaking the republicans have not been able to derive much comfort from the result of the municipal elections throughout twelve states, for the drift is unmistakably away from their party. Chicago rolled up nearly 30,000 majority for Carter Harrison, Cleveland, the home of Hanna, gives Tom L. Johnston the millionaire reformer 3000. St. Louis, which has been republican for fifteen years elected the whole democratic ticket by about 10,000, while a great many of the smaller cities done equally as well. It looks as though the last dose of Hannanism had begun to nauseate a good many people.

ENGLAND with her hands full in South Africa was in no position to call the bluff of the Russian bear in China, but little Japan begun to square herself for a fight, seeing which the bear began to back down as gracefully as possible by announcing that he didn't want Manchuria no how. American sympathy with Russia in this or any other matter is misplaced. A government so besotted in absolutism as to banish from its dominions such a grand old philosopher as Count Tolstoi does not deserve sympathy or consideration from men who inhabit a free country.

THE Republic's editor has felt so humorous lately that his paper has fairly slopped over with his effervescent wit. It is true that that the colonel's editorials are short on logic but as they are long on quaint and original humor his readers are not so likely to detect flaws in his argument. We suggest that the colonel get his jokes copyrighted before they get to be common property. He might then be able to sell them to some unsuspecting individual who possesses the necessary refrigerator facilities.

NATURE, the kindly old dame, is a little late about sending the glad spring time, but is making up now for past dereliction.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Hortense A. Lynne, a 14-year-old girl, died in Parker last Sunday of tuberculosis.

Night Watchman Starrett is off duty and James McAllister is now filling that position.

E. J. Wyman is putting up a commodious warehouse at the corner of Second and B. streets to accommodate his growing trade in vehicles.

Chas. Leice has disposed of his news business to A. B. Flint, who will conduct it hereafter. Mr. Leice expects to go to Klondike about the middle of May.

A large crowd attended the ball given at Mason's opera house by the local lodge of Redmen Monday night. Dancing was indulged in until the small hours of morning.

A full house greeted the production of "Faust" at Larson's theater last Saturday evening. It is one of the best spectacular productions traveling, and on the whole was well presented.

Tom Harvey who has been staying at his sheep camp on the Columbia throughout the winter was in town over Sunday. He reports that his band has come through in excellent shape, and that a larger percentage of lambs than usual is the result.

Miss Anna Liggett entertained a number of her little friends on her birthday Saturday afternoon April 6. Various games were indulged in peculiar to childhood, after which dainty refreshments were served. All expressed themselves as having a good time.

"Sincerity in Worship" will be the subject discussed by Rev. W. S. Crockett at the Christian church Sunday evening, the services beginning at 8 o'clock. All are invited. The pulpit was occupied last Sunday by Robert E. Dunlap, an eloquent divine of Seattle.

Under the auspices of G. A. R. and W. R. C. the old fashioned school of fifty years ago will convene at Mason's opera house, Saturday, April 13th, at early candle light, (8 o'clock). Solomon Wisacre, Pedagogue. Admission 25cts. Children under 12 years 10 cts.

T. M. Elliott, of Elliott, North Dakota, has just arrived with a carload of Percheron and Shire stallions; also the beautiful Shetland stallion, George Washington, and a number of Jacks and Jennets, which he intends to offer for sale or service. Call and see him at the O. K. barn.

T. R. Dengel, who has been an occupant of the county jail for the past eleven months, awaiting the result of the decision of the supreme court on an appeal thereto from a conviction of robbery in the superior court here, was discharged last Saturday on a remittitur compelling that action.

J. Frank Garrett and Miss Elmira Floyd were united in marriage by Rev. W. S. Crockett, at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Saturday, April 6. Mr. Garrett is the well known brick man and the bride the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd of the upper Natchez. The Democrat tenders the happy couple its best wishes.

At the session in chambers of the superior court on Wednesday, Vestal Snyder acting as special judge, John McAllister was granted a divorce from his wife, Grace McAllister. Both sides were represented at the hearing and it was clearly developed that they could no longer dwell together in unity. The parties to the suit reside in Prosser.

Easter Sunday for loveliness was certainly all that could be desired. The morning and evening services at the different churches were well attended, the programs rendered being well executed and particularly attractive. The display of spring hats and bonnets representing the highest type of the milliners art, is said to have been unusually fine for such an occasion.

Flint & Shaw this week received from the Michigan factory a carload of elegant walnut sideboards and bedroom suits, together with a big consignment of iron bedsteads. This North Yakima Furniture company, of which these gentlemen are the representatives, request the public to come and examine these goods, for they consider them as fine as ever brought to North Yakima.

John Lillie, son of former City Marshal Lillie, was brought in from the reservation Wednesday with a broken leg. While in the neighborhood of Ft. Simcoe his horse threw him with such violence as to break both bones of his right ankle. He was conveyed to the residence of W. F. Powell in this city, where the fracture was reduced by a local physician. Young Lillie's family now resides in Seattle, and he is here on a visit to friends.

The marriage of Joe Ditter, the popular young dry goods merchant of this city, to Miss Alma Schanno of The Dalles, Or., will be solemnized at the young lady's home next Tuesday, April 16th. The bride to be is the daughter of Hon. Emil Schanno, a leading citizen of The Dalles, and is a cousin of Mrs. J. B. Catron, Mrs. Matt Bartholet and their brothers the Schanno boys, who formerly resided here. Miss Schanno, who has visited this city frequently, has many warm friends here.

President Donald of the Commercial club on Thursday received a telegram from Congressman Jones, stating that President McKinley and party would arrive in North Yakima Saturday, May 25th at 10:30 a. m. and depart at 11:00. It is understood that the president does not desire a formal reception with the usual handshaking. Such being the case the arrangements made for entertaining the distinguished party during the brief time they remain here will probably consist of a carriage drive about the city.

