OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA

THE long talked of Nicaragua canal bill which passed the lower house of congress at the last session, is by special order entitled to a hearing in the senate on Dec. 12, about a week after the re-assembling of congress. Through the persistence of Senator Morgan of Alabama, in pushing this measure the senate is quite familiar with the details of the measure and it is generally expected that not much time is going to be wasted by that august assemblage in disposing of the bill. A good many well informed people declare that the ditch is bound to be built and we confess that the probabilities of the case point strongly in that direction. Since the great trip of the Oregon in 98 there has sprung up a mighty sentiment in favor of the canal. This is a purely sentimental idea for as a war measure the canal would be a huge mistake for in case of war with a naval power a fleet would have to be in constant attendance in dangerous waters to defend it. Naval experts pretty generally favor in preference to a canal a settled policy that will keep a fleet of war ships permanently on this coast for its protection, which is the true policy. When we come to consider the commercial side which is the main side of this huge undertaking, we cannot but stop and wonder why any intelligent citizen of the Pacific coast states should favor this measure. We can all readily understand why the commercial interests of New York, outside of the railroad circles are whooping it up for the canal. The reason for this is not hard to find. Here is the way that a leading New York paper states the case: "We want the canal; why? Because it will put the great trading port of New York just 10,000 miles nearer to Hong Kong and thus give us command of the Pacific." Now if New York gets command of the Pacific what a sorry plight will our own ports of Seattle and Tacoma be in. If the ditch is built those promising cities must prepare to considerably modify their ideas of future greatness for it is not in the nature of things that they can compete successfully with such a commercial giant as New York. The same causes that benefit or injure the Puget Sound cities cannot but have the same effect upon the people of Yakima, for we depend and always will largely upon those cities for our markets. But the Yakima valley has reasons of its own for not wanting the canal. Every man of judgment knows that the canal a reality would have a deadening effect on every western line of road. Every railroad man when asked the effect of the canal will tell you that the railroads will all cut their terminal rates to meet the cheap water competition, but that they will try to make it up by raising rates to all intermediate points—and Yakima is an intermediate point. It is also an obvious fact that the canal would certainly have the effect of discouraging further railroad building to the coast. The only argument that we have ever yet heard from the Washington standpoint, in favor of the canal was that it would give the lumber business a fresh impetus. There is but little logic in this statement, however, as the lumber business is now in a prosperous condition and not in need of a boom. Washington has the biggest timber in the world and the demand for it is becoming more pronounced every day at profitable prices. The canal might give our lumbermen additional markets on the Atlantic coasts, but they are markets that would first have to be won by fierce competition with the products of the forests of Maine and Canada.

YAKIMA'S annual city election will soon be here and it behooves our citizens to set about the matter of looking up suitable material out of which to select future officers. It is rumored that certain republican politicians flushed with their recent victory are disposed to insist this year upon the nomination of a strictly partisan ticket. It is to be hoped that this report is not true not only for the reason that it would be a violation of all precedents in North Yakima, but because it would most certainly lead to undesirable results as it has in hundreds of other municipalities that have been cursed with party government. Party government in city affairs invariably leads to the creation of favored cliques and rings, which are certain to bring grief to the over-burdened taxpayer. This young and growing city has done fairly well under non-partisan rule and no reason is apparent for a change now except perhaps the rewarding of some needy politicians at the public expense. It is doubtful if a partisan scheme can be made to work here, however, as enough taxpaying republicans will dissent from it to render it a failure. It has frequently been difficult to find good men to serve on the council, but there is plenty of good material to select from and no good citizen when called upon has a moral right to refuse. None should be selected, however, who are not enterprising for Yakima is an enterprising town and must push ahead. It cannot stand still and must not be allowed to go backward. Hence the necessity for a wise and wide awake city government.

THE Republic last week published in its editorial columns some silly, foolish and childlike comments on the character of Mr. Bryan. Indeed it is quite easy to believe that the article in question was written by some inmate of the state institution at Medical Lake rather than the polished editor of our local contemporary. In the beginning of the article occurs this astounding and flagrant statement: "The tongues of democrats are now loosed and they curse William Jennings Bryan with a deep and abiding curse—a curse which means business and therefore wholly unlike any democratic platform of recent times. And they are getting ready to go up to him as one man and tear his political carcass limb from limb and cast it piece by piece down from the high place." There ought to be a penalty of some kind fixed by law as a punishment for perpetrating such rot as the above on an unsuspecting public. We would not endorse the Russian method of sending the editor to jail, but an enforced suspension for a time from his high calling would we think be suitable punishment for such a violent departure from the truth.

A NEW apportionment bill based upon the new census will doubtless be passed and it is believed that the radicals will endeavor to so amend it so to cut off a considerable proportion of the representatives of southern states on account of negro disfranchisement, but their is little possibility of their being successful as the democrats can beat such tactics by holding up all legislation throughout the session. Mark Hanna is also preparing to push through his ship subsidy bill, which is merely a "grafting" scheme on a big scale. The Nicaragua canal bill will also bob up again but the chances are that it will receive but slight courtesy at the hands of the senate. Altogether the short session ought to be an interesting one. The president's forthcoming message will also be read with interest by many people, as it is presumed that it will outline the policy to be pursued by the new administration.

SINCE the election the Yakima Republic has plucked up the courage to tell Mr. John L. Wilson that he ought to retire from the political field, that the people in fact don't want him for senator or any other office and that the best thing the ex-senator can do is to drop politics and look after his private business that of running the Seattle P. I. The above is certainly good advice, but there is good reason for believing that the Spokane politician will never take it, nor will he thank Col. Robertson for tendering it. The colonel is apt to be indifferent, however, to the feelings of Senator Wilson for as he looks about him he sees that the enemies of the latter are destined to control the federal "pap" in the next administration and a certain portion of the "pap" is what the colonel's poetic soul is presumed to be yearning for.

THE question now arises whether or not the Hon. Nelson Rich, representative-elect, favors a division of the county. We understand that down around Prosser his friends declare emphatically that he does, while here his friends say positively that he does not. Let Mr. Rich speak up. He can't ride two horses going in different directions.

Growth in the Semi-arid States.

According to the census figures, twelve states have shown an increase in population amounting to 30 per cent or over in the last decade. Of this list seven are in what is known as the semi-arid region, where the farmer depends in a large measure on irrigation for success in his vocation. These leading states, in order of their increase, are: Idaho, 93; Montana, 84; Wyoming, 52; Washington, 49; Utah, 33; Oregon, 32; Colorado, 31. The states of the middle west, which showed the largest proportion of increase a third of a century ago have fallen low in the list, and in many cases have been passed by states of the east and south.

