

August 30, 1956

Library News Bulletin,
Washington State Library,
Olympia, Washington.

Dear Librarian:

My publisher, The Caxton Printers, Ltd. of Caldwell, Idaho, have advised me that you will have in your hands by September 15, a copy of my Drummers and Dreamers, for review purposes. This work will be released October 6. It is distinctly not a vanity publication.

I requested that the publisher include you on the review list, realizing your medium as an important one for keeping busy librarians throughout the Northwest informed of publications.

The book will speak for itself. The Wanapums and I are hopeful that Drummers and Dreamers will be recognized for the presentation of new material in the field of Northwest history and "western Americana; that the importance of the "Indian situation" rapidly growing into a major economic matter, will be recognized and that the book is a contribution to a field of previously untold history as well as history in the making.

We hope you like our humble contribution toward that desired aim.

Sincerely Yours

Cliff Relander