

Newspapers

Will be Around on Monday-Owing to a press of other business,
The Herald accounts have not all been made up, but they will be by Monday, and on that day the collector will be around. Bills for a large amount of paper and new material are due and must be met, so don't forget the newspaper man--^Herald, January 2, 1890.

you to "have hold" ~~quick and hard~~ of something ~~quick~~ lest you fall down quick and hard and waste your money plenty. If you want to spend money for newspaper space you can see the mailing list of The Republic at this office. No trouble to show goods--not the slightest--The Yakima Republic, January 5, 1900.

The law of the State of Washington says that the otherwise qualified ~~qualified~~ elector must register before he can vote if he happens to live in North Yakima. We advise voters to take time by the forelock and register now. The office of the city clerk is next door to that of The Republic--The Yakima Republic, January 12, 1900.

Col. John D. Medill descants upon the virtue of the editor whose editorial page expresses his honest opinions and leads us to believe that if lightning should strike the editor of the Yakima Democrat, the number of virtuous men in the world would be reduced by one, to the great loss and detriment of a community whose newspaper men are all singularly modest. We quite agree with Col. Medill, but do not think he has grasped the situation in its entirety. The trouble with Col Medill, his constituents agree, is not due to what he prints but to what he believes--The Yakima Republic, January 12, 1900.

The superintendent of the Carlisle Indian school has written to ~~the~~ US denying that the bad Indian, Oscar Spencer, was ever a student of that institution, and characterizing the statement as a "western lie." The greatest failing of this superintendent, who is a major in the 10th United States cavalry, is evidently not politeness and while he may have common sense enough to run the Carlisle school or to pour sand in a rat hole it isn't likely he has any to spare besides. He need not continue to suppose , however, that the sun sets in the east after rising there or that liars are more numerous in the west in proportion to the population than infernal idiots in the east.

We notify him that it is not so. The error made by the Republic was first made by the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a paper which is edited with care and ability, but which like all others is liable to make mistakes. It was an error that was doubtless unintentional with the Post-Intelligencer and certainly was so with the Republic. It was also an error which was of no earthly consequence but one which we should have corrected with pleasure had our attention been called to it in a courteous manner.

We doubt if the United States government pays this major a salary to remunerate him for expressing his fool opinions in letters to the newspapers--The Yakima Republic, January 12, 1900.

With this issue the Herald enters upon the second year of its publication. Its owners feel much elated with its success in a financial sense and at the favor with which it is received by the public.

At its birth it was endowed with about two hundred subscribers of the Democrat which it succeeded, and the growth has been marvelous in a year. It has outstripped all contemporaneous publications in central Washington--Yakima Herald, January 30, 1890

The Ellensburg Register says that North Yakima is to have a daily paper and that the citizens of this progressive burgh have offered a bonus of $1,500 therefor. We are of the opinion that the Register is greatly given to romancing--Yakima Herald, January 30, 1890.

Newspapers

Ed C. Ross, at one time editor and proprietor of the Walla Walla Union has been appointed register of the U.S. Land office for the Walla Walla district to succeed Judge Ralph Guichard whose only fault , in the eyes of the administration , is that of being a democrat--Yakima Herald, Feb. 13, 1890.

Newspapers

The Spokane daily Globe will make its appearance about March 1st. It will nail the democratic pennant at its mast head and sport a special telegraphic service. -¹/₄ Yakima Herald, Feb. 20, 1890.

Newspapers

Delinquent subscribers are hereby warned not to let their daughters wear this paper for a bustle as there is considerable due on it and they might take cold--Yakima Herald, Feb. 26, 1890.

Newspapers

The Spokesmen is a new daily newspaper which will make its initial appearance at Spokane Falls on Monday. H.T. Brown of Spokane, several Chicago newspaper men are connected with the enterprise.

