THE CITY COUNCIL

Sewer Ordinance Passed and New Sewers Provided for—Election Officers Named.

The city council met in regular session Monday night with Mayor Shaw presiding and all the councilmen present, except Fisher.

A petition was read from property owners asking that a sub-sewer district be created for the purpose of laying a sewer in the alley between South Fourth street and Natches avenue from Yakima avenue to Maple. The petition was granted. A petition was also read and granted from property owners of the east one-half of block 46 permitting the petitioners to construct a sewer to connect with the sewer laid on Natches avenue, the understanding being that the city is to pay 20 per cent. of the cost thereof.

Several communications were read from Dr. Elmer E. Heg, secretary of the state board of health, regarding the enforcement of the regulations of the board in this city. The communications were referred to the board of health. A further communication was read from Dr. Heg relative to the complaint of Mrs. Mary Stephenson against the Fashion stable, which the latter complains of as a nuisance. This communication was likewise referred to the board of health.

A protest was read from a number of property owners along South First street against the building of a sidewalk on the east side of that thoroughfare from Walnut to Maple. The protest was accepted, the effect of which kills the project.

A long ordinance was then read compelling property owners to connect with the sewer system where the same is adjacent to their property. The ordinance was passed to its third reading and was then amended in some important particulars by vote of the council. A motion made by Switzer to reduce the amount of the bond required from $1000 to $500, failed. The purpose of exacting the bond is to protect against possible damage suits in case of accidents. Placed on its final passage the ordinance passed by unanimous vote.

Wyman moved that a warrant for $300 be issued to pay Mr. Angell for the three acres purchased of him for a dumping ground at the foot of Yakima avenue. Carried.

Wyman called attention to complaints of property owners on the west side against the action of the telephone crew in cutting and disfiguring street trees in order to string wire. Referred to street and ditch committee.

The following list of election officers was appointed to have charge of the election to be held Dec. 8.

First Ward—Judges, J. A. Leach, B. F. Barge; inspector, P. Y. Heckman; clerks, J. E. Merwin, E. E. Kelso.

Second Ward—Judges, James Coe, C. M. Hauser; inspector, Frank Spain; clerks, H. B. Voorhis, G. A. Graham.

Third Ward—Judges, T. D. Quinn, L. C. Cody; inspector, J. B. Braden; clerks, E. E. Clever, W. J. Marble.

H. H. Wende, city attorney and nominee for mayor of the town of Sunnyside, being present was invited by Mayor Shaw to address the council and did so in a pleasing and jocular vein, stating that he had come here to find out how the city was run in order to gain information and that he intended to investigate the workings of each department. The future mayor concluded with a neat eulogy of his own town, which he prophesied would soon rival North Yakima. This brought forth a merry ha ha from his audience. The council then adjourned.

The Chrysanthemum Show.

The ladies of the Episcopal church this week at the Armory gave a very unique and novel entertainment called a chrysanthemum show, or a "festival of the senses." Over 200 potted plants of beautiful chrysanthemums and other rare flowers, grown mostly by Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Bartlett, were in evidence, and presented a most pleasing and beautiful appearance.

Rainbow colors were used to decorate the hall, each of the seven colors employed in decorating the different booths representing one of the seven senses. The violet booth, Mrs. J. B. Burns, represented the sense of smell; the indigo booth, Mrs. George Gandy, common sense; the blue, Mrs. G. A. Graham, sight; the green, in charge of the young ladies of St. Agnes guild, touch; the orange booth, Mrs. H. M. Bartlett, nonsense; the yellow, Mrs. Burlingame, feeling; the red booth, presided over by Mrs. O. A. Fechter, the sense of hearing. The fete closed Thursday evening with a basket social and dance. Quite a neat sum is said to have been realized from the enterprise.

COMMISSIONER PACE DEAD

County Commissioner Dies at Sunnyside
Wednesday Night—County Officers
Attend Funeral.

Chairman Lince of the board of county commissioners received a dispatch from Sunnyside Thursday morning apprising him of the death of County Commissioner La Fayette Pace of that place, who died at 11 p. m. Wednesday night.

Commissioner Pace was a victim of diabetes, a lingering disease that has afflicted him for the past two or three years, so that the news of his death was not unexpected here. Chairman Lince and all of the county officers left for Sunnyside Thursday evening to attend the funeral, which occurred at the home of the deceased in the town of Sunnyside Friday at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Pace was elected county commissioner to represent the Third district in the fall of 1902. He was about 55 years of age and leaves a widow and several children. His death leaves a vacancy on the board which, according to law will be filled by the joint action of the two surviving members of the board and Superior Judge Rudkin.

