

Northern Pacific's first North Coast Limited made its maiden run on April 29, 1900. The first electrically-lighted train to operate between the Midwest and the North Pacific Coast, it also introduced such travel comforts as steam heat, baths and barber-valet service to Northwest travelers.