Spokane Falls promises to be well papered. The Daily Globe, an excellent evening paper of democratic degree, has made its appearance, and now it is authoratively stated that J.J. Browne has bought the Chronicle for $30,000, and will use it as an organ in his political fight.

Mr. Browne is credited with being worth many millions, and he doesn't propose to let a little coin interfere with the attainment of his ambition--Yakima Herald, March 6, 1890.

Five years ago the Spokane Review was a weekly newspaper, as the Yakima Herald is now. Today the Morning Review newspaper is easily worth $100,000 and the proprietors would perhaps refuse that amount for it.

In addition to this the proprietors of the Review purchased a building site less than a year ago for $30,000 and this ground now doubtless would be regarded as cheap at $90,000. In these facts the proprietors of The Herald may find some encouragement in their journalistic efforts-- J.M. Adams, formerly of Yakima, living at Spokane Falls in February 20, 1890 issue, Yakima Herald.

The new Goldendale paper has been christened the Courier. The initial number made its appearance March 7 and was a very creditable publication. Yakima Herald, March 13, 1890.

The Ellensburg Register, a paper published by one Sterling--who by the way is the most miserable scrub without respect at home or standing abroad--launches forth from his usual namby-pamby style into a violent tirade against J.M. Adams and the editor of The Herald.

The cause of this outbreak seems to have been a recent editorial in this paper which showed up the inconsistencies of John L. Wilson, who is now ludicrously posing as a rock-rimmed, copper-bottomed, yard-wide republican. --Yakima Herald, March 13, 1890.

Newspapers

The people of Anacortes paid the Oregonian $2,000 for the privilege of publishing its news- boom dispatches in that paper for a period of three months--Yakima Herald, March 27, 1890.

Everybody in Ellensburg and Yakima knows Leigh R. Freeman who used to run the Washington Farmer at the latter place and the anniversary of whose removal the good people of that city celebrated with much enthusiasm semi-annually.

Since he shook the alfalfa from his flowing locks and the sands of Yakima from his feet, he has wandered to the classic shades of Fidalgo island....Poor Freeman. It is with reluctance that we print the following item received from a correspondent at Deception Pass.

" A novel prayer meeting took place last Friday night at Gibraltar, those present asking Almighty God to remove one L.R. Freeman, a public nuisance, from their midst."

If the prayer is answered and the divine power intervenes in behalf of a long suffering public, the good people of Gibraltar and Yakima can fall on each others' neck and weep for joy at their deliverance--Ellensburg Register, March, 1890.

Newspapers

J.T. McDonald and Dorse Schnebley came down from Ellensburg Wednesday to attend to some land matters. Mr. McDonald is the Herald's first Ellensburg subscriber and he took occasion on his visit to renew his subscription--Herald, April 3, 1890 .

Word has been received by the Herald that the cuts for its big illustrated edition were shipped from Chicago on the 16th inst. The work of preparing the articles for this edition has been in progress for some time--Yakima Herald, April 17, 1890.

The Ellensburg Daily Register has suspended publication. This was due, according to the publisher's announcement, to the fire of July 4th, the failure of crops , the hard winter and the consequent tightness of money. The Register has not been self sustaining for a long time past and Publisher Sterling states that he could no longer carry the load and was compelled to suspend as a matter of self preservation before the sheriff stepped in and accomplished that work for him--Yakima Herald, April 17, 1890.

Centerville, Klickitat county is to have a newspaper, the plant having already been ordered. The proprietor is exhibiting more nerve than discretion--Yakima Herald, April 17, 1890.

Newspapers

W.B. Wilcoxson, Ph. Dr. , stated the other day that he had notified Proprietor C.M. Holton that he would be obliged to leave the Republic to a dismal fate, as he could not make his salt under present circumstances. Notwithstanding the various editors, business managers and proprietors who have essayed to build up the business of the paper, including the great and only Scroggs, it still fails to be paying property-Yakima Herald, May 1, 1890.

