UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT TO TALK FEW REMARKS

Pre^war Advertisers to Decorate
Scene; May Urge Raising Advertising Rates Immediately

Ye scribe was instructed by ye ed.
of City Desk to investigate a report that the publisher of the Republic
and Herald would throw a dinner
for the hands at Mr. Stean's w. k.
joint tonite, and on interviewing the official spokesman found that the same was so.

As near as we can find out, the hands pulled one on him last year
and he had to come through or go

OLD MAN PULLS PARTY FOR HANDS

down in history as a welsher.

About 120 of our fellows (male and female) will be there, and the spokesman tells us the University has loaned its president for the occasion and the Emporer of China has given Lloyd Spencer, W. k. talking humorist, permission to be there, and all of the valley eds. not engaged at the legislature will be in the bright galaxy of spectators as well as a sprinkling of country daily pubs.—presence of the latter depending on whether they keep their word or not, about which this deponent saith not.

Rumor hath it that a delegation of pre-war advertisers will be there to beg the boss to raise the advertising rates. Their argument will be, one said who said he could not talk for publication as it always cost him something, that if space rates were boosted the shop could pay more wages and thus the buying power of our workers would ascend upward—in other words, become more robust. Of this more anon.

This was all that transpired up to the hour of going to press, but in case anything more develops ye scribe will be there with bells to note it down and also will tell our thousands of readers that now is the time to subscribe.