The percentage of growth in the semi-arid region of the far west bears out the assertion of irrigation experts that the country tributary to the Colorado and Columbia rivers and in the Rocky mountain districts will be in the future the expanding area of our national domain. The tide of possession—of settlement—bearing upon its crest a multitude of homeseekers, has already set in. It may not be at its full, possibly will not be for several decades, but there is every reason to suppose that the percentage of increase in the first decade, of the twentieth century will far exceed that of the last decade of the nineteenth. A preliminary step looking to this result is seen in the effort that is being made to convince the people of the trade centers of the country that the recovery of this vast area to agriculture will confer a general instead of a purely local benefit. This view was made clear at a meeting of Chicago business men, wherein irrigation experts demonstrated to the satisfaction of all who heard them that Chicago as a trade center will be vastly benefitted by the multiplication of homes in the arid regions.

The expenditures of money and the exercise of skill in constructing storage reservoirs are necessary preliminaries to this scheme. It is not that these regions are devoid at all seasons of the year of moisture, but that the winter precipitation in snow is dissipated in freshets in the early spring. This is clearly a condition that engineering skill can correct, but this means the expenditure at the outset of large sums of money, either by private corporations or through state or national appropriations. This will come in some shape in due course of time. Since the time away back in 1836, when Rev. Samuel Parker on a missionary errand, traversed these seemingly boundless areas, over which at that time luxuriant grass waved, wild flowers bloomed and enormous herds of buffalo roamed, saw with the prophetic vision of the practical man this mighty region teeming with population its grand possibilities in this line have been recognized by all who have informed themselves upon or even given casual attention to the matter. Civilization has pushed its way thither slowly, painfully and perilously during the greater part of the intervening time. It will make more rapid strides in the future, and next to the railroad the greatest auxiliary to its endeavor will be a comprehensive system of irrigation.—Oregonian.

Gen. MacArthur's Report.

In this exultant hour Gen. MacArthur's report on the situation in the Philippines furnishes plenty of sobering reflections to Mr. McKinley and his party. It makes a dismal record of American and Filipino losses. For the year that ended Sept. 1, last there were 268 of our soldiers killed, 750 wounded and 55 taken prisoners. On the Filipino side there were 3,227 killed, 694 wounded and 2,864 made prisoners. In this ghastly competition of slaughter it thus appears that our soldiers are outscoring the Filipinos 12 to 1. But what satisfaction, moral or material, can the American people derive from that net balance of blood in their favor? And to achieve it, Gen. MacArthur says, the extensive distribution of our troops "has strained the soldiers of the army to the full limit of endurance."

There is, moreover, little prospect of the speedy surrender of the Filipinos, according to the American commander. He reports the guerilla system of warfare in which the Filipinos are engaged as successful because there is complete unity of action among the native population. And he admits that this complete native unity is not mainly due to intimidation by the fighting Tagalogs, as has been alleged by defenders of the administration's policy here at home. He frankly says: "The people seem to be actuated by the idea that in all doubtful matters of politics or war men are never nearer right than when going with their own kith and kin, regardless of consequences," which seems to show them to be neither more nor less crazy than the Anglo Saxon alliance champions, with their gospel of "hands across the sea." Excepting the few Moros of Mindanao and the natives of the Jolo group, Gen. MacArthur reports that the entire population of the Philippines is thus united on the "kith and kin" principle against our forces. In the face of such native unity the effort to institute municipal government under American auspices is, as he confesses, a failure.

Is it not plain that the whole policy of pacification by force of arms is as impracticable as it is un-American? And cannot Mr. McKinley afford now to reserve engines and apply his wiser and better policy in Cuba to the Philippines?

More than one of our presidents have admitted and corrected their own mistakes; none have added to their fame by persisting in them.—New York World.

GREAT FOSSILS. Remarkable Discoveries of the Bones of Prehistoric Animals.

Some of the most remarkable discoveries in bones of pre-historic animals, or fossils have been made near the railroad station called Montesano, about fifteen miles south of St. Louis. Not far from the station are salt and sulphur springs of medicinal value.

At the foot of the great limestone bluff that divides the valley, is a graveyard covering ten acres and filled with the bones of huge beasts that antedate history, perhaps man.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat gives the following account of the discoveries at Montesano: In 1899 Mr. C. W. Beehler of St. Louis, leased the property and set to work to preserve the bones. His labors have attracted the attention of the scientific world and his finds are of such importance that the Smithsonian institute recently sent a representative to view them and assist in properly classifying them. The huge bones of mastodons of all ages predominate, but mingled with them are the bones of the prehistoric ox, horse and great Irish elk, along with great teeth of flesh-eaten animals, not as yet separated into their proper classes. Piled up, ten feet deep, at the base of the limestone bluff the ground slopes off to the eastward and shows evidence of having been at one time a quagmire. A salt spring is close at hand, and the theory maintained by Mr. Beehler coincides with the opinion expressed by the most eminent students of the subject, that the great herbivorous animals seeking the salt lick fell a prey to the treacherous mire and sank helpless, for all their strength, to a lingering death. The flesh-eating animals, likewise, coming to prey on the helpless monsters, found that sharp claws and teeth availed little, and met their death beside the feast they sought.

With most painstaking care Mr. Beehler has delved away, and in a little store room near the spot where he works are the results of his two year's labor. The huge upper jaw a full grown mastodon is the centerpiece which at once attracts attention. It is in a wonderful state of preservation considering the thousands of years that have elapsed. Both tusks are in tact and the teeth are even well covered with glistening enamel. Scattered around in apparently careless confusion are the various bones that formed the frame work of these beasts. No attempt has yet been made to articulate a skeleton, Mr. Beehler desiring solely to get out and preserve the bones for future assembling. At the present time the excavation is taking place at the north end of the deposit. At that point the ground is dry, and while easier to work has not preserved the bones as perfectly as those obtained at the south end.

The discovery of the skeleton of a single mastodon has long since ceased to create much interest in the scientific world, but the extent of this deposit, the greatest ever discovered, has created much comment. The most recent find is a pair of tusks remarkable in size. Close together they lie piled upon a mass of other bones. Eight inches in diameter and curved, from root to point they measure seven feet. Each new discovery has hardly ceased to cause comment when it is followed by one more wonderful and as the work extends southward the bones become better preserved. Mr.