On Friday evening George Donald gave a theater party, at Modjeska's performance, in entertainment of Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Dr. and Mrs. Burns and Miss Howard.

The advance sale of seats for Modjeska's performance Friday night was the greatest ever known in this town. The play of "McBeth" was put on instead of "Mary Stuart" as at first intended.

Frank Kremer, night bartender for Turner & Fletcher, was held up by a burly highwayman near the First National bank, while going to his home about midnight Thursday. The hold-up, according to the victim, did not secure enough to secure a square.

Bent Goodwin, who is now living at Roza, brought to town on Friday some samples of an excellent quality of white chalk and slate which he and his brother Tom have recently discovered in the hills near their home. Mr. Goodwin says that there are large deposits of both materials where he found the samples mentioned.

Sunday night some miscreant threw a large cobble stone from the sidewalk through the window of Keene's jewelry store on First street, and levanted with all the jewelry they could carry off, amounting, according to Mr. Keene's estimate, to about $250. The stone went through two show cases inside the store, and carried havoc in its wake. Ernest Stafford, an employee, who was sleeping in the rear of the building, was aroused and fired several shots toward the front of the store, but the marauder escaped with his plunder unscathed.

N. N. Yeates met with an accident Friday evening of last week, which nearly led to a fatal result. He was driving homeward from town without the slightest apprehension of approaching danger, when suddenly his horse getting scared started to run. Caught unawares, Mr. Yeates was pitched out of the vehicle striking the hard roadway on his head. The sudden impact with mother earth rendered him unconscious, a condition from which he did not emerge until the following morning. A short time subsequent to the accident he was picked up by some passer-by and taken home. The runaway horse did little damage to himself or the vehicle aside from breaking the shafts.

R. D. Reed has recently added to his laundry plant some expensive but necessary machinery, which includes a shirt starcher and a machine to iron neck bands on the same necessary article of wearing apparel. Mr. Reed believes and finds that it pays to keep fully abreast of the times.

A telegram was received here Friday of last week announcing the death on that day at his home in Memphis, Mo., of J. W. Cody the aged father of Lee Cody and Mrs. F. H. Hunter of this city and Mrs. W. A. Cox of Medical Lake. Dr. Gunn who was a brother-in-law of the deceased, states that death was caused by a sudden stroke of paralysis.

J. V. Mohr, a wealthy citizen of Sioux Falls, S. D. has become heavily interested in Sunnyside realty, he having purchased in all 220 acres of land from the Washington Irrigation Co. The final meeting of the Yakima Whist club took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Rankin on Thursday evening. The attendance was good consisting of not only the regular members but a number of invited guests. The gentleman's prize, a handsome card case, was won by Earl B. Watt, the ladie's prize, a cup and saucer, was secured by Mrs. Diteman. The "booby" prize, consisting of a work basket was gathered in by Mrs. A. E. Larson. The occasion was pronounced by many present as the most enjoyable session of the season.

Ethan, the eldest son of Dr. W. F. Morrison, formerly of this city, but now of Spokane, was in town this week on his way to Spokane from Seattle. The young man has had a rather varied experience since leaving here five years ago, having spent a year in the Philippines with the Washington regiment and last summer at Cape Nome. After spending a couple of weeks with his parents, he will proceed to Nelson, B. C. to look after some mining interests. Mr. Morrison expressed surprise at the signs of improvement that he noticed in North Yakima.

The sheep and cattle men had meetings in the city last Saturday, and a conference committee from each body met and finally agreed to settle the range proposition upon the same basis as last year—that is, each are to occupy the range allotted them last season. D. B. Sheller, the reserve supervisor, was in attendance, and expressed satisfaction that an agreement had been reached, but says that no orders have as yet been received by him allowing stock to range on the reserve. He thinks, however, that the same ruling will be in force that existed last year.

Hon. T. M. Elliot of North Dakota, the well known horseman, arrived Tuesday bringing with him a carload of fine horses and Jacks which he procured in Tennessee. He has an interesting announcement for farmers and horsemen in another column. Mr. Elliot intends to remove his family to this county as soon as he can satisfactorily adjust his business affairs in Dakota. He was accompanied on his trip by B. B. Stephens of Lisbon in the same state, who contemplates engaging in the stock business here. Both gentlemen have been for years prominent in Dakota politics, the latter having served a term as state railroad commissioner.

For Pan-American Exhibit.

Yakima People Ought to Make a Good Showing.

E. F. Benson of the N. P. Land Department at Tacoma, was in the city Saturday in the interest of the exhibit to be made by this state at the great Pan-American exposition which opens at Buffalo, N. Y. on May 1st. It was Mr. Benson's purpose to have addressed the governing board of the Commercial club at its meeting on Saturday night but as it was impossible to secure a quorum of the membership no session of the board was held.

Mr. Benson, it will be remembered, devoted much time and attention to the preparation and exhibition of Yakima county products at the Chicago World's Fair in 1893. It is conceded on all sides that his valuable work at that time bore good fruit for this section by bringing in a most desirable class of settlers.

He stated to the DEMOCRAT while here, that in his judgment the Buffalo exposition would discount the World's Fair because of the fact that it would in all likelihood receive a much greater patronage in attendance which would of course give it greater value as a medium for advertising this valley. Besides this is an era in which many eastern people are migrating or preparing to migrate westward in search of new homes.

Mr. Benson thinks that it is possible to secure at least a choice assortment of winter apples for exhibition purposes for which the commissioners of the state will pay the market value. The apples with whatever other produce we have to offer after being shipped to Buffalo, can be divided, and a portion placed in cold storage. It will thus be possible to piece out with what can now be secured until the season for new fruit and other produce begins, when a plenty can of course be secured.