Deaths.

Mrs. Littlefield, aged 28 years, 11 months, 23 days, died Sunday evening. The funeral services were held from the undertaking parlors of Sessions & Gilbaugh Thursday at 2 p. m., after which the body was shipped to Lincoln, Me., for burial.

Mary J. Shafer, aged 76 years, 7 days, died Wednesday morning. The funeral services were held Friday morning at 11 at the family residence at South Wenas avenue.

Miss Martha Rodenbeck, aged 18 years and 10 months, died November 15. She was the daughter of Frank Rodenbeck, a well known farmer of the Naches valley. Miss Rodenbeck was ill only a week previous to her death.

Mrs. Laura D. Slocum, aged 83 years, 11 months, died Tuesday at Yakima City, where she had been living for about two months.

D. M. Young died at his home on So. Ahtanum avenue Tuesday. He had been employed by the Cascade Lumber company in the capacity of night watchman previous to his last illness. He was 53 years, 7 months, 28 days old.

Will Construct a Ditch.

J. L. Lasswell this week sold the fixtures and made a lease of his West Side hotel to Mrs. E. M. Harris. Mr. Lasswell left Thursday with his family for Colville, this state, where he expects to remain for a few months, returning to Yakima next summer. It is rumored that Mr. Lasswell and his brother, J. H. Lasswell, have a big scheme on foot in the Colville country whereby they propose to irrigate a body of several hundred acres of valuable land contiguous to Colville, which they purchased about a year ago. Irrigation heretofore has not been practiced in that country except in a very limited way, and the Lasswells having acquired the necessary water rights, they expect to double the value of their holdings through the medium of a ditch to cover their land.

The White Bluffs Proposition.

J. W. Cover of Tacoma, who is associated with other Tacoma and Spokane men in the new town of White Bluffs, and the proposed ditch that is contemplated in that locality, was in this city Monday and made this office a pleasant visit.

Regarding an article that appeared in the Democrat a few weeks ago relative to the new ditch and new town proposition on the Columbia Mr. Cover said that the statements contained therein were true, but that only about one-half the truth was told. The proposed ditch he said, is to be taken out at the head of Priest Rapids, running to White Bluffs, a distance of about 18 miles, and would be made to cover 15,000 acres, instead of 5000, as reported in this paper.

Mr. Cover while here was in search of a practical artesian well borer to finish up the well started last summer in the vicinity of White Bluffs by H. B. Waring of Seattle, who sold his interests in that section to Mr. Cover and W. R. Todd of Tacoma. The new owners are anxious to begin work on the well and push it along with two objects in view, first, to demonstrate that artesian water can be had in that section, and, secondly, to secure a good supply of water for the use of the new town.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF NORTH YAKIMA.

It may be said at least in behalf of the gentlemen who are boosting for the "People's" ticket that they are not politicians, otherwise they would not have blundered so seriously.
Some of them, it is understood, vehemently deny that the platform adopted by the delegate convention declares for Sunday closing and assurances to that effect is said to have been given Mr. Fechter the candidate for mayor, in order to keep that gentleman in the race, although by what authority a few delegates could upset the work of the convention and nullify the platform unanimously adopted 24 hours earlier we do not profess to understand.

The Democrat is frankly of the opinion that the gentlemen of the people's party who are disowning or disavowing their platform are in error and by such means are lessening the chances for the success of their ticket. If the nominee for mayor was unwilling to stand upon the platform it seems to us that it would have been the better, policy to have secured a man who would, rather than attempt to demolish the platform which undoubtedly fairly expresses the sentiment of the great majority who are expected to support the ticket. The gentlemen who were expected to stand by their guns have retreated and left the artillery in the hands of the enemy.

The Democrat, however, has no fault to find with the personnel of the ticket. They are all good men and good citizens and if elected would, we believe, conscientiously perform their duties. It is unfortunate for the nominees, however, that they are obliged to keep busy explaining what the platform means or does not mean. Below will be found the plank in the platform that has caused so much contention. The Democrat believes that if it means anything at all it means Sunday closing, although many of the delegates might not have known this when they voted to adopt the platform. The plank follows:

"Fourth—We demand a through and fearless enforcement of all city ordinances and of those state laws applicable to this municipality."

There is nothing uncertain or indefinite about that plank. It has a good hard American ring about it that we cannot but admire. And for our part we cannot see why anybody should feel ashamed of it.