Newspapers

Captain C.M. Holton returned from Washington via Tacoma on Sunday. He "has decided to retire from newspaper business" he informed a Ledger reporter, and the Republic is for sale, but whether the publication is to be discontinued in the event that the paper is not sold has not yet been given to the world-- Yakima Herald, May 22, 1890.

Newspapers

The proprietors of The Herald intended to move into the Syndicate block but have finally decided to occupy the corner store room in the new Cadwell building which will be fitted and finished especially for the use of The Herald. When completed it will be the finest printing office in Central Washington--Yakima Herald , June 19, 1890.

Newspapers

"The Herald Vigorously Protests."

Captain C.M. Holton , editor of the North Yakima Herald, is in the city--" Tacoma News. (In Herald, June 26, 1890)

Mayor Nichols, at the solicitation of citizens, today telegraphed to the executive committee of the Washington Press association a cordial invitation to hold the annual convention at North Yakima and extending the freedom of the city--Yakima Herald , June 26, 1890.

The Tacoma News has just made a great step forward and is now printed on a Goss perfecting press, with a capacity of 15,000 eight-page papers an hour--Yakima Herald, July 3, 1890.

Newspapers

The animus of the Republic's attack on L.S. Howlett is becoming pretty well understood. Holton, the editor of the Republic, went to Olympia while the capital fight was in the legislature and on leaving Olympia also left a board bill amounting to $36.50. This he wants Col. Howlett to pay, although the why or wherefore does not appear. To emphasize his request Holton writes Howlett a letter threatening to burn him up in the Republic if he does not pay the $36.50 for him. Col. Howlett, in a dignified manner, takes no notice of this scurrilous attempt to blackmail him, hence the continued attacks on him--Yakima Herald, July 17, 1890.

The Herald will be issued next week from its new quarters in the Cadwell brick on the northeast corner of Second and Chestnut streets, where all of its friends and patrons will always be heartily welcomed--Yakima Herald, July 17, 1890.

The San Francisco Chronicle remembers the Herald with a medal souvenir on the 25th anniversary of that paper's birth on which ~~anniversary of that paper's~~ occasion possession was taken of its new and splendid nine story building. The Herald will endeavor to recrociate on its 25th anniversary--Yakima Herald, July 17, 1890.

Newspapers

Leigh R. Freeman, of the Washington Farmer, spent the greater part of the week in Yakima exchanging the smell of clams for that of bunch grass.

Freeman made a big thing by his removal to Fidalgo Island. He was given a big land bonus for moving his paper there, which realty is now said to be worth a half million dollars.

It is more than intimated that the people there stand ready to double the bonus if he will move away--Yakima Herald, August 14, 1890.

Newspapers

The Washington Sentinel is the name of a new democratic paper to be issued shortly at Ellensburg by Messrs Patterson and Reeves.

Wm. Putney, who for several months was learning the printer's trade at The Herald office, is now at death's door. His brother arrived from Eugene, Ogn., Wednesday night.-- Yakima Herald, September 18, 1890.

William E. Putney after a sickness of several weeks, died Saturday September 20. He was in his 25th year. He was a member of the Good Templars and it was under the organization of Company E.N.C.W. that his funeral was held. Herald, September 25, 1890

Wanted--A young man or good, stout boy to learn the printing business. Apply at the Herald Office--Yakima Herald, September 25, 1890.

Newspapers

The Roslyn News reaches our exchange table. It is a small paper but has many good qualifications besides being democratic.

A newspaper has been established at South Prairie, Washington. It is named the Echb and in speaking of the Gloria Mundi apoles it calls them the Glory Monday. That is good for a starter.

Pasco is to have another paper, 'The Cannon Ball. With two papers already established at Pasco, the Herald is puzzled to know where the powder is coming from to keep them moving.