W. N. Granger of Zillah, the well known manager of the Washington Irrigation Co., was in town Monday and in conversation with the editor of this paper emphasized the great importance of having Yakima products represented at the big fair. "Within 500 miles of Buffalo," said Mr. Granger, "are the homes of over twenty-million people, so it is safe to assume that the attendance at the Pan-American exhibition will be something enormous. We never had a better chance to advertise the wonderful resources of Yakima county and our people ought to wake up to the necessity of doing something in the way of making a suitable exhibit."

A number of other citizens when approached on the subject, voiced the same sentiment. It is probable that the Commercial club at its meeting this evening will consent to take the initiatory step towards securing an exhibit.

Meanwhile it will be well for farmers or any others who still have fine apples, potatoes or any other good samples of their products, to leave word at this office in order to facilitate the work that must be done quickly, of collecting the exhibit.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle. NORTH YAKIMA. APRIL 13, 1901

The Light of Jefferson.

(By H. S. Taylor.)

With bare, bowed heads and standing up
We lift a loyal loving cup

And give the name of one
Who was the light of Freedom's host,
Our father's pride, our country's boast,
A name we love, the name we toast,
The patriot Jefferson!

He came like Moses, sent of God,
His pen, the wave-dividing rod
That opened Freedom's way
Out of the ancient, dark domain
Of violence and fear and pain,
Where bigots rage and tyrants reign,
Into the better day!

Wide-minded, wise, and wisely good,
His lucid spirit understood
The villainy of spoil;
That God Almighty never gave
One man, however wise and brave,
The right to call another SLAVE
And fatten on his toil!

He leveled up, he leveled down;
The beggar's clout, the monarch's crown,
He held as equal things;
The children, playing by the door
Where dwell the unknown, humble poor,
He knew might do and count for more
Than any line of kings!

His reverent eyes could always trace
God's image in the human face;
And each man, great or small,
He judged, alone, by moral worth
And claimed for each, by right of birth,
A chance to live on God's green earth
And share the hopes of all!

He knew the bulwarks of the State,
The things that guard and make it great
Lie not in brutal might;
But in the force of free consent
And honest statutes—framed and meant
To foster labor, peace, content,
Equality and right!

Thus from his heart he sagely drew
In lines of light, forever true,
Our Nation's august Chart.
Tyrants and robbers hate and fear:
That beacon thought so bright and clear,
That time and trial make it dear,
To every freeman's heart!

And so we lift the loving cup
With bare, bowed heads and standing up
We give the name of one
Who is our democratic boast,
The Moses of our marching host,
Whose name we love, whose name we toast,
The name of Jefferson!

Inheritance Tax Law.

The inheritance law passed by the recent legislature is entirely new legislation so far as this state is concerned and is considered one of the most important acts which have become laws. The measure is based for the most part on the Iowa statutes and has embodied in it besides the four supreme court decisions, making it a more perfect and up-to-date instrument. The Iowa law applies only to collateral heirs; no exemption is made and a 5 per cent tax, while the law passed by the Washington legislature applies both to direct and collateral inheritances.

In the matter of the rate of taxation, Senator Hallett, of this county, author of the bill, has adopted the progressive rate along the method in vogue in England relating to collaterals. The rates are as follows: On all estates passing to father, mother, or lineal descendants of husband or wife or adopted children, the first $10,000 of appraised valuation is exempt from taxation, and only 1 per cent is charged on the balance of the estate. To collateral heirs no exemption is made and on all estates the first $50,000 to relatives up to and including the third degree of relationship is taxed 3 per cent, on the second $50,000 4½ per cent and on any amount over $100,000 6 per cent. To all persons beyond the third degree of relationship or to strangers to the blood the rates are doubled in the same gradation, viz: 6, 9 and 12 per cent.

It is made the duty of the secretary of state to furnish all courts, appraisers, etc., tables showing values of term or life estates and remainders according to the American tables of mortality based on 4 per cent.—Spokesman-Review.

(Week of prayer in behalf of the Lord's day. April 14th to 21st inclusive.)

While our population increased only 26 per cent in the decade just closed, the Sunday labor augmented no less than 56 per cent. But worse than common toil, ball games, theatrical performances, circuses, shows of all sorts, excursions, picnics and social parties, balls and dances that extend far into the Lord's day morning, are now seen on Sunday in our land.

Is the restful, thoughtful, worshipful type of Sunday which has been enshrined in our American life and law and history to give place to the reckless holiday and ruinous work day? The Sabbath of our fathers is worth more to our country than any of the great inventions and discoveries of the past century. Compare the history of England with Spain for the past four centuries and see if a good Sunday does not help to develop the strong elements of statesmanship and commercial power.

It is indeed the great conservator of all that is pure, beautiful, lovely and of good report. When the blessed day is desecrated by coarse pleasure or servile labor, it becomes a curse rather than a blessing.

The Lord's day, the peoples' rest and study day, the day of home joy and inspiration and elevation we must protect. All Christians, all patriots, all thinkers, all lovers of their fellowmen have here a common cause. The apathy of today should be shaken off. The good people all over the country must awaken and unite. Therefore,

We request the W. C. T. U. and all other organizations of every name that are working to give our land a better Sabbath; to use the Lord's day week as a time for special prayer, for union meetings for distribution of literature and for such practical efforts as may be deemed best in each locality. Be prompt to act in this important matter. The season is at hand when we shall see every form of amusement attracting our young people from thinking of the sanctity of the Sabbath. Let us do what we can to avert the growing tendency of desecration.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, April 5, 1901.