The Republic in its issue of last Saturday amused its readers with a half column of editorial drivel in the attempt to answer the well authenticated charge of this paper that the editor of our daily contemporary is a "political Jonah." It is evident that the shot from this quarter found a vital spot under the editorial epidermis of our neighbor, causing it to break forth in a flood of abuse and vituperation that ill becomes the usually dignified and sedate senior organ. Instead of attempting to disprove our charge, made in a jocular spirit, our friend of the quill waxes angry and sheds bitter tears. The incident proves that the truth, when spoken even in jest, is what hurts.

The counter charge of the Republic that this paper is a grafter is one that we feel can be dismissed with but brief comment. The editor of the Democrat has resided in this community for a period of eleven years and if the assertion is true that he is a grafter the public would be pretty apt to know it. As for a lack of independence on the part of this journal, as charged by the Republic, there may be something in that. It is possible that we are not capable of rendering absolutely impartial judgment on that point. It is true nevertheless that friends of this paper have frequently criticised the editor for being too independent. That it has at times lost business by refusing to "truckle" we well know, however, from experience.

The Republic in its conniption fit concludes that this paper as a paper and as a party organ is no good, and advises local democrats that it is necessary for them to have either a new editor or a new paper. It may sound a little presumptuous of course for Brother Robertson, himself an apostate, to offer advice to the Yakima democracy, but as in this case the advice is of a disinterested nature it might be profitable to give it consideration. As for a new paper, the mere thought is a nightmare, as newspapers are already a drug on the local market. But as for a change of editors the idea is feasible enough. At any rate, we are ready to retire from our strenuous stunt if our party and our patrons are dissatisfied with our labors and our policy. The only stipulation that we make is that our successor be a rock-rooted, ironclad, dyed-in-the-wool democrat.

COUNCILMAN E. J. WYMAN, who has been selected as a candidate for the office of mayor, will if elected, we believe, make a very satisfactory executive officer of the city. Mr. Wyman has served on the council for the past two years and it is needless to say that his record is good. His service as a member has given him a thorough understanding of the city's business and its needs.

If elected, and in all probability he will be, the taxpayers can rest assured that under his administration they will secure good municipal government in so far, at least, as the mayor can influence matters. Mr. Wyman says that he stands squarely on the platform adopted by the Citizens convention and will favor a liberal policy regarding public improvements, though within reasonable bounds. He also favors the badly needed extensions of our sewer system and vigorous legislation by the council to improve the sanitary condition of the city in every way possible.

In these important matters the nominee for mayor is in perfect accord with the nominees for the council on the Citizens ticket and in case that ticket is successful at the polls on the eighth day of December the people may rest assured that their demands for the improvement of the city's sanitary condition will be realized at the earliest possible date.

Col. Robertson says in his valuable journal that the present city campaign is nothing more or less than a fight between the Republican factions and such being the case he, Robertson, does not care to mix in.

This explanation will hardly go with the people. Everybody here knows that the colonel heretofore has had no scruples about mixing in factional fights. That is not the real reason for the Republic's assumed indifference at this time. It is rather because that paper doesn't care to take chances of offending anybody, especially any person in the habit of bringing business to its office. And yet only a few days ago that paper had the hardihood to accuse the Democrat of being governed by its "ad" and job office solicitor. Ah! We are not from Missouri, but we'll have to be shown.

It seems to be pretty well admitted that if the democrats can induce ex-Senator Turner to accept the nomination for governor of this state, he will be elected. There is no doubt but that the republican majority will be greatly reduced, as the election of United States senator by financial methods, and the grafting schemes introduced to promote legislation, have quite disgusted all sensible people.—Olympia Standard.

And that is no dream either Brother Murphy. The people of this State will be ripe next year for a change of policy and a change of men. Judge George Turner is by all odds the leading figure of this commonwealth and the man above all others that the people want to clean out the Augean stables. Judge Turner, it is well known, neither desires the nomination nor the office, but the Democrat believes that he is patriotic enough to accept when he sees that it is his plain duty to do so.

Information, apparently reliable, has come to the effect that Dr. W. H. Hare of Yakima county, speaker of the house of representatives, is a candidate for the state senate to succeed Senator Spawn. In the campaign in that district last year Senator Spawn was elected a democrat in a republican district, defeating Ira P. Englehart. If the remarks of the railroad leaders concerning the actions of Dr. Hare last winter may be taken as a criterion it is fairly safe to predict that they will not elevate him again to a position of such prominence. In two conspicuous instances the railroad men accuse him of loosing his nerve at the last moment and changing a ruling desired by the lobby to one emphatically, and in one instance dramatically insisted upon by the opposition.—Seattle Mail & Herald.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World recently interviewed a majority of the democratic congressmen, particularly from the south, as to their attitude on who should be the next democratic nominee for the presidency. A majority favored Judge Alton B. Parker of New York, while a strong minority preferred Senator Gorman of Maryland. Not one in the whole list favored the nomination of ex-President Grover Cleveland. In fact, many of those interviewed were most emphatic in the statement that Mr. Cleveland was not wanted. A representative from Texas declared that he would lose that state if he should run again.

