

Librarian Compiles Historical Accounts

A compilation of articles dealing with noteworthy events playing an important part in the development of Selah has been started by Mrs. Gene Brownell, city librarian.

Mrs. Brownell has done considerable research and has written a concise account of the town's development and present status but she would welcome any printed articles on the subject.

All materials are being preserved in plastic-covered pages in a leather-bound loose-leaf binder.

Often there are requests about historical events that have taken place in Selah, Mrs. Brownell said. There is very little of this material, she stated.

In compiling these articles Mrs. Brownell hopes to have a complete history of the town available to the public.