Mr. McKinley and Boss Hanna have again had their heads together over Ohio politics. They don't like the returns from the municipal elections in the State, and they specially dislike the election of Tom L. Johnson to be mayor of Cleveland. They recognize that Mr. Johnson's successful re-entry into politics means trouble and a lot of it for the republican machine in Ohio, and that it may turn out also to be a factor in the national political arena, as it is an open secret that Mr. Johnson only became a candidate for mayor as a stepping stone to a nomination for something higher. They believe that Mr. Johnson will be a central figure in the state campaign this year, whether he becomes the democratic candidate for governor or the democratic candidate to succeed Senator Foraker, and they fear him and his known personal popularity in the State. And they are not alone in fearing him. Col. W. G. Telford, of Columbus, which also elected a democratic mayor, who is a republican and has something of a reputation as an expert on the currents of Ohio politics, and who is now in Washington, said: "Mayor-elect Johnson will start with an advantage now for higher places. He is very clearly in line for the democratic nomination for governor this year. Nobody believes that he can carry the State, but he may make trouble in the legislature. And if he can even reduce Gov. Nash's majority for a re-election to a small figure he will be a powerful factor in the democratic National Convention. He surely is a vote-getter."

According to the whispered gossip around the War Department, Mr. Meiklejohn, who is in Washington, he says to attend to some private matters, and others say to see if he cannot get hold of another federal salary, and Secretary Root had a bitter quarrel, during which the former accused the latter of having prevented his election to the Senate by forcing him out of the position of Assistant Secretary of War while the Nebraska legislature was in a deadlock, and Secretary Root retorted by saying that the duties of the Assistant Secretary of War were in Washington, and not in Lincoln, Nebraska.

Again Pierpoint Morgan! That man seems determined to control everything in sight and a lot of things not in sight. While officials deny the story that Mr. Morgan, during his recent visit to Mr. McKinley, offered to buy out the Panama Canal Co. and complete the canal, giving the U. S. government any concessions it might desire as to the control of the canal in time of war, with private capital without cost to this government, provided, that Mr. McKinley would pledge this government to kill the project for the construction of a canal over the Nicaragua route, it is believed in Washington that Mr. Morgan did make some such offer to Mr. McKinley and further that it is being considered. The story is plausible, and if true would explain much of the mysterious opposition to the Nicaragua Canal bill which constantly cropped out in unexpected places while the late Congress was in session. It is known that Mr. Morgan's relations are close with the big railroad interests that opposed Nicaragua Canal legislation, as well as with the capitalists who compose the so-called American Panama Canal Co., which is believed to have been organized for purely speculation purposes. Another thing that adds to the plausibility of the story is that the State Department, in its negotiations with the Columbian minister and the president of the Panama Canal Co., clearly shows its recognition of the possibility of the Panama canal passing under American control. Since it was started by De Lesseps the Panama Canal Co. has been not one swindle, but series of gigantic swindles, which have made rascals millionaires and thousands of honest French investors paupers. With that record open to all it is not conceivable that the American people will ever endorse any connection of this government under any circumstances or conditions with the Panama Canal Co.

The administration has once more revived the story that the Sultan of Turkey is about to pay those long-standing American missionary claims. Like all its predecessors, the new story says that this time payment is cocksure, owing to the cleverness with which our diplomats have got the Sultan bound. Common decency ought to keep the administration silent on this question until it can announce that these claims have been paid. It has allowed itself to be bluffed and bamboozled by the Sultan to an extent that has made this government the laughing stock of the diplomatic world.

It looks as though the administration were shifting the responsibility of dealing with Aguinaldo upon Gen. MacArthur's shoulders. At least that is the inference from its having suppressed Gen. MacArthur's cablegram telling how and why Aguinaldo took the oath of allegiance to the U. S.; also the instructions sent to MacArthur on the subject. It is an old game. If everything goes right, it will be announced that Gen. MacArthur was acting under instructions from the administration; if there is a slip anywhere that results in public condemnation, it will be said that Gen. MacArthur acted in his own discretion and made a mistake. In other words, it is a case of heads, McKinley wins, tails, MacArthur loses.

Vampires Not Bloodsuckers.

Mr. James Rhen, who is engaged in a special study of bats, says that it is a fallacy that the vampire is a blood-sucker. Travelers and story writers are responsible for the story of the terrible bloodsucking vampire bats of South America. Nearly all general writers on this subject agree with them as to its criminal record, and they all concur in laying the blame on a large grotesque looking bat with an enormous leaf nose, the Vampyrus spectrum. This bat is common in South and Central America and, from its great size, being about two feet across the outspread wings, is a suggestive and repulsive enough object to impute the blood loving habit to.

As a matter of fact, this is a somewhat useful animal and is totally innocent of these charges, the bloodsuckers being two much smaller and rarer bats. The front teeth of these two latter are enormous lancets occupying over half the tooth row of the animals and possessing very sharp edges, which can easily penetrate the human skin. The teeth of the big vampire, on the other hand, are simply adapted for a diet of insects and fruit. The true bloodsucking bats are much rarer than the vampire.—Philadelphia Record.

De Koven's Opera at Larson's Theater April 15th.

Messrs. Reginald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith have furnished in their collaboration in "The Highwayman", an opera that is picturesque and highly interesting. The scenes presented are laid in old England, and relate to the period when travel was carried on through the medium of stage coaches, and at the time when the country was infested by "gentlemen of the road." Mr. Smith has utilized an episode relating to the hold up of a coach in this present work, and has invested the scene with such realism that it appeals wonderfully to the senses of those who admire the romantic. The music by DeKoven interwoven throughout the scene is of a class that seems to enhance the realism of the incident. It is written in Mr. DeKoven's happiest vein, in fact the entire opera is one in which humor, pathos, and music are so happily joined that nothing but the most pleasurable results are obtained, and the company presenting this delightful opera we are told, is so capable that the points are adequately brought out and the music receives the interpretation that artists of the highest order usually can be depended upon for giving.