It has been suggested to us that the editorial that appeared in the Republic of last Monday, presumably meant as a roast for the Democrat, must have been written in this office and after a substitution of names printed in the Republic. No, gentlemen that is a mistake. We are not guilty of writing editorial matter for the Republic. We might be accused of a variety of crimes and misdemeanors and regard the same with composure and acquiescence but we draw the line at having anything to do with the editorial page of our contemporary.

The Republic frequently boasts that it has the reputation of going down the line for its friends. It went down the line with its good friend, Mr. Fechter, last year into the mire of defeat, but this year the organ balks and shows a disposition to go back on its old friend. What is the matter with Fechter? Is he not every whit as good a man and as available a candidate as he was a year ago? What excuse has the Republic to offer for throwing Fechter down?

The Herald quotes with evident approval the coarse and slimy attack made by the Republic upon this paper. Of course, this might have been expected from our ancient contemporary. This quoted article, we might add in passing, is about as near an opinion as the old lady on Second street has ever been known to express during the past half dozen years.

Rev. A. Vail of North Yakima preached last Sunday at the Christian church, the memorial services of Miss Ollie Alexander, who died last October with diphtheria and could not have any funeral services at that time owing to the contagious disease of which she succumbed. The attendance was large of sympathizing friends.

Laura A. Slocum, the aged mother of Mrs. S. C. Rackliff, who recently came to this place from British Columbia, died at the home of her daughter of old age. Mrs. Slocum had been in poor health for the past few weeks. Her death came suddenly last Tuesday night at the ripe old age of 83 years 1 month and 5 days. The funeral was conducted by Rev. Bell at the Christian church last Wednesday afternoon and the interment was made in the Yakima cemetery north of town. The Yakima mill at this place put its first flour on the market here this week. The flour was all O. K. and will find good sales. This mill has been started several times under the management of very incompetent operators and has as a consequence been idle for years since. But Mr. Edw. Gains of Portland, Ore., who is a life time thorough experienced mill man operator and business man, has taken hold of this bonanza opportunity and has thoroughly overhauled, remodeled and extended this plant with new machinery, etc., so that it looks like a different mill, but it effects the city in no small degree. Mr. Gains will furnish us with flour hereafter and we congratulate ourselves on having Mr. Gains with us.

THEIR PHYSICIAN

By ROY RICHARDSON

Copyright, 1902, by the S. S. McClure Company

"Now, then, young man," yawned Uncle Bill as he got slowly out of his easy chair and surveyed his oldest nephew, who had begun to show marked signs of unrest over his occupation of building block churches, "what shall we do to put in the rest of this rainy Sunday afternoon?" "Let's play pingpong," Bobby suggested. "You're not big enough yet. Guess again, or I'll ping you." "Let's tell stories," ventured Bobby. "All right, old sport. You begin." "We'll," drawled the youngster in the singsong of rote, climbing into Uncle Bill's lap, "once on a time, w'y, they wasn't an-ny little boys 'n' little girls, 'n' pretty soon they was Cain 'n' Abel. 'N' they didn't have an-ny sisters or brothers or nothin' 'cept just a papa 'n' mamma, nor no Uncle Bills or nothin'. 'N' their papa 'n' mamma were cross one time 'n' told their little boys to go 'n' play, 'n' Cain he played too rough, 'n' he killed his little brother with a jawbone of a jackass!"

"UNCLE BILL, WHAT MAKES YOUR EYES SO BIG 'N' SHINY?"

"No!" ejaculated Uncle Bill in horror. "Did he now, really?"

"Yes, sir, 'N' that's all of that story. Now you tell one, Uncle Bill."

"Well," began Uncle Bill, "once there was a lazy old uncle, and he had a nephew whom he loved very much."

"I know whom he loved very much," remarked Bobby, wriggling. "Don't you, Uncle Bill?"

"Oh, lots of people," the young man agreed boldly. "Whom in particular, Bobby?"

"Miss Josephine," said Bobby in accents of firm conviction.

Uncle Bill shifted uneasily, but gave his nephew a hug.

"What made you think so?" he asked, with a studied air of indifference.