Beehler is self-educated on the subject and an amateur, but he has given both time and money to the work and his discoveries are of distinct benefit to science. — Word and Works.

Cure for Bald Heads.

A young man who has lived 50 years in the vicinity of Manayunk, Penn., is looking forward eagerly to two important events in life—his marriage and his first hair cut. He lost all his hair at a very early age. In fact, it is said that he never had any from infancy. However that may be, he has always worn a wig, and his sensitiveness on this point has prevented him from associating very much with the fair sex. Sometime ago he met a young woman, and for the first time in his life he fell in love. Still he despaired of winning her, because of his physical defect. A short time after the tender passion first asserted itself, he was surprised one morning to observe that in washing his head a little down appeared on the skin. This continued to grow until now he has quite a nice head of hair. He used no nostrums and local physicians attribute the growth of hair to the increased flow of blood to the head under the stimulation of the emotions of love. The marriage is not far distant.—Ex.

A Mean Advantage.

According to the science column of a German weekly paper the hens of China lead busy lives. When not engaged in hatching out a brood of their own kind they are put to the additional and novel task of hatching fish eggs. Chinese cheap labor collects the spawn of fish from the water's edge, puts it in an empty egg shell, which is then hermetically sealed with wax and placed under the unsuspecting and conscientious hen.

In a few days the egg shell is removed and the spawn, which has been warmed into life, is emptied into a shallow pool. Here the fish that soon develop are nursed until strong enough to be turned into a lake or stream.—London Globe.

The Saleslady's Romance.

"Yes, I'm in the necktie department now. I like it ever so much better than selling ribbons. Men are so much easier to suit than women. All you've got to do is smile at them and you can sell them any old thing. The women will finger over the whole stock and not buy 10 cents' worth—just as if a lady had nothing to do but show goods. Besides, I don't like the floorwalker in the ribbon department. The one we've got now is lovely. His name is Perkins—Horatio Perkins—and he's just as swell.

"And, say, can you keep a secret? He's—you won't tell a soul?—well, he's in love with me. No, he hasn't said so yet, but I can tell by the way he looks at me—never takes his eyes off me from morning till night. He's jealous, too, and that's a sure sign. You ought to've seen him yesterday when George came in to invite me to the bill poster's ball. George—he's my old steady, you know—well, he and I was standing there talking when Horatio—I mean Mr. Perkins—came along. He gave me an awful fierce look, but I never let on that I seen him, but just kept right on talking.

"Then he stepped right up to me and says, his voice quivering with suppressed emotion, he says: 'Miss Robinson,' he says, 'are you aware that there are half a dozen customers waiting for you?'

"I know he only said that so as not to betray his real feelings, because when I turned around there wasn't any six customers there at all. There was only four."—New York Journal.

Orchard Planting.

In planting small family orchards there is usually sufficient mixing of varieties to insure pollination, but when planting for commercial markets care must be observed that the mixing of varieties in each class of fruit is sufficient to insure perfect pollination in order that fruitfulness may result.

In his valuable bulletin on "Pollination in Orchards," issued at the Ithaca station by S. W. Fletcher, he refers to the advantages of general mixed planting, saying: "The thing to do now is to find out what varieties are inclined to be self-sterile and the varieties which are best adapted for fertilizing them. But as a matter of fact, cross pollination gives better results with nearly all varieties, be they self-sterile or self-fertile. A variety may be able to bear good fruit when it is placed alone, but it will often bear better fruit if suitable varieties are near it. Mixed orchards are more productive than solid blocks, taking the country over. It is a common observation in western New York that Baldwins in mixed orchards are more uniformly productive than Baldwins in large blocks. Furthermore, although a variety may be able to set an abundance of fruit with its own pollen, this fruit will often be smaller than if other pollen were supplied."

Three good reasons for mixing varieties are: First, some believe that self-sterility is likely to increase in the future under the stimulus of high cultivation. Second, we can never be perfectly sure that any variety will be self-fertile on our soil and under our culture, even those varieties which are self-fertile elsewhere may be partially self-sterile with us. Third, most self-fertile as well as self-sterile varieties are benefitted by cross pollination.—Horticulturist.

Memory.

Memory is a mighty magician. It possesses the mysterious power of summoning from the sepulcher words, deeds and events which were supposed to have been long since buried in oblivion. Alike the good and evil deeds, the griefs and joys, the triumphs and disasters of life, are chronicled by this faithful scribe. Upon a retrospect of the checkered scene spread out before our mental vision like a microscopic panorama, how do we become startled at the recognition of the ghostly pageant! On the other hand, what would become of the wondrous book of the world's experience—its admonitory teachings and sage lessons of science and wisdom, without this treasure house in which to garner its many facts? Memory being a constituent property of mind must endure "mid the wreck of matter and the crush of worlds," and carry its chronicles for enrollment upon the imperishable records of eternity. How important, therefore, that we place a proper sentinel over actions and sentiments of such momentous tendency!—Monitor.

A Fortune With a Bride.

A rush of men, equal to the stampede for Klondike, is on for the Indian Territory, and it is not entirely for gold either, although lucre is a prominent feature of the incentive. The excitement is being caused by the division being made by the government of the lands and money of the five tribes, whereby a liberal dowry is afforded in lands and money to about 20,000 eligible dusky-colored damsels. Every white man who marries an Indian girl is entitled by law, to as much land and money, as if he were a full blood Indian, belonging to one of the tribes. The dowry of the women amounts to from 100 to 500 acres of land and $10,000 cash, a comfortable little "dot" of itself, and when the girl marries, this allowance is doubled by the husband's acquired rights, and the matter becomes a tempting bait to the ordinary heiress seeker.

The rush to the Indian Territory, since these facts became known, of eligible spouses, has been one of the wonders of the age. The Indian girls have been married to them at the rate of 5,000 a month, and it is said that matches are made at the rate of from 50 to 100 a day now, even after the "first pick" has been made.

This condition of affairs has been brought about by the ending of tribal rule and allotment of land, with a view of absorbing these wards of the government into the body politic of the nation. The United States has about finished making out rolls of citizenship for the five tribes, which secures to each adult male member of the tribes individual sovereignty under the constitution of the general government. While the authorities have made no open effort to secure white husbands for the Indian women they have certainly placed no obstacle in the way of such unions, and it must be admitted that it will probably be the best means that could be employed to end the race problem, and introduce into civilization the robust nature in which it is lacking through intermarriage of men and women of like temperament and disposition, which in the course of time exhausts the individuality of a people and renders them weak physically and mentally.