The opera is new so far as this city is concerned, yet the names of Reginald DeKoven and Harry B. Smith and of their joint efforts in "Robin Hood" and "Rob Roy" are so well known that "The Highwayman" should create an incentive on the part of music lovers to witness a performance of their latest and it is said their best work of collaboration. The company presenting "The Highwayman" here is said to be a more than capable one, and the names of the artists who are cast for the leading parts are well known and can be depended upon for a proper interpretation of the roles to which they are assigned. Miss Katharine Germaine the star of the organization is said to be one of the prettiest women on the comic opera stage, regal in appearance and possessing a voice of unusual brilliancy and histrionic ability of a high order, she should be in every way capable for a proper characterization of the role of Lady Constance. The dresses worn by Miss Germaine are magnificent, particularly the one she wears during the third act, which is a complicated Parisian creation, most elaborate and cost about $1000.00. It is profusely studded with Rhine stones, and the effect produced is positively charming. Mr. Edmund Stanley, one of the best tenors on the comic opera stage, will be heard as Captain Scarlet and Mr. H. W. Tre Denick who made himself famous in the East by his good work in "The Fencing Master" with Marie Tempest will play the part of Foxy Quiller, which by the way, is one of the best comedy roles that DeKoven and Smith have ever created. The balance of the cast is excellent, and the various characters are placed in the hands of capable artists.

A thirty-million dollar syndicate deal to place all the fishing industries of the Pacific Coast under the control of one company is the latest news from San Francisco. The matter is of more than passing interest to citizens of Puget Sound, and especially of Bellingham Bay and vicinity. This gigantic corporation, headed by J. Pierpoint Morgan, August Belmont and the Seligmans, will be in a position to dictate where Healthy Girls Make Happy Women.

There is no happiness without health. The woman who is a constant sufferer may learn to bear her burden, to accept her lot. She may have peace, but never happiness without health. Nothing is more necessary than extreme care of the health in girlhood. It is in girlhood that the little seeds of neglect are sown, the harvest of which may be life-long suffering for the woman. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is to be recommended as the one remedy which is sure to help and safe to use. Many preparations offered for woman's use contain deleterious drugs, the use of which breeds drug-slavery and degradation. There is no opium, cocaine or other narcotic in "Favorite Prescription." It contains neither whisky nor alcohol, but is strictly a temperance medicine. A purely vegetable preparation for woman's use, it cannot harm the most delicate system.

"Favorite Prescription" regulates the periods, dries unhealthy drains, heals inflammation and cures female weakness. It is a medicine especially designed for woman's ills, and has been acclaimed by those who use it "A God-send to women." It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

None of the promises made for "Favorite Prescription" can be made for a substitute medicine. Therefore, insist that, as you want a cure, you want the medicine which has cured others—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

"About ten years ago I was married and three months later I became pregnant, but I did not know what was the matter with me," writes Mrs. John Hemmis, Munson Station, Pa. "I was so sick and nervous, was not able to do any work at all; had to hire it all done. My husband's mother had been using your remedies, and one day she came over to see me and brought some of your 'Favorite Prescription' with her, and she said, 'Take that medicine—I know it will help you.' I took it and it did help me and I got better of the bad feelings that I had before I commenced taking it; was soon able to do my work myself. I took the medicine right along till after confinement, and I can safely say that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is better than all other doctors' medicine put together. Now I am happy and well, and the people who saw me before when I was sick and see me now have said—'How well you look,' and they ask me what I got to make me so well. I quickly tell them what made me better. Some of the neighbors have used the same medicine through my advice, and they have been greatly benefited, too. It used to be before I used your medicine that every month I had pains like labor pains, and then the flow would stop, and in a day or two come back again, and so on for a week at a time, and I would have to lie in bed, but now that is all over. I can go ahead with my work as if nothing was the matter. I will be ever thankful to God and you for having such remedies to help a poor suffering invalid like I was."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are small, easy to take, gentle in action and peculiarly adapted to be used as a laxative by women. Use them with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is needed.

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well.

canneries shall be established and operated, fix the price of salmon and destroy all competition. The gravest feature, however, will be the immense influence that can and will be brought to bear upon legislation. We do not wish to impeach the honesty of legislators, but hold that combined capital can employ brains and brains can make black look white to some people. This combine may be beneficial to Bellingham Bay, but if it is it will be at the expense of less favored sections.—Whatcom Blade.

Mr. Allafarro Tallafarro.

"I suppose," said a government clerk to the man across the table, "that you have heard of the Virginia family of Derby which spells its name E-n-r-o-u-g-h-t-y, as well as the Chumleys of England, but I came across one the other day that I'll bet a hat you never heard of. The subject of the sketch was a Virginian or claimed that he was, and he was so youthful and unsophisticated that I guess he was telling the truth. Children and fools, you know, have a weakness in that regard."

"I met the young fellow on a train between Richmond and Petersburg, and we struck up quite an acquaintance. He told me his name was Tolliver—Oliver Tolliver—and I very naturally asked him if he spelled his name as did the famous F. F. V. Tallafarros, and he said he did and seemed to be proud of it. I was rather proud to be friendly with one of the name myself and made myself extra agreeable."

"When he left me at a way station and bade me goodbye, he tendered me his card and told me he hoped I would not forget him. I didn't look at the card till he had gone, and, would you believe it, the young fellow had his name spelled to match, as it were, and it appeared thus, 'Mr. Allafarro Tallafarro,' which, in my humble opinion, was getting Oliver Tolliver down pretty fine. Don't you think so too?"—Washington Star.