Bobby was silent, but his little mind busied itself wondering what caused Uncle Bill's chest to rise so high when he breathed the long breath he had just taken. It was intoxicating to feel oneself lifted up and let down exactly like being on a seesaw.

"Do it again, Uncle Bill!" he cried. "It's lot of fun."

Uncle Bill did not seem to hear. He was looking wistfully out of the window, and Bobby looked, too, but saw nothing.

"Do you love her, Bobby?" Uncle Bill inquired presently, smoothing the child's yellow hair. "Bobby, do you love Miss Josephine?"

"Yes," Bobby answered. "Why? What makes you—do you know?"

"W'y, Uncle Bill, the other day I fell 'n' hurt my knee, 'n' she—w'y, she kissed me 'n' made my knee all well."

"H'm!" muttered Uncle Bill. "Should think 't might."

"Uncle Bill," asked Bobby, "did Miss Josephine ever kiss you?"

"Little boys shouldn't ask questions," was the quick reply, and a soft cheek was drawn close to a rougher one.

"I won't," Bobby agreed. "But did she, Uncle Bill?"

"Yes, little boy, she did."

"Well, but didn't it make you all well?"

"No."

"Did you hurt yourself?"

"Yes."

"Where—in your knee?"

"No."

"In your stomach?"

"There or thereabout."

"Did it hurt much?"

"I say, Bobby," exclaimed Uncle Bill, with more or less feeling, "let you and me talk of something else. You are a very little boy, and you ask questions that are painful. I don't—"

"Does it hurt you yet?" queried Bobby, thinking of stomachs.

"Yes. Now, Bobby, if I—"

"Why don't you go 'n' see Miss Josephine? She'll try again. Maybe—w'y, she'll have better luck."

"I can't."

"Why?"

"Oh, because. What a lot of questions you can ask and how little you know, Bobby?"

"I know the 'twos' in multiplication table anyway—so now. Miss Josephine taught me yistiday. See? I wrote 'em all down."

Bobby put a chubby hand inside his small jacket, where was a pocket, and proudly drew forth an assortment of documents.

"There it is," he announced after a careful search, spreading a paper on Uncle Bill's knee. "It's the 'twos,'" he remarked, indicating a tippy column of hieroglyphics, the only legible character in which was the letter X.

"That means 'times,'"

"A very interesting exhibit," observed Uncle Bill. "What is that letter you have with the—the bunch, Bobby? No, not the picture card, the letter—the one in the blue envelope. Let me see it. What don't boys have in their pockets? Why, bless me, it's for me!"

"W'y, w'y, Uncle Bill," stammered Bobby in a sudden spasm, "w'y, I forgot! Miss Josephine gived me that for you. She said to bring it right straight to you. I—I forgot, Uncle Bill. W'y—w'y, Uncle Bill, what makes your eyes so big 'n' shiny? Oh, Uncle Bill! Don't—don't hug me so! You're hurtin' me awful!"

"Am I, old man?" Uncle Bill said in a queer voice. "Tell me, Bobby, when Miss Josephine kissed you, how did you feel?"

"All nice," answered Bobby, with self satisfaction.

Uncle Bill hugged his nephew again.

"Did that hug hurt you, Bobby?" he asked.

"Some," the child replied.

"Then you get an umbrella, Bobby, just as quickly as ever you can, and I'll take you on my back, and we'll run over and see if Miss Josephine can make us feel all nice again, as you call it."

"Are you going, too, Uncle Bill?"

"Yes."

"Right now?"

"The sooner the better."

"Yes," said childish philosophy sagely, "when you hurt anywhere, it's best to get it cured right away."

A Story That Varies.

There is a story more or less diffused of a young bride on her wedding day playing the game of hide and seek and concealing herself in one of those ancient carved chests of large size. After she had got in the lid closed and she found herself unable to raise it again, for it fastened with a spring and she was shut in. Search was made for her in every quarter but the right one, and great perplexity and dismay were caused by her disappearance. It was not till years after when chance led to the opening of the chest that the body of the young bride was discovered and the mystery of her disappearance solved.

The story is found in so many places that it may be questioned whether it is true of any one of them. Rogers tells it of a palace in Modena. The chest in which the poor bride was found is shown at Bramshill, in Hampshire, the residence of Sir John Cope. Another similar chest with precisely the same story attached to it was long shown at Marwell Old Hall, between Winchester and the Bishop's Waltham.

The folk tale of Catskin or Peau d'Ane represents the girl flying with her bridal dresses from a marriage that is repugnant to her, and as this tale is found all over Europe it may have metamorphosed itself into that of the bride who got into a chest and died there.—Cornhill Magazine.