The present plan is in high favor with the Indian maidens. It is an innate ambition of them all to marry white men, and never before has an opportunity been presented for realization of their day-dream of ideal happiness.—Ex.

Two Officers of Frederick the Great.

Two officers of "Frederick the Great"—King of Prussia—once asked his permission to fight a duel. Permission was granted, but when they met on the dueling ground next morning they found there a gallows erected and a corporal's guard stationed, and inquiring the meaning, were told that his majesty had ordered that whoever survived the duel should be immediately hung. The duel did not take place.

Now if these men in America and Europe who get up unnecessary wars would only fight the battles themselves, without troubling their fellow citizens or the horses, mules, and other animals, we would do everything in our power to encourage them, and consider it a blessing both to human beings and the [so called] lower animals if all the survivors could be hung. GEO. T. ANGELL.

"Re-Organization" Not Necessary

Gold democrats of the Don M. Dickinson stripe, who labored industriously to defeat Mr. Bryan and voted to a man for McKinley, are talking of "re-organizing the democratic party." These fellows desire the abandonment of every important position occupied by the democracy in the recent campaign. They want "re-organization" along the same lines laid down by the powers which control the republican party. Now these men may be successful in dictating the policy of the party in the next national election,—if we have one,—but we do not think they will. However if that be the case, there is one democrat who here and now desires to give notice that he will not accept for himself any such bogus democracy. Let Dickinson and his kind remain with Hanna. They are not democrats. Furthermore, speculation on the election of 1904 is a waste of time. The people have lost their opportunity in this country to take control of the government out of the hands of organized greed. It is too late now. The empire will succeed the republic,—has already done so in fact if not in name. People who are blinded by partisanship and who have not been observers of the trend of events naturally scout the idea that the republic is to give way to the empire. But it is true, and it will require but a few years to prove it. Hence any further political agitation is out of place,—and the "re-organization" democrats make us very tired.—Register Democrat.

The Twin Votes.

Along in November when cool was the weather,
Two ballots were cast in a box together,
Two ballots were cast together;
They huddled up close like brother to brother;
You couldn't tell one of the votes from the other—
You couldn't tell one from the other.
The Sunday school man—no man could be truer—
Kept busy all summer denouncing the brewer;
All summer denouncing the brewer;
But his fervor cooled off with the change in the weather—
And early in autumn they voted together—
In autumn they voted together.
The Sunday school man had always been noted
For fighting saloons except when he voted—
For temperance except when he voted;
He piled up his prayers with a holy perfection,
Then knocked them all down on the day of election—
But knocked them all down at election.
The foxy old brewer was cheerful and mellow,
Said he, "I admire that Sunday school fellow—
I admire that Sunday school fellow.
He is true to his church, to his party he's truer;
He talks for the Lord, but he votes for the brewer—
He votes every time for the brewer."

Horse Saved His Mate.

Harry Riley, a young farmer living near Woodstown, pastures his horse in a field through which runs a muddy creek. The other day one of the horses came up in a gallop to the fence surrounding the house and whinnied loudly. Then it wheeled about and ran toward the creek, but no especial attention was then paid to it by the family. Again the beast appeared, dashing over the hill, and neighed fantastically at the fence. Farmer Riley went to the horse and patted it soothingly on the nose, whereupon the animal seized him by the coat sleeve and pulled him up against the fence, as if to haul him over it. The horse soon released Riley and then ran a few feet toward the creek, wheeled about and again came back whinnying excitedly. The strange actions of the horse finally convinced Riley that something unusual was the matter, and when he started to follow it the delight of the beast was manifest. The intelligent animal led Riley to the bank of the stream at a spot nearly concealed by bushes, and there in the quick mire, with only half his head visible, was the other horse, buried and slowly sinking out of sight. Riley quickly summoned the help of neighboring farmers with shovels and ropes, and after several hours of hard work succeeded in extricating the horse from what would certainly have been its grave had it not been for the intelligence and faithfulness of its mate.—Cleveland Leader.

Skeptic and Believer.

A young man who looked as if he might be about 25 years old was sitting in the waiting room of the depot. On his knee was a year-old baby. Presently the baby began to cry, and the awkwardness and helplessness of the young man were so marked as to attract general attention. At this point one of the waiting passengers, a fat and amiable seeming man, crossed the room and said to the distressed baby tender. "A young woman gave you that baby to hold while she went to see about her baggage, didn't she?" "Yes." "Well, now I knew it as soon as I saw you. You expect her back, I suppose?" "Of course." "Ha, ha! You are looking for her every minute, ain't you?" "I think she'll come back." "Ha, ha! Excuse me, but I can't help laughing. A woman once played the same trick on me. It was in Chicago. You're caught young man. She took you for a hayseed." "Oh, she'll come back," answered the young man as he looked anxiously around. "She will, eh! Ha, ha, ha! What makes you think so?" "Why, because she's my wife, and this is our first baby." "Oh—um—I see!" muttered the fat man, and he was in such haste to get back to the other side of the room that he nearly fell over a passing pug dog.—Buffalo Enquirer.

Losses of Butter Fat.

The Kansas Experiment station has been endeavoring to ascertain by a test at a private dairy the loss of butter fat by the setting method of raising cream. They found that the skim milk contained from .3 to .7 of one per cent of butter fat, or an average of .44 of 1 per cent, while the butter milk tested 1.1 per cent of butter fat. The herd of five cows tested showed a loss of 12.9 pounds of butter per year lost in the skim milk and 31 pounds lost in the butter milk, a total loss of 160 pounds, or 32 pounds per cow. This, at 20 cents per pound, the price received from private customers, means a loss of $6.40 per cow per annum. The farmer with 20 cows would at this rate save $128 per year by using a farm separator, and a good authority believes this estimate is not far from correct.—N. W. Horticulturist.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors nearly sent Wm. M. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All said he had a fatal lung trouble and that he must soon die. But he was urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption. After taking five bottles he was entirely cured. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of throat, chest and lungs, including coughs, colds, la grippe, pneumonia, bronchitis, asthma, hay fever, croup, whooping cough. 50c and $1. ## On a Pretty Face.