Andrew Carnegie's philanthropy came late in life. While we have no doubt that his generous gifts are coming from the heart, we think it might have been well if some of his present ideas had come to him years ago. He now thinks it a sin for a man to die rich; but did it never occur to him that it was a sin for a man to get rich by some of the means that he employed to gain his wealth? Mr. Carnegie is giving much in good causes, yet he has need to give much. It will take millions of dollars to wipe out the blood that was shed at Homestead.—Goldendale Journal.

Every republican paper in the state is now singing the praises of Russell Hazzard. Mr. Hazzard is the same man who was appointed by Gov. Rogers over the wishes of the Centralia company just before that organization left for the Philippines. At that time the republican press said that it was a rotten political deal. When Mr. Hazzard was appointed the Centralia company disbanded and another company was organized, of which he was made captain. From the way they gush over him now one would think that Mr. Hazzard was one of their kind. It has looked, sometimes, as if Gov. Rogers was going to make some bad breaks, but like a cat, every time you drop him he lights on his feet.—Tacoma Sun Democrat.

Concerning Legislative Passes

The Tacoma Ledger thinks "the holder of a railroad pass as well as the giver of it would resent the charge that it was the token of a bribe." That was once the case, but things have changed. For years the receivers and givers of these favors kept up a Pickwickian pretense, that passes were tendered and taken as "courtesies" to the office. But the public penetrated this gauzy pretense, and it is the fashion now to speak of these matters in plain English. Will H. Thompson, chief council of the Great Northern, and Senator Crow of Spokane county, are the leaders of the new fashion. Senator Crow got a pass from the Great Northern. His legislative record was unsatisfactory to the railroads and Mr. Thompson wrote a very caustic letter, demanding the return of the pass. He said the railroads did not propose to run free trains for legislators who antagonized the great railway interests of this state. Senator Crow frankly admits that he was mistaken. He once thought that passes were not given as bribes, but recent events have convinced him to the contrary. But the Tacoma paper is not defending the pass evil. It goes on to say: "Nevertheless there is a feeling that a legislator should not accept a pass. Gratuities do not govern the transactions of the business world. When a corporation extends what seems to be a favor, it expects a return. No matter what may be the opinion of the legislator, the public will regard him as being under obligations that restrict his freedom of action, and the corporation will expect pay. In the absence of pay it will consider itself the victim of bad faith. In its judgment the acceptance of a free pass implies a contract. The only way a legislator can be free from embarrassment in relation to this matter is to decline any pass that may be tendered. He is expected to pay for it and he cannot pay for it in any goods that he has the right to deliver." There is no answer to that, and in his heart every official with a pass knows it.—Spokane Review.

Oregonian's Opinion of McKinley

The Salem statesman, loyal partisan organ, abject in its toadyism, is in deep distress because, as it alleges, The Oregonian "has persistently ridiculed and belittled President McKinley." The Oregonian has often criticised President McKinley, may at times have ridiculed him, but never has belittled him. Yet what if it had both ridiculed and belittled him? An organ like the one at Salem, desiring to testify its thanks for past favors and to signify its hopes for more, may make salaams before the President's sacred majesty if it wishes to; but it needn't expect like abasement in others. The country has a proper estimate of President McKinley. He is an amiable man of good intentions, but without firmness of purpose, or resolution to pursue a "plain duty" when he sees it. He is governed by an extremely narrow and self-seeking political ring, led by Senator Hanna. He yields always to the "pull" of political gangs, as witness his recent appointment of a lot of decayed, rejected politicians to the directorate of the St. Louis Exposition. In affairs large and small he is but clay in the hands of the pottter.—Portland Oregonian.

New Lodge of I. O. O. F. Installed at Zillah on the 10th inst.

At intervals during Wednesday vehicles of descriptions varying from a large wagonette to a small go-cart were seen winding their way from this city toward the south. Investigation showed that the occupants of these conveyances were enroute to Zillah for the purpose of instituting a new lodge of Odd Fellows, to be known as Zillah Lodge No. 175. The new lodge starts out with fifteen charter members, with the following officers: A. J. Elliot, N. G.; J. M. Hause, V. G.; G. P. Elliot, secretary; John P. Fox, treasurer. The initiatory ceremonies were under the direction of Dr. P. Frank of this city, as deputy grand master. The visitors were regaled at various intervals of the ceremonies with appetizing viands and enjoyed themselves to repletion with the hospitality of the Zillah folk.

Sunnyside lodge was out in masse, and fifteen other lodges in various parts of the union were represented by visitors. Those attending from North Yakima were P. Frank, F. Winchell, F. D. Clemmer, C. E. McEwen, C. E. Lum, H. D. Hagerdorn, B. B. Coombs, Z. Y. Coleman, A. Mulholland, R. H. Dixon, J. G. Hilyer, Chas. Franzen, Wm. Degehart, F. T. Liggett, R. O. Bacon and W. S. Oliver.

Tolstoi's Banishment.

Count Tolstoi has been exiled by the Russian Government. His garlanded portrait at the Art Exhibition in St. Petersburg has been cheered by the Russian public.

Tolstoi's excommunication is believed to have led to the attempt to kill Pobiedonostzeff, the head of the Russian Church. Since persecution of him has brought such a revolt, he must be persecuted yet more. That is Russian logic, and it is sufficient—for Russia. It is, indeed, as good as any of the logic that supports despotism.

Of course there are millions of Russians who believe that Tolstoi has told them the truth; that he has helped them with his mind as with his hand and purse. Of course these millions read further oppression of themselves in the bitter punishment of the Count. But the church and the government have nothing to do with all that. What is absolute power but vanity if it must conciliate a mere public sentiment?

The iron hand—that is the thing in Russia! But today that hand trembles, even as it crushes, and there is a faint heart in the imperial body back of the outstretched arm of authority.