Silence Often Best Rebuke.

Because a fault exists is no reason that it should be pointed out with no regard to time or place. It might not be difficult to prove that there is wisdom in allowing persons to make mistakes unrebutted for the time, but such wisdom can only flourish in a mind strong enough not to accept the evil of the day as final.

No mother, for instance, really thinks that her little daughter of twelve or fourteen is going to be a lifelong slattern because she keeps her bureau drawers in a tumble and is often seen without proper buttons, nor does any mother believe that a lie on the lips of her little son condemns him to a life of shame.

The faults must be met, but if they are not met by instant fault finding, but rather by the inculcation of higher standards and better habits, the actual offense needs little comment. Indeed absolute silence after a misdeed is often a more severe rebuke than a storm of protest and correction.

To make this silence judicious we must first of all cultivate in ourselves a just perception of values and proportions. We must train ourselves when to see and when not to see, what to leave out and what to keep in our lives.

Charles Lever's Characters.

Whence did Charles Lever get his rollicking Irishman? Professor Oman in his preface to the reissue of William Grattan's "Adventures With the Connaught Rangers" discloses the secret. It was clearly, he avows, from the domestic annals of the old Eighty-eight foot in peninsular days that Lever drew the greater part of the good stories which made the fortune of "Charles O'Malley." Many of the characters in that romance appear in the flesh in Grattan's reminiscences. Notably:

"The fame of the eccentric surgeon, Maurice Quill, was so great throughout the British army that the novelist did not even take the trouble to change his name. His colleague, Dr. O'Reilly, was almost as great an original. Many of the humors of Mickey Free seem to be drawn from the doings of Grattan's servant, Dan Carsons."

"Comparing the 'real thing,' Mr. Oman goes on, 'with the work of fiction, one is driven to conclude that much of what was regarded as rollicking invention on Lever's part was only a photographic reproduction of anecdotes that he had heard from old soldiers of the Connaught rangers.'—London Outlook.

Mission of the Microbe.

We have heard so much during the past three or four weeks about microbes that we are in almost constant fear whether eating, drinking or breathing, of being filled with some kind of bacilli or disease germs. It makes us long for the good old days of long ago, when such terms were unknown, when we "ate, drank and were merry," with no visions of an army of millions of disease germs threatening our destruction. It seems to us a subject on which the present generation has gone a little wild, and the germ theory as at present held by the profession generally only another instance of "cart before the horse." May not the bacilli be a natural aid in its cure, rather than the cause of disease, for does the cesspool breed the worms, or the worms the cesspool? We believe the cesspool exists first and the worms
come after to aid in its extermination.
It is just so with the disease germs—
when a so-called pathogenic microbe enters a healthy animal body, whether by accident or with malice intent, it stands about as good a chance of doing mischief as a mouse in a tight room
surrounded by a dozen hungry cats;
the idea being that the body in health
is safe-guarded by means of its various germicidal fluids, as saliva, gastric and intestinal juices, etc., and even the blood itself, peopled as it is with its myriads of phagocytes, always abundant and forever on guard against such encroachments. On the other hand, in diseased states of the body, the so-called germs of disease, the microbe, under this, that or the other name, are scavengers of waste and effete matter,
and actually one of nature's means of eliminating disease producing substances, just as the worms swarming
in the cesspool, or in the decaying carcass on the plains, are useful in their way. First, the animal body becomes diseased with filth, the product of indigestion and mal-assimilation, perhaps, or the lungs undergoing fatty degeneration from lack of sufficient exercise in fresh air, or what not, then the scavenging microbes act as aids in the saving of life.

Now, if the physician be wise as to the real condition, and in his measures for helping nature, of the animal organism, his procedures, plus those of the microbes, will usually affect a cure;
but if he bend all his energies to the destruction of his allies, it may mean
as we believe it too often does mean, the destruction of his patient. We have read of many fatal cases occur-ing in the practice of eminent physicians, who succeeded in exterminating
the tubercle bacilli in consumptive patients as well as the bacilli of other eight to ten days after the total disappearance of the "germs." The microbe certainly has a mission. Years ago typhoid fever was unknown here. It exists now because the city has become contaminated. Clean up the cesspool and the scavengers will also disappear.
Likewise our bodies, keep them in a clean, healthy condition and we need have no fear; and the surest and easiest way to do this is to use Yakima Best Flour, the purest and most wholesome food product in the state, manufactured under the most sanitary conditions by the North Yakima Milling company.

Winston's Wiggles.