Glasses are often an improver sent—always so on the face of one who really needs them. They drive away that squinting, drawn, unnatural expression seen in defective eyes. The old style, heavy bowed, ill-fitting and ill-looking spectacles, fitted by one's self or incompetents, have given people the idea that glasses detract from one's appearance. #### A Row at the Show.

The lord mayor's show is an annual theme for the newspapers. Very little can be said about it that has not been said again and again. It costs about £2,000, the banquet from £2,000 to £3,000. The show has sunk during the century to borrowing some of its splendors from the "property man." Thereby hangs a tale.

A certain lord mayor hired from the Surrey theater two suits of armor, brass and steel, with a couple of supers to go inside them. The manager of the Surrey stipulated, by the way, that the steel armor should not be used if the day be a wet or a foggy one. After the show the men in armor were taken to the Guildhall, remaining there several hours without food. No one, it appears, was able to rid them of their ironmongery.

Wine was given them, and the man of brass became intoxicated. The bystanders, thinking if he fell about that he would injure others as well as himself, tried to eject him. But he showed fight, and, to add to their further dismay, his companion in arms joined him. They were overcome at last only by sheer weight of numbers. Then the maker of the armor was sent for. He eventually succeeded in freeing the men, who were in danger of being stifled by the weight of their equipment.—Good Words.

Nansen and His Pole.

When Dr. Nansen visited Leeds, soon after his north pole expedition, a very amusing incident was witnessed. A large crowd stood outside the station to welcome him, two of his most ardent admirers being a couple of old men who kept waving their sticks and shouting themselves hoarse. When the celebrated explorer had passed in his carriage, there followed in his wake a wagon, dragged by horses, bearing a long iron pole which belonged to an electric tramway company. Directly the old men saw it the following conversation took place:

"Well, I'll be blowed, Bill, he's browt t'pole back wi him!" said one.

"Aye," said the other, "and we t'only two at's noticed it. They're all running after t'carriage, sitha. They're that ignorant—well, they can't tell t'north pole when they sees it."—London Answers.

A Noisy Box.

Like children, savages in all parts of the world are possessed of eternal curiosity. Mr. H. Cayley-Webster, a well known English traveler, gives an amusing instance of this trait among the natives of New Guinea.

One day a piano arrived for his excellency the governor, and some natives were told to carry the strange looking case from the beach to the house. After going a few yards one stumbled, causing one end of the crate to strike the ground, and, ever on the alert for strange noises, their ears were immediately pressed against it, and they listened until the "ting" of the wires had died away.

Again, after a yard or two, a similar mishap occurred. Again many ears were listening to the sound so foreign to them, until a native, rather more knowing than the rest, with a heave raised the whole case a few inches from the ground and let it go.

The noise which issued from the inside had by this time worked them up to such a frenzy that they one and all seized upon the case, rolled it over and over, and danced with joy at the strange sounds which came forth. And it was not until this odd performance had been repeated many times that the eye of an official was attracted by the shouts and yells of the natives; not, however, before much damage had been done and many strings broken.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16, 1900

If radical republicans can have their way the coming session of congress will see a political fight not equaled in intensity and bitterness since the republicans tried to pass the notorious force bill. The object now is the same as it was then—to curtail the political power of the south. The present scheme of the radicals is to have the reapportionment bill under the new census provide for a reduction of the representation in congress and of the electoral votes of nearly every one of the southern states. Needless to say that the democrats in the house and senate will to a man fight such a bill to the last ditch with every legislative weapon at their command, and those weapons can be made effective enough in the senate, if not in the house, to block all business for the entire session if it becomes necessary to prevent action on the bill. Mr. McKinley does not at present favor this scheme, but gives no assurance that he will not favor it later. He is a follower, not a leader, of his party, and he is likely to repeat his Porto Rican somersault, if the radicals can control the republican caucuses of the house and senate. Senator Thurston, of Neb., seems to be hankering after the leadership of the radicals in the senate.

The Carnegie armor trust gets a contract aggregating $17,000,000, and the Midvale steel company, which under bid the trust, in the first place gets left. That is the sum and substance of Secretary Long's dickering with the steel trust for a price on armor for our new warships.

A statement was this week officially given out denying that this government was in any way hampering the negotiations with China, as charged by American correspondents of London papers, and asserting that Minister Conger and Mr. Rockhill have authority to act in their discretion upon all matters of detail connected with the negotiations.

Senator Vest, of Missouri, returned to Washington this week in better physical condition than he has been for five or six years, and his talk indicates his intention to take his old time active part in the business of the senate at the coming session of congress. Senator Vest has opinions on all things political and does not hesitate to express them. He said of the proposition to reorganize the democratic party: "It is nonsense to talk reorganization of the party at this time. All that the democrats can do is to await developments in the future and renew our allegiance to the principles of the party as announced by Jefferson." Speaking of Mr. McKinley's re-election, Senator Vest said: "There is no cause for discouragement to democrats in the result of the election. History has simply repeated itself. No political party in this country has ever been able to defeat an administration which was carrying on a foreign war. The federal party was destroyed because of its opposition to the war of 1812. Thousands of patriotic citizens, who were really opposed to the foreign policy of Mr. McKinley, voted for him because they thought that we should first end the war in the Philippines and then settle other questions connected with the archipelago. And nothing was more freely heard in the campaign from conservative men than the argument that it would not do to discredit our government by withdrawing the troops from the Philippines while armed opposition to the government existed there. I believe this feeling did more for President McKinley than any other one factor in the election."

It is said that the order for Russell B. Harrison's honorable discharge from the volunteer service—he has been a lieutenant colonel of volunteers—which was this week issued by the war department, was instigated by feeling against his father, ex-President Harrison, for not having been more active in his support of Mr. McKinley in the campaign. The reason given was that his services were no longer required, but the fact that other volunteer officers are being sent to the Philippines on every transport prevents its acceptance by those who think his discharge a whack at his father.

Political parties are like individuals, the more they get the more they want. Boss Hanna has ordered that Senator Blackburn's right to his seat shall be contested. This may or may not follow, as Boss Hanna has found out long ago that there are a number of republican senators who will not be bossed by him. Senator Blackburn's term will not begin until March 4, next. It is quite safe to say that he will get the seat he was elected to fill, notwithstanding the big republican majority in the senate.