Tolstoi is out of the Empire, but his ideas and ideals remain. They cannot be banished by any akase nor killed by any decree.—N. Y. World.

The State Fair Commission will meet next Monday, to make necessary arrangements for the fair. One decision reached by the commission at their last meeting was that the fair should be held one week later this year than usual. This proposition will meet with general favor, as hop picking and the busiest part of the fruit season will then be about over, giving an opportunity to attend the fair to many persons who have hitherto been unable to do so.

The Goldendale papers report that that town went "dry" at the municipal election held there, the issue being squarely on the question of license or no license. The general opinion expressed in advance was that it was going to be about nip and tuck between the two elements, but the result showed a veritable landslide for the prohibitionists, their ticket winning out by an average plurality of about 40 in a vote of 160.

C. P. Wilcox was exhibiting a sprig of peach blossoms from his Nob Hill ranch on Tuesday. Out of 22 buds on the branch six had been killed by the frost. This, Mr. Wilcox says, is about an average result according to his observations, which still leaves entirely too many, barring further severe weather. Some growers had thought at first that all fruit in bloom had been destroyed, but later investigation has shown that this is by no means the case.

Con Giezentanner of Kiona, according to the Pasco News, recently had a very desperate battle with a party of seven Siwash. At the horse round-up the young man found that the Indians were trying to make way with one of his horses and boldly riding into their corral he lassoed the animal and started off. The seven Indians near by started in hot pursuit and overhauling the white man, a regular pitched battle ensued. Giezentanner done the best he could against such overwhelming odds but the redskins gradually got the best of him. After clubbing him severely they poked sand in his mouth and would probably have killed him but for the timely arrival of "Dutchy" Myers who run them off.

MAKING IT UP.

Mandy an me fell out today;
Both of us wuz to blame, I guess.
I got riled, an I said my say,
An she put a word in, more or less.
No, as I started for town, thinks I,
"She'll come round an make up by noon;"
So I tried to whistle an put it by,
But somehow the music wuz out of tune.

Some of the bitter things she said
By an by to my memory come,
Till I couldn't get 'em out of my head
An hardened my heart as I started home.
I took my time, so 'twas pretty late
When I cleared the pasture an reached the stile,
An I missed her meetin me at the gate.
As she did to please me, once in awhile.

Thinks I, "She's puttin on airs," an so
I told myself that I didn't care
An closed the gate with a bang to show
That I wuz the lord an the master there!
I stamped right into her tidy room
An stood there a minute, too 'shamed to speak;
She sat alone in the twilight gloom,
An the tears wuz wet on her careworn cheek.

An in her hands wuz some little things
We had laid away 'bout a year ago
When our baby changed 'em for angel wings
(An our hearts nigh broke, 'cause we missed him so).

I knelt beside her, an in her lap
I laid my head, as the child might do,
Who had worn the tidy, faded cap
She held, an the little wren out shoe.

I thought of all that us two had borne,
I looked at the empty trundle bed,
An my kisses fell on the garments worn
That were stained with the tears we both had shed.

I held her close, an I tried to speak
Of love an comfort as best I could;
I pressed my lips to her tear wet cheek,
An Mandy an me made up for good.

Bona Fide "American."

Eduard Remenyi, the Hungarian violinist, was very entertaining and so full of fun that he would have made a tiptop Irishman. He was at home in the gypsy music of his own country, and this was the main characteristic of his playing. He had also a fad for playing Schubert melodies on the violin with the most attenuated pianissimo effects, and occasionally his hearers would listen intently after the tone had ceased, imagining that they still heard a trace of it.

Not long before leaving Weimar I had some fun with him by asking if he had ever heard "any bona fide American spoken." He replied that he did not know there was such a language. "Well," said I, "listen to this for a specimen: 'Ching-a-ling-a-dar-dee, Chebung cum Susan.'" I did not meet him again until 1878, 24 years after leaving Weimar. I was going up stairs to my studio in the Steuway building when some one told me that Remenyi had arrived and was rehearsing for his concerts in one of the rooms above. So, going up, I followed the sounds of the violin, gave a quick knock, opened the door and went in. Remenyi looked at me for a moment, rushed forward and seized my hand and as he wrung it cried out: "Ching-a-ling-a-dar-dee, Chebung cum Susan!" He had remembered it all those years. —Dr. William Mason in Century.

When Tea Was Dear.

The use of tea is said to have been introduced into China itself from Korea about the fourth century of the Christian era and to have extended to Japan about the ninth century. Tea first became known to Europeans about 1610. The first reference to it by a native of Britain is in a letter dated June 27, 1615, written by a Mr. Wickham, which is in the records of the East India company. From this time it became gradually known to the wealthy inhabitants of London, fetching sometimes as much as £10 the pound and never less than £5. Samuel Pepys records his first "cup of tea" Sept. 25, 1660. Tea at this period was imported from Holland and generally sold for 60 shillings per pound till the East India company took up the trade.—London

Order of "Buffalos."

The social given at the residence of E. B. Moore last Tuesday evening for the benefit of the Congregational church proved a most enjoyable occasion. The program, consisting of musical and literary selections, followed by refreshments, made up the evening's entertainment. One of the most notable features of the program was a vocal, cornet and piano trio, rendered by Miss Howard, Mr. Schindeler and Mrs. Burns, entitled "Angels' Serenade." This was the first introduction of the order of Buffalos, and occasioned great merriment. J. C. McCurdy was master of ceremonies and George Donald conductor in the initiatory ceremonies. One of the conditions of the initiation was that any candidate without the necessary fee should borrow the amount from the conductor. This provision placed the burden of the joke upon Mr. Donald, and was highly appreciated. About 75 persons were in attendance, and the financial result was very gratifying.