From Winston's Weekly Spoken we clip the following:

In discussing religion Mr Winston says: "At first men sacrificed their own children on the altar, to appease God.
Afterwards they concluded it was more economical to save their children and sacrifice their enemies captured in battle. Afterwards they thought it was cheaper to put the captives to work and sacrifice animals; then they decided to keep the animals and pay into the treasury of the Lord a part of their value in money; finally they concluded the most economical way was to keep the money and do their own praying—and a fine sort of praying it is. If religion is ever overthrown it will be by avarice."

Local Market Report

The Local Market.

There has been no great change in prices offered for farm products this week over last week's quotations. Hay of all kinds holds firm at former prices
as will be seen by comparing schedules.
There has been a slight falling off in the sale of apples, partly owing to the freezing weather. The local market is being fairly well supplied with livestock and poultry.

Nearly 700 bales of hops have been sold since Friday of last week at prices ranging from 12 cents to 22 1-2 cents a pound, some of the larger lots being 200
bales from H. B. Seudder to McNeff Bros., price not given; 78 bales from George Eglon to Pincus & Sons at 22 1-2 cents; 40 bales from Walter Griffith to Fred E. Alter at 20 cents; while H. L.
Hart bought several small lots amounting in all to 350 bales with prices ranging from 18 cents to 22 1/2 cents per pound.

HE "NAME" NAMES."

A Correspondent Who Violated the German Journalistic Code.

The American newspaper thinks it essential to make clear the source of important statements. An interview with a nameless statesman whose identity cannot even be guessed from the context is put down in American newspaper parlance as "a fake." But the opposite method is the method in the continental countries of Europe.
There it is an unpardonable offense to name your informant.

This knowledge I purchased at rather an inconvenient price when I had been but three months in Berlin as correspondent of the American Associated Press. It was in the early autumn of 1894. Bismarck's successor in the un-sacred chair of the imperial chancellor, General Count Caprivi, had resigned
early in the evening after a stormy meeting with the kaiser. At 10 o'clock that night Caprivi received me an interview. He did not request that his name be withheld. In my ignorance
I quoted him in my cablegram that night. His talk to me had been brief, but to the point. He had told me of the causes that had led to his loss of favor with the kaiser and to his retirement.

But I had unwittingly violated one of the first principles in the code of German journalistic ethics. And I reaped a whirlwind of abuse for it.
"That news is bogus—must be bogus,
you know," said the German newspapers and their correspondents, "for,
don't you see, he has quoted Caprivi."
For years the reputation thus earned made my work doubly hard. Whenever I happened into one of the departments a whisper ran round, "That is the man who names names!" I never quite got over this during my long stay in Berlin.—Wolf von Schlerbrand in World's Work.

THE BABY OYSTER.

Its Habits in Its Home on the Floor
of the Deep.

The oyster is most interesting during babyhood, says Charles Frederick Stansbury in Outing. Its manner of making a set suggests the sublime confidence of childhood. It prefers to adhere to odd objects, and its childish taste in this direction often encompasses its destruction. If an odd boot, a waterlogged box, a brick, a lump of coal or piece of discarded and fractured crockery lies upon the bed of the ocean where a set is in progress, the young oysters or eggs will cluster thick and fast upon it, showing a very decided preference as against the surrounding natural anchorage. I have even seen a pair of corsets that could never again hope to imprison the waist of lovely woman entirely covered with a set of young oysters. Thus does Nature pay her tribute to Art.

A favorite foundation for life adopted by sensible young oysters is upon the shells of their ancestors long since defunct, and for this reason many planters strew the bottom of their holdings with such "clutch" in the hope that the wandering ova will stop and there adopt a local habitation.
Lying thus upon the floor of the deep, the young oyster begins to grow, and in doing so invariably points his little "bill" heavenward, an attitude that he maintains throughout life if undisturbed. As he grows older his shell is often used by the flora of the sea as an anchorage, and thus he is apt to be found enveloped in the foliage of the curious oyster sponge, coralline, red and green sea lettuce and other quaint species of algae and sea grasses. The dogwinkle, too, and his cousin, the per-iwinkle, are very fond of attaching their eggs to the shell of the oyster,
each one by a delicate stem, causing
it to appear like some curious sea flower.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14, 1903.