Ellensburg's fourth paper, but the only one that shouts for democracy, has made its appearance. It glories in the name of The Washington Sentinel and if its present standard is maintained, it will shake up some dry newspaper bones in the metropolis of Kittitas
Yakima Herald, October 2, 1890.

Wood will be received at The Herald office in payment of subscriptions if delivered within the next two weeks--Yakima Herald, October 2, 1890.

The Herald has now in transit from St. Paul five tons of print paper and a ton and a half of ob paper, being the largest shipment of paper ever made to this city--Yakima Herald, October 2, 1890.

C.M. Holton undertakes by inuendoes, misstatements and untruths to blind the reader to the fact that he with gay company, occupied a lace curtained box at a variety theatre in Tacoma.

He should not do that, even if he is a husband, a father and a deacon in the church. It would be an error that could be overlooked, but to trifle with the affections of an innocent box worker and then with grim and solemn visage and pious protestations return to the bosom of his family, is unpardonable--Yakima Herald,

October 23, 1890.

Newspapers

S.T. Sterling of Ellensburg has retired from the newspaper business, having leased the State Register to Batterson and Reeves, who will hereafter conduct it as a democratic paper.

B.F. Young, the republican nominee for representative is a printer by trade, and worked on the Gazette, the first paper ever printed in Seattle in 1864. Previous to coming to Yakima Mr. Young was a resident of Sumner, where he owns a farm and hop yard.

It is reported here that Cale Reinbart has sold his interest in the Goldendale Sentinel to W.R. Dunbar and that he is negotiating for the purchase of the Yakima Republic. C.M. Holton, when questioned concerning this matter said that he had no knowledge of it.

Frank M. Sullivan, the representative of the Seattle Telegraph, was in the city Thursday, intent on swelling the subscription list of that excellent democratic paper--Yakima Herald, October 9, 1890.

Newspapers

The Pasco Pilot has evidently petered out and the Harper's have moved to New Whatcom where the Harper Publishing company is issuing an evening paper called the Exponent--Yakima Herald, November 20, 1890.

The Seattle Journal has been bought by the Telegraph and the two have been consolidated.

The Journal's existence will not be missed, as it had no opinions that were not purchasable and had no party and no creed--Yakima Herald, November 20, 1890.

Newspapers

By the death of Hon . J.M. Adams, the state of Washington loses a man of strong intellectuality and of powerful convictions, the only class of men who accomplish anything in life.

Mr. Adams won his way to the front from an apprenticeship in a printing office and at the time of his death was one of the most respected men in the state.

His decisions in important land cases were noted for their clearness and soundness , while his work in the broad field of journalism at once commanded attention and admiration.

For nearly a year he was editor of the Review, a position which he held under the most trying circumstances, filling at the same time the office of register of the United States land office in this city.

Overwork compelled him to resign his place as editor of the paper. Since his retirement from the land office his health has been badly shattered, and the rest of his time has been passed at his home in Yakima county where his services were first given to the territory.

Much of the success of the Review has been due to the work of Mr. Adams---Spokane Review, December, 1890.

...J.M. Adams expired in this city at 3:30 o'clock Monday...

James Madison Adams was born in Estell county, Kentucky, in 1851 and his family removed to Illinois in 1859. In 1863 he was apprenticed to the printers' trade school in the office of the Radical Republican of Mattoon, Ill.---

Thirteen years ago Mr. Adams came to this coast, settling in The Dalles. From there he went to Walla Walla where he did considerable editorial work with the Watchman. He became acquainted with the Yakima country and is probably the first man who suggested the advisability of locating the state capital in Yakima and his editorials in the Watchman advocating this more received much attention.

In 1880 Mr. Adams was appointed receiver of the U.S. land office at Yakima City, and while holding this office he established in 1883, at the urgent solicitation of his friends, the Yakima Signal which at once took a high position among the newspapers of the state on account of its able editorials.

.....

The funeral will take place from the family residence on the bench today at 11 o'clock a.m.--Yakima Herald, December 25, 1890.