A light touch from the aid-de-camp, a spring, and she is in the saddle. Away she goes. "Who loves me follows me." They invariably follow her. One should see her as she passed through the town, flew over the roads and gained the country. Nothing seemed to stop her, neither wood nor field nor flood. Then came the sudden wave of her hand, a gay "Goodbye!" to the general, an "Au revoir!" to the young officers, and she was out of sight, leaving never a trace behind.

"Thunder and lightning!" grumbled the general. "How does she do it? We have once again been outwitted."

The next morning found her again at the commandant's, saucy as ever. She gave the sentinels a merry little military salute with her dainty riding whip, delivered up her horse to be taken care of and moved straight toward the dining hall, where covers were set for the general's breakfast. They breakfasted together quietly, but toward the end the general seemed to get somewhat restless. He could not restrain three or four formidable "hems," and he sent the attendants flying about in all directions.

"We are not here for amusement," she remarked. "Drink your coffee."

He drank it, mentally feeling anything but amused. Certainly he had met women of many kinds, but never anything like her. Was he afraid of the little creature, he wondered? He recalled their meeting just a month before in Paris. He remembers still how the moment the train was starting she had climbed in with the rapidity of a little squirrel and taken a seat beside him in the compartment, settling herself so cozily and coquettishly and arranging her packages with a pretty order. Then little by little the eyes closed, the head leaned heavily forward and was soon lying in sleep against her neighbor's shoulder.

"Thunder and lightning!" One does not disturb the sleep of a little child, but when she opened those big astonished eyes and looked about it was different. He might surely be forgiven for stooping to get a kiss. Unfortunately it was the greasy cushion of the seat which received it, while mademoiselle moved into a corner for the rest of the journey. Not very vexed, however, for he saw a slight smile hovering about her lips.

It happened that both were going to the same place.

Two days after the garrison was up-side down, and the funniest part of the affair was that while she seemed to know everybody nobody knew her. A handkerchief which she unwittingly let drop had a baron's wreath embroidered in the corner, whence she came to be called the "Little Baroness."

If only that animal, his nephew, who was so shrewd and was keen on the scent as a bloodhound, would turn up, the general felt things might go straight. But no! Guy was sulking. It was three months now since they had that quarrel. The imbecile, not to wish to marry the young girl who was being specially trained for him at the Convent of the Assumption and to take it into his head to marry a widow! A widow! He never would consent to Guy uniting himself to a woman old enough to be his mother. Never!

So the fine captain had taken his departure and the pleasure of the general's sister with him. For the two were all that remained of the old family, and nothing ought to have separated them.

Yet a mere caprice had done it. The uncle of course made up his mind to disinherit the nephew. His money would go to some charity unless—

And the image of the little baroness came before him flying over the hedges and the ditches, with her sharp little speeches and clear ringing laugh. Yes! Why not? He would marry her! Guy of course would retort, "You should be her father." Well, every one to his taste.

This resolution taken as the result of the reflections which had prevented him from swallowing his coffee, his anger against Guy became stronger and stronger.

But what a dance the little baroness led him! Though each day seemed to add to her charm, it also seemed to add to her capriciousness. Not a word could he get with her. The moment he opened his mouth to say anything to advance his suit there was a pirouette, and she was off like a flash.

One morning she said:

"Our last promenade, general."

"Why?"

"You will soon know. Would you mind having this last ride without company?"

She went at her everyday madcap pace, all the time leading the way. When she came to the wood, the general thought for a moment she was going to give her usual laughing farewell and disappear forever from his sight. Now or never he must make his proposal. Let Guy think of it what he might. In two bounds he was by her side. She coolly demanded:

"What, you are not out of breath?"

Whether he was or not had little to do with the matter. He murmured through his mustache in a voice which slightly trembled:

"Listen. I have something to say to you very serious."

She shook her head in tender raillery.

"Let us have a gallop. Seriousness is so fatiguing."

Never had she looked so beautiful; never was Guy farther from the general's thoughts.

They were now going along a well kept avenue. The chestnut of the little baroness neighed. She touched him lightly with her whip—a flash—the general was alone.

A sudden turn in the avenue brought him in front of a large square, and he was just in time to see a glimpse of a riding habit disappearing through a door.

Furious, he knocked as if to break down the house. There was no necessity for such violence. The door was quickly opened, and it seemed as if he were expected, for the valet de pied without asking him his name showed him into a luxuriously furnished apartment, a boudoir draped with choicest tapestries and laden with delicious odors.

Letting his eyes roam over the various articles of vertu with which the room was adorned, he felt spellbound as his gaze rested on the mantelpiece. Surrounded by a frame of flowers, one miniature stood out in bold relief, a portrait of himself, the one which had been painted after the African campaign. It was almost a masterpiece and had the signature of his dear sister, Guy's mother.

"Here I am. What is the matter, general?"

The little baroness had come quite close to him, silently as a fairy.

"There is— The devil fly away with me! I don't know what to say! I have come to tell you—explain to you. What am I doing there on that mantelpiece?"

"Does that displease you?"

"I did not say so. But I cannot quite understand."

"It is a present I had from my sweetheart."

"Your sweetheart! You are going to be married?"

A joyous voice answered from behind:

"If you are willing, uncle."

"Guy! My nephew?"

The little baroness shrugged her shoulders, saying with her merriest laugh:

"Oh, no! He will not permit you to marry a woman old enough to be your mother."

"Old! You! Ah, if I were only 20 again!" And, kissing the sparkling face, he murmured, "Disarmed!"

"For the first time in your life, my general," said the little baroness proudly.—Translated From the French For Chicago Times-Herald.

That's All.

"I hear that Bellingham has married money," said Perkase.

"It's a false report," replied Rottingdean. "He married a cashgirl."—Detroit Free Press.