Mr. McKinley's request made to the cabinet this week, that each of them retain their portfolios under the administration, which has been widely exploited as something extraordinary, was in reality a bit of buncomb, a sort of official certificate of character for each of the gentlemen who are members of the cabinet. It is not probable that any president who was ever re-elected failed to ask the members of his cabinet to remain with him, although there is no record of any of them having chosen Mr. McKinley's way of doing it—a speech at a cabinet meeting. Nothing is more certain than that there will be changes in the cabinet when the next administration begins.

The Handwriting on the Wall.

There are not wanting experiences admonishing the republicans not to presume too much upon their victory. Prosperity—the full dinner pail—is the most treacherous of ground on which a political party can plant itself in laying claims to the support of the people. No party knows how to command prosperity for more than a brief period. The election of 1872 is still easily within the memory of men of middle age. The republican victory was a sweeping one even after many leading republicans had left the party in protest against the tendencies of the first Grant administration. The spirit exhibited by the victors was heedless and intolerant. A great commercial prosperity reigned and it was theirs, and it was to continue, now that the opposition had been thrown down so heavily. Never were triumphant party hopes and promises more quickly and rudely crushed. Within a year from the re-election of Grant and the going of Greeley to his grave with a broken heart, came the great panic of 1873 and a depression extending over five years, compared with which that of 1893-7 was mild. The democrats swept the country in the election of 1874 and elected the president in 1876 on the face of the returns—and this in spite of the great handicap put upon that party by its pro-slavery war record.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

J. E. Bricker, a man formerly employed on the ranch of T. J. Lynch, died at the hospital on Tuesday from meningitis. The funeral took place on Wednesday morning under the auspices of the local lodge of Odd Fellows of which order deceased is a member. He was a single man about 35 years of age and came here a few months ago from Mason county.

Lieut. Will L. Lemon left on Wednesday night for San Francisco, where on Thanksgiving evening he will be united in marriage to Miss Ella Wholestein, the daughter of a prominent capitalist of that city. A number of people in Yakima will remember the fair bride to be, who visited here a short time last summer. There is said to be quite a romance connected with the affair which had its inception when the gallant young lieutenant was stationed with his regiment at the Presidio. The young man and his bride will receive a royal welcome on their return to this city.

President Bryan of the State Agricultural college has acceded to the request of the Commercial club and has promised to send a man to lecture on the subject of dairying at the farmer's institute that is billed for Yakima on Dec. 14 and 15. Prof. Balmer will also be here to lecture on horticulture. It is to be hoped that the farmers, or all that can, will turn out on this occasion and receive the benefit of these lectures on dairying and fruit culture, the two industries that mean so much for the higher development of the Yakima

The local Masonic fraternity enjoyed a good time on Saturday evening the hero of the occasion being C. H. Bartlett who was raised to the degree of a master mason. After the work of the evening refreshments were served.

E. E. Stewart a son of J. T. Stewart who lives west of town rode his horse to town on Tuesday and hitched him near Greene's store. When he went after his steed he found that he was gone together with the saddle and bridle. The officers were promptly notified, but nothing has been seen or heard of the thief. The horse is a handsome sorrel branded with a capital D on his left shoulder.

Fred Hoffer, a young Indian living near the Fort lost a horse one night last week by theft. Wm. Beck, a white man who has been in the employ of the Hoffer family is said to be the culprit. The horse was ridden to Yakima City and with the saddle was sold to Chas. Campbell for $25. The Sheriff's office has a good description of the thief and the officers think they know where to find him.

W. H. Redman, C. M. Hauser, S. Chappell and G. S. Hough, members of the republican county central committee have signed their names to a call for a partisan republican caucus to be held at the city hall on next Monday evening. Outside of a few politicians the proposition to run a partisan ticket does not seem to meet with much favor. A number of prominent citizens have been heard to declare that a citizen's ticket composed of good men would be victorious at the polls.

The Nicaragua canal proposition was the main topic under discussion at the meeting of the governing board of the Commercial Club on Saturday night last. The matter came up through a communication from Senator Foster asking for the views of the club on the question. After the matter was ably argued from both standpoints by the different members of the board a vote was taken, resulting five in favor of and six against the canal. Accordingly the secretary was instructed to notify Senator Foster of the clubs opposition to the proposed ditch.

C. H. Bartlett and Co., the well known commission men, had a narrow escape on Wednesday from a disastrous fire in their large warehouse along the track. An oil stove was placed on a few tons of potatoes on the main floor to keep the tubers from freezing. About noon the oil in the stove exploded blowing the bottom out. The fire soon communicated with a heavy canvass which was spread over the potatoes and made a big blaze. Had it not been for the presence of Mr. Bartlett, Mr. Fechter and Mr. Janeck, who were in the office, the building would have soon been in flames. These gentlemen worked heroically and succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before the fire ladders with their apparatus reached the scene. The loss is trifling and is well covered by insurance.

Bert Ward, aged 28 years, died at his home on the west side at 10:30 o'clock on Tuesday night from the effects of typhoid malarial fever. The deceased had been ailing for sometime but had been confined to his bed for only about a week. He was the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Ward, highly respected pioneer residents of the Ahtanum. Mr. Ward had lived in town about a year and had been in the employ of the Fashion stable in the capacity of teamster. He was a man of agreeable manner and was well liked by all who knew him. Besides parents and brothers and sisters he leaves a wife and young child to mourn his untimely end. The funeral which took place on Thursday afternoon was largely attended.

Treating Insomnia.

So many people suffer from insomnia nowadays that it is a wonder they do not adopt the time honored custom of French kings and indeed of our ancestors generally, the "en cas" by the bedside, the meal of fruit or bread and cold chicken, put ready in case of wakefulness. Many a merry little meal might be eaten in the middle of the night, when thoughts crowd on the mind and care sits heavy. It is the wakeful digestion that claims its due and clamors to be fed. Our forefathers were wise, and many a hunter after old furniture knows the quaint little cupboard with a grated door which served for the night meal and is now sometimes labeled a cheese cupboard. A bedside book is of no use when the pangs of hunger make for mastery, but with a book and a "snack" one can contrive to pass some pleasant hours, even when sleep does not touch one's eyelids and the sweet boon of unconsciousness evade one's grasp.—New York Times.

Edible Birds' Nests.

