DEAR MR. RELANDER:

This is a self-introduction. The attached letter from James Weiss, Pocket Atlas, LET YOUR HANDS SPEAK and other literature will give you my background and interests.

As a travel writer I'll attend the Annual Convention of the Society of American Travel Writers in Seattle 9-13 of September and would like to learn more about the Indian Sign Language.

Please let me have your reply soonest and also indicate whether you expect to be in Seattle during our convention, I'd like to meet you in person.

Most cordially,

Stephen Streeter

Dear Mr. Streeter:

The sign language issue isn't dead! I've just found an excellent source for you regarding Pacific Northwest Indian lore ....

I am told that he is one of the really outstanding experts on the Pacific Northwest Indians. Perhaps you'll want to get in touch with him.

Sincerely,

DEAR MR. RELANDER:

It was most thoughtful of you to give me all the expert information listed in your letter. I am looking forward to the PAMPHLET and would like to reciprocate by sending you book: WASHINGTON HOST TO THE WORLD, a special Guide to the Capital.

Do you think that it would be better to write to the publisher or to the distributor of the book you described in your letter, INDIAN SIGN LANGUAGE?

I'll write to Mr. Weiss to include the available Indian event in our Convention program. And I still hope that we'll have a chance to meet in Seattle.

Personal.

Most cordially,

Stephen Streeter, ATA.