President Roosevelt is evidently determined that the race issue shall be kept alive, as he has sent to the senate, for the third time, the name of Dr. W. D. Crum to be collector of customs at Charleston. Twice before the senate refrained from taking action in this case, as the republican members did not wish to slight the president and at the same time desired to respect the wishes of the white people of Charleston as well as of the senators from South Carolina, who objected to Crum's appointment on the ground that he was a negro. As the senate did not positively refuse to confirm the nomination, the president named Crum as a recess appointment and the negro has been serving for some months despite the protests of the people of Charleston. But the president is resolved that the senate shall act in the case and has sent in the nomination once more. The question is likely to cause an interesting debate, and it is very probable that Mr. Roosevelt will not be supported by his own party in this attempt to force upon the people of a southern city an official who is distasteful to them. In this connection it is interesting to note that Representative Crumpacker of Indiana has reintroduced in the House his resolution of last session providing for the appointment of a commission of eleven members to investigate the condition of suffrage in the several states. The undisputed purpose of the resolution is to reduce the representation in Congress of those states which have disfranchised the negroes. In this way a number of republicans hope to increase their majority in the House or at least prevent the democrats from gaining the upper hand. Representative Dick of Ohio will also urge the passage of a resolution providing for an investigation of the subject of negro disfranchisement. His ultimate purpose is identical with that of Crumpacker. Even the authors of the resolution doubt if there will be a vote on them during the regular or extra session, but they, together with Crum's appointment will serve to keep the issue alive and make the negro vote safe for the republican party. The republicans seem to have profited little by the last election in Maryland where they were driven out of power in a campaign where the race question was the main issue.

With sober deliberation which is in marked contrast to the reckless impulsiveness of President Roosevelt in the affair, the democratic senators have decided to wait for fuller information before they make a party issue out of the actions of the administration in recognizing the defacto government at Panama before the revolution had been known of at the Columbian capital. A large American fleet is being gathered at each side of the Isthmus and Columbia has been notified that this government will not permit her to land troops at either Panama or Colon. M. Philippe Bonau-Varilla who has just been appointed envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the new republic, has been in Washington and took lunch with Secretary Hay who is giving him every encouragement in his attempt to have our government recognize the absolute sovereignty of Panama. Mr. Varilla sent a very patronizing letter to Senator Morgan asking him to renounce his opposition to the Panama route. After it was shown that the letter was a breach of diplomatic propriety the new minister excused his action on the ground that he wrote as a private citizen. In the letter, however, he addressed Senator Morgan as the minister of the Republic of Panama. Dr. Herran, the Columbian representative at Washington, has sent a firm protest to the state department against the action of the United States in recognizing the revolutionists and in preventing Columbia forces from asserting the national authority over the Isthmus. As the population of Columbia is about four million and that of Panama only about 200,000 the small republic would not last long if it were not for the United States. The new minister of foreign affairs on the Isthmus recognizes this fact, and says that the notification to Bogota from Washington is equivalent to forbidding that government from making war on Panama. In fact, as an officer of the administration said, "our government is bound to have peace if we have to fight for it." Although it has not yet taken a partisan form, the opposition to the President's action in recognizing a government three days after the revolution broke out, is determined and bitter in many influential quarters. This recognition has been termed an act of piracy, indecent haste, dragging the national honor in the mud, and has given this country the title of bully of the American continent.

In selecting Representative John Sharp Williams of Mississippi as their leader in the House the democrats have placed themselves under the guidance of one of the most able men in congress. For ten years Mr. Williams has served his party in the lower branch of Congress and forced the members of both parties to recognize him as an able and logical debater, a skillful parliamentarian and a power on the democratic side of the House. He is fifty years old, by profession a lawyer and by occupation a cotton planter. He was educated in the universities of Virginia and Heidelberg. Germany and is one of the learned men in congress. He speaks German, French, Spanish, Italian and Greek. At the Chicago convention which nominated Cleveland and Stevenson, he was a member of the Mississippi delegation and since that time he has been in politics. The only position he has held is that of member of Congress and he has always been elected to succeed himself. At the last election he received every vote cast in his district. As leader of the minority he has the highest position which the democrats can give and every prospect of being elected speaker as soon as the party gets the majority in the House. He and Gorman in the Senate are sure to put republicans on the defensive before the session is far advanced.

Because of his opposition to the Panama route Senator Morgan of Alabama is to be deprived by the republicans of the chairmanship of the committee of interoceanic canals, and the committee on committees in the Senate has been authorized to select his successor. It is most probably that Senator Hanna, a strong advocate of the Panama route third member of the present committee, will be made chairman. By courtesy of the majority in the Senate, the minority has ten chairmanships out of the sixty four. By removing Senator Morgan this number will be reduced to nine. To let the Senator from Alabama "down as easily as possible" he will be offered the chairmanship of the important committee on public health and quarantine, formerly presided over by Senator Vest of Missouri.