The nests of the little swift (a kind of swallow), gathered along the rocky cliffs with so much difficulty and yet in such quantities on account of the Chinese demand, are formed of a salivary secretion which soon becomes firm on exposure to the air. It is a glutinous white substance with little red dots. They are clean, the nests being taken as soon as completed. The little swift, being repeatedly robbed, is at last compelled to eke out its waning supply of secretion with little sticks and grass and is thus enabled to lay its eggs and hatch its young, as only nests free from foreign material are merchantable.—"A Sketch of the Philippines" in Self Culture.

Horse on Him.

"Got a good joke on myself," said the man who has accumulated a little property by hard work. "I asked my wife what was the difference between me and a horse, intending to say that I was a forehanded man and the horse was a four footed beast. What do you suppose she said?"

"Give it up," said the other man. "Said she guessed it must be the length of my ears."—Indianapolis Journal.

Like His Father.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "the baby is trying to talk again. It's wonderful how he takes after you!"

"What was he talking about?"

"I think it must have been politics. He started very calmly, but in a few minutes he was as angry and red in the face as he could be."—Washington Star.

Anaesthetics were known in the days of Homer, and the Chinese 2,000 years ago had a preparation of hemp known as "una yo" to deaden pain—something similar to our modern cocaine.

The Druggist's Work.

There is a druggist in one of the suburban districts who advertises:

"The doctor prescribes; we execute."

Such advertising cannot fail to appeal to those who desire to be executed.—Boston Journal.

He Needed No Help.

"Help, help!" cried the man who was being relieved of his valuables.

"Calm yourself, my friend," said the easy going footpad. "I can take care of this job without any assistance."—Ohio State Journal.

"I'm anxious to get married and settle down," said the fagged bachelor, "so that I can pick out one good club and stick to it."—Philadelphia North American.

Battles of History.

When Napoleon said, "Providence is always on the side of the strongest battalions," he proved the falsity of his own precept on his last battlefield. It was not without interest to see how this applied in some of the world's great battles, observes the Chicago Chronicle. At Marathon there were 200,000 Persians confronting 11,000 Greeks. The Persian army was routed and the invasion of Greece was ended.

Xerxes moved on Greece with his army of millions. Leonidas with his immortals met them at Thermopylae and held the Persians in check, but not until the heroic Spartan and his followers were killed. Subsequently at Salamis, Themistocles met the Persians in a naval battle. Xerxes watched the struggle from a distance and wept over the destruction of his army. Under Hezekiah, Jerusalem was menaced by 185,000 Assyrians, who threatened to ruin the city. Not one Assyrian soldier saw Jerusalem. At Gaugamela Alexander the Great, with 47,000 men, fought 1,000,000 Persians under Darius. The Persians were routed and Darius was assassinated by one of his satraps.

The siege of Jerusalem was the gloomiest event in the history of mankind. In A. D. 70 the temple of Herod was just completed. The Jews were never so haughty and so patriotic. They were never so disorganized. Innumerable factions divided them. But the feast of the passover and the common danger enabled Vespasian and Titus to shut them up in the city. John and Simon, their partisan leaders, hated each other as cordially as they hated the Romans. When their followers were not fighting one another during the siege they were opposing the Romans. Vespasian and Titus cast trenches about the city, not one stone was left under another of their beautiful temple, as the Savior predicted and 1,000,000 Jews perished in that awful holocaust.

In the Russian campaign Napoleon lost 475,000 men. His legions melted and died under the falling snowflakes.

The naval battle of Lepanto, between the Christians, under Don John of Austria, and the Turks, was one of the fiercest contests of the middle age. The Christians numbered 80,000 and the Turks 120,000 men. The Turkish fleet was destroyed, its commander killed and the Moslem naval power was crushed on the Mediterranean.

At Waterloo Wellington had 70,000 men and 150 cannon. Napoleon confronted him with 72,000 men and 240 cannon. Napoleon claimed he had Wellington in his grasp. But he was facing destiny. A rainstorm of the night before wrought havoc with the movements of his artillery. Grouchy failed to come up. According to Victor Hugo the sunken road of Ohm ruined the charge of Napoleon's cavalry. When the night came Napoleon was a fugitive.

In the Boer war the battle of the Tugela will be considered memorable. Joubert, with 7,000 Boers, defeated Buller, with 55,000 British and drove him across the Tugela river three times. This is one of the most notable battles of our time and denotes the invincible genius of the South African general.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Human Hearts."

The great and beautiful drama "Human Hearts" will be presented at Larson's theater Nov. 24. "Human Hearts," the companion play to, but entirely different from "Shore Acres," is regarded as one of the best American stage productions of the past ten years. When any play by a comparatively unknown author first merits attention enough to secure an opening and then goes on to the stage of the "Fifth Avenue" theater New York, and continues one whole season with cessation, it is a guarantee of its qualified power and its real merit as well, as the Fifth Avenue Theater clientele is one that will not tolerate even a tolerably good one for long. But let it be in moral clean in its scenes and situations not overdrawn, and in its character painting and dialogue true to nature and the absolute, then let it be enacted by only the masters of the dramatic art, and all New York will forsake the house where "chaff" and comedy, aye even the lighter charming opera and modern English burlesque holds sway to pay tribute to the work of any brainy author, who, through the medium of the stage holds up to them a true picture of American life. Such was the experience of "Human Hearts" and now in its fourth season with almost the identical cast that presented it for a year in New York, it comes to North Yakima Nov. 24. It should and undoubtedly will meet with the generous welcome that has ever been accorded it by the American people throughout the land.

F. W. Keyser, the grizzled old veteran of the Wenas, will leave on Sunday for the scene of his boyhood days near St. Louis, where he expects to visit sometime, returning home by way of California where he will stop off and view again the old haunts where he prospected for gold in the old days. Mr. Keyser is a "forty-niner" and is full of interesting reminiscences of California life at that time.

W. C. T. U. DEPARTMENT.

L. H. GALE, Press Supt.

After spending three delightful weeks in the highlands of Scotland, not far from Balmoral Castle, (the summer home of Queen Victoria) I left for Aberdeen, the "Granite City," where I was pleasantly entertained by our sisters. Starting south from Aberdeen I visited Kirremuir, the themes of Barrie's novels; also the Trossacks' rich in memory of Sir Walter Scott, Glasgow and Ayr, Burns early home.

On June 9 I arrived in London, the most marvelous city in the world. It would take years to see it. The hurrying traffic wagons, omnibuses, carriages, millions of people; the grand, smoky old buildings, and the statues and columns everywhere, commemorating some famous man or deed. The hall, in which the daily sessions of the temperance conference were held, was on the Victoria embankment, just off the busy strand. The meetings were enthusiastic and well attended. I became quite interested in the controversy between the two temperance parties. The Earl of Carlisle, and Sir Lawson, who is president of the United Kingdom Alliance, for the suppression of the liquor traffic, and referred to as St. Wilfred in the conference, heads the one which favors local veto. Lord Peel, with many warm friends stands for the compromise bill, which would limit saloons to one for every 700 people. Those who have worked so faithfully for the veto dislike to lower their standard, while many feel that the compromise bill would so lessen the traffic, as to be well worth the concession. Yet with their wide differences both feel the same apprehension of the nation's danger. Archbishop Temple spoke of the apathy of the masses on this question, compared to their intense excitement over the recent war.

Some of us were invited to the reception given by Mrs. Lyle to foreign delegates at her home in Russel Square, where Mrs. Stevenson, Miss Gordon, Mrs. Barney, Mrs. Catherine Lente Stevenson, Mrs. Hanna Whitehall Smith, and the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress were guests. The convention closed with the reception at the Mansion house. We were received by the Lord Mayor Sir Alfred J. Newton, and the Lady Mayoress, in the marble pillared entrance hall. On the way from London to Edinburgh we visited Windsor Castle, where Henry the Eighth is buried; Eton college and Stoke Pagis churchyard, where Gray wrote his matchless Elegy, and near which William Penn was born.

From the Windows.

So many people in towns have to live in bathouses or houses in which the back windows are in such close proximity to those of their neighbors that a simple method of rendering the glass opaque, but not excluding the light, may be useful. The frosted appearance of ground glass may be nearly imitated by gently dabbing the glass over with a paint brush dipped in white paint or any other oil color. The paint should be thin and but little color taken up at one time on the end of the bristles. When applied with a light and even touch, the resemblance to frosted glass is considerable.

Kind words are benedictions. They are not only instruments of power, but of benevolence and courtesy, blessings both to the speaker and hearer of them. —Frederick Saunders.

Auditor Kelso issued wedding permits on Saturday to Ralph O. Smith and Miss Viola M. Livengood, and on Wednesday to Louis A. Nass and Miss Daisy Lusby and Frank Hildreth and Beulah M. Nelson.

Yakima county's share of the quarterly disbursement of state school money has been received by Treasurer Dudley from Supt. Browne. The amount is $1991.64, which is quite small when compared with a number of previous remittances.

The order of the Tribe of Joseph gave a ball at Allen's hall on Saturday night that is said to have been one of the most pleasant events of the season. The music which was furnished by the McGlothlen family quartette was pronounced as most excellent.

The Commercial Club will inaugurate the social season by holding its first party and ball on the first Wednesday evening in December. Stricter methods will be adopted this season regarding invitations. No one will be invited who is not a club member and no member will be permitted to bring more than two ladies. These restrictions are deemed necessary to avoid over crowding of the clubs quarters.

James Stuart, who has charge of the repair work being done on the Moxee bridge by the county, met with a most painful accident on Saturday afternoon. The axe that he was using happening to glance, the full force of the blow was inflicted on the left limb of Mr. Stewart, above the knee. His many friends in this vicinity will all doubtless join in the wish that no serious results will come from the accident.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. John Dobie of the Natches, died on Tuesday morning. The mother, who has been seriously ill for several weeks is now said to be decidedly improved and will, it is hoped by the family, soon regain her accustomed health. Mrs. Dobie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Livesley and family, who have been living over at Sumner since April last, have been here for sometime rendering all the assistance possible to their afflicted daughter.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the residence of Mr. Ira Livengood of the Cowichie, on Sunday last, when the attractive daughter of the genial host, Miss Viola, was united for life to the man of her choice, Mr. Ralph O. Smith, the ceremony being performed by Justice Taggard of this city. After the ceremony the family and guests numbering over 20 sat down to a most sumptuous wedding supper. The happy couple expect to make their home in the Cowichie.

City Council Meeting.

The city council met in regular session on Monday night and owing to the fact that there had been no regular meeting for one month, was called upon to transact an unusual amount of business. All the councilmen were in their seats except Aikins. In the absence of Mayor Redman, Councilman Hough presided.

A communication was read from H. B. Scudder protesting against the enormous fees exacted by the city attorney in the collection of delinquent improvement taxes. In the absence of the city attorney the matter was laid over.

The matter of numbering the houses of the city then came up for consideration and a good deal of argument was brought out on the question. The present ordinance for numbering is not construed as being compulsory, but a firm at present engaged in getting up a city directory, want it made so and are, it seems, also engaged in the business of putting up signs. After a good deal of discussion the matter was referred to a special committee consisting of Councilmen Reed, Sinclair and Taylor.

A resolution of intention for the grading of Sixth street between Spruce and G was then read and was passed by unanimous vote.

C. M. Hauser, chief of the fire department, sent in a communication asking for improvements in his department necessitating the expenditure of $5000, which is meant to include a chemical engine, 500 feet of hose, 12 new fire plugs and a span of horses. This request, it seems, has the backing of numerous heavy tax payers, who desire better fire protection. The matter was referred to the committee on fire and fire limits.

The reports of the various city officers for October were then read and approved.

A big crop of bills for the preceeding month was then read by the clerk and having been O. K'd. by the finance committee were allowed.

The matter of the appointment of election officers was then taken up and the following parties were declared elected:

First ward—R. Crory, J. M. Krutz and W. T. Stewart.

Second ward—C. M. Hauser, A. L. Flint, J. B. Current.

Third ward—J. P. Crawford, A. Sinclair and A. N. Short.

The council then on motion adjourned.

No one on entering the restaurant and confectionery store of Ditter & Mechtel can fail to be impressed with the many unique and beautiful designs in the manufacture of candy that the firm has on exhibition and which are made right in the house. Mr. Mechtel and his assistant are both experienced candy makers and the product of the factory is the best evidence of their skill. Ditter & Mechtel have worked up a very fine local wholesale trade in candies.

John Lawles, of Toppenish, had an unpleasant experience with his team on Saturday which might have led to serious results. The team started to run up First street and Lawles, who had regained the lines steered the scared animals into a tying rack and finally got them stopped. One of the horses then began kicking and got a foot caught between the tongue and a brace thereof. After vainly trying to liberate himself by force, finally yielded his case gracefully into the hands of his master and numerous bystanders who then extricated the injured limb for which the animal seemed deeply grateful.
